The climax of the reception came when the French Generalissimo landed a few yards from Castle Garden, where his famous countryman Lafayette first set foot on American soil. The great stretch of open ground had been converted into a vast stadium, the walls of which were skyscrapers. At every window, on the roofs, even out on dizzy cornices twenty-five storeys above the street, were perched men and women, waving the flags of France and the United States. On the streets below were massed tens of thousands.

As soon as the soldierly figure in its light blue uniform stepped from the dock, a mighty cheer went up.

General Pershing was waiting, and the two soldiers shook hands and chatted together for a few moments. Then Marshal Foch paid his respects to a platoon of French veterans drawn up to receive him, soldiers of the artillery and iniantry, Blue Devils and aviators, some with emnty sleeves, all with decorations.

Next to be noticed was a battalion of United States Regulars, and then a group of Red Cross nurses in white uniform.

The insistent photographers delayed the Marshal a little while before he could enter his automobile, but finally the procession got under way, and started up Broadway.

As the line passed under the elevated tracks, motormen opened their whistles, and kept them open.

Rows upon rows of people filling the sidewalks, overflowing into the streets, and occupying every post of vantage on the buildings, shouted and cheered while the Marshal's car was passing, and long after it had passed.

All the way to the City Hall Foch stood up, responding to the homage of the multitude. Fluttering everywhere from the buildings and in streamers across the streets were the flags of the Allies, that of France predominating. From the windows of the tall office buildings poured down an incessant snow of paper and ticket tape.

As the procession passed, the crowds on the sidewalk fell in behind, filling the street. City Hall plaza was already packed before the Marshal arrived, but thousands more strived to find room there.

At the entrance, Foch found awaiting him a woman in gilt armour, riding a horse of gilt. It was Jeanne d'Arc. The Marshal saluted.

DECISION RESERVED IN STILLMAN APPEAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.— (Canadian Press.)—Surrogate Cohalen reserved decision yesterday on an application of Mrs. Anne U. Stillman, defendant in divorce proceedings instituted by James A. Stillman, to be made general guardian for their sons, James, 17 and Alexander, 11. Both sides were given a week to present briefs.

MOSCOW REPORTS REVOLT AGAINST RUMANIAN GOVT

RIGA, Oct. 29. — (Canadian Press.)— A wireless message from Moscow announced a growing revolt against the Rumanian government in Bessarabia. At the station of Romanovtsky, it says, a sanguinary encounter took place recently between Bessarabian insurgents and Rumanian infantry and cavalry, culminating in the blowing up by the insurgents of an important railway bridge near Chernovitz, in Bukowina. This resulted in a train wreck, in which, according to the despatch, many Rumanian soldiers were killed.

GERMANY WON'T RETURN RAILWAYS TO OWNERS

BERLIN, Oct. 27. — (Canadian Press.)—Radical reforms in the administration of state railways through the introduction of business methods was recommended yesterday by a board of experts who conferred in the Ministry of Transportation on the proposal to transfer government owned railways to private ownership.

The plan to turn over the state railways to private control, which has been under advisement for several weeks, was rejected as impracticable, even if the roads were surrendered to private operatives without relinquishing them entirely to public ownership.

BAND OF UNKNOWN MEN BURNS IRISH BARRACKS

BELFAST, Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The Police barracks at Passage, County Waterford vacated Wednesday, were burned this morning by a number of men who invaded the village. They warned the villagers in the vicinity of the barracks to seek safety and then sprinkled petrol about and set fire to the barracks. The men threatened penalties for anyone who gave information concerning the affair.

MRS. PARKER RELUCTANT TO RETURN TO CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.— (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Edith S. Parker, wife of Harrison S. Parker, head of the Cooperative Society of America, failed to appear here yesterday to testify in the investigation of the alleged bankruptcy of the concern. The hearing was continued for one week. Mr. Parker who had gone to Toronto to accompany his wife back to Chicago returned yesterday but made no comment on her failure to appear. Harris Williams, Mr. Parker's attorney, said, however, he had received a telegram from Toronto indicating Mrs. Parker was reluctant to return here.

LONDON, Oct. 29.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Startling evidence of a highly oragnized system of procuring arms and ammunition was given at Cardiff yesterday when Joseph Connolly, organizer of South Wales branches of the Irish Self-Determination League was charged with unlawfully hoarding revolvers and explosives.

The chief detective-inspector gave evidence that when he entered the prisoner's lodgings he found revolvers and ammunition and a large quantity of high explosives. He also found a number of highly important documents including a list of goods to be procured including revolvers, machine guns and ammunition. There was also a list of ports at which presumably, shipping could be obtained and plans of six powder magazines in the vicinity of Merthyr along with receipts signed by two men named Evans who have been committed for trial on a charge of breaking into a powder magazine at Merthyr.

Linen Shower

The annual jam and linen shower will be held at the Peterboro Protestant Home on Wednesday afternoon for the consumptoin of the aged in the afternoon. Tea will be served by the ladies in charge at four o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend this shower and contribute their mite to the stores laid tion. The secretary of the Home, inmates during the long winter months.

The word "jam" is a comprehensive term which covers anything at all in the bottled line, from raspberry preserves to the succulent white onion pickle, and "linen" means sheets, pillow-cases, towels, in fact, all sorts of those accessories which come under this classsification. The secretary of the Nome, in her report, mentioned the scarcity of linen, and it is hoped that there will be a generous response to the call sent forth. The proverbial sweet tooth of the small boy or girl is said to be one of the last things that departs with advancing years. No doubt the elderly men and women enjoy nice things to eat just as much as their younger frends and the smoothness of a spotless pillow-slip is probably as welcome to grey hairs as it is to the black or brown.

Sunday Reading Facilities at the Public Library will be made known

Cards will be placed in the different hotels notifying travellers. Attendance for the last three weeks.

The innovation recently undertaken by the local Council of Women in persuading the local Public Library Board to allow its reading rooms to be thrown open for the patronage of the public on Sunday afternoons, has proven a welcome opportunity to many who find a stay-at-home Sunday a somewhat blue outlook. The Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. has had charge of the Sunday reading-room for October, with Mrs. N. H. Sutton, educational secretary of the chapter, looking after the monitors necessary for the work.

On the first Sunday that the Library was opened, ten people attended, on the second Sunday, there were eleven, and the third, nine. Most of these stayed for quite a length of time persuing the magazines.

The local council has arrangements in hand for the placing of board and compelled to spend their fying travellers of the facilities offered at the Library. The idea was originated for the use of travelers in the town, of those people who noon of next week from 3 o'clock Sundays in one room, and for students of the different schools from out of town. It is in no sense an interference with church-going, and is simply a kindly thought of the ladies to fill in some otherwise lonesome hours.

The Mothers' Allowance Bill

An example of the efficacy of the Mother's Allowance Bill, which has during the past year been enlarged to cover a larger scope, is proven in the following little instance which is absolutely authentic:

Two years ago, a girl of eighteen, living in one of the adjacent country districts, became almost overnight, one might say, the sole prop of a family of ten. She was the eldest of the brood, and her mother died when the twins were two days old. Fifty acres of indifferent land comprised the available assests of the family, and the fifty acres bore a mortgage. The father was ill with cancer. For eighteen months, the girl struggled along, giving constant care and attention to the ailing man, the twin babies, and the other seven children of which she was the eldest, striving at the same time with the help of the older boys to wrest a living from the barren soil. The father has now died, and the girl of twenty assumes the burden of bringing up these 9 children, two of whom are mere infants. The impossibility of her task would be appaling if she could not rely on the Mother's Allowance which helps her out. With its assistance, she gets along and will probably get along in the way women have when confronted with apparently unsurmountable difficulties. And, to cap the climax she is already reckoning on giving the eldest lad, a bright boy of sixteen years, a good education, and will doubtless do it.

Will Hold Tea

The campaign of the National Sanitarium Association to raise a million dollars for the Consumptive Emergency Fund is preceding apace. Over four thousand dollars has already been collected, and the sum will doubtless be greatly augumented before the week is out. The Boy Scouts have distributed their envelopes for this purpose through every quarter of the city, the mannerly lads covering every nook and corner in workmanlike manner.

The 57th Chapter I.O.D.E. have made arrangements to hold a tea in the offcers' quarters at the Armories on Armistice Day November 11th, in aid of the Consumptive Emergency Fund.

RINSO—not a cake soap, not a chip soap, not a "washing powder", but fine granules that soak the dirt out of your clothes.

—the dirt is soaked out, not rubbed out by main force!

Children's rompers, grimy from the playground—kitchen aprons, curtains, towels—things you dread washing because they need so much rubbing—pile them into a tub of the rich bubbly RINSO suds. RINSO harms nothing that pure water may touch. Let them soak over night. Then—just rinse them, either in warm water or cold. Your clothes are gleaming white and CLEAN. RINSO has done all the work. For anything particularly dirty it will be necessary to rub, such as soiled cuff edges, etc. It has saved the weary hours at the washboard wearing out your clothes and yourself too. Do not wash the old way any longer. Get a package of RINSO, and do your washing the new and easy way.

At night—soak the clothes with RINSO
Morning—rinse them out. That's all.

If you have a washing machine—

Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing suds loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean—even the most soiled spots.

Nearly four thousand local women visited French Mission train

There was much to interest women in the exhibits—Hats were a disappointing feature—An eye to advertising.

Of the 7,500 people who passed through the seven cars of the French exposition train here last Wednesday, it is quite safe to say that fifty per cent. were women, and there was a good deal to interest the fair sex in the showing. There may be some ladies who will contend that Canada has not been surpassed by the much-vaunted products of the "fair land of France," and the time may yet come when women on this side of the Atlantic will contrive to set their own fashions. The elegance of the Parisienne was not lacking in the exhibits contained in the French train. There is a finish, a lustre, a nicety of detail, an atmosphere of elegance that would be difficult to duplicate.

"Keep Moving."

Although the constantly-recurring signs of "veuillez circuler,' or, as we inelegantly phrase it, "keep moving," prevented one from seeing everything there was to see; there was much to admire in a swiftly passing glance. The busts, the Sevres porcelains, the crystal goblets and vases that seemed far more exquisite than hoarded remnants of Venetian and Bohemian glass-blowing guarded carefully in many a dust museum, the fine medallions and lovely-hued enamels, the flashing and glistening masses of precious gems, rings, bracelets, pendants and cameos set against a background of sparkling rhinestones or edged with tiny pearls, marvellous bead-work in glittering ornaments and beautifll hand-bags, jetted fancies and sequins woven in intricate designs on delicate laces—all these would catch the feminine eve.

A gorgeous Bird of Paradise, super-costly, fragile, lovely, flared forth in pale yellow tints, tiny slippers with gemmed buckles, high, inadequate heels and the blunt, round toes (curious paradox) displayed themselves in cloth of gold and silver, elegant French corsets of palest pink encased painted ladies in glass cases, perfumes, powders, cosmetics in palest boxes of blue, pink and mauve, shimmery mesh-bags, lingerie of the finest cob-web daintiness with the frail laces of the French looms—all vied with one another in their separate appeals to the love of the feminine mind for the fresh and new.

Lovely Novelties.

The hats were rather disappointing—enormous straws in blacks and purples and small, rather old-fashioned shapes with ostrich mounts. There were feathers of all sorts—a lovely black and white ostrich neck-piece of the fluffiest and softest long, legant strands—but the gloves were illuminating. We have not yet reached to the height of such gloves as these; most of them with the popular gauntlet in all its many varieties, waiting the mould of a small hand. There was cut-work and stitching and embroidery of all sorts on these lovely gloves and short and long samples of velvety soft kid.

And how could we hope to rival the gorgeous cloths behind the glass windows of these coaches. Shimmering lengths of velvets, taffetas and flashing brocades, silver-threaded tissues in wonderful shades of blue, cream and cerise, crepe and satin and silk in draped magnificent hues.

Advertising Effects.

The French have an eye to effective advertising. A picture that looked like an expensive water-color, with green-robed, sun-burned Arabs outlined in marching silhouette against a warm blue sky, turned out on examination to be simply a reminder that this manufacturer's brand of boxed figs were the best ever yet invented. A Venetian scene with a yellowish-red backfround and a line of lordly camels, palm-trees fringing a motionless lake, exposed the merits of a toothsome sort of date. Their advertisements have a foreign tang. One grandiloquent example placed in Old English lettering beneath an exhibit remarked, "Through the original idea to the effective realization, the unique supervision offers that good harmony of the whole that spells quality," a statement which no one will willingly deny. Another reads, "Mounted and immounted walking sticks soots of wood natural and varnished. Creator of all Paris specialties. Injected bent woods, sword sticks and loaded canes." One wonders a little just what the final item in the following might apply to. "The most important makers of elegant and carefully-finished lingerie, made entirely by hand; chemises, nightgowns, combinations, knickers, 'periodic-trousseau'."

An indication that the sterner sex is not neglected in this department was the advertisement, prominently placed, of 'lingerie pour hommes."

Recipes

Almost any kind of meat may be used for a pie—beef, mutton, veal, rabbit, fish, game or poultry. They may be used separately or two or three different kinds may be mixed together. Then to fill up the corners and to give flavor, such as hard-cooked eggs, mushrooms, oysters, potatoes, onions and tomatoes may be put in.

Solid meat should be cut into small pieces, or into thin slices and rolled up; game and poultry into meat joints and the large bones removed. It must then be carefully seasoned according to the kind of meat used. Pies that are to be served cold may always be more highly seasoned than those which are served hot. A little grated lemon rind is always an improvement when white meat is being used. Chopped onions must always be added with caution; sometimes it will be found sufficient to rub the pie dish with a piece of onion, or with a cut clove of garlic, before commencing to pack it.

The meat should be packed rather loosely in a fireproof dish and piled high in the centre like a dome. A little liquid—water, stock or gravy—should then be poured in. If any bones and trimmings have been taken from the meat these may be made into stock while the pie is cooking and then used for filling up the pie.

All materials of a pie, at the moment when they are to be covered with the paste must be cold. If the paste were placed over the meat and sauce while they are steaming hot, the underside would condense the steam, swell up, become sodden and lose the character of crust. For the same reason every pie crust requires a quick heat at the beginning of the baking, to become set and hot, so as to drive the steam which rises up to it back again toward the meat. Always make a hole in the centre of the crust in order that the steam may escape.

Game Pie.

Game pies are now enjoying a return to favor. The following recipe is a favorite one for the making of this delectable pasty that dates back several centuries to its origin in England:

Make a paste of five cupfuls of flour, three-quarters of a cupful of fat, three-quarters of a cupful of milk, the yolk of one egg and half a teaspoonful of salt. Line a greased fire-proof dish with this paste. Chop three-quarters of a pound each of lean veal and fresh pork, or pass it twice through a food chopper, and season to taste with salt, pepper, powdered nutmeg and paprika. Place this forcemeat all around the dish inside of the paste. In the centre put strips of any kind of game, or of several kinds, with a little chopped ham or bacon, some chopped fresh mushrooms and one tablespoonful each of chopped parsley and chopped parsley; add half a cupful with one cupful and a half of good stock; put a cover of paste over the pie and bake in a steady oven for three hours. Serve hot or cold with vegetable or fruit salad.

Cornish Fish Pie.

In Cornwall everything possible and impossible is made into a pie, which is why, according to popular tradition, the devil always avoids Cornwall in his peregrinations, having a lively fear of being made into "devily pie."

A fish pie, in Cornish fashion, is not a dish to be despised. A good bass makes the best pie, but other fish may be used. The fish should be cleaned in the usual way, boned and cut into pieces about four inches square. The bones must be boiled down for stock. Lay the pieces of fish closely together in a fire-proof dish and season with salt, pepper and chopped arsley; add half a cupful of the fish stock; cover with a good crust, not too rich, and bake until nearly cooked; then, through a slit, pour in half a [illegible] and finish baking. Lift the crust and add a little more scalded cream before serving, but in Cornwall they can afford to be lavish with cream.

HALLOWE'EN COSTUMES

It is Hallowe'en. A group of hilarious youngsters in costume, including two Charlie Chaplins, a Topsy, a Gingerbread Man and an Indian, noisily approach the front door of a large house, ring the bell, and when the owner herself comes to the door greet her in chorus with:

Nuts! Nuts! We want nuts!
Nuts! Nuts! We want nuts!

The housewife, taking her cue, tries to guess the identity of her young guests. If she is successful, they must forgo the desired nuts; but if, on the other hand, she does not succeed in three trials, she must provide the triumphant youngsters with nuts laid in in advance for that very purpose.

This Hallowe'en game or custom, of course, has many variants; in place of nuts the youngsters may ask for apples or cookies or home-made candy. In any case there must be a tacit or expressed agreement between the youngsters and their elders in order that the former may have the fun of planning and making their costumes and the latter may have ready the necessary supplies.

Half the fun is in planning and making up the costumes. Here the co-operation of the parents is essential. The costumes must be inexpensive, not too elaborate, capable of withstanding fairly rough treatment, appealing, and of a kind fairly to disguise the identity of the wearer. Charlie Chaplin is one of the easiest: a small mustache, large shoes, a cane, ill-fitting clothes several sizes too large, and ability to walk and swing the cane like the original are the requirements. Another easy costume, which has the virtue of concealing the wearer very effectively, is the ghost. Many boys will prefer to make up as cowboys or Indians.

Costumes That Are Easy to Make.

Following are descriptions of very effective costumes and make-ups which are easily within the range of boys and girls from ten on up:

Chocolate Boy.—Use dark brown muslin cut after the fashion of the combination sleeping garment fastened in the back. Sew white frills along all the seams to represent icing. Make the headpiece two-faced and face the openings for the eyes and mouth with white; sew a white frill along the seam that joins the two faces.

Topsy.—Topsy's costume contains a combination of yellow, green and red, with a touch of purple. She is sometimes short of stockings and wears one that is white and one that is red. She likes jewelry, and big ear-rings, bracelets and finger rings always add to her appearance. She wears short pigtails, the more the better. These are made by dividing the hair into many parts, braiding each part, and then wrapping each braid with a small wire so it can be made to stand at any desired angle. Each pigtail should be tied with a white rag. The desired black on the face and hands consists of black grease paint rubbed over all the exposed parts, while red paint is used for the lips.

Chinaman.—The essentials for an honest-to-goodness Chinaman are loose straight-legged trousers with a few fancy decorations around the lower part of the legs, a loose shirt in Chinese colors, the tail of which hangs outside the trousers, a pigtail and a mask or make-up for the face. Make the pigtail by braiding together long black rags unless it is possible to get hair; fasten it under the back of a little round hat or a skullcap. A Chinese false face is the most effective disguise, though by the use of grease paints for the "three-cornered" eyebrows and the small curved lips the effect is more artistic.

Pierrot.—Pierrot is a comic character and the conspicuous costume, resembling somewhat that of a clown, is very suitable for Hallowe'en. Use white cloth cut very full Gather the legs into a ruffle. Sew big black balls or pompons down the front, and if desired attach one to the point of the fool's cap. Make the collar of black and stiffen it somewhat to make it stand out like a ruching. Wear white stockings and black slippers with this costume, and use a mask of either black or white across the eyes.

Clown.—The make-up is somewhat more elaborate than for the characters described above, but by no means beyond the powers of a boy or girl of twelve or fourteen. The facial make-up is more difficult and more important than the costume. A bald wig is almost essential for a starter. The face and ears are then covered with a grease paint called "clown white"; this is worked into the forehead and wig so that the edge of the latter cannot be distinguished. Bright red grease paint is then used to put in the distinctive facial markings according to the taste of the wearer. Usually heavy lines outline the edges of the eyelids; these lines are a little difficult, but may be put in by closing the eye and stretching the lid tight by pulling the outer corner away from the nose with the finger. The tip end of the nose is completely covered with paint and a red line drawn down the centre of the upper lip. The eyebrows may be emhasized to any extent desired and straight lines or dots placed on various parts of the face. Some clowns draw a heavy red line a half-inch wide around the face in the shape of a V or heart or crest. The costume may be a replica or modification of that worn by Pierrot. Large patches or polka dots or strips of colored cloth may be pasted on to suit the fancy of the wearer.

Tramp.—Producing the tramp effect artistically is more difficult than might be imagined. So far as the costume is concerned, old clothes that do not fit will serve. A ragged wig is desirable, but not essential, while a small derby hat, crushed or with holes in it, is good. The unshaven effect can be managed by means of crepe hair and a little spirit gum. Cut the crepe hair into very small pieces, put the spirit gum on the face at the place the beard is to show—making the outlines somewhat irregular—and then pat on as much of the clipped crepe hair as will stick; this gives the effect of a beard of several days' growth. Ruffle the eyebrows by brushing them the wrong way. Put on the final touch by wrinkling the face as much as possible and darkening the creases with dark red or brown or black grease paint. With a suitable costume and a good facial make-up, a boy of fourteen can be made into a tramp that his closest friends will not recognize.

Crepe-Paper Costumes. — Crepe paper can be used as the basis for a large number of costumes, such as the rose, carrot, butterfly, Jack Frost, gypsies, colonial girl, patriotic characters and various animals or flowers. The crepe paper can be obtained at slight expense in all colors and can be used with any pattern made for cloth: special patterns for crepe-paper costumes can also be obtained, with full directions and with suggestions for color combinations. Crepe-paper costumes are invariably made over a foundation of cloth, the paper being sewed or pasted on as seems best. A muslin slip which fits the person and is buttoned at the back is usually most satisfactory; if the fastening at the back is ribbons there will be none of the trouble encountered with hooks and buttons that cannot be found in the crepe paper.

GETS ROLLING-PIN MEANT FOR FRIEND.

Woman Waitops Meter Reader in Mistake For Scrappy Neighbor.

CHATHAM, Oct. 28.—One of the city's meter readers is nursing a sore and aching head by reason of his becoming the central figure in a case of mistaken identity.

While going about his duties his path led to a house in which a neighborhood fight had just taken place. The woman of the house, hearing his rap at the door, jumped to the conclusion that it was her fighting friend returning for more. Swinging a rolling-pin she opened the door and—Bamb!

The meter reader was still groggy when he reached the office, and, it is said, the woman's husband is having a gigass panel put in the door.

HONOR IS PAID TORONTO SURGEON

Dr. Primrose on Board of Regents Of American College of Surgeons

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 27.—Dr. Alexander Primrose of Toronto was yesterday elected to the Board of Regents of the American College of Surgeons, to serve until 1924.

Dr. Harvey Cushing of Boston, is the new President of the organization, which will meet next year in Boston.

Alexander Primrose is a distinguished surgeon in Toronto, and is Dean of the Faculty of Medicine in the University of Toronto. He served with the University of Toronto Hospital unit at Salonica, and later ws consulting surgeon for the Cnadian forces in England until the war was over. He had the honor of C. B. conferred upon him in 1918. Dr. Primrose was born in Pictou, N. S. in 1861, and was educated at Pictou Academy and the University of Edinburgh. He came to Ontario in 1899.

BIG LONDON SCHEME TO EXTEND TUBES

Proposal to Expend £6,000,000 to Give 20,000 Men Work.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The biggest single scheme yet suggested in connection with the Government's unemployment policy has been submitted to the Government by the Underground Railways Company, which proposes to raise £6,000,000 to spend on developing and extending the London tubes.

It is claimed that in this undertaking employment could be given to 20,000 men for two years.

The Underground Railways Company asks the Government to guarantee the interest on the sum proposed to be raised and grant the company "reasonable security" against competition for 10 years.

Let the Women Tell Their Story

Mrs. M. E. Robson, 170 Dublin St., Peterboro', Ont., writes: "My daughter of 15 lost appetite, color and was on the verge of nervous collapse. Five boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food completely restored her health and strength."

"From my experience as a wife and mother I find that the majority of users of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are women, especially women passing through the change of life; next by young mothers to regain strength after baby comes, and also by mothers for their young daughters entering their womanhood. While it is good for all classes of humanity, I am sure it is especially so for women, as they seem to be troubled most by nervous diseases."—Mrs. H. Alchorn, 23 Gerald Street, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

Mrs. Wm. Woods, Coldwater, Ont., writes: "After the birth of my baby I was run down, nervous and could not eat nor sleep, jumping at the least noise. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food built me up and made me strong and well again."

Mrs. H. Alchorn, 23 Gerald St., Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes: "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food was recommended to me by an aunt who used it while passing through the change of life and was completely built up by its use."

Mrs. Jos. Lalonde, Hydro Glen, Ont., writes: "I was so run down and nervous last summer that I was in bed most of the time. After using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I am able to do my housework, and, though 76 years old, feel better than I have for years."

Every woman is interested in another woman's letters, and we shall give the women a chance to present their experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food by quoting from their letters.

If you do not find anyone you know among these ladies, write us for references from people in your community, or ask your friends and neighbors for particulars about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

There is scarcely a town, village or hamlet in this great country but can produce splendid evidence as to the restorative, upbuilding influence of this well-known treatment for the blood and nerves.

Mrs. Jennie Haywood, 98 Turner St., Ottawa, Ont.: After 16 weeks in a hospital with rheumatic fever I returned home a complete nervous wreck. I took six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and have had no return of nervous trouble or rheumatism."

Mrs. W. H. McIntyre, Gananoque, Ont.: "About five years ago I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when in a state of absolute collapse, and continued its use until I had taken fourteen boxes. I cannot praise it enough, for it worked a miracle in my case."

Mrs. May W. Taylor, 1309 Davie Street, Vancouver, B.C.: "Ten of my circle told me that they take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for that 'all-in' feeling attendant on the care of children and performance of housework. I myself take it for nervous irritability, and absolutely depend on it. I give my children the Nerve Food during 'examination week,' and am sure it helps them."

Mrs. Annie Bellamy, 33 Pauline Avenue, Toronto, Ont.: "Since the 'flu" epidemic people are resorting to preventive measures more than ever, and find that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food gives protection against the 'flu' and all other germ diseases."

Mrs. W. H. Stoker, 68 Robert Street, Hamilton, Ont.: "A young mother told me she was so glad I advised her to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food after her baby was born. She had tried many things, but after no success with them I told her just how much benefit I had gained with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so she also used it with the same wonderful results."

Mrs. R. I. Scott, Teacher, Czar, Alta.: "After teaching school for two years my nerves were in a shattered condition, and I had almost incessant headaches. The doctor told me I would have to quit, but a teacher friend told me how she was restored by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food under similar conditions. My nerves were completely restored, so that I thoroughly enjoy life."

Mrs. John O'Donnell, 50 Colonial Street, St. John, Nfld.: "While some used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for run-down condition, ragged nerves and sleeplesness, there was one ailment which predominated—nervous headache. In combating nervous headache Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has no rival."

Election Campaign Beginning to Set the Stage in West Peterborough.

Registration of voters for the preparation if new lists to be used in the general election will begin in Peterboro on Monday at 9 a.m. and continue until Saturday at 9 p.m. The bye-election lists will provide the basis of registration in the city, but in the townships the municipal lists will be used when the rural registrars take up their work later in the campaign. Men and women who have moved into Peterboro since the bye-election, those who have attained their majority since then, or others whose names were omitted or who have any doubt about their registration now should make sure next week that their names are on the list.

Registrars will be on duty daily from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. except for intervals from 12 to 1 o'clock and from 6 to 7 o'clock. They are as follows:—

Joseph Mills at R. C. Braund's store for polling sub-divisions, 1, 2, 3 and 4.

J. H. Callander at Cowling's store corner of Charlotte and Downie streets, polling sub-divisions 5, 10 and 11.

Chas. Elliott at Veterans Bread Company's Office, entire north ward

F. J. A. Hall at Routley's store, corner Brock and Park streets, subdivisions, 12, 13 and 14.

Miss Isabela Morgan, all Ashburnham, at Miss Swanson's house.

For the registration of rural voters the officials will be the same as in the bye-election if they are available. Announcements will be made later as to when the listing of the electors in the township will be begun.

ENGLISH PART OF ELECTION PROCLAMATION TORN OFF

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Copies of the proclamation notifying the public as to registration of all qualified to vote in the forthcoming Federal elections posted in the St. Lawrence and St. George division, this city, have been torn down, the Returning Officer for the district reported last night. Only the English part of the proclamation has been torn off, French portion being left intact.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Re Canada National Railway

Dear Sir:

As there is so much of late said about Canada's National Railway and its heavy defict and reading the chairman of the Commissions lengthly report in the Globe wherein with good business logic he requests the people to patronize their "Own Railway" more it would be possible to lift it out of the hole in applying it to myself I signed up that this past few months my family connections and myself have paid out about $12.00 on C. N. R. and nearly $400.00 on fares on other lines and yet they near all run into the same places between Windsor and Montreal it Is true the old G.T.R. was slow 35 years ago, but now have the finest trains in Canada. I read that we are to have one on exhibition in Peterboro, November 11th. The C.P.R. is a magnificent corporation, but I think we should divide up patronage with "Our Own Railway."

Yours, Ed. Courtney.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—People who critise the conduct of public affairs and attack politicians as almost unworthy of notice, are not the first to volunteer at election times to help conduct elections, either in getting the candidate out or the vote on election day. How do these good people expect elections to be handled or put through? They will not run themselves. The candidates ought to be sure of the active support of all who are in a position to help. DISINTER BODY OF RECLUSE TO PROBE DEMISE

SUGGESTION THAT MILLIONAIRE WAS POISONED LEADS TO AUTOPSY—CHIEF BENEFICIARY ONCE TEACHER HERE.

METHUEN, Mass., Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—After an autopsy on the body of Edward F. Searles, millionaire recluse who died at his estate here in August, 1920, some of the organs were sent late yesterday to Dr. William F. Boos of Boston, for chemical analysis. Dr. George B. Magrath, of Boston, one of the Suffolk County medical examiners, performed the autopsy, assisted by Medical Examiner George W. Dow, of Lawrence. They declined to make any statement pending the analysis of the organs, which they said might require a week or more.

The autopsy was ordered by District Attorney Howard Donnell after he had received anonymous communications suggesting that poison might have caused Searles' death. The crypt beneath the chapel of the Searles estate was broken open and the body was removed in the presence of the chief of police of Methuen, two state officers and a lawyer representing the executors of the estate.

After the casket had been opened these witnesses withdrew and only an undertaker and Dr. Magrath's stenogrpaher were present at the autopsy, which occupied four hours. The body, except for the organs removed, was returned to the casket and crypt.

Edward F. Searles left an estate of which has been variously estimated at from $14,000,000 to $40,000,000. Arthur T. Walker, of New York, who had associated him in legal matters, was the chief beneficiary. Walker was formerly an Ontario school teacher.

MANY SERVANTS IN BOLSHEVIK RUSSIA

PETROGRAD, Oct. 29.—The impression abroad that there are no servants in Russia is an error. One gets a different impression in walking through the Kremlin where cooks and housemaids may be seen throwing water out the windows of the various apartments where prominent officials of the government live.

And when one tries to hire a cook, he finds it is easy enough if a large salary and sufficient foodstuffs are offered. The cook in the leading cafe in Moscow is said to be getting 50,000 rubles a day and three square meals.

Tipping is forbidden by decree, but waiters and other servants not ony expect them, but frequently demand them and express a desire for sugar or other foodstuffs, rather than rubles.

GRAIN DUST EXPLODES IN MONTREAL ELEVATOR

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—(Canadian Press).—An explosion of grain dust in the boot of one of the legs of the Harbor Commissioner' No. 1 elevator, at the foot of McGill street here, caused damage estimated at between $5,000 and $10,000 and wrecked a small portion of the structure yesterday. Two men were slightly injured by flames during the explosion but were able to return from the hospital later in the day. The cause of the explosion is stated by experts to be fire of undetermined origin.

THE CAUSE OF 90% OF SICKNESS

DUE TO THE LIVER

There is a cause for headaches, indigestion, rheumatism, constipation, skin eruptions, aches and pains, etc. Until you relieve the cause you cannot expect to get anything but temporary relief. You cannot expect relief from any of these aches and pains until you have started your liver to work. There is only one thing known that will act upon the liver and that is Tanated Calomel Tablets. Your doctor will advise you to take one before meals, or two at bedtime. Your liver will immediately begin to excrete bile into the bowels, and the kidneys, bladder and blood will soon be cleaned out and you will be feeling bright, fresh, alert, vigorous and like a new person. Tanated Calomel is sold by F. C. Webber, Charlotte street.

NEEDLES MAY BE YET IN PIPE.

Radium Hunter Wades in Sewer, But Does Not Find Them.

HAMILTON, October 28. — Though H. Walker, the expert from Pittsburg, made a very thorough search of the hospital sewerage system with the aid of an electroscope he failed to find any trace of the four missing radium needles, valued at $10,000.

Mr. Walker had the Victoria Avenue sewer blocked, and, clad in oilskins, traversed it for a distance, but without success. It was thought the radium might have lodged in some of the traps about the hospital, but a careful inspection of these was unavailing.

An experiment was tried with material made up in form similar to the radium needles, which was thrown into the sewer. This was watched for at the trap, but it did not appear, and it is thought the radium needles might have caught in an elbow and still be in the pipes in the hospital.

The theft theory has not been entirely abandoned.

ANGLO-AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP THE HOPE OF WORLD.

Leacock Says Two Nations Greatest Power on Earth.

OXFORD, Eng., Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Dr. Stephen Leacock head of the department of political economy in McGill University at Montreal, Que., told the members of the British-American Union in an address here yesterday that the British and American peoples should have a better knowledge of each other, maintain more sympathetic personal relations, if a British-American union, without pledge or compact, is to become a fact.

He declared that the time for a "parliament of man" and "federation of the world' was not yet. "The League of Nations, though it may contain within it the seeds of future concord, cannot serve as yet as a shield against aggression and injustice" he affirmed. "The principal hope of the world is to be sought in the continued friendship of Britain and America.

"The vast communities of peoples gathered under the British and American flags represnt an organization of power easily superior to any force that could conceivably be brought against it. Where these two nations lead the world must follow. Peace and war lie in their hands.

"On the other hand, disagreement between Britain and America spells ruin, —not only for themselves but for the world. So great is the power of each that war between them could mean nothing but mutual destruction. Neither could conquer; both must fall.

"The efforts of every honest citizen should be bent towards the maintenance of peaceful relations and mutual understanding. There is no question here of union in the narrower sense, of federation in its organic form. A century and a half ago it might have been. But the page is written and cannot be blotted out.

"But for the more real form of union there is still ample need and opportunity. The basis is there in a common speech, common literature and a common tradition. To a great extent the tie of a common descent still holds. The union that is needed is not one that is contrived with pen and ink and written on a scrap of paper, but the union that reflects as understanding and a common purpose, a union of sympathy and not of symbols.

"To my thinking the best and truest means of union is to be sought in enlightenment. Our quarrels in the past have arisen from our lack of knowledge of one another, our inability, through ignorance, to share one another's point of view. For this the remedy is better knowledge. The more we can interchange our thoughts the more certain are we of agreement. As far as possible, we should seek to share one another's ideas, through books, through the press, through the drama.

"We should facilitate in every way the sympathetic relations of our great universities. Harvard should come to Oxford, and Oxford in return should come and sit among the elm trees of Cambridge in Massachusetts, listening. There should be between Britain and America a constant and perpetual interchange, a sort of tidal ebb and flow of all that makes for scholarship and literature. Much is already done. But much remains. In business men have long since found out that the personal relation is everything. We must not rely upon conclaves of cabinets and congressmen. We must know one another. In the face of such knowledge ill-will will vanish, and British-American union, without bond or pledge or contract, will become a fact."

THE DEL MAR QUARTETTE

The opening of the Winter Lyceum Course at the Conservatory of Music took place last evening with a crowded hall to welcome the Del Mar Quartette, four musical young ladies who offered a well-rounded and pleasing programme, which called forth the constant applause of their audience.

The Del Mars are young, enthusiastic musicians, whose splendidly-arranged programme gave full scope for the exercise of their several talents in vocal, instrumental and elocutionary numbers.

The programme opened with the swinging measures of "General Pershing's March," arranged for piano, violin and 'cello, followed by the "Stradella" Overture, with smooth, minor theme. Three selections from the "Peer Gynt" suite, by Greig, for the three instruments, were excellently rendered, the mournful measures and dirge-like refrain of "Ase's Death," contrasting strongly with the gay pizzicati stringing throughout "Anitra's Dance." "The Dutch Patrol," a group of old Netherland airs, was much enjoyed, the quaint, old-fashioned music rolling out with a broad, sustained style that faded to a far-away, pianissimo shading.

The recitations, which were delivered with a style that enchained the attention of the hearers from start to finish, and with a voice apparently capable of evoking many different emotions at will, were exceptionally good. Two in gypsy costume were in the Italian style: "Down at Old Aunt Mary's" had a lovely accompaniment from 'cello and violin of the "Traumerii" with muted strings, and "The Old Violin," pathetic and passionate, evoked sustained applause.

The violin numbers, well played, were Wieniawski's "Mazurka," Drdla's "Souevnir," with muted strings, and an arrangement, particularly pleasing, of some of the older songs whose appeal never fails.

The 'cello, with full, rounded tone and fine fingering, had a specially effective number in "A Dream," a pensive number in the cantabile style with a deep, resonant finale. Vocal selections in solo, duet and quartette numbers were tuneful, harmonious offerings, with light, high soprano voices and a deep contralto, including humorous and classical offerings. "The Old Town Hall," "The Birthday," by Huntington Wood; "The Shepherdess," in old English style; "In Old Madrid," "Honey Boy," "I've Been Longing Dear, for You," with violin and 'cello obligato, and an effective rendition of "The Barnyard at the Break of Day," with imitations of barnyard activities, were encored loudly.

A pleasing and effective program was brought to a close by "An Old-Fashioned Sketch," with old-fashioned songs, rendered by the ladies in old-fashioned costumes of blue, hooped skirts, fichus and flowered panniers, finished off by a dignified measure to the lilt of Beethoven's "Minuet."

NO MONEY WASTED BY MISSIONARIES.

Every Dollar Working Overtime Declares Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown.

That the Women's Missionary Society may enjoy forty more years of material and spiritual enrichment was the fondest wish of Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, D.D., LL.D., general superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, expressed in Trinity Church last night, where he spoke on behalf of the Women's Missionary Society in honor of this year being the fortieth anniversary of its founding.

Dr. Chown told of his 20,000-mile trip through the East last year, and made particular reference to the intense spirit of Japanese Methodism. He referred to the increasing numbers of wealthy Japanese laymen who are supporting the church, and due to the spirit of devotion amongst the Canadian and native missionaries and the support of the people at home, progress is being recorded everywhere. Dr. Chown assured the Peterborough Methodists that no money is being wasted by the missionaries, and every dollar is working overtime. Prices, he declared had gone up more than in Canada.

Fundamentals Wanted.

Dr. Chown spoke somewhat deprecatingly of the actual accomplishments of the Ecumenical Conference in London recently, representing 40,000,000 Methodists, which he has just returned from attending. He said he wanted them to get down to the fundamental things of world-wide interest and effect, and discard the academical discussions they seemed to favor. In connection with this, Dr. Chown deplored a press that would devote columns, literally pages, to Charlie Chaplin, and hardly deign to notice such an event as a Methodist conference, although millions of people were interested in its decisions. He advocated a rational policy of publicity for the Church, although he was somewhat afraid of allowing reporters to handle "copy."

The general superintendent here spoke with confidence of the League of Nations, and made an appeal to all Methodists to work for international brotherhood. One thing he learned at the conference, he said, was that no matter what cry they might take up for political purposes the Americans desired a peace-governing body like the League of Nations as much as their Anglo-Saxon brothers.

Church Union.

Dr. Chown only made a passing reference to church union. He said that it was something that must be faced. It was vital, he said, and he came from London more assured of this than ever. The leader of the Methodist Church strongly denied that the Church was propagating union that it might be taken in "out of the street." Dr. Chown said, not in a boosting or a boasting sense, "that his Church was, according to the record, the financial leader of all other Canadian Protestant churches, and statement of such character were belied by the true facts."

FINISH SEASON'S WORK ON THE HIGHWAY SOON

Five Miles of the Road South-west of Peterboro Have Been Completed.

With five miles of the provincial highway between Peterboro and Springville completed construction work will be wound up within the next two weeks, according to information the Examiner received. Work is no being carried on at a fill near the Fowler farm and when this side stretch is finished there will be no further section undertaken until next spring. Farmers regard the five miles of completed highway as a most creditable performance.

HON. WALER MITCHELL IS ASKED TO RUN

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Waited on to-day by a deputation which announced to him his unanimous election by the Liberals of St. Antoine division as a candidate for the forthcoming federal elections, Hon. Walter Mitchell provincial treasurer, stated that he would give a definite reply not later than next Wednesday. Hon. Mr. Mitchell said before coming to a final decision he would have to ask to be relieved of his duties as provincial treasurer and would have to put before the electors of Richmond County the question of his resignation as their representative in the Quebec legislature.

SHERIFF DOUBTS MULLEN

ever taken place in Carthage, Sheriff Mead declared. Spain was an old Carthage boy, widely known and popular, and the villainous slaying aroused such a feeling in the city that before Tucker confessed his implication lynching was threatened. A strange soldier had been seen around with Tucker, who arrived home on leave from Camp Eustace, Virginia, on May 3. There were numerous soldiers around the city and the authorities have no definite information of the two soldiers' actvities and no one at present, it is stated, who can definitely identify this stranger as Mullen.

On the night of the 8th Spain received a telephone call to pick up a passenger at a certain point, calling for another on the way. The voice did not have the subtle qualities of the south-middle-western and the police of Carthage learned it had been a Canadan sound. This was the last message Spain ever received. At 9.30 a.m. of the 9th his auto was found abandoned with blood on parts of it about a mile and a half from the city. It was not till Thursday that the body was found in the Spring river twelve miles away, where it had been heaved from the bridge. "It was a two-man job, for it would take two to heave Spain, who weighed about 165 pounds, clear into the stream without resting him on the rail. There was only a small mark of blood on the rail," said Sheriff Mead.

A Chance Clue.

Tucker was arrested on a chance clue within an hour after the murder. He held out his innocence till Thursday, when he admitted his implication, but claimed Mullen was the actual murderer. Two .45 bullets were lodged in Spain's heart and brain, and fitted Mullen's revolver, which was found near the scene of the murder. When confronted with this evidence against him in Guelph on Thursday, Mullen stated that he left his gun with the second camp cook at Camp Eustace.

According to Tucker, Mullen was in Carthage the morning of the murder, around 6 a.m. If that is true the first train by which he could leave would be the 8.15 by way of St. Louis. But if Tucker is mistaken, he could have got away on the 3.55 a.m. Constable Evans believes that Mullen came into Havelock at 9.30 from the west. If he left Carthage at 3.55 he would have about 41 hours to cover this distance, or if he did not leave till 8.15 he would have only 37 hours. Sheriff Mead considers the distance covered, if proved to be right, remarkable, and only possible of accomplishment if he had paid his way and was experienced in railway travelling.

Conflicting Testimony.

Two facts against Tucker's story implicating Mullen are that he did not have a cent on him when arrested, whereas Tucker claimed he had $200 when he left Carthage, and if he had, he would not be beating his way. There are many points to be cleared up before Mullen can be convicted of the murder crime. Mullen admits being in the same unit with Tucker at Camp Eustace, admits deserting, but claims he came to Canada and had no connection with the crime. If extradited and charged he will have to prove that he was in another part of the country at that time.

FRONTENAC PROTEST AGAINST ROAD COST.

Two Townships Complain That They Can't Pay Their Share.

The appeal by remote townships in Frontenac County against the assessment for a new provincial road, which will cost $750,000 when completed, illustrates the wisdom of Peterboro County Council in the method employed here in handling a similar problem. When the question of adopting the Government's road policy was under discussion a couple of years ago, the northern or "back" townships in Peterborough county, decided to stand aloof from any extensive and expensive scheme which looked all over like a real benefit for the "front" or southern townships, and for them alone, including the city.

The representatives of Peterboro's townships were never enthusiastic about the Good Roads scheme. They liked the idea of building up and improving their roads, but they were dubious about the financing of construction work and maintenance, which sound common sense convinced them would pile up a bill which the farmers would have to pay. The "top six inches of the soil' hereabouts is not streaked with gold and silver veins, although it is as productive as some of the best sections of the province. And as far as the north townships were concerned they refused to be drawn into the good roads group, preferring to depend upon their own efforts plus the usual assistance from the county and from the Colonization Roads Department.

In Frontenac, the townships of Kingston and Pittsburg, which are traversed in their extreme southerly limits by a new provincial highway, complain that they are unable to pay the proportion of the cost that would be assessed against them. D. M. McIntyre, chairman of the Municipal Board, expressed the opinion that present apportionment of costs fixed in 1919, could not stand as it is. The Board reserved judgment.

The highway forms a link 40 miles long, and its estimated cost is $75,000, but George Hogarth, chief engineer of the Provincial Highways Department when pressed by W. F. Nickle, K. C., solicitor for the county, for a definite statement as to whether the highway through the two townships would cost ultimately $1,500,000, would not swear to that amount. All the townships in the county are charged with the cost of the highway although it is 100 miles distant from some of them.

At the same hearing the city of Kingston protested against an order to pay part of the cost of 15 3-4 miles of the provincial highway east and west of the city on the ground that it has expense enough in paying for its own pavements connecting the provincial roads, east, west and north. This application for relief was dismissed by the Board for the reason that the three roads involved were a direct benefit to the city because of the traffic they carried.

NEW FURNITURE AT NEW LOW PRICES

On Monday morning, the Home Furnishing Co. of Charlotte street, begins a "Cash Overstock Sale" of their entire store stock of new furniture. To those housekeepers who have been waiting for a long time for a drop in furniture, the time has now come.

To show how radical are the reductions since the general drop, the advertisement, which appears on the third page, gives a number of striking samples of the lowered prices. The great bargains offered by the Home Furnishing Co. spell economy and suggest that prospective buyers should call and look through the big display. The heavy stock must be moved and the low prices should do it.

Read the advertisement to-night, and start buying on Monday.

LITTLE IMPROVEMENT IN TRADE IN THE WEST

MONTREAL, Oct. 29. Canadian Press. — Back from a business trip to the western provinces, Ross McMaster, vice-president of the Steel Company of Canada, stated that he could see no indication of any immediate resumption of industrial activity or until the present crops had been turned into cash. The drop in the price of wheat had, he said, disheartened the grain growers in spite of the good crop.

NO MORE SLEEPLESS NIGHTS---FINDS HEALTH IN INTERNAL BATHING

Mr. F. C. Voigt, Queen's Hotel, Rapid City, Man., writes:

"For the last few years I have been a sufferer from indigestion, nervous debility, insomnia and allied troubles. My health became so bad that I despaired of living through the winter. Loss of appetite and sleep were making my condition unbearable. I purchased a J. B. L. Cascade, and though only using it for a short time, have obtained remarkable results. My appetite has returned, and I am enjoying the refreshing sleep that I have had for years. I regard it as Godsend."

If people only knew what Internal Bathing is doing for thousands of others fewer pills and Laxatives would be taken and very much less suffering from Constipation and the accompanying Stomach and Nervous Troubles resulting from it.

If you are robbed by constipation of the sound sleep and good appetite so essential to health and vigor, you should not lose a day in availing yourself of the simple home treatments which hundreds testify have meant for them a new lease of life.

LILY LAKE SUNDAY SCHOOL SOCIAL

MISS SHEARER GAVE AN ADDRESS ON G RLS' WORK

The Merry Maids and Champions' 'Teen Age Classes of Lily Lake Sunday School held a very successful pie social last evening at Lily Lake Schoolhouse. The sum of $16.30 net was realised as a result of the evening's work, which will be used for missionary purposes.

Miss Shearer, a returned missionary from China, gave an interesting address on 'teen age girls' work in that country, and Mr. Jos. Mann, superintendent of 'teen age boys' work in Smith Township, also gave a brief talk.

The following programme, which was much enjoyed, was given by the pupils of these classes:

Opening chorus, "The Maple Leaf for Ever." Solo, 'Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," Grace Thompson. Recitation, "The Village Blacksmith," Marion Payne. Recitation, "Bairnies Cuddle Doon," Amy Thompson. Song, "Let the Rest of the World Go By," Eulah Hancock, Mary Middleton, Louis Payne. Song, "Peggy O'Neil," Louis Payne. Chorus, "Hark! the Shepherd's Voice I Hear," by Merry Maids and Champions. Duet, "When He Cometh," Marjorie and Helen Thompson. Recitation, "The Chores," Robert Lockey.

Mr. B. Middleton acted as chairman for the evening.

LABRADOR FISHERMEN FACING STARVATION.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Fishermen and their families on the Labrador coast, between Shecatika and Bradoro, are facing starvation because of the failure of the season's catch and the lack of market for dried stock, according to a telegram to the Quebec Government, asking for a supply of flour. It adds that the families are destitute.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

A merry masquerade party took place at the Y.W.C.A. last evening. The rooms were lavishly decorated with pretty Hallowe'en fancies, and the entertainment was carried out in true Hallowe'en fashion. A mysterious ghost greeted the arrivals at the door, and, following a long rope, they proceeded to the nether regions where all sorts of mysterious happenings and shadowy figures awaited the unwary footsteps. A grand march to judge the many striking costumes was staged in the gymnasium, the judges (Mrs. B. Gardiner and Mrs. Morrison, superintendent of the boarding department) awarding the first prize to Miss Frances Park as 'Folly," and the second prize to Mrs. Paul Manning as "Autumn." The Green Room and library were filled with a jolly throng of fortune-seekers, who sought to read the future by means of a brimming cauldron, a lucky horseshoe, and the garrulous gipsy. There were games with apples on strings and in splashing tubs, and the programme concluded with a ghost story told by Miss Layton and refreshments of cakes and coffee.

The Hallowe'en social evening held last evening in the basement of the Sacred Heart Church drew a packed house, and netted a nice sum for St. Anthony's Sewing Circle, under whose auspices it was given. The ladies intend to devote the proceeds towads the purchase of materials to be made into articles for donation to the coming bazaar in aid of the extension to St. Joseph's Hospital, and are much pleased at the response to their efforts.

The Hall was decorated with all manner of Hallowe'en fancies in a very effective manner. Booths for the sale of candy, ice cream and fruit did a rushing business and the different activities were entered into with much enthusiasm.

The ladies in charge were Miss A. Gordon, assisted by the Misses Ruby and M. Lynch, Mabel Desautel, Mary Halpin, Anna McGuire and "Babe" Martin. Young men helping were Messrs. Clancy, Lazure, H. LaPlante, Isidore Gordon, R. Paquette and Wilfred Breault. Mesdames O'Carroll, Kirkcaldy, Clancy, Duffus and Cooke had charge of the lunch counter. The euchre contest was won by Mr. R. Gordon, and the contest to be won by the quickest eater of an ice cream cone, entered by six small boys, went to Master J. Collins.

An interesting musical programme was rendered by an instrumental duet from Ethel and Harold Armstrong, a vocal chorus by a number of school children, and recitations by Mr. J. John and Master J. Gordon.

The Catholic Women's League at Ennismore held a very successful At Home last evening in their parish hall in aid of the extension to St. Joseph's Hospital. A large number of the parishioners attended for a very enjoyable evening of cards and dancing. Mrs. George McNerney, president of the Ennismore branch of the league, had charge of the arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Wm. Young, Mrs. J. Cavanagh, and the Misses Noriel Crough, Nellie Killen and Kate O'Connor. Prizes for cards were won by Miss Kathleen Harrington and Mr. McAuliffe. Rev. Fathers Cantillon and Gillogly of Peterboro, and Rev. Father Galvin, of Downeyville, were guests at the social.

A charming tea which was attractively carried out in every detail, was held yesterday afternoon at St. John's Rectory, under the auspices of the Church Women's Association, with a sale of home-made cooking and a musical programme. Mrs. R. C. Blagrave received, assisted by Mrs. G. L. Brewer, president of the Association. In the tea room, where Hallowe'en decorations were carried out in a unique and striking effect with black and yellow streamers, cut outs and tiny pumpkin lanterns, Mrs. A. L. Killaly presided, and Mrs. D. Mulholland poured tea, assisted by Mrs. F. Hills, Mrs. J. F. Strickland and Miss Maude Rush. Mrs. W. T. Holloway superintended the sale of cooking, with Miss Margaret English, and a very enjoyable musical programme was rendered by Mrs. G. G. Evans, Mrs. W. M. Bingham, Mrs. J. H. McDonald, Mrs. Perks and Mrs. Dickenson.

The ladies realized a nice sum from their tea and sale of cooking, nearly one hundred ladies attending during the afternoon.

Rev. R. E. Spence, of Hamiota, Man., reached Peterborough Thursday evening on a short visit to his mother, Mrs. Eliza Spence, and his sister, Mrs. H. A. Fife. He leaves this afternoon for Toronto. He is the representative of the four Western Conferences on the Executive of the Methodist Book Room Committee, which meets next Tuesday morning in the Book-Room, Toronto. He will return to Manitoba next Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Smyth, 532 Bolivar Street, returned this morning from a pleasant visit to their son and daughter in Oklahoma City, U.S.

Mrs. Henry Sholer, of Peterborough, is visiting Mrs. S. Stewart, of Burnt River, and her sister, Mrs. Robt. H. Henderson, of Kinmount.

Miss Agnes Murray, of Campbellford, is in the city for a short visit.

Mrs. B. A. McAvoy and baby are with Mrs. Tooley, Rubidge Street. Mr. and Mrs. AcAvoy are removing shortly to Ford, Ont.

Mrs. Wm. Waugh is spending a few days with Mrs. H. M. Bishop, 553 Homewood avenue.

The staff and students of the Normal School were entertained very pleasantly last evening by the Epworth League of George Street Methodist Church, assisted by the Ladies' Aid Society. Nearly 250 people attended for an enjoyable evening, spent in contests and music. Adresses of welcome were tendered by Mr. C. E. McKee, president of the League, by Dr. J. E. Midleton, president of the Sunday School, and by Rev. Mr. Young. The halls were darkened, and the guests were led by ghostly guides to the basement of the church, which was decorated with appropriate Hallowe'en streamers, etc. Refreshments were served and an enjoyable musical programme rendered by Miss Bird and Messrs. Harold Jones and Campbell. Miss Marjorie Ingall, in costume, recited a very effective ghost story.

POTATOES UP TO $2 A BAG TO-DAY

HIGHER PRICES PREDICTED—FOWL PLENTIFUL ON LOCAL MARKET—APPLES ABUNDANT

Marketeers who invaded the farmers' market in great numbers to-day, filled with hopes of eggs being cheaper, were doomed to disappointment, for instead of showing a tendency to drop in price they jumped five cents higher than last week.

With eggs at 65 cents a dozen, buyers carrying away a basket full were regarded askance—almost as if they had committed a felony. To say the least they were in the plutocrat class, for only about one out of four buxom farm ladies had eggs, and even then perhaps only a dozen or two.

Fowl Aplenty.

An astounding aspect is apparent in the market these weeks because of the immense quantities of fowl brought in. Wherever the eye travels, chickens, ducks and geese fill the vision, and the peculiar, overwhelming odor of the air in the hall is traceable to slaughtered poultry. Spring chickens and old hens alike were 25 cents a pound to-day, while geese and ducks were more plentiful than last week at 30 cents. Butter was fairly plentiful and was the same as last Saturday, 45c. a pound.

Potatoes Up.

An increase in the price of potatoes and a lessened supply featured the open market. Potatoes were up to $2.00 a bag to-day, and the farmers are predicting higher prices. Carrots and parsnips for winter's use were in fair quantities and sold well at 40 cents. Winter onions were 75 cents a peck or $4.00 a bag. They are said to be scarce. Some nice ivory heads of cauliflower were offered to-day, selling at 15c. and 20c. Cabbages were plentiful at 10c. and 15c.; squash, big golden pumpkins, etc., were also all plentiful at five cents up to 15 cents. Every grower had celery and there were some fine bunches at 10 cents. At the foot of the stairs young boys were proclaiming water cress at five cents a bunch.

Apples Plentiful.

Practically every wagon or car contained apples in greater or lesser quantities. Every variety grown in this vicinity must have been for sale. Housewives, out for the best, found No. 1 Northern Spies at $7 and $7.50. According to quality the price being graded down to $3. A Cobourg apple buyer with a truck full of apples, and busy taking orders for others, had a remarkably good quality Spies at $3.50. He declared them to be hand-picked and only slightly defective. His best were $7.50. Bellflowers were 50 cents a peck and glistening Golden Russets the same. It was quite interesting to watch many housewives rushing hither and thither looking for apples at a minimum price. Some seem to think they should be given away.

Pork 16c. and 18c.

Pork was plentiful to-day at 16c. and 18c. a lb., fore and hind quarters. Beef, fore quarter, was 12 cents. Young hogs were $9 and $10 a pair.

For the first time this autumn wood was offered at $10 for a 3-4 cord load of maple.

NICE LITTLE FISH TO MEET WHILE SWIMMING

This huge sunfish was recently found in a fishing boat's net when it was hauled in at Monterey, California. It is one of the largest specimens of this peculiar fish captured recently. Sunfish apparently have no body, the tail coming right behind the fins. They are of little or no value commercially. Turn the picture sideways and you have an idea of how he looks swimming through the water.

Peterboro Oct 24.

To the Edtor of the Examiner,—

Sir,—It would be appreciated if you would publish this letter in an early issue. Several days ago "we three'" strolling players wandered into Peterboro—"broke", a company in which we were working having met with continued misfortune, finally going up in smoke in a small town hard by. With sufficient finances to take us as far as Peterboro we made our way there with the end in view that we might possibly arrange with one of the local theatres to place on or more of our vaudeville acts. It so happened that as such arrangement was possible, the local managers being powerless to book any acts independent of their head offices or other than those sent in by their agents. Therefore we were still broke— only more so. The object of this letter is to thank the people of Peterboro for the great courtesy shown to us while in this bad fix for those we came in contact with certainly helped us beyond measure and in such a way that we were not made to feel like five cents, as is sometimes the case in similar circumstances. With the exception of one every theatre in town did something to make the pill a little easier to swallow, our appreciation is therefore due to the managements of the Grand, Allen and Capitol Theatres—particularly to Mr. Rex Snelgrove, whose help was both timely and certainly unstinted. We must also mention; with one appreciation our friends at the King George Hotel who kept a roof over our head the while(yes, sir—it had come to that) and here's hoping that you Peterboro folk who may read this will realize that one good turn deserves another and that you will give these various enterprises your continued support— they verily reserve it. We must not overlook our friend at the Public Library who also materialy assisted us in a time when things looked mighty black. So people of Peterboro we thank you. Some day we'll get together again under better circumstances and in that day we will not forget.

Who are we? Just,

"THREE PLAYERS".

Editor, Evening Examiner:

Sir,—Have read with interest Rev. Mallot's address condemning the movies as places unfit for children. To this a great number will agree; but the question arises, if we cut this out, what have we to offer in its place as entertainment and enlightenment In lieu of this would it not be possible for the church, Sunday schools and day schools to inaugurate a sort of Band of Hope meetings holding concerts, also amateur theatrical performances. I remember when we, as school children, rehearsed and put on the "Merchant of Venice.' It was the thrill of our life. The hall was packed with visitors. The young girls and boys also had dumbell exercise, and club swinging competitions, one school against another; medals were awarded. These suggestions are made for what they are worth. If we take anything away, let us try and replace it with something better.

"ONE INTERESTED."

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—A few nights ago I read with considerable interest an item concerning the Bakers' World Fair at Toronto, and the possibility of bread being distributed in waxed paper wrappers, and the purpose of this letter is to ascertain why we cannot have our bread in Peterborough delivered in a more sanitary way.

It is needless to go into details as to where the method of handling our bread might be improved (everyone knows them), but it is a fact that wrapping before being loaded into the waggons would overcome 90 per cent. of them

We are improving the water supply and fighting disease other ways continually—why can not our bread be handled in a better way?—Yours very truly, Housekeeper.

Havelock, Oct. 28, 1921.

Dear Sir,—As an elector of East Peterborough, I wish to congratulate The Examiner on the excellent and fair report of the Liberal Convention recently held in Norwood. I am sure it is greatly appreciated by everybody. One point, however, your reporter overlooked was to note the attendance of so many prominent farmers, who are also members of the U.F.O. It shows that clear-headed thinking farmers condemn this class movement and also the "recall." I might mention one case, that of Mr. Easson, Reeve of Otonabee. Mr. Easson is serving his sixth term as Reeve, and is generally credited with being by far the best Reeve Otonabee ever had. His six elections by acclamation being proof enough. He is also president of the Keene Club of the U.F.O., and might easily have been the U.F.O. candidate in this election if he had so wished. He headed a large representation from Otonabee, and was elected vice-president for that township, thereby having the direction of the Liberal campaign in Otonabee, which ensures Mr. Dewart having a sweeping majority there. I am sure it is a satisfaction to Liberals everywhere to see this. Mr. Easson's defection is a staggering blow to the U.F.O. in East Peterborough. Arrangements are being perfected for him to address a series of meetings in the Liberal interests, as he is a very fluent speaker and a clear thinker. These meetings will have great influence among the farmers.—Yours,

Wm. F. Ross.

NEW DRUG WILL MAKE MILLIONS OF PEOPLE WE

NEW DRUG WORTH MILLIONS TO SUFFERING HUMANITY. NUMBERLESS PEOPLE GO DOWN TO THEIR GRAVES 10 TO 20 YEARS BEFORE THEY SHOULD.

A poisoned system soon decays, causing early death. We are only as old as our livers. When the liver is out of order the system is unable to discharge the waste matter, causing a poisoning of the whole system, which no doubt causes all sorts of aches and pains. When the system becomes poisoned, some organ of the body is sure to suffer. It may be your stomach, Kidneys, Liver, Intestines, etc.

There is only one drug known that will relieve this, and that is Tanated Calomel, which is the only drug known that will act directly upon the Liver. Tanalated Calomel is very different from all forms of Calomel. It is very quickly up by the system, and acts o Liver in a few minutes after ta No Salts, Seidlitz, or Castor O necessary to remove it from the tem, as it is self-eliminating. nausea, sick stomach, or gr after taking.

You no doubt have been t all sorts of Tonics, Laxatives time to time, with only temp results. The reason is that no these medicines act upon the L and you cannot have good h with a disordered Liver.

Doctors recommend that take One Tanated Calomel abo minutes before meals or take t bedtime, and you will get a sleep, waking in the morning fe 100% better, full of vigor, b alert, clear-headed, and ready good day's work.

Tanated Calomel is sold in P borough by F. C. Webber, 220 lotte Street.

PLOWING MATCH AT CENTREVILLE

HELD ON THE FARM OF JAMES M'GILL—THE LIST OF PRIZE-WINNERS.

400 AT MATCH

CENTREVILLE, October 29. — The ploughing match, under the auspices of the Cavan and South Monaghan Ploughmen's Association, held on Friday, 28th October, beginning at 10 a.m., on the farm of Mr. James McGill, Centreville, was the greatest success in the history of the association.

About 400 people were in attendance, and had the morning not been so threatening, doubtless many others from a distance would have motored over for the occasion.

The judge was Mr. W. H. Patterson, of Agincourt, and it is surely worthy of note that Mr. Patterson stated that in Class 2 the work done compared very favourably with that of the Provincial match recently held at Woodstock.

Three tractors and twenty-two horse-drawn ploughs entered the competition. The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church, Centreville, served both dinner and tea in their usual efficient manner in the Sunday School Hall, and, needless to say, there was an abundance of good things provided.

The Prize-List.

The following is the prize-list as read out by the secretary, Mr. J. A. Vance:

Class I.—George Berry, 1st for crown, 1st for land, 1st for finish; A. J. Cleghorn, 2nd for land.

Class II.—L. H. Winslow, 1st for crown, 1st for land; Marquis Westington, 1st for finish, 2nd for land. ington, 1st for finish, 2nd for land;

Class III.—George L. Fair, 1st for crown, 1st for land, 1st for finish; Thomas Chambers, 2nd for land; James Howlett, 3rd for land.

Class IV. — Dawson Rutherford, 1st for crown, 1st for land, 1st for finish; Russell Bonar, 2nd for land; Thomas McCamus, 3rd for land.

Class V. — Melville Heaslip, 1st for crown, 1st for land, 1st for finish; Reg. Atchison, 2nd for land; Isaiah Musprat, 3rd for land.

Class VII. — Willis Hall, 1st for land, 1st for finish; Stewart McGill, 1st for crown, 2nd for land; Harold Tait, 3rd for land.

Class VIII. (Tractors) — J. J. Duffus, 1st for crown, 1st for land, 1st for finish; M. J. Duffus, 2nd for land; George Gillespie, 3rd for land.

For the youngest ploughman on the field (Special) — 1st, Isaiah Musprat, 14 years old; 2nd, Reg. Atchison, 15 years old.

Silver cup—L. H. Winslow.

Melville Heaslip, who won the first prize for crown, land, and finish in Class V., also won two first prizes at the Provincial match at Woodstock in the boys' (under 17) class, thus bringing honour to Durham County, as well as being the recipient of many congratulations himself for his excellent work.

Probably no more favourable location for a ploughing match could have been found than that furnished by Mr. McGill's farm, and the land itself was in the finest possible condition for the day's events.

The officers and members of the Ploughmen's Association who were responsible for the success of Friday's gathering certainly deserve much praise for planning and carrying out so efficiently such a successful and interesting contest as this year's proved to be. Everything in connection with the match showed much patient thought and careful attention to details, and the large crowd present reaped the benefit of the labours so painstakingly bestowed.

Amongst the many from Millbrook and vicinity who attended the ploughing match were noticed the following: Messrs. Archie Johnston, A. J. Fallis, L. S. Winslow, R. Edmunds, H. Johnston, Thomas Ingram, J. Allen, J. E. Allen, H. Allen, W. G. Hetherington, H. Armstrong, I. A. Vance, Geo. Hetherington, J. McKnight, S. S. Staples, Leonard and A. J. Henderson, H. Ball, W. McCamus, H. R. Armstrong, L. Smith, T. Lang, James Hutchison, Rev. Mr. Patterson, S. Kelly, J. Fair, I. Needham, T. Eakin, L. Fallis, also Mrs. J. A. Vance, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Aiken, Mrs. Cardwell, Mrs. Geo. E. Burnham, and Mrs. E. Ball.

REBEKAH LODGE HELD A MEETING—SOCIAL EVENTS IN TOWN

MILLBROOK, October 29. — The Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge held their usual fortnightly meeting on Wednesday, October 26th, at 8 p.m., with quite a large number in attendance. After the routine business was disposed of three new candidates for membership were initiated and an enjoyable social time was spent with refreshments served, before the gathering dspersed. The Rebekahs now have a total membership of at least 120. Next week the local degree team, accompanied by quite a number of the other members, go to Port Hope to join with the Lodge there for a social and business meeting.

Social Gathering.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' church held their meeting on Thursday, October 27th, at 8 p.m. in the Sunday school hall, the evening being in the form of a social gathering, this being the first meeting since the election of oficers for the ensuing year.

The young people are invited to join with St John's church A.Y.P.A. Peterboro, on Wednesday, November 2nd, for a hallowe'en evening. The district convention meets in Peterboro on November 16, 17 and 18, and it is expected that a number of the local association will attend the sessions.

Mrs. (Dr.) Mitchell has been spending a few days in Toronto this week, going that far on the way with her sister, Dr. Wallace, who was returning to her professional duties in New York.

Mission Band.

The "Sunshine Mission Band" of the Methodist church held a very successful Hallowe'en meeting on Friday, October 28th, at 7.30 p.m., with 60 boys and girls in attendance.

An excellent programme of readings, songs, etc., suitable for Hallowe'en, and a very amusing dialogue, was given by the members of the band, after which an enjoyable social time was spent in games of various kinds, and a treat of home made candy, pop corn, and apples was provided. The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

Much credit is due the older girl members of the band for the clever way in which the rooms were decorated; the traditional lighted pumpkin heads, black cats, yellow shades for the lights and yellow streamers having been designed and arranged in all their details by the girls themselves, the whole effect proving quite a pleasant surprise to the parents and friends who accepted the invitation to enjoy Friday evening with the "Sunshine" Band.

Election Address.

Mr. W. T. R. Preston of Port Hope, the Liberal candidate in Durham, is expected to address a meeting in Millbrook on Wednesday, November 2nd. Mr. R. R. Hall of Peterboro, will also be present and address the gathering.

Early Settler.

Mrs. Archibald McBean, whose death occurred in Winnipeg on Sunday, Oct. 23rd, was one of the earliest settlers in Millbrook having been born here 85 years ago, in Oct., 1836, and going west with her family in 1885. Her husband predeceased Mrs. McBean some years ago, her own funeral taking place from the family residence, Fort Garry, on Tuesday, Oct. 25th. Previous to her death Mrs. McBean had been an invalid for five years. Six sons and one daughter, Mrs. Jukes of Norwood, survive their mother. The sons are Fred J. McBean of Toronto, and William D., Oscar, Bruce, Hary and Athol, all of Winnipeg. The sons are engaged in the grain business as was their father during the major portion of his life.

Home from Survey.

Mr. Max Cameron who has been with a surveying party in the Peace River district all summer, spent a few days in town recently, the guest of his wife's parents, Mr. nad Mrs. I. S. Clarry, afterwards going to Ottawa where he and Mrs. Clarry will spend the winter.

Personals.

The Misses Gertrude, Blanche and Gussie Clarry, who have spent the summer with their parents here, returned this week to New York, and will resume their duties as trained nurses.

Miss Helen Armstrong, of Fergus, who has been visiting her cousin, Miss Mamie Collins, here for some weeks past and also other friends in Cobourg and other places returned home this week, Miss Collins going as far as Toronto with her.

Miss Amy Carveth of Toronto, is a visitor in town this week.

Dr. Turner left this week for New York, where he will take up some post graduate work.

Next meeting of the Millbrook Council on Monday, October, 31st., at 7.30 p.m.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CASE DISPOSED OF IN POLICE COURT — STANWOOD CHURCH HELD A SUPPER.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 29.—In police court yesterday, Mr. William McInroy was arraigned before Police Magistrate Payne on the charge of passing a forged cheque on the Bank of Montreal in May last. The defendant, who lives in Rawdon township, Hastings county, pleaded not guilty to the charge, but was committed to Cobourg for trial. He was released on $2,000 bail.

Stanwood Supper.

One of the most enjoyable and successful events of the season was the supper given in Stanwood church on Thursday evening. The church was crowded to the doors and the ladies spared no trouble in providing lots of good eats. After ample justice had been done to the delicacies provided, the guests repaired to the auditorium, where an excellent programme was provided. Short addresses were given by Revs. D. A. Thomson and M. L. Hinton, Hastings, Rev. Higgs of Madoc and Rev. Woodger of Marmora, all of the addresses being permeated with wit and humor. Mrs. (Rev.) J. E. Glover and Miss Emma Meiklejohn rendered solos, which were heartily applauded, as was also their duet. Mr. S. A. Maguire, of town, gave a very humorous reading, which was well reecived. The double male quartette from town, Dr. Richardson, Messrs. Walter Lowe, George Lucy, George Smith, Edwin Henson, Walter Henson, Jack Payne, R. T. Cowell, delighted the audience with their numbers ,and much credit is due Mr. Cowell who had charge of the musical programme. The pastor, Rev. J. E. Glover, in his usual pleasing manner, very ably performed the duties of chairman. The congregation are to be congratulated upon the success of the evening. The proceeds at the door amounted to about two hundred dollars.

"Men's Club."

At the meeting of the "Men's Club," held in Parish Hall on Thursday night, Major (Rev.) Belford, of Codrington, gave a very interesting and humorous addhess on "The woman of yesterday, the woman of today and the woman of to-morrow. Major Belford is a very entertaining speaker and is always well received in Campbellford. A solo was rendered in good voice by Mr. Alfred Maun. All present report a most pleasant evening.

Watson—Turner.

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized at noon on Friday at the home of Mrs. C. W. Turner, when his daughter, Miss Annie Lillian Turner, became the bride of Mr. Robert Harold Watson of Havelock, Rev. H. B. Kenny, pastor of the Methodist church, officiating. The bride looked charming in her travelling suit of navy and hat of burnt orange with corsage of sweetheart roses, Little Miss Cherrie Turner played the wedding march and an interesting feature of the occasion was the baptism of the little nephew of the bride, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Turner. The house was most tastefully decorated with white and yellow chrysanthemums. After a very dainty wedding breakfast the happy couple left for a trip to Toronto and other points and upon their return will reside in Havelock.

The bride is well known in Havelock and Campbellford musical circles and has a host of friends here who extend best wishes.

Personals.

Mrs. J. P. Archer(Regent of the local Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, attended the I.O.D.E. convention in Peterborough.

Messrs. James Gray, Thomas Craighead, Carl Maguire and Gerald Wilson attended Sunday school convention in Warkworth on Thursday night.

The fish caught by Mr. I. A. Humphries on September 2nd at Percy Boom, has been mounted and is now on exhibition in Ferris' store window. The fish weighs 28 lbs. and is 48 inches in length.

HASTINGS AND THE DISTRICT

HASTINGS, Oct. 29.—A thorough canvass is being made of the village in the hope of securing the necessary amount required to erect a combined skating and curling rink. The committee is meeting with very good success.

Mr. Walter Raycraft has disposed of his grocery and ice cream business to Mr. Long, of Campbellford, who takes possesion immediately.

A number from town attended the bazzar on the Bethel circuit on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Trotter, with a good attendance. This being the annual meeting a resume of the year's work was gone over, and the returns showed a very successful financial year.

The Bible Society collectors are making a tour of the district and are meeting with quite a liberal response.

A good delegation from the Hastings chapter of the I.O.D.E. attended the convention in Peterborough during the week.

Mr. I. Stevens of Peterborough, was in town on Thursday.

Mr. P. Ewing of Warkworth, called on Friday.

Mr. Archie Thomson of Moncton, has been visiting his parents, Rev. D. A. and Mrs. Thomson, Manse.

The many friends of Miss Pearl Parker are pleased to see her back on duty at the telephone office.

Mr. John Carter has returned from an extended visit with friends in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Stevens and daughters, of Uxbridge, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. Scriver.

The bulbs for the fall delivery of the Horticultural Society have arrived and are being placed in the soil by some of our flower fanciers.

BAKER'S COCOA

TO DRINK

The almost unceasing activity with which children work off their surplus energy makes good and nutritious food a continual necessity. Of all the food drinks Baker's Cocoa is the most perfect, supplying as it does much valuable material for the upbuilding of their growing bodies. Just as good for older people. It is delicious, too, of fine flavor and aroma.

Fashion Show at the Opera House

The fashion show at the Opera House on Thursday evening in connection with the Taplin exhibit of Natural Tread shoes was composed entirely of goods made in the Province of Ontario. The lovely gowns exhibited were doubtless a revelation to the audience, few of whom realized that the dresses were entirely made in Canada. The "Made-in-Canada" campaign has received a further incentive lately by the opening in Ottawa of a Bureau of Information which solicts information about Canadian made goods and also requests any complaints which may be made from time to time along the same lines. If Canadian women are going to boost Canadian made goods, it is only fair that they receive good quality, and defects should be pointed out immediately. A Canadian woman has organized and will conduct this bureau.

Raised Cost Mark.

In a discussion over the question of prices of commodities in these piping times of peace, as compared with prices in ante-bellum days, a lady recently made the remark that one factor which kept prices up was the constant insistence of women on having things "nice." "We must have our bread wrapped and our goods delivered to our doors. We must have the choicest cuts of meat and the very best of everything And then we have to pay for them."

When the time-worn argument was offered that present prices are largely attributable to the high cost of labor, one woman rushed valiantly to the defence of the workingman. She asserted that manufacturers could pay the prevailing rates of wages and sell their goods at much lower prices, with a respectable profit, if they wished. The simple fact in her mind was that they did not wish a respectable profit but an exorbitant one. The materials were offered now for sale as in pre-war days, at only fifty per cent. advance in wages but at double the price. A circular which had been inadvertenly read in a certain local establishment was quoted by this lady. The circular, in prominent type, and headed, "Important Notice" said: "We have put the price on these goods at double their actual cost, so that you customers will not know what you pay for them." This frank notice, which was not intended for public perusal, simply meant that the retailers could put whatever price they liked on the goods. If objection was made to the price they simply pointed to the "doctored" cost mark, which was doubled in actual fact, so that before adding one cent to the first "marked" cast, they would be assured one hundred per cent profit.

In speaking of boots, reference was made to the failure of the farmers to obtain enough to pay them for taking the hide from the calf. A farmer who brought in five hides to town and disposed of them for the prevailing price, did not realize enough from the sale to buy himself one pair of boots.

A Sure Relief for Women's Disorders—10 Days Treatment Free

Orange Lily is a certain relief for all disorders of women. It is applied locally and is absorbed into the suffering tissue. The dead waste matter in the congested region is expelled, giving immediate mental and physical relief; the blood vessels and nerves are toned and strengthened; and the circulation is rendered to normal. As this treatment is based on strictly scientific principles and acts on the actual location of the disease, it cannot help but do good in all forms of female troubles, including delayed and painful menstruation, leucorhoea, falling of the womb, etc. Price $2.00 per box, which is sufficient for one month's treatment. A Free Trial Treatment, enough for ten days, worth 75c, will be sent Free to any suffering woman who will send me her address.

ARMS CONFERENCE SCHEDULE PLANNED

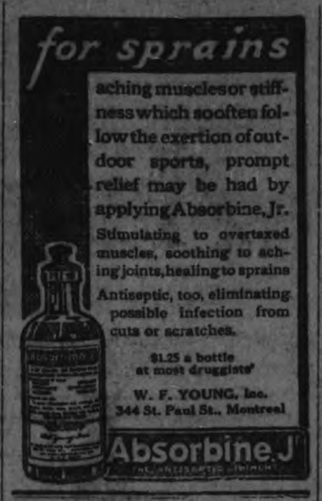
PROGRESS BEING MADE WITH ARRANGEMENTS FOR PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press). — The disarmament conference will be called to order by Secretary Hughes on November 12 and the welcoming address to the delegates by President Harding will follow. It is expected that the conconference then will perfect its organization and adjourn to take up its real deliberations. The appointment of committees to consider special topics, arrangement of conferences in which those nations invited to participate only in the discussion of Far Eastern and Pacific problems may be present, and similar matters will be deferred until the following Monday.

Progress is being made in the preparation of the auditorium in the building of the Daughters of the American Revolution adjoining the Pan-American building where the open sessions of the conference will be held. The delegates will sit at a horseshoe shaped or rectangular table during these sessions with the interpreters and other sides in the open space inside the tables and the delegates themselves facing each other around the other side of the conference table.

The general public probably cannot be represented at these sessions except through the press and through members of congress who may be given seats in addition to those who will be provided for the use of the various embassies and legations in Washington. The seating capacity of the hall will not admit any wide distribution of seats as the total number available for all purposes will be less than 1,200.

Meetings of the various committees appointed by the conference to in the Pan-American Union, the study special subjects will be held in the Pan-American Union, the office rooms provided in the Navy Department for the use of the conference delegations, or elswhere as may be necessary and it is to be expected that these meetings will not be open to the public or the press except on special occasions when the conference may decide that it would be wise to throw them open That, can be determined only by the conference itself or the particular committee after it has been charged by the conference with a special study.



ORONO MAN'S NARROW ESCAPE FROM CHOKING

ORONO, Oct. 29.—When Wilfrid Sherwin's clothing was caught in the shaft of a windmill, he narrowly escaped death by strangulation. The accident occurred at the old home farm at Fenella, where Wilfrid and his father, Walter Sherwin, were cleaning up grain. The latter had left the barn but a few minutes when the son's clothing caught in the revolving mill shaft, which wound them tightly about his body and throat. Fortunately, Mr. Wellwood, who has recently purchased this property, was present, and managed to throw the mill out of gear just in time to save Sherwin from a horrible death.

A DESIRE TO EAT WHAT YOU WANT

STOMACHS CAN BE RESTORED TO A HEALTEY CONDITION

Not to be limited in diet, but to whatever he pleases is the dream of every dyspeptic. No one can honestly promise to restore any stomach to this happy condition, because all people cannot eat the same things with equally satisfactory results. But it is possible to so tone up the digestive organs that a pleasing diet may be selected from articles of food that cause no discomfort.

When the stomach lacks tone there is no quicker way to restore it than to build up the blood. Good digestion without rich, red blood is impossible, and Dr. Williams Pink Pills offer the best way to enrich the blood. For this reason these pills are especially good in stomach trouble attended by thin blood, and in attacks of nervous dyspepsia. Proof of the value of Dr. Williams Pink Pills in cases of indigestion is given by Mr. John A McDonald, Tarbot, N.S., who says: "Every sufferer from indigestion has my heartfelt sympathy, as I was once myself a bound slave to it. Eating at al became a trial. s time went on I became a mere skeleton of my former self. I took all sorts of recommended medicines, doctors' and advertised, but to no avail Then a friend said to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills. I got box and I thought before they were done I could feel a change. Then I got six boxes more and by the time they were used I was eating my meals with regularity and enjoyment. My general health is now good, and it is no wonder that I am an enthusiastic advocate of Dr. Williams Pink Pills

You can procure Dr. Williams Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or they will be sent you by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FREIGHT-CARRYING BY GERMANY NOW NEARING ITS PRE-WAR VOLUME.

HAMBURG, Oct. 29.—Germany's ocean freight-carrying trade is making steady progress toward regaining its pre-war volume. Harbor statistics indicate that the aggregate tonnage of vessels using this port have reached 80 percent of the peace traffic.

Announcements of steamers bought back from former enemy powers follow each other in rapid succession, and harbor facilities are already proving insufficient to accomodate the growing traffic, now that big plants such as Krupps and Erhardts, which formerly manufactured war material, are turning out peace goods in great quanities for overseas consumption.

Shipping authorities are urging the revival of ambitious pre-war plans for harbor extensions, on the ground that with the rapidly increasing export trade, the port will in two years time be far to small, and freight business will be lost to Scandinavian ports.

Germans expect the South American trade especially to take a big impetus early next year, when the new Hamburg-South American Company's liners will be placed in commission.

Besides the Hamburg-America Company's new liners Bayern, Hansa, and Wurtemberg, three 12,000 ton passenger and freight steamers will be placed in the North American service by the North German Lloyd of Bremen, to be followed by the 30,000 tonner, Hindenburg, now being completed. New services are also being planned by both the Hamburg and Bremen companies to the Far East.

Elsie, aged four, refused to talk back when her brother teased her. Her mother said: "It was very nice of you not to answer back, as you sometimes do".

"Course, I'se nice," said Elsie. "And, anyway, I had my mouth full of pins and couldn't."

ALLEGED TO HAVE SUBSTITUTED FOR RING "PHONEY" ONE

TORONTO MAN HELD FOR THEFT FROM BIRKS IN WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Oct. 29.—(Special Despatch to the Examiner). — Arthur Gordon, of Toronto, formerly connected with a department store of that city, was taken into custody by the city police yeserday afternoon, on a charge of theft of a diamond ring from Birks Jewelry store, Portage avenue, the trinket being valued at $600. Gordon is 28 years of age and so far as the authorities know, had no previous police record.

Gordon is alleged to have entered the store and approached the diamond department with the presumed intention of making a purchase. While making a minute examination of one of the most valuable diamond rings he is alleged to have, in an effort to deceive the salesman, surreptiously put a "phony" diamond ring in its place in the case. W. J. Markle, partner of the firm, who was in attendance on the "customer", was too smart for him, however, and when Gordon was spoken to about the transfer he made a bolt for the door, was caught and taken to the police station. He appeared before a police magistrate and was remanded.

The accused left Toronto about 10 weeks ago and in company with his wife nd child paid a visit to Vancouver. They returned to the city three days ago and registered at a local hotel.

"Millions Now Living Will Never Die!"

(JUDGE RUTHERFORD)

The Scriptures abound in time prophecies indicating when such events as have distressed mankind during the past few years, and the opportunity for profiteering in all its phases will for ever end.

The divine law is inexorable, and every inspired revelation of the divine purpose respecting the affairs of the old world, over which Jehovah for a special purpose tolerated Satan to rule, has been fulfilled exactly on time, and the time for the binding of Satan is at hand.

Every Bible scholar is aware, whether it is now or one hundred years hence, that mankind will some time arrive at the end of Satan's reign, when everlasting life on this earth can be his blessed portion, instead of death and the tomb, as has been the case under Satan's six thousand years of evil domination and delusion.

The purpose of this Free Lecture is to furnish every inquirer positive Biblical proof and secular evidence, based on prophecies fulfilled during the past five years that millions now living will never die, and that we will within the next few years enter this long-hoped-for period, when families will be re-united and live happily on earth for ever.

If you are interested in the future blessing of yourself and your loved ones and of the whole human family, you owe it to yourself to hear this Lecture by

Clean Wholesome Milk

A Woman Understands

We firmly believe that a woman understands the necessity for demanding Safe Milk, particularly when she has a Family to bring up.

She knows of the great care required in bringing Milk so far from the country and delivering it Pure and Clean.

She feels safe in placing this responsibility on an institution of proven integrity.

Our requirements for production and handling Milk assure its richness and purity. These, plus Pasteurization, leave no doubt as to its Purity and Safety.

In addition to these qualities, our Milk excells in Flavour, Keeping Qualities, and Digestibility, which characterize the truly exceptional Milk.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

FOOD SECRETS SOLVED BY THE MICROSCOPE

By L. A. Hausman, Ph. D.
Cornell University
(From the Scientific American Monthly)

BY MEANS of the unassisted eye alone it is possible, as we all know, to recognize gross structural differences between large fragments of animal and vegetable substances, and to refer them to their proper sources. When, however, such materials are finely ground or pulverized, or made into what seem almost homogeneous pastes or cakes, then the problem of determining the sources of their constituent materials becomes a different one. And yet, it is not different in principle, but only in kind, for we still use the eye as the chief means of analysis, but with its ocular power enormously increased by the aid of the compound microscope. Through this powerful instrument most substances can be seen to be what they really are, and can be made to yield up the secrets of their derivation.

There are but a meagre number of foods (liquids, of course, excepted) which may not be analyzed by means of the microscope. The presence of extremely minute quantities of a substance may be detected in admixtures, apparently of perfect purity. Thus one part of turmeric has been detected in 448 parts of mustard! Again, from the size, shape and structure of the pollen grains within a sample of honey it is possible for the microscopist to determine the sorts of flowers which have yielded the original nectar to the bees; and, furthermore, from the form and structure of the crystals in the mass, to say whether the honey has been adulterated with sugar and to what extent. . . .

One of the most important substances from the food point of view is starch. It is one of the most widely distributed elements in the content of plant cells. . . . Fig. 5 shows the appearance, under transmitted light, of a very common starch, potato starch, which is all too common as an adulterant of many kinds of foods. The grain is usually described as resembling an oyster shell, and surely a better simile could not be found. In this, as in many other starches, the grains vary much in size, but whatever their magnitudes, their characteristic form and markings remain constant. It is the characteristics of the form and the structure which the microscopist looks for, in identifying starches, rather than for size.

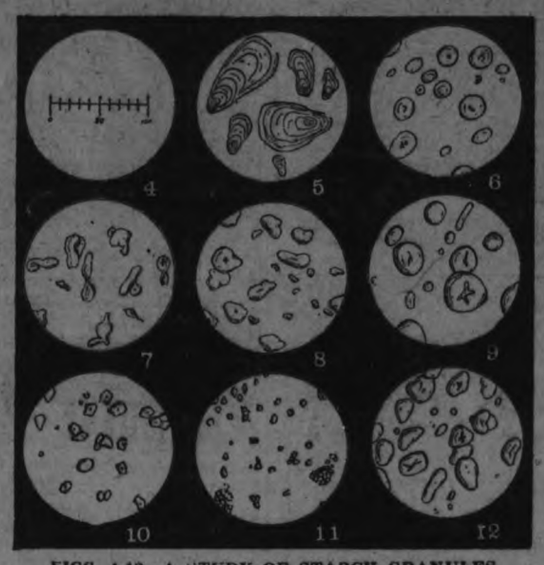

FIGS. 4-12—A STUDY OF STARCH GRANULES
(4) Scale for Comparing Sizes of Starch Granules. Such a Scale Is Placed in the Ocular of the Microscope. (5) Potato Starch. (6) Wheat Starch (raw). (7) Wheat Starch (boiled). (8) Wheat Starch (baked). (9) Rye Starch. (10) Corn Starch. (11) Rice Starch. (12) Bean Starch.

The question has often been asked whether it is possible to distinguish between food substances which have undergone the process of cooking, in various ways. . . . For example, compare Figs. 6, 7 and 8. Fig. 6 shows raw wheat starch as it can be seen in flour. Fig. 7 shows the appearance of the starch grains after having been boiled, i.e., as in puddings; and Fig. 8 their appearance after having been baked, as in bread or cake. In dry heat the grains simply split up, but in any preparation except one completely charred into carbon, retain enough of their "personalities" to be recognizable. In wheat starch, the raw grains are discoidal, with the flat faces bearing an almost circular outline (Fig. 6). The striations are absent, or nearly so, and the grain appears as though made of a glassy substance. Wheat flour is often substituted by, or largely adulterated with, potato flour. The detection, of course, is simple.

The starch granules of rye, as seen in the rye flour (Fig. 9), closely resemble those of wheat. Here is a case where careful study has to be made, and measurements taken with apparatus specially designed for minute measurements under the microscope. The use of the comparison ocular is in such cases a necessity if indubitable identifications are to be made.

In corn flour the characteristic form of the starch granules at once proclaims their origin, being slightly polygonal in form, with rounded angles (Fig. 10). A central depression is present in most of the grains.

Fig. 11 shows the appearance of the starch granules of rice flour. Here the individual grains are distinctly polygonal, with sharp angles and edges, many of them being irregularly pentagonal. Like the starch grains of oats, they are often found coalesced into larger compound grains. From oat starch, rice starch is to be distinguished by the smaller size of its individual granules.

FIGS. 13-18—COFFEE, COCOA, TEA AND HONEY. (13) Roasted Ground Coffee. (14) Coffee and Chicory. (15) Coffee, Chicory and Acorn. (16) Cocoa and Potato Starch. (17) Left: Lower Epidermis of Tea Leaf. Right: Lower Epidermis of Plum Leaf. (18) Left: Honey. Right: Sugar.

Bean flour is often, like potato and barley flour, used as a substitute for, or an adulterant of, wheat flour. Fig. 12 depicts the appearance of the bean-flour starch grains. Beans of different varieties show corresponding differences in their starch grains, but in general, the large likeness between bean starches of all sorts was early recognized.

Coffees are among the food materials most largely adulterated, and here the microscope is an invaluable aid in detecting at once the presence among the coffee-bean fragments and parts of other vegetable substances. No starch is present in the coffee bean, but other characteristic structures are there which serve as guides to identification. In Fig. 13 we have the appearance of roasted and ground coffee. The most characteristic portions of the bean structure are the dark, angular cells forming the interior substance of the bean itself (endosperm). These fracture irregularly, as shown.

Compare now the sample shown in Fig. 14. Here there has been added to the coffee, chicory, which though roasted and ground with the coffee and thoroughly admixed, still reveals its presence unerringly, through the characters of its cells. The extraneous matter in this sample can be seen by comparing it with Fig. 13. In Fig. 15 is shown still another "coffee" adulterated still more by the addition not only of chicory but also of ground and roasted acorns. The element proclaiming indubitably the presence of the latter adulterant is the starch granules, with their characteristic stellate black figure in their centres.

The detection of leaf adulterants in tea is based largely upon the differences in the character of the epidermis, or "skin" of the leaf. In Fig. 17 are shown two specimens of lower epidermis of leaves, brought together for accurate comparison by means of the comparison ocular. The left epidermis is that from the common china tea (Camellia), while the right specimen is from the leaf of a plum, found in a sample sold as strictly pure tea. The difference is obvious.

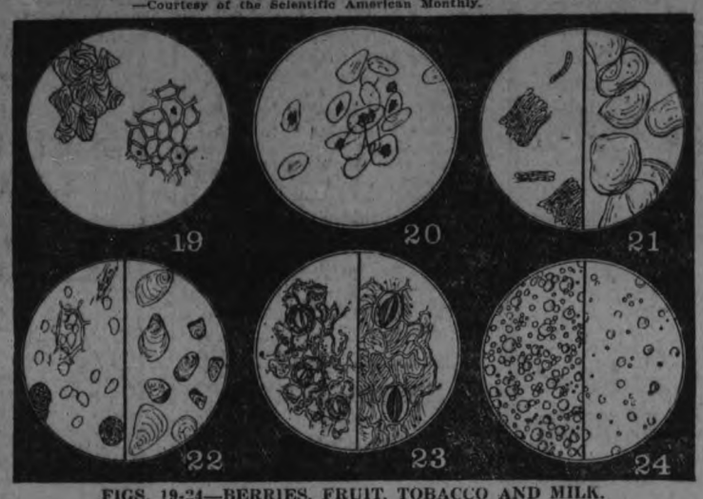

FIGS. 19-24—BERRIES, FRUIT, TOBACCO AND MILK.

Preserved fruits in the forms of jams, marmalade, etc., are easily analyzed under the microscope, for here the various structures of the pulp and skins of the fruits used can be readily spread out upon the microscope slides, and identifications made by means of the comparison ocular. Fig. 19 shows characteristic structures in the strawberry, as seen in the fruit after it has been made into jam, and Fig. 20, of the cherry. Turnip and apple are commonly used as adulterants in all sorts of fruit preserves. In Fig. 21 is depicted the appearance (on the right) of the large, bulky cells of the pulp of the apple (below), and of the turnip (above). On the left are cells from the red currant, as they appear in jams.

Tobacco adulteration offers another fertile field for the operations of the dispenser of adulterated commodities. Many varieties of leaves are used to dilute ground tobaccos, or tobaccos sold for manufacture into cigars. These may be distinguished by the microscope on the basis of their different cell structure. In Fig. 23 is shown, on the left, the lower epidermis of the tobacco leaf; and on the right the lower epidermis of the rhubarb leaf, commonly detectable in some varieties of tobacco.

Not only can the microscope be used to detect admixtures of extraneous matters into any given pure substance, but also to determine the comparative richness of certain elements in various foods. Thus, milk samples can be readily graded, care being taken to estimate the number of fat globules present in a given amount. Fig. 24 shows, on the left, a sample of full rich milk, and on the right a sample of poor, or diluted milk. In the latter case see how the paucity of fat globules tells a tale of inferiority.

Do SUN SPOTS Really Cause EYE TROUBLE?

SUN SPOTS may be held responsible for the apparent increase in eye troubles noticeable this spring and summer, in the opinion of Dr. Charles Sheard of Southbridge, Mass.

Sir Oliver Lodge prophesied more sunlight as a consequence of sun spots this year, but this additional sunlight may not be an unmixed blessing. Sun spots mean increased radiation and resultant increase of "sun energy," for the atmosphere will be so cleared up and so much of its dust particles absorbed that more heat and light will reach the earth than usual.

"But the greater radiant energy," explains Dr. Sheard, "would not be a good thing for people unaccustomed to other conditions. For instance, in the early hot period of March this year, when conditions were summerlike, the transition was too great and the nervous system and vision alike suffered.

"The reaction to this abnormal condition of light and heat is shown by headache, inflammation of the eyes and nervousness. That is, ocular troubles are actually caused by excessive sunlight with an abnormally high energy content.

"We have had an extremely open winter, with high energy contents, and consequently had cases of heat prostration in March in regions where ordinarily such cases would not occur before June or July.

"Heat and ultra-violet rays both present in this greater radiance energy resulting from the increased clearness of atmosphere, again depending on increased sun spots, may be therefore expected to have a positive effect on the nervous system; particularly the nerves of the external eyes and the nerves of the nose, the stimulation would be in most cases too great to be beneficial.

"Inside workers will naturally feel this increase in glare and brilliance most, as they will have less opportunity to adjust themselves to it, but any hypersensitive nervous system will be affected by it. In some cases the additional nervous stimulation may prove beneficial, but it may also prove the source of ocular trouble. The degree of injury or benefit must be a varying one, according to the individual, but the tendency naturally is to cause inflammation of the eyes and headache and many forms of nervous affection.

"It is difficult to generalize on a subject like this," Dr. Sheard adds, "for there are so many technical things involved that cannot be gone into, yet which modify any sweeping statement. But there is no doubt that any sudden increase in nervous stimulation, such as would be implied in this increase of heat and light, would have definite and quick reactions."

Iceless "ICE" Skating

ALL the joys of ice-skating—without any ice—are provided for in a skate invented by Harry Paulsen, of New York. It has rollers all along the bottom and a hard rubber knob clamped to the point. The knob is used for pirouetting, and the rollers allow a flexibility of motion that is not possible with the ordinary roller skate. On these skates you can make a figure 8, spell your name, waltz or do any other icy tricks, according to a writer in Popular Science Monthly.

Rollers Take the Place of Ice.

At first glance Mr. Paulsen's skate looks like the ordinary ice-skate, for the rollers are almost concealed between the side plates. They are held rigidly in place by small shafts running from side to side.

KANGAROO RAT Makes Amusing PET

THE popular white mice, which most of the children in the East delight in, are by no means as amusing pets as the kangaroo rats which young folk in the far West or Mexico catch and train.

These kangaroos, as their name suggests, do not run like the usual mouse, but leap, and are only to be found in deserts or sage-brush country and sandy places. They are very gregarious, though, of course, left to themselves are mere nocturnal wanderers. When they are tamed, however, they can be taught all kinds of tricks and make, so it is said, most interesting pets.

The Kangaroo Rat Which Mexican Children Catch and Train.

The farmers do not encourage their popularity, as when the kangaroo rats are about in any great numbers they sometimes destroy an entire crop. Seeds are their favorite food, though they will also eat green vegetables, and as they do not hibernate in the winter they lay up great stores of food during the summer, at the expense of the farmer. Sometimes an entire field planted with corn will be stripped of the grains, which the kangaroo rat stores up against a rainy day.

The "pack rat" also has a bad reputation as a thief. Campers have to be constantly on their guard against its depredations, inasmuch as it will carry off all sorts of small articles and hide them in its nest, which is a structure of twigs and leaves two or three feet high. If a spoon is missing, the chances are that a pack rat has eloped with it.

The jumping mouse is a familiar rodent in the American deserts. Its name describes its method of locomotion, and it feeds on the seeds of desert plants.

The biggest of all rats is the "jerboa," which is native to western Asia. It is as large as a small cat and nocturnal in habit. With very small front legs, it is built much like a kangaroo, and gets about by tremendous leaps.

Why Osmiridium is Used to Tip Fountain-Pen Points

AN interesting history attaches to a small packet about two and a half inches square which recently arrived in London. It weighed two and a half pounds and was eagerly bought by an American firm for about $6000.

The packet contained osmiridium (osmium and its alloy iridium), used for the tipping of fountain-pen points and for delicate bearings of fine machinery.

The discovery of osmiridium, which is a member of the platinum group of metals, constitutes an interesting romance. Towards the end of last year a small group of prospectors were washing for gold in one of the river beds in Papua, British New Guinea. In their eagerness to find the precious metal they threw away from their pans a bluish-gray flaxy substance as worthless.

This was osmiridium, but the men did not know it, and it is eight times more valuable than gold, and worth at the present time about $200 an ounce.

When the men got back to the settlement they mentioned the occurrence to a mining engineer, who immediately asked them what they did with the substance. They replied that they left it on the river bank, and the engineer exclaimed, "It must be osmiridium."

The next morning the whole party started for the spot, only to find on their arrival that the tropical rains and the swollen river had washed away most of the precious stuff. What remained was carefully raked together, refined and dispatched to London, where it arrived safely a short while ago, having been heavily insured for the voyage.

Osmiridium is one of the hardest metals known, and prospectors are eagerly searching for it in Papua.

Why CLOUDBURSTS Occur Most FREQUENTLY In the MOUNTAINOUS and ARID REGIONS

DEVASTATING floods are often said to be due to "cloudbursts," and many persons still believe in the old theory that sometimes clouds instantaneously release the water that they carry instead of following their usual custom of acting like a sprinklingpot." This, of course, is quite unscientific, and the Engineering and Contracting Magazine of Chicago proceeds to set forth the fact as follows:

"Cloudbursts occur only in or near hilly or mountainous areas and are most frequent in arid regions. The conditions necessary for a 'cloudburst' are: First, a very heavy downpour of rain for several hours; secondly, a steep watershed, and thirdly, a soil that does not rapidly absorb water.

"Clayey soil that has been baked hard by the sun is a condition ideal for very rapid run-off following a rain. Such soils are common in arid regions.

"When rain begins to fall more rapidly than the soil can absorb it, the first thin sheet of water that flows down the watercourse moves slowly, because the friction of the water is proportionately greater the shallower the stream. The friction acts like a dam, holding the stream back. Hence it follows that the water tends to bank up, so that the rain that fell first is overtaken by rain that fell many minutes later. The deeper the stream, the faster it flows, for the frictional resistance is then proportionately less. Consequently, the time comes when the flood moves rapidly down the watercourse, its front crest often being several feet deep and looking like a huge sea wave about to break on a shore. The writer has seen such a flood approaching at the rate of eight miles an hour, filling a previously dry creek channel to a depth of ten feet—a veritable wall of water.

"In the early speculations about such floods it was perhaps natural to suppose that a cloud had suddenly spilled its entire contents, even as a bursting dam might release its stored water. It was not realized that the friction of water upon earth could produce the effect of a dam, holding back the first part of a rainfall until the more rapidly moving water that had fallen later had overtaken it, thus forming a wall of water several feet deep."

FURNISHING a FLAT With a BED

YOU may expect to find a burglar under the bed, but certainly not coffee percolators, toasters and bureau drawers. Yet these things can be put there, as the accompanying illustration shows.

The bed, which is described in Popular Science Monthly, is known as a cabinet bed and is used for a multitude of purposes. Besides the drawers, shelves and cupboards underneath, the head and foot sections of the bed also are partitioned. In the head section there is a clothes closet and two shining electric lights.

The foot section boasts of a mirror and a medicine-chest on top, with a closet for shoes placed most conveniently below.

Alas! there is no icebox, though there seems to be enough space for one in the centre of the foot of the bed. But, of course, that wouldn't do. It might freeze the sleeper's toes.

BALANCE OF THIS BIG PROGRAMME AND OUR MUSIC BEST IN THE CITY

Don't Forget
NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT
IS THE FIRST OF OUR BIG LOCAL VAUDEVILLE NIGHTS, WHEN 5 ACTS OF LOCAL VAUDEVILLE WILL BE PRESENTED ::: :::

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

Monday night the Capitol offers the big six reel special sensational production, entitled "Who Am I" and the balance of a very excellent program and the best music in the city.

The story of the big six reel select picture which will be the feature the first three days of next week at the Capitol reads like a great picture and we herewith submit same for public's approval.

Ruth Burns is a beautiful young girl attending a fashionable finishing school, receives word of the death of her father, who has been totally unknown to her save through his liberal monthly remittances. She attends the funeral services and learns, to her amazement, that he had been a professional gambler. She induces Jimmy Weaver, an old friend of her father's to take her to the gambling house she has inherited.

Ruth and Jimmy are strongly attracted to each other at their first meeting. When they visit the gambling house, John Collins who manages it, informs Ruth that her father owed him a debt of honor of one hundred thousand dollars. She agrees to repay him in full, and, being naturally of venturesome nature, decides to carry on her father's business.

Under the expert guidance of Jimmy Weaver, who is an adept with the cards, she soon becomes a master-hand herself, and makes a big winning for the house. As a result of one of the big games, her opponent, who has lost heavily, tries to commit suicide, and Ruth makes up her mind to leave the sorid business, but Jimmy Weaver induces her to continue.

Ruth gets Jimmy to open Collin's safe, as she feels sure that it contains papers which would throw some light on her parentage and her own identity. Jimmy finds the evidence he sought, but, fearing to lose Ruth if she knew the truth about herself, tells her that the search was unsuccessful.

Ruth plays a game for very high stakes wth a noted plunger and loses all her previous winnings. Collins is enraged and proposes a plan by which she can pay him her father's debt or have it cancelled, depending on who wins. They cut the cards, with the understanding that the debt is cancelled if she wins; if she loses ,she becomes the property of John Collins. The cards are shuffled andn Collins wins the cut cut; but Ruth, rather than give herself to him, tries to shoot herself. Collins knocks the revolver from her hands annd takes her in his arms. He is interrupted by the entrance of Victoria Danforth, one of his fellow workers in the gambing house, who informs Ruth that Collins and she (Victoria) are man and wife.

Collins, in a passion, attacks Victoria, who, in the struggle, manages to get hold of the revolver dropped by Ruth. She shoots and kills Collins just as Jimmy enters the room. Jimmy tells them that he will take the blame of the shooting on himself, and then proceeds to tell Ruth the true story of her parentage as revealed by the letter he had recovered from Collins' safe.

On the following night, he takes Ruth to the home of her real father, Jacques Marbot, whose wife had deserted him many years before to live with Henry Burns. Marbot had been unable to learn anything of the whereabouts of his wife and child, and had since lived the life of recluse from society.

Jimmy tells Ruth that there is no prosecuton for murder, as the act was committed in self-defense. Marbot forgives Jimmy for his past life as a gambler, and leaves the room in possession of his daughter nd her regenerated lover, in whose arms she finds solace and shelter which only Jimmy Weaver could provide.

The balance of this big program and the splendid music of Mrs. Foster's excellent Capitol Theatre Concert Orchestra, will complete a great show.

SPECIAL

ADDED ATTRACTION AT THE ALLEN

With the feature attraction, "Over the Hill," Mr. R. G. Furlong takes great pleasure in introducing Mr. Vern Morphet and Mr. Dick Lush, who will introduce for the first time in Canada the cartooning and illustrating of song. Prologuing with a vaudeville act of this kind has never been produced here before, either by amateur or professional. The song used will be "Over the Hill," dedicated to the picture, which will be shown at the Allen all week, commencing Monday. The finished picture will be given away free at each performance. This idea is entirely original, and no doubt will meet with the approval of our patrons. Messrs. Mornhet, Lush, and Wesley have a number of clever vaudeville turns, and will present them here from time to time.

Overture—Stradella.

A theatrical event of much more than ordinary interest and importance is the forthcoming engagement of the Fox production. "Over the Hill" which will open at the Allen Theatre, Monday. "Over the Hill" is one of the most remarkable attractions ever shown on Broadway where it has been playing for over a year.

The theme of "Over the Hill" is mother love, and the story is based upon the work of Will Carleton, the poet. The action is drawn from an incident which occured during the boyhood of Carleton, who lived on a farm and knew well the characters that have been made immortal upon the screen. The incident of Carleton's early life impressed him so vividly that he never forgot it, and when he had grown to man's estate he made it the theme of two of his best loved poems.

The poems in question eventually found their way to the motion picture screen of today, because of the appreciation and foresight of Mr. Fox. Like many another great theatrical production, it appeared to just happen long—until the people woke up to its greatness. "Over the Hill" owes its existence to a simple, homely incident in the early life of a farmer boy. For more than a year it provided wholesome and substantial entertainment for the New York playgoer.

To a young writer was entrusted the task of gathering up the threads of Carleton's famous story and weaving them into a substantial fabric for the screen. The success Paul H. Sloane scored in this assignment is apparent from the first moment of the story's unfolding.

Harry Millarde, a director of note, has contributed one of the most artistic and efficient examples of stage drection ever beheld upon the screen

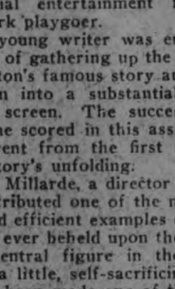
The central figure in the story, that of a little, self-sacrificing mother, has been made one of the most delightful character studies of the present day by Mary Carr, whose finished interpretation of the leading part is a constant joy.

The picture, in its many sideness, has an irresistible appeal for every member of the family. It has heart interest, swiftness and action, delightful humor and sweet and wholesome story so simply told and so human that it already has taken its place among the classics of the film.

AN OPEN LETTER FROM WILLIAM FOX

In presenting "Over the Hill' for consideration of exhibitors and motion picture patrons the world over, I am performing a task which affords me a delight wholly unalloyed.

Will Carleton, upon whose poems



this production is based, is known as the "Farm Poet." He sang of the homely things of life—the things with which you and I are intimately familiar. Nor has any poet ever revealed a keener knowledge of the inner workings of the hearts and minds of just Plain Folks.

In "Over the Hill" and its companion poems he touched upon the same subject which caused Absalom to break the heart of his father, David, King of Israel, and which evoked from King Lear his immortal plaint, "How sharper than a serpent's tooth is to have a thankless child." It is a subject which will wrest songs from the poets of all geerations yet to come.

I have watched the developement of "Over the Hill" from the moment the first scene was written. I have watched it throughout the months it has been in course of production. It represents a Labor of Love. In it I take a pride which has never been exceeded or even equalled—in all the years Fox Film Corporation has been issuing pictures.

"Over the Hill' is a picture that will live as long as the homely virtues continue to exist. It will live as long as the love of a mother for her bairns. Dedicated to all cards in the different hotels, notiworld, it will do its share toward making the world a better place in which to live.

MONTREAL POLICE HAVE MAN WANTED FOR BANK HOLDUP

MONTREAL, October 29 (Canadian Press). — Chief of Police Lapage states that he has received word from Hamilton that Patrick O'Hara, arrested here in connection with the attempt to rob the Bank of Commerce, is wanted in that city in regard to the Bank of Hamilton hold-up last August. O'Hara is said to be an accomplice of Ryan in the hold-up there.

Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

TELLS SAFE, SIMPLE WAY TO TREAT AND RELIEVE AT HOME.

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost: Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh, and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless, home treatment.

OVER HALF-WAY TO THEIR OBJECTIVE.

More Than $5,000.00 Contributed in Aid of Consumptives.

Over half way to the $10,000 work set as an objective for Peterborough in the campaign to aid consumptives by restoring the Muskoka Hospital destroyed by fire, was the glad tidings issued from the local committee's headquarters last night. This means that over $5,000 has been contributed the past four days, and canvass teams and other workers have no doubt but that their objective will be reached by the middle of next week. This confidence is emphasized by the fact that subscriptions from employes, and Boy Scout grams are yet to come in as well as the results of practical cooperation in this worthy movemen by several fraternal societies

In this connection it is gratifying to report that as the result of a conference between council's manufacturers' and finance committees yesterday evening, these bodies well recommended that Council pass a grant of $1,000 for the National Sanitarium Association, the former committee having agreed to release that amount from their supplies to render such donation possible. Council practically agreed to this donation, Wednesday night, under such circumstances as the foregoing and it is not impossible that this $1,000 may be eventually supplemented.

Mr. E. F. Hugonnet, the campaign's organizing secretary, left for Toronto to-day to report at provincial headquarters what he considers as satisfactory progress in the canvass here.

AT THE REGENT

WILLIAM RUSSELL IN A NEW RUGGED ROLE.

Motion picture patrons who like rugged stories in which brawn is the chief factor in controlling conditions, will have an opportunity of seeing one at the Regent Theatre next Monday, when William Russell is the featured attraction in "Bare Knuckles," a new William Fox production.

With the story set in the heart of the Sierra Mountains, and Russell, known as "Brute" McGuire, in the role of a construction camp boss, who rules his men with his muscle and never carries a gun, the star has a vehicle that is full of red-blooded action.

"Brute" McGuire rose over other men in his hard school of experience, hence his name—which he earned in San Francisco's underworld, where men were recruited for the rough work on the irrigation dams. He ruled through fear, but to those he loved he was as tender as a babe.

Russell is said to handle this complex character with extraordinary skill. It is difficult to recognize in "Brute" McGuire the same man enacted the complacent clergyman in Russell's recent Fox picture, "The Cheater Reformed."

PICTURE STAR SAYS SHE WILL NOT DOUBLE.

Insists on Performing Every Feat Described in Script.

There is one motion picture star who firmly declares that she will never double. If she can't make the scene herself she will not have it in her picture. This star is Alice Calhoun, who will be seen in "Closed Doors" at Regent Theatre on Monday. No matter how great the risk, if the scrint describes a feat or action and her director assures her that there is no danger attached to the action, Miss Calhoun insists upon performing the feat.

From the time she was a small child she has led an adventurous life. Before she had passed the age of eight, this girl had killed a rattlesnake and made an ascent in a balloon. The following day the balloon fell, killing the pilot and his passengers. The screen just missed losing one of its valuable members by a scant twenty-four hours.

In "Closed Doors," Miss Calhoun has to drive madly down a country road, frightening chickens, bring her car to a sudden stop, almost upsetting it and side-swipe a limousine. She does all these things with a vengeance and several times frightened Director Seyffertitz, who exclaimed:

"Miss Calhoun, you're entirely too reckless. You have frightened me out of a year's growth."

"Never be alarmed at the things I do," exclaimed Alice, smiling, "for I assure you that I always have my car under perfect control. I am never in any danger, for I refuse to take great risks."

Director Seyffertitz shook his head. "That all may be, but it don't look it."

AT THE GRAND.

After doing some very good character work last week as Norah, late of Sherry's, and wife of Prince Rangi Boule, in "Nearly Wed," Miss Kathcryn Van Esse resumes her role of well bred gentlewoman on Monday night when Rex Players put on "Billy's Tombstones." Many people remark Miss Van Esse and find her a most attractive member of the company. She was removing her make-up when I visited her last night in her dressing room, and I thought her pretty fair hair and grey eyes needed very little to enhance their charms. She discussed the value of remaining slender, from the viewpoint of the actress, who knows that a premium is set on youth and grace, but smilingly, Miss Van Esse admitted that she was becoming a trifle "embonpoint." I told her the audience liked her that way and she replied, "Thanks very much." She might have heard the famous comedian, Harry Tate, in the sketch in which he used that response so often, but when I asked her if she had, she said, "No, she hadn't."

Miss Van Esse was born in Milwaukee, but has recently made her home in Indianapolis. She loves the Pacific coast, however, and is looking forward to the time when she will settle in California in her own little bungalow. "Home is the most wonderful thing in life," she said, and it has always been my aim to keep mine. Why even during the season when I'm playing, if I possibly can, I secure light housekeeping privileges. Just at present I am delightfully msettled both here and in Kingston. I asked Miss Van Esse if she had any favourite type of part to portray and she said that straight drama, with deep emotional work, interested her most. She has been a leading woman in many first-calss stock companies and has run the gauntlet of roles—her experience is very wide and she turned down many attractive offers to play leads in good road comapnies in order to remain in stock. As Mrs. Sloane, the loving, rather selfish mother of Billy's sweetheart in next week's play, Miss Van Esse has some work that suits her exceedingly well.

Mr. Walter Hampden's initial appearance in Peterborough to-night, "The Taming of the Shrew."

To-night's performance at "The Grand" should bring out not only a large, but a representaive audience. A Shakespearian production deserves the very best patronage, especially when an actor such as Mr. Hampden decides to take on tour an excellent company such as we are to see in "The Taming of the Shrew." I have been talking recently with some people who know Mr. Hampden well. They all say that he is a delightful, charming man. Unaffected and simple, he impresses you as a serious, earnest scholar, but not in the least pedantic. So many people with a serious aim in life become obsessed by it and forget that everyone else is only interested to a lesser degree. The picture of "Petruchio" in the paper last night proclaims the actor to be an extremely handsome man. If any one neglects to see him to-night who possibly could go to the show, it will be a matter of future regret I am sure. So many people have asked questions and evinced interest in the date of the play that I think it augurs well, and no doubt to-night will bring out everyone interested in culture and the pursuit of learning.

"The Title."

On next Thursday night, "The Title" by Arnold Bennett, will be given for one performance only. It is a Herndon production, as was Nance O'Neil's play, "The Passion Flower." Mr. Lumsden Hare the leading man, was with Miss O'Neil and is a sterling good actor. He received the highest praise from critics everywhere who say that "The Title" is one of the very best shows on the road this season. You have heard a great deal about the photo-play, "Over the Hill." Mr. Noel Tearle, who has a leading role in the picture, is in "The Title," while Miss Selene Johnson not only plays a difficult part well, but she wears some stunning gowns. One of a leading woman's greatest assets is the possession of a large and stylish wardrobe. We love to see pretty clothes both on and off the stage, but it is not given to many to have French models especially made for them. Arnold Bennett's work speaks for itself from a literary standpoint, and "Milestones" was such a dramatic success it naturally suggests the same standard in "The Title."

"Camouflage."

The date for "Camouflage" is drawing nearer and those who saw the boys last winter will find that the show has been completely revised. The same standard has been kept as regards the quality of the work, but some new features have been added—new costumes, and I think the "girls" "pull off some new stunts." At least those are the words of their advance man. I wonder if he means they have some new flirting methods! They should draw big houses—they are universally popular, they have friends everywhere and the show is within every person's means. "Camouflage" is such a good name too! It is really wonderful to see the transformation. I should think sometimes it would be interesting to have the illusion retained!

Hullo, Canada! Really Coming.

Mr. de Courville, Shirley Kellogg and Harry Tate.

The de Courville Revue is actually coming to Peterborough. On Wednesday, in Toronto, I saw the big show and it is some show! Clever! Good music! Beautiful girls! and Shirley Kellogg and Harry Tait! The latter name may mean much to you or it may not. Nearly every Canadian soldier saw the Hippodrome show in London, but there will be no one who will fail to appreciate Harry Tate's marvellous personality. He is naturally funny and can say the simplest things and get instantaneous response from the audience. Miss Kellog's voice is charming. She can sing and dance, she is really very beautiful, and the gowns she wears defy description. From now on you will hear occasionally from us about this show, but I assure you nothing is too good to say about Hullo! Canada!

"BILLY TOMBSTONES"

At the Grand, Monday, October 31st

Artificiality is one of the greatest troubles of modern life. For some reason or other nobody is satisfied with things as they are. There used to be a certain prejudice about "painting the lily" or sweet young girls, and we used to pride ourselves on being strong, healthy and sound. Lately, however, it is very rare to find people satisfied with themselves and doctors dearly love to prescribe a stimulating treatment. First, they removed our appendix, then tonsils and adenoids. Now, beware of the teeth extracting prescription. When you go to your favorite physician, be very careful when he asks you to open your mouth. He may want to look at your tongue, and he may want to remove your teeth. If you are wise, you will postpone the operation until you have seen Rex Snelgrove in "Billy's Tombstones." To reduce a big strapping football player to utter helplessness, to make a seemingly drivelling idiot out of an ordinarily sane young man, you have only to extract his teeth, provide him with a set of false ones, and turn him loose. Billy Hargrave was a hero; he wiped up all the honors on the gridiron; he loved a pretty girl—but how can a man look romantic while still conscious of those new, pearly, even "uppers." Worse still, Billy had to explain his new acquisition, relying on his financee's good sense to overlook the shock of seeing those teeth reposing in a glass of water during the future honeymoon. He just gets to the point of mentioning four——well you know what one always expects of a young man's past life—when a sudden push from behind sends him sprawling. If you want to see an uproariously funny situation see Billy Tombstones at the Grand, Monday

CREDITMEN'S REPORT CITES TRADE IMPROVEMENTS

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 29. — (Canadian Press).—"Improvement in wholesale circles maintained"; "slight improvement this week"; "expansion continues." These three expressions of opinions are found in advices from the east, and would seem to be a reflex of business conditions there, states the weekly trade report of the Canadian Creditmen's Trust Association.

Montreal advices state that little change has taken place in business conditions during the last week. The movement of wholesale trade is mostly confined to sorting orders. Retail trade is reported to be generally fair. Failures for the week number 17, with liabilities totalling $450,000.

Reports from Toronto and Ontario generally convey the opinion that manufacturers and wholesalers find the improvement in business maintained. Retail business is fairly active, and is expected to become more so with colder weather. Grocers, dry goods, boots and shoes and furniture houses report business satisfactory.

Winnipeg and the west, while finding business on the upgrade, is marking time to a certain extent with continued wet weather. During the past week trade has been generally quiet and collections very slow. Retail trade is showing a slight improvement, with the expected advent of more seasonable weather, and an improvement is reported in ladies' wear, dry goods and boots and shoes.

Saskatchewan wholesale trade has found a still further improvement in business conditions this week, but retail trade is reported to be slow, with farmers holding back from purchases. Collections are very slow in most parts of the province.

CONCERT AND PIE SOCIAL OF L.O.L. NO. 50.

Good Musical Programme, Dance, and Euchre.

A very happy evening was spent yesterday when L.O.L. No. 50 enjoyed a pie social and concert in Victoria Hall. A goodly number were present, and the concert programme consisted of instrumental selections by Miss Donnelly, humorous numbers by Mr. Fred Marken, Scotch songs by Messrs. McKinley ad Chapman, together with several musical contributions by Park street Baptist Church Orchestra. The tasty and tempting pies auctioned brought good prices. A dance and eucher contest were marked feat ures of this jolly occasion, which the singing of the National Anthem brought to a close.

Both officers and members of L.O.L. No. 50 wish to thank all of their friends who so kindly contributed to the programme.

PARTRIDGE NEAR CITY.

In Township That Forbids Use of Firearms—Open Season Same as For Deer, November 5 to 20th.

The open season for shooting deer and partridge extends from November 5th to November 20th. Most of the local hunters expect to get away for the first day, but others intend to wait until the following Monday, November 7th. The long closed season has brought about the desired increase of ruffled grouse, or partridge as they are commonly known, and they have become fairly numerous near the city. Last Sunday seven of them were flushed from a thicket scarcely more than half a mile from within Monaghan township. Township by-laws in Monaghan and Smith expressly forbid shooting within their boundaries, and it should not be difficult to protect this covey that are almost domesticated by the frequent encounters with men. Any person who would exterminate these partridge that have been hatched within ten minutes walk from the city is just the same type of sport who would kill the squirrels in Victoria Park.

LEAVES FOR NEW POSITION.

Miss Ella Smith left for Toronto this morning to accept a position with the firm of Holt, Renfrew & Co., furriers. She was presented with a handsome silk umbrella by her companions at Barries, Ltd., where she has been employed for about four years.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY SEEKS LOCATION HERE.

Another manufacturing concern is seeking location in Peterborough, and last evening its representatives met Council's Manufacturers' Committee, the City's Industrial Commissioner, together with members of the local Chamber of Commerce, and discussed the inducements the industry is asking before establishing their plant here.

LITERARY EVENING.

Next Tuesday night the first of the literary evenings to be held at the Young Women's Christian Association will take place. The subject for study will be Archibald Lampman, taken up by Miss McVannell, of the Normal College staff. Mrs. L. J. Pettit will read some selections from Lampman, and there will be music. These meetings are open to everyone.

PROCEEDS DIVIDED.

The Sisters of St. Vincent's Orphanage wish to express their sincere gratitude to Mr. V. E. Taplin, to the ladies who took charge of the collection, and to all those who so generously contributed towards the same at the Grand Opera House on Thursday evening, in connection with the exposition of Natural Tread Shoes. The proceeds were divided equally between the Children Shelter and the Orphanage.

AT THE TEMPLE.

There will be special services at the Salvation Army Temple this week-end, conducted by Colonel and Mrs. Morehen. These visitors are well known in Peterborough, having been in command of the Eastern Ontario Division for a number of years. They are now actively engaged in young people's work in the Salvation Army at Toronto. Their many friends will be glad to see and hear them over the week-end. The public are cordially invited. Come early and get a good seat.

POPPY DAY.

Mr. Sidney Whatley wishes to remind anyone desiring to procure a wreath or a cross of the French poppies for decorative purposes that the supply is rapidly becoming exhausted, and it will probably be impossible to procure any more from Toronto. Orders should be placed with him at the earliest possible moment. There are plenty of sprays on hand.

The lavish display of these beautiful flowers in the window of the Grafton Company has aroused favourable comment from all parts of the city. Their natural shading, the beautiful colour, and artistic arrangement make them wonderfully effective for decorative purposes.

FAT STOCK SHOW WILL BE HELD AT UNION STOCK YARDS.

In order to provide an outlet for the commercial live stock which was being prepared for the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, the Executive of the Toronto Fat Stock Show have decided to hold a show at the Union Stock Yards, December 8th and 9th. This will not only give exhibitors the opportunity of competing for a good list of prizes, but will provide a market for the animals, and the butchers can secure prime meat cuts for the Christmas trade. Premium list will be ready for distribution next week. 1d-29

STREAM OF WATER DASHES DOWN MOUNTAIN SIDE AFTER CLOUDBURST ON MINING TOWN.

VANCOUVER, B.C., October 29 (Canadian Press). — Many lives were lost and scores injured when a portion of the mining town of Britannia Beach was swept away as a result of a cloudburst late last night.

Four doctors and eight nurses left for the scene on a special train this morning.

The town was practically cut in two by a stream of water which dashed down the mountain side, carrying cottages and all buildings to the beach.

Britannia Beach is situated 18 miles from here.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, October 29. Canadian Press. — Trifling changes were made by the leading stocks at the opening of to-day's session. Rails again were subjected to profit taking. Oil, motors, coppers and leathers showed moderate strength.

Despite further profit taking in rails, prominent shares of that group eased fractionally. Oils, motors, independent steels, tobaccos, and food specialties strengthened under the lead of Mexican Petroleum, Republic Iron, American Sugar, American Tobacco, and Corn Products. Within the first half-hour, however, the market became irregular on the sharp reaction of Mexican Petroleum and the moderate heaviness of United States Steel.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, October 29 (Canadian Press). — Much activity was in evidence on the local Stock Exchange during the early trading this morning, and nearly all the leaders were traded in, a great number of shares changing hands within the first half-hour. No startling changes in price quotations, however, occurred. Issues for the most part were steady around their yesterday's closing figures. Abitibi dropped half a point to 33 and Atlantic Sugar three-quarters to 31. Brazilian and Brompton were both fractionally stronger at 24 1-2 and 27-8 respectively. National Breweries, however, weakened.

Freeing the Victim of Nervous Headaches

Weekly Health Talk No. 2
By A. P. Rogers, D.C.

Uncle Ben Says
"So live that you'll have health enough to sleep at night."

The victim of nervous headaches is usually the victim of a poor stomach or an inactive liver. If the liver is inactive it disorders the stomach. If the stomach is the centre of weakness, the headaches will only be overcome when the weakness of the stomach is corrected.

HEALTH FOLLOWS CHIROPRACTIC CORRECTS PRESSURE ON SPINAL NERVES IN DISEASES OF THE FOLLOWING ORGANS:

THE LOWER NERVE UNDER THE MAGNIFYING GLASS IS PINCHED BY A MISALIGNED JOINT. PINCHED NERVES CANNOT TRANSMIT HEALTHFUL IMPULSES. CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTING REMOVES THE PRESSURE. THE UPPER NERVE IS FREE AS NATURE INTENDS.

The victim of nervous headaches enjoys days of relief, but as time runs on, the headaches come back more and more often. The cause is a mechanical misalignment of spinal joints which causes pressure on spinal nerves, either to the stomach or liver, and in many cases to both. The Chiropractor restores the mechanical alignment, and with the pressure on the nerves released, Nature acts normally, which is to say healthfully.

CHRONIC SUFFERER FINDS CAUSE REMOVED.

"I am writing this in the hope that some one may profit by my experience. Being troubled with nervous headaches which prescriptions failed to relieve, I was advised to see a Chiropractor. I was better in two weeks. I have been back to work now some months, thanks to Chiropractic."
—A. W. Carter, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 1235P.

To Build Up Your Health is the Best Way to Obtain Pep

Pep, everyone has heard this expression. A man or woman who possesses this happy faculty, usually gets what he or she goes after. Our successful people in every line all have this to a greater or less degree.

This word, although still unknown in dictionaries, conveys its particular meaning better than any other word in the English language. What does it consist of?

P. E. P.—Perseverance, Enthusiasm, Progressiveness.

Perseverance in what you know to be right. Do not be like the fellow who says that it is a fine idea to do so and such, and lets George do it. But dig in, roll up your sleeves to the elbow, and show that you are better than the "not-dead-but-sleepeth" kind. If a thing is worth having it is worth striving for.

Enthusiasm is the centre of Pep. You can be as persevering as you like, but if you haven't Enthusiasm in what you are doing, you lack the very nucleus of success.

You never saw any really successful business man who was not enthusiastic over his particular line. If you are not enthusiastic over the thing you are trying to present you cannot expect anyone else to be.

Progressiveness is the result of Perseverance and Enthusiasm combined. It shows that you are "delivering the goods" and consequently creating a good record. Thus you see that "Pep" is the key to success.

Take CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS to build up YOUR HEALTH and BE A PEPTOMIST.

MORTGAGE ON CHANCEL ALL SAINTS' CHURCH WAS BURNED LAST EVENING

CHANCEL AND OFFICES NOW FREE OF DEBT—OCCASION ONE OF GENERAL REJOICING BY LARGE CONGREGATIONS.

STORY OF THE CHURCH

And all the people rejoiced, for that they had offered willingly to the Lord, the organ pealed forth in volume, joyous and resonant, the soul-stirring strains of Christendom's glorious Doxology, while a large and thanksgiving congregation, with heart and voice "praised God from whom all blessings flow," that a heap of paper which had given them little concern the past seven or eight years, had been redeemed.

The occasion was the burning of the mortgage on the chancel and offices of all Saints' Church last evening, and the large sacred stone edifice resounded again and again with the tuneful refrain of this grand old hymn of praise as Wardens Walter North and W. H. Barry burned the recently discharged document in a Union Jack enwrapped aluminum receptacle standing on a small table in the foreground of the church's spacious chancel. With this last of chancel and offices—$15,000 in all—now defrayed, the congregation of some 350 families are now only carrying a debt of $13,000 on property which could not be replaced, it is estimated, for less than $100,000; and they are to be congratulated for that commendable spirit of faith and courage which has culminated in the acquisition for the Anglicans in South City of a substantial and efficiently equipped church building which will go down into the ages a living monument of practical Christian endeavour in their day and generation.

Commendable Music.

Both morning and evening services yesterday were of a fittingly, joyous and praiseful nature, marked features of which were exceedingly acceptable numbers rendered by a choir of tunefully balanced volume—renditions reflecting considerable credit on the choristers, and on Choirmaster Mr. George Chandler—while Mrs. W. A. Logan's organ accompaniments were fully apreciated. In the morning Miss Flora Harrison was heard to pleasing advantage in the beautiful soprano aria from "Elijah, "Hear ye, Oh, Israel," and at night a quartette—"Angels' Voices," Sir Arthur Sullivan—contributed by Mesrs. Robt. Brawn (first tenor) James Raybald (second tenor), T. H. Boddy (first base), and Geo. East, (second base), was a voice effort unaccompanied by the organ) full of arresting melody and admirably blending admirably.

The instrumental portion of this bright and cheerful service were appreciably augmented by Mrs. Foster with violin, and Master Walter Hughes and Robert Beach, with cornet and tympani, respectively.

The choir are also to be complimented on their excellent interpretation of that joyful and thrilling old hymn them, "Gloria in Excelsis."

Offered Willingly.

The Rector, R. B. Grobb, prefaced his sermon with a warm eulogy for Mayor William Buller, than whom none more worthy could have been chosen to represent the congregation on this auspicious occasion, and who had stood loyally behind him during his incumbency on every occasion calling for lay cooperation. "I shall never forget," Mr. Grobb said, "all that Mr. Buller has done for my support, and in this church's interests."

In the course of an exceedingly interest-holding and illuminative discourse built upon the text "The people rejoiced, for that they had offered willingly to the Lord."—I. Chron. 29, v. 9. The Rector referred in glowing praise to the congregation's faith and courage. Some nine years ago in shouldering the task of completing the church by adding its present chancel and offiecs; and today, he said, we stand with that vision realized. It did take faith and courage, he continued, to assume this chancel burden, besides carrying a $13,000 debt on the nave of the church, and his congregation had good cause to rejoice that they had never failed in meeting their mortgage interests, which fact in connection with the payment of the last cent of indebtedness on the chancel, made this an occasion for very solid satisfaction.

His text referred to the children of Israel's willing offerings to the building of the Temple of God, in which he found fitting comparison with the spirit manifested by the congregation of All Saints in building their own sacred edifice. The reverend gentleman was glad to say that at $15,000 for the chancel $10,000 had been raised by voluntary subscriptions offered cheerfully and willingly. The women had labored wonderfully for both church building and chancel; eight years ago, starting with a 25c "talent movement," accreating $37.50, they had returned in a year with over $1000, while the next year, in like manner, they had come but little short of that sum. Here he commended the splendid work by the Women's Guild, who, in season and out of season, had worked indefatigably, netting for the building fund thousands of dollars, and largely due to their self-sacri-

Kindness Saves Farmer A Loss

(Special Despatch to The Examiner).

KINGSTON, Oct. 31. — A Stoco farmer named Rush gave a man who had a hard luck story a lift in his waggon while on his way home from Tweed, and, taking him home, gave him a good meal, and then put him up for the night in his hay-loft, as he did not have an extra bed in his house. During the night, the stranger heard a noise in the granary, and on making an investigation found two men in the act of loading up their waggon with grain. When he came upon them they made off, leaving the horse and waggon, and have not yet returned for it. Mr. Rush was saved a serious loss as a result of being friendly to the man with the hard luck story.

The Block contest will take place to-morrow night as usual for two more useful prizes.—Advt.

POLICE DENY BECKER "FRAMED" FOR MURDER

(United Press).

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—New York officials, past and present, to-day were stirred to indignant denial by charges that Charles Becker, executed for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, "was framed." Police Inspector Charles F. Dwyer denounced previous Republican administrations and declared Becker, a former police lieutenant, was innocent of the murder of the famous gambler, for which he was electrocuted.

SECOND LETTER FROM "JESSIE"

WINDSOR, Oct. 31.— (Canadian Press.)—A second letter from "Jessie," who claims to be the mother of the twin babies found abandoned in a suit case on a Windsor ferry September 15, was received to-day by M. R. Winters, Inspector of the Children's Aid Society. If the contents were divulged it would be impossible to apprehend the man whom Jessie claims was responsible for her plight, the Inspector said.

HOLDING FOUR ON SUSPICION OF BANDITRY

GIVEN REMAND IN ST. CATHERINES TO ALLOW BANKERS TO ASCERTAIN WHETHER THEY ARE ONES WANTED.

THINK THEM CONNECTED WITH WYOMING ROBBERY

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 31.—(Special Despatch to the Examiner) —To-day in police court four men held on suspicion were given a remand of eight days without appearance in court. This is to allow employees of banks where robberies have taken place to come here and look at the men. The four are under strong guard at the county jail. The finding of the Wyoming Bank robbers car in Niagara River last week strengthens suspicion against these men who are believed to be residents of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

25 INJURED IN TROLLEY CRASH

ONE REPORTED KILLED IN HEAD-ON COLLISION IN FOG AT BACK RIVER, NEAR MONTREAL.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—Two trolley cars crashed in a head-on collision near Back River this morning, and one person is so far reported killed and at least twenty-five injured. The scene is almost ten miles from the heart of the city. Ambulances have been sent. The cause was a heavy fog that drifted inland off Back River.

SAYS CANADA BECOMING A NATION OF GAMBLERS

EVANGELIST SCORES THOSE HAVING CELLARS OF LIQUOR

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 31.—(Special Despatch to the Examiner) Evangelist J. P. Hanley, Chicago, who is holding evangelistic meetings here in the Methodist churches said this afternoon at a mass meeting of men that Canada was rapidly becoming a country of gamblers.

"The race track records show it Canada has done a lot for her soldiers, more than any other country perhaps", he said, "but you could easily give every soldier his dues if you abolished the race track gambling."

Speaking regarding liquor, Hanley said more drinking is being done by the rich man with a cellar and the mothers of the aristocratic clubs who know where to get it, than by the man who buys it from bootleggers. 'And while I despise the boot legger I have just as much respect for the bootlegger as I have for the rich man who has a cellar and goes down six times a day to fix the furnace," he said.

BLOODLESS REVOLT FORCES PRESIDENT OF PARAGUAY OUT

(United Press).

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 31.—Vice-President Paivahas assumed the Presidency of Paraguay as a result of a bloodless revolution, according to an Asuncion despatch to La Prensa to-day.

President Gondra was said to have resigned when confronted by the revolutionists. The latter were reported to have been led by former President Schaerer.

FOUR WOMEN ESCAPE FROM DUBLIN PRISON

DUBLIN, October 31 (Canadian Press). — Four Irish women, political prisoners, escaped from Mount Joy Prison last night by means of a rope ladder thrown across the prison wall, the fugitives clambering down a steep embankment—the most daring jail delivery in the history of the famous prison.

NEW TICKETS ISSUED.

Indicating That Street Car Fare Will Likely Remain at Seven Cents.

The new issue of street car tickets, the first printed since the seven-cent fare came into effect ten or eleven months ago, do not inspire a hope that the fare will soon be lowered to the old levels, as a further aid to getting back to pre-war prices. The usual supply on hand is indicated by the fact that was enough to take care of the traffic from the time the change was made until last Friday.

SIR HENRY DRAYTON,
Minister of Finance in the Meighen Government for whom no seat has been found yet.

DRAYTON STILL IS MINUS SEAT

REFUSAL OF FINANCE MINISTER TO RUN IN KINGSTON AND FILLING OF TORONTO SEATS LEAVES ONLY CARLETON.

ELECTION NEWS

OTTAWA, Oct. 31. — (Special Despatch to the Examiner.)—The problem of finding a seat for Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance the Meighen Government has not yet been solved. Sir Henry entered the Government through the constituency of Kingston by acclamation some two years ago When the present election was anounced, it was reported that Sir Henry would find a seat in Parkdale in the place of H. H. Mowat, appointed to the bench. Parkdale, however, had other views on the subject, and selected its own man in the person of David Spence, to carry the Meighen banner and all other Toronto seats are now filed. In the meantime Kingston Conservatives propose to nominate General Arthur Ross, a native of the county.

Sir Henry has been campaigning to some extent with the Premier, but he has so far made no other effort to lay his foot in the contest. It is now said that Carlton may give him nomination. Carlton county has been conservative as long as anyone can remember. The inclusion within its boundaries recently of portions of Ottawa, however, considerably changed by the political complexion of the county. In addition, it is to be noted that the consituency went farmer at the last provincial election. Up to the present the Progressives have nominated Bower Henry, and the Liberals, A. Gourlay to contest the seat. The sitting member at dissolution was George Boyce (Conservative). Conservative nominations will not be held until November 12. In the meantime there are evidence of differences in the convention.

MURDOCK FOR KING.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press).—James Murdock, formerly of the Board of Commerce, will support Hon. Mackenzie King at Guelph to-night, and Sam. Carter will also be a speaker. Finishing his present Ontario tour with a grand rally in Massey Hall here next Saturday night, Mr. King will hold meetings at Stratford to-morrow night, Sarnia Wednesday, St. Thomas Thursday and London Friday. Mr. Murdock will accompany him to all meetings, with the exception of that at London. Friday night the Liberal leader speaks at Woodstock. At Guelph to-night Mr. Murdock will categorically deny the assertion that the Premier was not aware of the action of the Government in stifling investigations of the Board of Commerce.

ONTARIO WILL BE MAIN FIGHTING GROUND.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31. — (Canadian Press).—That Ontario will be the main fighting ground in the coming Federal election is evident from the fact that in 82 constituencies, practically all have two or three candidates named. There are 71 Government candidates, fifty Liberals, 65 Progressives and twelve Independents. Quebec has its full quota of 65 Liberal candidates already named, the Government has twenty, the Progressives four, and the Independents six.

MAN AND DAUGHTER DEAD, MOTHER HURT

ELIZABETH, N.J., Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press.) —Martin Smith, teacher, and his five year old daughter are dead and Mrs. Smith is in a serious condition in a hospital as the result of a shooting in their home to-day. Police officials believe that Smith wounded his wife and then killed his child and himself.

FLOODED AREAS COUNTING LOSS FROM DISASTER

ONE TOWN DESTROYED, ANOTHER AND TWO RESORTS SERIOUSLY DAMAGED BY WEEK-END FLOODS.

DAMAGE IS ESTIMATED AT SEVERAL MILLIONS

VANCOUVER, Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Western British Columbia to-day is counting its losses of the week end of disastrous floods, the worst perhaps in the history of the Province. Britannia Beach is destroyed, 36 of its citizens are drowned, and Port Coquitlam has suffered railway and property damage yet to be ascertained. The district is in a serious state of flood and the famous resorts of Capitalona and Seymour are in flood with telephone and telegraph wires and the roadbed of the Pacific and Great Eastern Railway washed out. Several million dollars will have to be spent to repair the damage.

The town of Britannia Beach, comprising a hundred homes and one of the most valuable copper refineries in the world, fought in the rain and wind Friday night to rescue the families and recover its dead following the destruction of the settlement. Incesant rains, which melted the snows from the higher levels had deposited a veritable lake of water on the shoulder of the mountain. Houses built on sand deposits which formed most of the foundations, were easy prey for the flood. Many people were never seen again and scores escaped through bedroom windows and skylights while their homes bobbed along in the current.

LLOYD GEORGE TO FACE TEST THIS EVENING

BELIEVED REVOLTING UNIONISTS CANNOT MUSTER MORE THAN 50 VOTES TO SUPPORT RESOLUTION.

POSSIBILITY OF RUPTURE IN IRISH PARLEYS LOOMS

By ED. L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The House of Commons will render its verdict to-night on Premier Lloyd George's conduct of the Irish peace negotiations. The vote of resolutions censuring the Government for alleged weakness in its attitude toward the Sinn Fein was scheduled for 8 p.m. The Unionists were to open the debate at 4 o'clock, and Lloyd George was to start speaking about two hours later.

Although there appeared to be every assurance that the revolting Unionists could not muster more than 50 votes, and would be overwhelmed by the Lloyd George forces, who would be assisted by the Liberals and Laborites, the situation was regarded as highly important.

Considerable significance was attached to the possibility that a great number of Unionists, while not joining the insurgents of their party in attacking the Government, would abstain from supporting the resolution sponsered by their party unless the Premier gave definite assurance that Ulster would not be sacrificed.

A report is in circulation widely that the Sinn Fein are willing to trade allegiance for the counties of Fermanagh and Tyrone, should Lloyd George in his speech reassure the Unionists that Ulster would not be partitioned, he would be confronted by a possibility of a rupture in the peace negotiations—scheduled to be resumed to-morrow—since the Irish will not concede the sovereignty of the King without substantial concessions.

DIDN'T REPORT AUTO TRANSFER

FOUR LOCAL MEN FINED $2.50 EACH FOR FAILING TO FORWARD NOTICE OF SALE TO HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT.

TO ESTABLISH FINE OF $20 FOR THIS OFFENCE

In the Police Court to-day James Skinner, Edgar Burnham, Merton Storey, and M. Pappas were fined $2.50 each, and paid $3.10 costs, for failing to forward within six days notice to the Department of Public Highways of the sale or transfer of an automobile originally owned by James Skinner.

All four men found themselves equally guilty, for the Act is specific that whether one is the seller or the buyer, he is responsible for sending notice.

James Skinner sold the automobile to Edgar Burnham in May, and subsequently the other two men had it. Mr. Pappas sold it in Toronto, and for some breach of the Act in Toronto on the part of the present owner, James Skinner is summoned to appear in Toronto Police Court, for the car, never having been transferred, is still registered under his name.

Magistrate Dumble was at first going to fine each $5.00, but when he saw there were four defendants, he had compassion in his heart. He allowed James Carter, who was merely Edgar Burnham's agent in the sale of the car, to go.

Mr. Skinner said all the trouble was over Merton Storey not reporting the transfer, as he said he would.

Chief Newhall told them they were getting off lightly, for in other places a standard fine of $20.00 has been established.

J. F. Strickland, who represented the quartette, refused to have anything further to do with the defence when the Magistrate would not let him quote precedents in Toronto. He threatened not to have anything to do with the Police Court any more.

After this, Chief Newhall is going to ask for the established fine, he said.

WILSON RECOVERING

CENOTAPH AT G.W.V.A. HALL NEAR COMPLETION

Arrangements For Rousing Celebration on Monday.

The cenotaph at the G.W.V.A. hal lis rapidly nearly completion, and arrangeemnts are under way for a rousing celebration on Monday next, when the unveiling by General King, Commander of Military District No. 3, takes place.

The officials of the G.W.V.A. are very anxious that all organizations in the city, no matter of what sort, should take part in the public parade, which precedes the unveiling ceremonies. Invitations have been sent out to many, but with the press of business on hand, some may have been overlooked. A general invitation is therefore extended to one and all to turnout and make this a monster parade, in which all militia units will take part, with the G.W.V.A. massed bands.

The parade will start from the Armouries at 9.30 a.m., march around the city and back to the Armouries, where a programme will be rendered, and the actual unveiling of the cenotaph will take place at 11 o'clock.

PROCEEDS WITH EXTRADITION OF MULLEN TO U.S.

ROUTING PREPARED BY EXPERT CONVINCES SHERIFF MEAD THAT MULLEN COULD HAVE REACHED HERE IN 37 HOURS

SCHWEIRS COULD THROW LITTLE LIGHT ON CASE

After seeing Ernest Schweirs at Kingston Penitentiary and spending Sunday in Petefborough, Sheriff Harry J. Mead, of Carthage, Missouri, left for Guelph early this morning to proceed with the extradition proceedings before Extradition Commissioner Judge Spotton. After his interview with Ernest Schweirs, who was arrested with Walter Mullen, the man who is wanted in Carthage on a charge of murder, on the night of May 10 at Havelock, and was sentenced to two years at the Prison Farm on the charge of breaking and entering freight cars, Sheriff Mead, according to Chief of Police Newhall, was more convinced that Mullen is the man wanted. It is stated that Schweirs could throw little light on Mullen's movements in Canada, and it appears that the two were thrown together on the railroad by force of circumstances. They had travelled from Peterborough together so did not have much time to exchange confidences.

Sheriff Mead had one of the C.P.R. clerks at head office make out a routing from Carthage to Toronto; and it was found that travelling by the longest rout it would only take 33 hours if made in a "life and death" rush as Mullen would likely have made it. This information reassured the Sheriff, for it had seemed almost impossible that Mullen could have reached Canada in such a short time. He had, if he committed the murder, taken only 37 or 41 hours, depending on the train he left Carthage on, to reach Havelock, and before the time had been figured by the expert, this brief lapse of time had been the main fact clearing Mullen of any connection with the crime. The information from the C.P.R. therefore re-assured Sheriff Mead that what had seemed impossible was not, and he therefore proceeds with the extradition of Mullen with confidence he is the man, or one of the men connected with the murder of William Spain at Carthage on May 8th or 9th last.

INTERVIEW WITH WALTER HAMPDEN

FAMOUS SHAKESPEARIAN ACTOR LIKES THE GREAT OUT-OF-DOORS

My first introduction to Shakesperian heroes and heroines behind the scenes took place on Saturday night when I went back to keep an appointment with Mr. Walter Hampden. We had met before and I am quite familiar with our local stage but—what a difference in scenery requirements between modern drama and a play such as "The Taming of the Shrew!" Finally I made my way through a maze of ropes, shifting scenes and busy men—escorted by the supposed Lucentio—a gallant gentleman indeed, I was brought to Petruchio's dressing room. What a charming man Mr. Hampden is! Courteous, graceful simple in manner, he greeted me as though we were old friends and I was face to face with the erstwhile master of Katherine's heart and hand. His vari-coloured and somewhat tattered gown and cloak were most attractive—they seemed to particularly suit his strikingly romantic features, while his voice holds one's attention just as soon as he begins to speak.

Mrs. Hampden or Miss Mabel Moore as she is on the programme plays only a small role that of Curtis in this show, but she is an English actress who gained a very high rank in the theatrical profession before she married Mr. Hampden. Their two children, their home, lovely old farm in Bridgefield, Connecticut and Shakesperian drama—those are the chief objects in the lives of these delightful people.

Without attempting to preach, to exploit the theatre of yesterday to the disparagment of the stage to-day or to criticize any other producer or manager, this really fine actor told me that he is so anxious to make people love Shakespeare, to resuscitate that affection for the best in the theatre, that he is making almost super-human efforts to make the great dramatist and his works known all over the North American Continent. This present tour will take him south, then west to the Pacific Coast and finally back to Broadway. I could not persuade him to talk much of himself. "My work! Ah yes—that is interesting! As for myself—Outside the theatre all I really care for is my little home my family and —oh! yes,—I do love the open—to hit some old trail—to ride, to camp and to ramble at leisure in the great out of doors." Just at that point, without becoming theatrical, Mr. Hampden's voice took on deep, sonorous tones—vibrating with the enthusiasm he felt; I realized forcibly the charm of the human voice which will always attract when many other qualities fail. That Mr. Hampden is being sincere is proved by the fact that he refused a very flattering offer from the Goldwyn people to appear in pictures this winter in California. He does not stand upon such a lofty plane however that he is not interested at all in the financial end of his business. He is—but he is a strong minded, determined man who intends to prove his contention that the people will always support a superior Shakesperian production, that they will pay to see it and that they like the best. No amount of commercialism will ever affect the innate love of the majority for real drama, and after seeing Mr. Hampden's work, I could tell him truthfully that I agree with him. After once covering the ground and establishing a widespread reputation I think his next trip should be a triumphal tour. To conclude before you are tired reading this, I will quote one interesting remark "In spite of sixty-eight performances of "Hamlet" on Broadway last year, of New York successes for all my Shakesperian characters, I found I had to practically break the ground everywhere I went—once convinced my following in the large cities seems assured. My faith in Shakespeare is as firm as a rock and I only hope Peterborough was pleased with us. Your city is very beautiful—this new bridge was designed by a friend of mine and I am so happy to have a chance of seeing it This conversation took place during a motor trip through the city yesterday and not altogether between acts—had it been so—I'm afraid the audience would have become a trifle impatient.

BANQUET TO SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS — ST THOMAS CHURCH AUXILIARY TO SELL POPPIES.

PERSONAL MENTION

MILLBROOK, Oct. 31.—A banquet for the officers and teachers of the Presbyterian Sunday School was held in Friday, October 28th., in the Sunday School room of the church from 4 to 6 p.m.

The tables looked very attractive and there was an abundance of good things provided for the occasion; afterward an enjoyble time was spent in games suitable for the Hallowe'en season. The object of the gathering, which was well attended was to bring the advantage of the Sunday School before all the young people belonging to the church and so increase both interest and attendance. The good time enjoyed, and the excellent supper served, will no doubt do a great deal toward accomplishing the purpose which those in charge had in view.

Visited Lodge.

Two car-loads of members of the local I.O.O.F. Lodge motored to Peterboro on Friday evening, October 28th to visit the Lodge in that city, the main business being the conferring of the "Oriental Degree" on several of those who attended the meeting. Those going from Millbrook were: Messrs. S. Kelly, P. I. Bentley, J. A. Vance, E. Morden, Lloyd Sutton, Leonard McNeil, Ross Carr, and Wesley Shaw.

A Presentation

Mr. W. I. Collins was the recipient of a pleasant surprise on Friday evening, when he was invited to come to the Council Chamber in the Town Hall, and there presented with a gold-headed cane for himself and a gold-headed umbrella for Mrs. Collins as a slight token of esteem from their many friends in Millbrook, the following address being read by Mr. George E. Burnham, and the presentation being made by Captain Norman McGill.

Millbrook, Oct. 28 1921.

To Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Collins,

Dear Friends—On the eve of your departure your many friends in Millbrook wish to express their regrets that you find it necessary to leave our vicnity. We have appreciated your philanthropic and public spirit You have taken a keen interest in everything that was for the public welfare and your generous spirit has been an inspiraton to many. You have a host of friends who will speak a kind word for you, and hold pleasant memories of your many kind deeds. As a slight expression of our appreciaton we wish to present to you and Mrs. Collins these tokens of esteem, and wish you every success in your future home. We hope you will hav pleasant memories of the friends you leave behind.

Signed on behalf of your friends

VISITORS TO TOWN OVER THE WEEK-END—BUSINESS CHANGES

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 31. — Mrs. Rod Keller returned on Friday after a very pleasant two months' visit at the home of her son, Mr. George Keller, Brimley, Mich. She also visited at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Peeling, Galt, and other friends in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. George Barnum, and little daughters, Misses Jerrine and Dorothy, and Miss Carrie, visited on Sunday at Belleville, with Mrs. Barnum's sister, Mrs. Frank Reid. Miss Cora Barnum, who has been vsiting there for the past two weeks, returned home with them.

Rev. H. B. Kenney leaves to-day for Toronto where he will attend an executive meeting of the Methodist Book Room.

Mr. Frank Linton of Peterboro, spent the week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Linton.

Armistice Day Ceremonies.

On Thanksgiving Day, November 7th, arrangements are being made by the Daughters of the Empire to commemorate the third anniversary of the signing of the armistice, by the unveiling of a cenotaph on the school grounds. They will be assisted by C Company of the Northumberland Regiment and the band, Girl Guides, the two Chapters of the Daughters of the Empire, the High School Cadets and the school children. The unveiling ceremonies will take place at 10.30 a.m., and Major (Rev.) Belford of Codrington, has kindly consented to give an address, as well as the other clergymen of the town. This will be an impressive ceremony and no doubt a very large number will attend to pay honour to the heroes who lie in far-off Flanders fields.

Hallowe'en Tea.

The Hallowe'en tea given on Saturday in the public library by the Girl Guides was a marked success. The tea room was most appropriately and artistically decorated, a very dainty lunch was served and lots of delicious home made candy was sold. The proceeds of the sale amounted to $33 and all present had a pleasant time.

Women's Missionary Society.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church will hold their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. W. I. Stillman, on Thursday

To-night is Hallowe'en, and the boys and girls and older folks, too, are looking forward to Hallow'en pranks they have been planning and preparing for for some time.

F. F. Long, Ltd., of town, are further extending their confectionery business, having recently bought out another business in Hastings.

PROBABILITIES.

Showers in some localities, but partly fair.

GRAIN GROWERS REQUEST WHEAT BOARD RETURN

LETTER TO MEIGHEN TERMS HIS PROPOSED WHEAT POOL GREATLY INADEQUATE—PREMIER MAKES REPLY.

HAMILTON, Oct. 31.—(By Canadian staff Correspondent.)—Premier Meighen has received a letter from the Grain Growers' Association of Sintaluta, Saskatchewan, enclosing an appeal for re-establishment of the Canada Wheat Board which is being circulated through the prairie provinces. The letter states that the voluntary pool for handling grain, proposed by the Prime Minister in his Portage La Prairie speech, "Will be totally inadequate to cope with the situation" that the man at the head of the board should be "armed with dictatoroial powers", and that "the crisis facing the country is ample warrant for the creation of such a virtual dictatorship."

In replying to the letter, Premier Meighen notes that the plan proposed by him is considered "Hopelessly inadequate."

"I may say that I should be scarcely surprised that associations which have assumed political functions and very hostile political activities should take the attitude you desired toward any proposal that I make," he continues. "They took just the same attitule toward the Wheat Board, when, after much effort on my part, it was established."

In closing, Mr. Meighen writes that "I have made a definite and concrete proposal for the handling of the grain business" he asks whether Hon. MacKenzie King or Hon. T. A. Crerar have made proposals, and what they are. "My policy is before the people and it is for them to accept it or reject it" he says in closing.

MEIGHEN ANSWERS TALK OF LEAGUE WITH COMBINES

WELLAND, Ont. Oct. 31.—(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent—Following his Toronto meeting on Friday night, Premier Meighen took the road again Saturday, addressing two large meetings, first at Milton, in Halton county, and the second at Welland. At both he was greeted by large audiences which listened attentively to his arguments in support of a protective tariff policy and his defense of the government's record. At Welland the Prime Minister again took up the charge attributed to Hon. T. A. Crerar that the government is in league with "Big Business" and read to his audience a list of the names of larger mergers and consolidations of capital which took place while Mr. Crerar was a member of the government and to which, he said, the progressive leader had made no objection.

"Let us read the names of some of the combines which took place when Mr. Crerar was a member of the government," said the Premier.

There was the Canada Cement Co. in the year 1909, the Canada Machinery Co. 1910, Dominion Canners Ltd., 1910, Sherwin-Williams Co., 1911; Steel Co. of Canada 1911; Canadian Cottons Ltd., 1910; Canadian Car and Foundry Co., 1910; and Canadian Consolidated Felt Co., 1910."

"Here we have Mr. Crerar railing against combines", continued Mr. Meighen, "and yet Mr. Crerar was an ardent supporter of the government when these mergers took place." For himself he was not afraid of big organizations of industry, said the Premier. The economic tendency of the age was toward production on a large scale and this necessitated great aggregations of capital.

"A country that becomes afraid of big industries is quite likely to lose what industries it has" warned the Premier.

WILSON OPPOSED TO "EXALTING MILITARISM"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—It is stated that the reason for ex-President Wilson's failure to receive Marshal Foch Saturday was not entirely illness, but that Mr. Wilson fears the exaltation of militarism involved in the ovations to the French General.

SEVERE GALE SWEEPS CAPE BRETON COAST

SYDNEY, Oct. 31. — (Canadian Press.)—Several vessels were washed ashore in Sydney Harbor and Mira Bay and many minor damages resulted Friday when the worst gale Cape Breton experienced in more than forty years, struck this section of the seaboard.

BIG INTERESTS THE REAL GOVT. DECLARES KING

LIBERAL LEADER CHARGES "ORGANIZED GREED" KEPT MEIGHEN IN OFFICE AND ASKS FARMERS' SUPPORT.

CRERAR REFUTES CHARGE THAT HE IS FREE TRADER

BOLTON, Ont., Oct. 31. — (By Canadian Staff Correspondent.) — "Organized greed" was what had kept Mr. Meighen at the head of affairs for the past 16 months in the absence of any authority from the people of Canada, said Hon. Mackenzie King Saturday afternoon, speaking in the skating rink here. It would have been impossible for the Prime Minister to have carried on without some powerful influence behind him. Disclosures which had resulted from the activities of the Board of Commerce proved that business firms, with the connivance of the authorities, were bleeding the people to the tune of millions of dollars. But, said the Liberal leader, when the Board of Commerce would have brought these multi-millionaires to task, the members of the government gently but firmly restrained them.

"Big interests,' said Mr. King, had been the invisible government of Canada. And it was absolutely necessary that all who were in favor of government by the people and for the people should unite to overthrow their common enemy.

Once again Mr. King assured his hearers that there was no essential difference between the aims of the farmers and those of the Liberals. That which would benefit the agricultural interests throughout the Dominion must inevitably redound to the benefit of the dwellers of the towns and cities. It was well to remember that the Conservatives were infintely pleased to have farmer candidates placed in the field. More votes for the third party might mean less for the Liberals, and it would be a sorry result if Mr. Meighen were once again returned to power, because the friends of progress and self government were divided among themselves.

The fine traditions of the old Liberal party were a thing to be proud of, and a great asset not lightly to be thrown overboard for the sake of a new name. Mr. King accused J. W. E. Burnaby, the Farmer candidate, of coming into North York with the intention of dividing the forces which were supporting him. There was no real issue between the farmers as farmers, and the Liberal party. Mr. Burnaby did not represent the farmers as a whole, but only a section of them which was in favor of class legislation. For long, said the Liberal leader, Germany and Austria, arrayed against the forces of liberty and justice, seemed to triumph. England was right and France as were also Belgium and Italy, but unified effort was lacking; when this was at last secured,

IRISH PARLEY NOW DEPENDS ON ULSTER

LONDON, Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press). — Efforts have been made during the week-end to prevent a breakdown in the Irish Peace Conference, but a continuance of the negotiations now seems to depend almost entirely on the willingness of the Ulster authorities to assist in coming into line with the Sinn Fein.

Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, who has professed a desire to work amicably with Southern Ireland with an All-Ireland Council, will, it is said, be offered greatly extending powers for the northern parliament, accompanied by a strengthening of the position of the central council connecting the two Irish Parliaments, and it is declared to be the belief that he may accept this.

But, it is asserted, Sir James will oppose any curtailment of the area of the northern parliament and that he will especially resist any cutting off of the representation of the north-east of Ulster in the Imperial Parliament, which he regards as the greatest safeguard for Ulster.

FOG STOPS TRAFFIC IN NEW YORK HARBOR

NEW YORK, Oct. 31. Canadian Press. — A heavy fog over New York bay yesterday brought harbor traffic to a standstill, and caused a ferry boat with scores of passengers on board to go ashore on Robbins' Reef. The boat was floated six hours later. The Polish delegation going to Washington in connection with the Washintgon conference, was held up all night by the fog, on board the liner New York. The ferry boats to Staten Island operated by compass throughout the night.

DEMONSTRATION FOR ELSIE ON HOME-COMING.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., October 31. —Canadian Press. — The fisherman's battle of Halifax is being fought over again on the street corners of this old fishing port.

Captain Marty Welch Saturday night brought his smart little schooner Elsie into port after two and a half days' run from the Nova Scotian port, and no sooner had he and his crew set foot on the dock than they were surrounded by admirers of their racing ability, and besieged with questions about the victory of the Bluenose in the races for the international trophy.

20 DROWNED WHEN STEAMER IS CAPSIZED

ANTWERP, Oct. 31. Canadian Press—Twenty persons were drowned by the capsizing of the steamer August in the Scheldt on Saturday. Owing to the shifting of the cargo when the wheel was jammed hard aport, the vessel took on a heavy list, went over quickly and sank within a minute or two.

The passengers and crew below had not time to reach the deck. All the passengers and crew above deck were saved. The ship was only 50 yards from shore when the accident happened. It is reported that the captain reached shore and disappeared.

FOREIGN DEBT ESTIMATED TO TOTAL $5,000,000,000

RIGA, Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press) —The contents of a note sent by George Chitcherin, Bolshevik Foreign Minister, to the British, French, United States, Italian and Japanese Governments, declaring the Russian Soviet Government would agree, under certain circumstances, to recognize the foreign debts incurred up to the year 1914, have been made public here by the Rosta official Bolshevik news agency.

Recognition by Soviet Russia of these debts, M. Chitcherin's note says, is conditional upon the great powers concluding final peace and recognizing the Soviet Republic. He proposes that an international conference be held immediately to consider the demands of all nations on Russia and the Russian claims on them, and to work out a final treaty of peace.

"The Brussels conference," says M. Chitcherin, in his note, "stipulated, according to the European papers, as a condition of granting credits to the Russian Government for famine relief, acknowledgment of the debts of previous Russian Governments. This decision of the conference, the Russian Government up to the present is uninformed.

"The Soviet Government, however, in the face of the starving masses, does not wish to consider the intricacies of diplomatic etiquette, and considers that it is its straight duty to immediaely proclaim its attitude towards the Brussels decisions."

M. Chitcherin announces that recognition of the old debts under certain conditions coincides with the Soviet's intentions and declares that from the very beginning the Soviet Government aimed at economic co-operation with the other powers. Stating that Soviet had always proclaimed its readiness to grant suffi-

HOUSES SWEPT AWAY TO SEA BY RUSHING WATER

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 31. — (By Canadian Press.)—Twenty-three are known to be dead, thirteen and perhaps more are missing, and fifteen severely injured as the result of one of the most disastrous floods in the history of the province, which plunged out of the darkness on Friday night down a steep mountainside and transformed the model copper mining settlement of Britannia Beach into a scene of desolation and ruin. Fully half of the 110 neat, freshly painted cottages, with their trim lawns and flower gardens, were carried on the crest of the flood. Some houses were smashed to splinters; most of the remainder are still partially submerged.

It was at first thought that the death list would reach fifty, but Provincial police estimated to-day that no more than forty were killed.

Manager J. Donahue, of the Britannia Mines, describes the efforts made by those on duty at the mines proper, three miles back from the beach, to warn the villages. When the railway fill which caused the accumulation of water in the hills, gave way and released a roaring torrent into the creek, urgent warning was sent over the mines telephones. This message was received by Miss Ellan Patterson, on duty at the compressor plant in the village. She instantly rang everybody connected by telephone, relaying the miners' message: "For God's sake get out of your houses; flood coming down the creek."

Before the warning could be understood and passed on to all the residents, the waters crashed down the mountainside, swept away transmission lines and plunged the village into darkness. The creek bed, which once carried a veritable river, cut through the centre of the settlement. The arrival of the torrent at sea level meant that everything in its path was carried towards the sea. The water had fallen 2,000 feet in its three miles journey and gained a momentum which the little houses of Britannia could not resist. To-day a broad stream divides the untouched fringes of the town, strewn with timber, twisted telephone wires and scraps of heavier furniture smashed to pulpwood. Britannia Creek now

ELECTION DAY HOLIDAYS.

In order to give every elector a fair opportunity to exercise the franchise, the Provincial Government has decided to make December 6th, Federal election day, a general holiday throughout the province. Were it not that the light vote usually polled in municipal elections on New Years Day seems to indicate that a holiday does not always ensure a representative turn-out at the polls, it might be hoped that the Ontario Government would follow Manitoba's example. At first blush it would appear that on a holiday a very large percentage of the electorate would take advantage of the opportunity to vote, but experiments have not borne out that theory. Somehow many people get so interested in holiday amusements and recreation that they forget their duty as citizens and the whole effect of taking a vote on a holiday is lost. There is no reason to hope that there would be any different result on December 6th if an official holiday were to be declared upon that occasion.

A MATTER OF INCHES.

A learned judge the other day said some harsh things about motorists—at least about that unhappily too numerous section of the motoring fraternity who seem to have no regard either for their own safety or for that of anybody else. Some car owners may resent his remarks concerning the carelessness of many drivers, but it is obvious that the charges are well founded. In spite of the daily record of accidents, irresponsible chauffeurs continue to gamble with death. A few days ago a car shot down George street in the middle of the morning at thirty-five miles an hour. Just before reaching Hunter street the driver turned his car sharply around a wagon and found himself almost squarely in front of another automobile speeding east on Hunter street. A collision was averted by a few inches—a collision that might have resulted in tragedy, for at the speed at which the cars were moving, the shock would have been terrific. A miss may be as good as a mile, according to the old adage, but missing death by six inches is working on too narrow a margin. There is absolutely no excuse for taking the chances that this driver took. Racing at thirty-five miles an hour down the principal street of a city is criminal carelessness, and the offenders should be made to realize that fact through the medium of a stiff fine. Speeding is bad enough anywhere, but on a street of heavy traffic, during the busiest hour, it is worse than foolish.

THE FLOWER OF REMEMBRANCE.

On Saturday the members of the local branch of the G.W.V.A. will offer for sale on the streets of Peterborough hundreds of silken poppies so that every citizen who desires to pay tribute to Canada's heroic dead may do so by wearing the Flower of Remembrance—the Flanders poppy—on the anniversary of Armistice Day. As each successive anniversary of this great event has passed, the sentiment has been expressed that there should be some tangible evidence of the reverence in the hearts of the people of the allied countries for the heroic dead who made peace possible. The children of the devastated areas of France gave the nucleus of the idea, which is rapidly gaining recognition, when they gathered the red poppies which grow in profusion in Flanders and France and decorated the graves of the fallen heroes near their homes. The suggestion thus brought forward by the children was seized upon by the French Children's League, which had been endeavouring to formulate plans to provide for the thousands of orphan children in France. They placed the women and children of the war area at work making silken replicas of the poppy with the idea in mind that they could be sold and the proceeds devoted to this pressing need.

Last year the United States took up the matter, and the wearing of the popy as an expression of deep reverence for the memory of the dead met with sympathetic approval, with the result that few citizens of the republic last Armistice Day failed to pay their tribute to the dead.

In adpoting the poppy plan this year, the Great War Veterans saw in it the means of achieving three worthy objects:

(1) The inauguration of the custom of wearing a poppy as a memorial flower on Armistice Day, and thus cherishing in perpetuity the memory of the Sacred Dead.

(2) A means of providing local branches with relief funds to meet the distress occasioned by unemployment during the winter.

(3) Extending much needed assistance to the orphan children of France by purchasing their handiwork at a reasonable price.

These threee objects are commended to the citizens of Peterborough in the hope that the poppies will meet with a ready sale on Saturday. Not only should they be bought, but they should be worn by everybody on Saturday, Sunday and Monday as a tribute to the Canadians who lie buried beneath the poppies in France and Flanders.

THE PARAMOUNT ISSUE AT WASHINGTON.

Ever since the meeting of the Imperial Conference of British and overseas statesmen at London last June, in which the veil was lifted from the complicated issues of the Pacific and the Far East, and the recommendation made that a separte conference be called for the settlement of these problems, the importance of these questions has been gradually taking possession of the statesmanship of the world. The United States was stirred to immediate action. President Harding, who had been exceedingly dilatory in calling the conference demanded by the Senate for the discussion of the subject of the limitation of armaments, and who had provoked a storm of criticism in consequence, took alarm when the proposal was made at London for a conference between the British nations and Japan for the consideration of these questions, not wishing to leave their affairs to be settled by these nations. President Harding called the conference and widened the scope of the discussion until it included the Pacific and the Far East.

France, which was not very enthusiastic about the conference at first, has awakened to the fact that it is certain to be of the greatest importance.

The Matin, which is quite close to Premier Briand, has devoted a very long article to a discussion of the Far Eastern aspects of the conference and particularly to the possibility of war between America and Japan. In the course of this article, it is pointed out that "popular excitation and race hatred are increasing each day between America and Japan." That the Pacific influences at Washington may not be powerful enough is apparently the opinion of this writer, since he urges that France play the role of mediator between the representatives of Japan and America at the Washington meeting. It is essential that France adopt this role since Britain cannot do so, and since it is necessary that both America and Japan make concessions unless the conference is to result in a more dangerous position than at present.

The caustic Pertinax of the Echo de Paris has never taken the Washington conference with great seriousness. He has now seen fit to inform his readers that the discussions at Washington are of the greatest importance. He does not believe that Mr. Harding or Mr. Hughes or Mr. Lloyd George realized how important the conference would be when the invitations were first sent out. Since that time, he says, "in all camps it has gradually been realized that the problems of the Far East and of the Pacific dominate the race of naval armaments, and that consequently they alone form the basis of the exchange of views about to open." The danger in the present situation, according to Pertinax, lies in the desire of the United States to secure the hegemony of the Pacific and in the realization of the Japanese that in time with its great resources the United States will be able to obtain the hegemony, unless something is done to prevent it. For the next two or three years Japan will be in a position to resist the American policy by force. The question is, will Japan accept a compromise and will America offer one. "Will England throw her weight on one side or the other, or will she, as in 1914, make reservatoins?"

As has been said, Great Britain and the British nations have grasped the importance of these questions from the first. The other nations are now waking out of their narrow diplomatic vision.—Brantford Expositor.

United States economists have calculated that if the Paris decree for longer skirts is obeyed there will be need for 25 billion yards more of cloth, and the employment of 20,000 additional workers in the textile industry. The adverse effect on the silk stocking industry, and the custom of men allowing a woman to get on a street car first, do not seem to have been calculated.

Giving the Children a Chance

Canada's bright spot and hope of the future is the two million children now being fitted for life in her schools; for, according to statistics, a child without education has only one chance out of 150,000 of rising to prominence.

The work of providing schools, paying salaries of the teachers and carrying on the system of training is partly due to the activities of the life insurance companies. They have invested millions of dollars to assist in providing the means for your children to get an education.

The Trust Fund formed by the payment of your premiums is thus "at work." Every time you see boys and girls coming from school you should think of your life insurance. Children are also kept at school by life insurance money which thoughtful parents have provided.

Life Insurance helps to give your child a chance in life. It is your friend and also the friend of the children.

runs through the village itself. The waters will have to be diverted to their former course by dynamiting. Surveyors say that the worst part of the disaster was the crying of injured or bewildered villagers.

The flood came upon a community confused by the sudden darkness, caused when the transmission lines failed, and a torrential rain fell. The houses for the most part were without foundation and yielded readily to the surge of theflood. One man hurried with his wife to the attic when he found the water about his doorstep. By the time he could climb on to the roof, his house was already out to sea, bobing about in the rain-swept waters of How Sound. The two occupants were rescued finally in a launch. Other houses were crushed to pulpwood when they were caught between some obstacles and the rushing water. Many were injured by falling timbers. Some of these owe their lives to the efforts of rescuers who toiled throughout the night in and out of the maze of floating houses, guided to those in distress by cries and warnings. Candles and pit lamps were of little use in this work. Two children were found asleep in their beds, unhurt, hours after their mother and two brothers had been swept away with a damaged portion of their home.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

in Millbrook, C. W. Richards, P. I. Stinson, Geo. Duncan.

Mr. Collins though taken completely by surprise, made a very suitable reply stating his regret and that of his family in leaving Millbrook, but also his pleasure in realizing that they had made so many friends during their residence here. Mr. S. Kelly and Mr P. I. Stinson also made brief but appropriate addresses. Reeve W. T. Wood occupied the chair and about fifty of the citizens were present to show their interest in the occasion, and all joined in singing: "For he's a jolly good fellow", before the gathering dispersed.

Mr. Collins and his family left at noon on Saturday for Port Hope, remaining with friends there over Sunday and then going on with their journey to Clearwater, Florida, where they will make their future home.

Amongst the many who attended the ploughing-match at Mr. James McGill's farm on Friday, was noticed, Mr. F. W. Bowen, the Liberal-Conservative candidate, who was giving smiling greetings to the numerous friends and supporters, whom the occasion gave him an excellent opportunity of seeing.

Mr. Joseph Hamilton, who has been seriously ill, for some weeks in the hospital here, was able to return home on Wednesday. Mr. Hamilton's many friends will be delighted to learn that his health has so far improved.

John Ward.

The funeral of the late Mr. John Ward took place from the residence of his son, Mr. Malcolm Ward, Lot 11, Con. 2, Cavan, on Friday, October 28th., at 2.30 p.m.

Rev Mr. Tucker had charge of the services both at the house and at the grave, interment taking place at Gardiners Cemetery. The pall bearers here:—Messrs. Robert Gardiner, F. Hard, John Gray, Lombert Gibson, H. Russell and B. Olan.

The late Mr. Ward who, at the time of his death, was in his sixty-seventh year, had been in ill health for a number of years and confined to his bed entirely for the last two months, suffering from creeping paralysis. Besides his widow he leaves to mourn his loss one son. Mr. Malcolm Ward, with whom his parents Mrs. J. J. Russell, Millbrook, Mrs. Thomas Killenbeck, Toronto, Mrs. James Killenbeck, Peterboro, and one brother, Mr. William Ward, Millbrook. All of whom attended the funeral. A nephew, Mr. Fred Russell and his wife, of Peterboro, were also present, and one brother-in-law, Mr. James Killenbeck.

Miss Mary Pitt, book-keeper at Burnham Bros. Store, has returned to her duties after a pleasant two weeks' holiday, with friends in Toronto and other points.

the forces of evil went down to defeat. In the present political conflict, the forces of freedom and right would triumph if they would only join in one concerted effort.

SYDNEY, N.S., Oct. 31. — (By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)— In Sydney Saturday night, Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressives, met the coal miners and steel workers of Cape Breton. Again the fates had been unkind. Through the day, wild weather swept over the island. Special trains had been announced from Glace Bay and other neighboring points, but storms were more potent than publicity. The Glacial Skating Rink in which Mr. Crerar spoke was scarcely more than three-quarters filled. It was the first occasion of the campaign on which Mr. Crerar had addresed an almost purely industrial audience. It was likewise his first appearance on the platform with the Farmer-Labor combination, which had four candidates in the Cape Breton field.

Mr. Crerar's speech was generally a replica of the speeches he made in the more rural ridings he has toured up to the present. But, while condemning the principle of protection in fiscal policy, and claiming that protection had fostered combines, he denied that he was a free trader.

"I have been described as a free trader," he said. "I am not a free trader. I am opposed to the principle of protection in fiscal policy, but I recognize that we have had industries built up under a system of protection, and if that protection were swept away over night, these industries would have difficulty in adjusting themselves." He argued that agricultural was the basic industry of Canada, that if agriculture was paralyzed, "grass will grow in the streets of your cities." Free agricultural implements would give a great stimulus to agriculture. "If you can increase the farming population, what results? They use more agricultural implements. To make these implements there is a bigger demand for steel and greater employment for labor."

He contended that agricultural implements could be made profitably in Canada without protection and, as in earlier speeches, pointed to the Canadian-made cream separator as a case in point.

When replying to charges that the progressive was a class movement, he observed that there was no representative of agriculture in the Meighen cabinet and that the only representative of labor was a member of the Senate. "And I am reminded," commented Mr. Crerar, "that the first plank of the Labor party is abolition of the Senate. That being the case, I am at a loss to see how Senator Robertson can properly represent Labor in the government of Canada. I have as much right," Mr. Crerar added, "to accuse Mr. Meighen of being at the head of a class government as he has to accuse me of being at the head of a class movement."

RUSSIA OFFERS TO MEET DEBTS

cient profits to foreign capitalists to aid in the reconstruction of Russia, he says that even now it finds in official announcements of the President of the United States and British Ministers, expressions of regret that at the expiration of three years from the world war real peace is still unattained.

M. Chitcherin argues that in the face of the economic chaos among the nations real peace is impossible without Russia and its 130,000,000 people, and that agreement with the Soviet is a prime necessity, not only for Russia, but for the other nations. The Minister enters into a long argument to the effect that the economic reconstruction of Russia will be difficult and protracted, but better accomplished by the labor of the peasant government than by any other, because it will not permit the selfish interests of private and separate capitalistic groups to hinder the task.

"The Soviet has re-established private trade and private ownership with other powers, and work out a final peace treaty between them."

Claiming that the approach of the fourth anniversary of the Soviet Government proves its stability, M. Chitcherin declares that further intervenionist moves against Russia, of which there are hints in the Entente press, will only strengthen the unbreakable bonds of the Russian masses, although they may increase their suffierings and postpone final reconstruction, to the injury of the economic interests of other nations. He concludes:

"With this proof of Russia's desire for peace, I am firm in the hope that the near future will see the achievement of the final regulation of economic and political relationships between Russia and the other governments."

Russia's total State debt at the beginning of 1914 amounted to 9,888,-310,000 rubles (or about $5,092,379,-650 at the rate of .515 to the ruble, which prevailed at that time).

Subsequently, Russia contracted various debts abroad for the conduct of the war, and these loans, together with internal bond issues, brought the State debt up to 32,300,000,000 rubles (about $16,634,500,000) on September 1, 1917, just before the Bolshevik revolution.

Figures are not available to show the distribution of the State debt, either in 1914 or 1917, and it cannot be definitely ascertained how much was owed to the various foreign governments and individuals of foreign countries. Unofficial figures were given out in Paris a few months ago, showing that at that time the French Government and French individuals had an aggregate investment in Russia of about 26,000,000,000 francs. How much of this investment was incurred before 1914, however, is not certain.

But it is known that French individuals held large securities in Russia before the war, Russian investments being popular among French investors because of the Franco-Russian treaty of alliance. In 1917 the French Government passed a law permitting French private investors, who subscribed heavily to French war loans, to make part payment in Russian securities. Thus, the French Government acquired possession of much of the Russian Government stock which was sold prior to 1914, but which the French Government, nevertheless, acquired after that date. Whether such securities would come under the terms of the new Soviet offer, therefore, is a matter of speculation.

SYMPTOMS WOMEN DREAD

Mrs. Wilson's Letter Should Be Read by All Women

Clearfield, Pa.—"After my last child was born last September I was unable to do all of my own work. I had severe pains in my left side every month and had fever and sick dizzy spells and such pains during my periods, which lasted two weeks. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing others so much good and thought I would give it a trial. I have been very glad that I did, for now I feel much stronger and do all of my work. I tell my friends when they ask me what helped me, and they think it must be a grand medicine. And it is. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish." —Mrs. HARRY A. WILSON, R. F. D. 5, Clearfield, Pa.

The experience and testimony of such women as Mrs. Wilson prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct such troubles by removing the cause and restoring the system to a normal condition. When such symptoms develop as backache, bearing-down pains, displacements, nervousness and "the blues" a woman cannot act too promptly in trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This new teeth-cleaning method

Brush teeth for ten days in this new way. We supply the test. See and feel the good effects. Compare them with the old ways.

It will be a pleasant test. And it may bring to you, as it has to millions, a new conception of clean teeth.

Whiter teeth

One great object is to fight the film—that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

Old brushing methods do not effectively combat it. Much is left intact, forming a dingy coat. And most tooth troubles are now traced to it.

Film is what discolors, not the teeth. It forms the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Fight it daily

Dental science has found two methods to effectively fight film. Many careful tests have proved them. Leading dentists everywhere now advise their daily use.

Both are combined in a tooth paste called Pepsodent—a scientific product. And to millions of people it is bringing whiter, cleaner, safer teeth.

Acts like fruit acids

Pepsodent also brings three other effects, such as fruit acids would bring. It brings them regularly and at proper times.

It multiplies the salivary flow — Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize mouth acids which cause tooth decay.

Modern diet, rich in starch, makes these things essential.

Quickly seen

The effects are quick and apparent. No one can doubt the benefits when they are explained.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Feel and see these good effects, then judge if you always want them. They are vastly important. Cut out the coupon now.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

YEARN FOR GOOD OLD LIBERAL PRINCIPLES

According to street talk in Cobourg there is some indication that the independent Liberals of Cobourg may run a candidate.

However, whether this be true or not, time only will tell. Many prominent Liberals claim that they don't propose to stand aside and abandon their franchise but wants a man to support the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and the good old Liberal principles in the coming contest.

They claim that under Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Canada's grand old man, this fair Dominion prospered and went ahead with leaps and bounds, and that that same old Liberal party, though now deprived of a leader, whose greatness and kindness and beauty of character was an asset to not only the Liberal party, but to the whole Dominion, can and will give the same "good times" legislation that Canada was favored with from 1896 to 1911.—Cobourg World.

$63,500 WINTER WORK FOR THIS CITY'S JOBLESS

ABOUT HALF OF THIS AMOUNT HOWEVER WOULD GO INTO MATERIAL--FEASIBLE SEWER CONSTRUCTION.

PUMPING STATION

To relieve the unemployment situation in Peterborough, City Engineer R. H. Parsons has filed with Council's Board of Works, according to instructions from the City Council, a list of work, totalling an expenditure of $63,500, which might be undertaken this winter.

Of this amount, however, he estimates that material will account for $30,000 out of a total outlay of $45,500 on a pumping station and force main along the river to the sewage disposal plant site, but he does not estimate the cost of material which will enter into the remaining $33,500 expenditure on 4,900 feet of sewers which he advises are needed and could be laid in real cold weather. Roughly figuring the cost of material for these sewers at $3,500, this would leave no more than $30,000 to be spent for actual labour this winter on the public improvements the Engineer lists as feasible.

He does also suggest that trees on certain streets might be removed, but how much work that would involve is not estimated.

The Report.

Engineer Parsons' report in this connection, which, judging from the present temper of the Aldermanic Board in regard to unemployment, will probably be adopted at Council's next meeting, read as follows:

Practically the only work which would be feasible for us to do during the cold months of winter is sewer work. In looking over our sewer system, I find that the main part of the city is well covered with sewers. There are, however, a few places where sewers could be built and still serve a considerable number of houses as follows:

1—Woodbine Avenue, from Armour Road to a point about 150 feet east of Erskine Avenue—12 houses.

2—Euclid Avenue, from Armour Road to Cameron Street—18 houses.

3—Munroe Avenue, from Armour Road to Knox Street—9 houses.

6—Rubidge Street, from the end of the present sewer to Murray Street.

7—Murray Street, from Rubidge Street to Stewart Street.

8—Stewart Street, from Murray Street to the end of the present sewer on Stewart Street—5 houses.

The length of the above sewers is about 4,250 feet, and the approximate cost under winter conditions will be about $12,500. The above could be laid under the Local Improvement Act.

In addition to the above, there is a section on Romaine Street from Aylmer to George Streets, which should be relaid on a lower grade in order to do away with the pumping station on George Street. This is a distance of about 650 feet, and will cost at least $6,000 under winter conditions. This sum would have to be taken entirely out of the general appropriation, as the ratepayers are still paying on a local improvement sewer on this section.

In addition to the above sewer work, it would be possible, if the Provincial Board of Health gives us authority to proceed with the construction of the pumping station at the corner of King George and Lock Streets, and also the fore main along the river to the site of the sewage disposal plant. This would involve an expenditure of about $45,500.00, of which amount $30,000.00 would be expended for material.

In addition to this work, the removal of trees on certain streets in the city should be looked after. This is work that can really be done better when the ground is frozen, as there is not so much damage done to lawns and roadways at that time. I would remind your Council, however, that no action has been taken in regard to the inspection of trees as yet. This work is something that should have been done before the leaves fell, as it is much easier to judge the condition of the tree when it is in full leaf than it is when the limbs are bare.

HOW TO VOTE

OTTAWA, Oct. 31. — (Canadian Press).—In a general election when there are a number of new voters, who have not before exercised their franchise, there is usually more or less doubt in their minds as to the procedure to be followed on their arrival at a polling place, in order that their ballots may not be wasted. For that reason, and in view of the fact that this year's general election will see, as voters, a great number of women voters who have never previously marked a ballot paper, it is perhaps fitting to describe what is necessary on the part of the voter who presents himself or herself at a polling station to vote for the candidate of his or her choice.

It is important to remember that in urban polling districts the only persons who may vote are those whose names are included in the list of voters on polling day. The procedure by which names may be placed on the lists, or other names struck off, has already been explained. In rural districts names may be added to the list on polling day where the requirements of the Act are complied with, that is, the would-be voter must be sworn and must also be vouched for by someone whose name is on the list.

The wrong Christian name or the misspelling of a voter's surname, or the wrong designation, or the wrong number of the voter's lot or property, are not sufficient to justify the returning officer in refusing that voter a ballot, as long as the voter can swear that he or she is the person designated on the list. If a voter has been personated, that is, someone else has voted by claiming to be the voter in question, that voter may still obtain a ballot on taking the oath that he is the person properly entitled to vote. If a voter spoils his ballot he is entitled to receive a new one, the spoiled ballot being destroyed and the deputy returning officer making a note of it.

If a voter cannot understand English he is entitled to have an interpreter sworn to explain the oaths, etc., to him. If a voter, however, once refuses to take the oath, he cannot again be admitted to vote. In this case the deputy returning officer is required to enter in the poll book the notation, "refused to be sworn."

Once a voter receives a ballot from the deputy returning officer he has a right to use it, whether he has been sworn or not, and cannot be sworn once he has got the ballot.

Once the ballot has been received, it is important to remember that the following methods of marking ballots are good:

(1) With a proper cross with a black lead pencil on any part within the white space containing the name of the candidate.

(2) An irregular or awkward mark in the nature of a cross, so long as it does not lose the form of a cross, and the lines cross at any point.

(4) An irregular mark in the figure of a cross, so long as it does not lose the form of a cross.

(5) A cross with a line before it.

(6) A cross rightly placed with two additional crosses, one across the candidate's name and the other to the left.

(7) A double cross or two crosses.

(8) Ballot paper inadvertently torn.

(9) Inadvertent marks in addition to the cross.

However, while all these markings are good, and will not result in the ballot being rejected, it is much safer and simpler to mark the ballot paper with an unmistakable cross, opposite the name of the candidate for whom the voter wishes to vote.

Ballots are bad which are marked as follows, it is pointed out by an authority on the Election Act:

(1) A single stroke instead of a cross.

(2) Two single strokes not crossing.

(3) A ballot with the candidate's name written thereon in addition to the cross.

(4) Ballots marked with a number of lines.

(5) Ballots with a cross for each candidate.

(6) All ballots on which there is any writing or mark by which the voter can be identified.

The procedure for the voter to follow on reaching the polling station is simple. At the door of the station his or her name will be checked on the list by one of the agents posted there. Then, on entering the voter must give his or her address to the deputy returning officer or poll clerk, who will run through the list and see that the voter is entitled to a ballot. That formality complied with and everything being in order, the voter will be handed a ballot paper and given instructions as to how it is to be marked, by the returning officer. Then he or she will be shown to a room or compartment where the ballot can be marked with secrecy.

Then, having marked the ballot as he or she desires, the voter will return to the outer room, hand the ballot properly folded, to the deputy returning officer, who will tear off the counterfoil and place the ballot in the ballot box.

The voter, having thus exercised his or her franchise, is then required to leave the polling station.

NIAGARA SHIPPERS SEEK INTERVIEW WITH KELLEY

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 29.—A meeting of the Central Transportation Committee of the Niagara districts to be arranged with President Kelley of the Grand Trunk to discuss the transportation difficulties of Niagara district and see if any remedies can be effected. Mr. Kelley will be asked to come to St. Catharines, but if this is impossible a delegation will be sent to him in Montreal. Too few trains is the main trouble, and business men are being handicapped because of the situation The late arrival of Toronto morning newspapers is also a cause of complaint.

MOFFATS ELECTRIC RANGES

LOCAL CRITICS VIEW GRAND PLAY

An interesting event took place this morning when a large audience, including many of Peterborough's ablest critics of art and the drama, by special invitation, witnessed a private display of the latest Fox super-film, entitled, "Over the Hill." It might be noted that in a recent edition of Cosmopolitan Magazine, Prof. Streinburg, of Harvard University, in an article on the great success of the moving picture industry, said that the greatest factor in the universal preference of pictures of the spoken drama was the way continuous interest is maintained in the picture plot by flashes and follow up scenes to hold the sequence of the story. "Over the Hill," based on Will Carleton's immortal poem, particularly confirms Prof. Streinburg's contention. From start to finish one's interest in the play never flags for an instant. This is more than a play or a picture play of human interest. It is human interest not only seen but felt. Whilst this wonderful film in its depicturization of the humorous side of a child's life, shows the author like the stories of Ponsfield Schofield, knows celebrated Booth Tarkington, in his the boy and sympathizes with his boyish failings, it is replete with pathos, but not the too frequent pathos of the stage. Every man and woman in to-day's audience was made to see and realize what a mother does and has done for us all. In a word, "Over the Hill" shows human life, its pleasures and its faults more clearly than could be told in a thousand books or a dozen plays.

TO-DAY'S FASHIONS

BEADED FROCK

"The uneven hem," quite emphatically says this frock of black Canton crepe. Wide neckline, peasant shoulder and bell sleeve are featured in the blouse. Unevenness of hem is achieved by two long hip panels that go over the shorter skirt. Green and red beads are used to make the odd patterns on sleeves and panels. Green crepe de chine faces sleeves and girdle and also the side panels.

You're bilious! Take "Cascarets" to-night to thoroughly clean your bowels of the constipation poison which is keeping you dizzy, headachy, half- sick and upset. No other cathartic or physic is so pleasant or moves the clogged up bowels so nicely, so fully; and Cascarets cost only ten cents a box.

BOWLING NEWS

The Business Men's Five Pin League will have a meeting Tuesday night at the Water street alley. All captains have to have their teams entered so the league will get away by next week. Anyone wishing to enter their teams must be on hand.

DE LAVAL TEN PIN LEAGUE

The De Laval Ten Pin League starts to-night at the Water street Alleys and some good scores is expected to be put up, as the boys have been practising on the maple.

The engine of an automobile performs better and has more power at night than in the daytime. A recent explanation of this technical mystery is that in the daytime heat expands the air so that it is lighter in weight than at night. Therefore at night an engine gets more air and consequently produces more powerful impulses. Also, the water keeps cooler and circulates more efficiently.

Backache

Backache is the outstanding symptom of kidney disease. Women often make the mistake of attributing other causes and overlook the derangement of the kidneys until serious developments have made it difficult to obtain permanent relief.

This letter points to a treatment which has been so thoroughly tried and proven so effective in the great majority of cases that you cannot afford to overlook it when cause arises for its use.

Mrs. Albert Brunet, R.R. No. 1, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the past two months, having been afflicted with kidney trouble. I used two doctors' medicine previous to this, without any good results. A friend told me to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the second box made me feel a good deal better. I have now used about six or eight boxes, and am completely relieved."

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Harmless to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is a difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and cause no bad effects whatever.

FEEDING ENGLAND'S UNEMPLOYED AT HARVEST FESTIVAL

The gaunt spectre of hunger cast a pall over England's harvest festival this year and in many places thanks were offered for His bounty in the form of food gifts to the unemployed.

MORTGAGE ON CHANCEL, ETC.

ficing efforts interest in the first mortgage of $15,000, was kept paid, while adding the chancel. He was proud of these altogether successful endeavours, together with those similarly fruitful by the Young Men's Bible Class, and other church organizations for the completion of All Saints.

Rev. Mr. Grobb here went on to say that during his nine years rectorship nothing had encouraged and stimulated him more than the willingness of his people to give with real heartiness and cheerfulness, and he emphasized the fact that in one subscription campaign 238 people had contributed no less than $5,000. "In this solid structure here," he concluded, "we have a substantial building of stone and mortar which will survive a thousand years, standing long after this century, to the glory of God, for the uplift of unborn generations and a beacon of light leading up to heaven."

A Little Bit of History.

At this juncture, before burning the mortgage, and immediately preceding the anthem and offertory, ex-Mayor Wm Buller gave the following brief review of events leading up to, and the growth of All Saints' parish to its present dimensions.

Fifty years ago the South Ward Mission was really started by Rev. J. W. Romeyn Beck, Rector of St. John's, and his curate, Rev. W. C. Allen, in a small brick building, on Dalhousie, near Rubidge street. Here the late F. R. Yokome served as superintendent of an Anglican Sunday school in the afternoon, and school for other denominations was held in the mornings. The building was known as the Union Sunday school. The late Mrs. (Rev.) Beck also interested herself largely in this work.

1882—Mission revived and Sunday school held in the South Central school, which was built in 1877.

Early Workers: Mrs. Archer, Miss Rubidge, Miss Barlee, Miss Sherwood and Mrs. W. H. Sherwood as superintendent of S. S. of about 15.

Building on the corner of Bethune and Dalhousie, donated by Miss Chamberlain. Workers here: Mrs. Buller, Mr. C. Sheffield, Mr. A. V. Young, Mr. Chas. Beck, Mr. F. R. Yokome, Sergt.-Major Rundle.

1889—Rev. Mr. Davidson became rector of the parish. Rev. Mr. Louck takes charge of the work. Also Rev. C. Clementi.

1891—Jan. 22, first service in the new building, the Bishop being the preacher.

1892—First morning service held.

1893, June 4—New communion vessels first used and dedicated.

1894, April—Rev. G. W. Pickford in charge for a few months.

1894, Dec. 2—First entry in St. John's mission register. Rev. C. B. Kenrick and Rev. Mr. Davidson doing most of the work.

1895, October—Rev. Carl S. Smith succeeds.

1896, Christmas—Rev. W. L. Armitage succeeds Mr. Smith.

1897, Oct. 10—Opening of All Saints as enlarged with chancel, vestry and organ chamber. Preacher, the Bishop.

1900—New pipe organ procured.

1904, Jan. 7—Rev. W. L. Armitage resigned to become vicar of Picton.

1908, Oct. 1—Rev. H. R. Trumpour appointed third rector and inducted Nov. 9th.

1909, Easter — Easter communicants reach the record number of 249, and the offerings for the day totalled $557.

1909, July 9—The corner stone of the present church laid.

Later Day Events

Mr. Buller has been connected with All Saints parish since its early inception, when he attended Sunday School as a boy; and, perhaps, it was natural, he said last night, that, in company with the late James Edgar, he should have shouldered a large share of endeavour for the erection of the present All Saints' Church, opened in 1910. The new chancel was added in 1915. They started on this big project without a cent; but, asserted Mr. Buller — past warden of the church—we have always been blessed with good rectors who fostered a practical spirit of advance. And in Mr. Grobb we have a rector of whom all are proud, and one who enjoys the respect and esteem of outside congregations."

In conclusion of a very concise address from the Chancel on All Saint's history, Mr. Buller pointed out that the nave of the church cost $29,000, the chancel $15,000, and the whole property including parish hall and ground could not be replaced to-day for less than $100,000.

Days of Pixies, Gnomes And Witches

"This is the nicht o' Hallowe'en.
When a' the witchie micht be seen;
Some o' them black. Some o' them green,
An' some o' them like a turkey bean."

The dog days are gone and now far in their sweltering wake, come the days of the black cat; the grim, sere season of witches and pixies and gnomes. It is the time of year when goblins whisper of mischief to the inmates of grave yards; when the inanimate things of the land come to life with impish whimsies; and when bad fairies turn good boys and girls into bad boys and girls.

It is the season of Halloween, fast upon us.

W. of urban habitation miss much of the significance of the Halloween season. There are no graveyards to pass on our way home; no lonely fields with gaunt scare-crows and ghostly pumpkins on the frosted ground. Indeed were it not for a single factor, Halloween would lose all its mystery for us.

Windows, Season's Stage.

The one redeeming factor is the downtown shop window. That faithful mirror of events advises us that the eerie night is near.

It seems but a day or two since the glistening windows of George Street and Hunter Street flaunted summer fabrics and summer books and summer confections and fancies for our edification. But now, as at the touch of a master stage manager, they have been transformed into somber settings for the caperings of the Halloween witch and her black cat.

Peterboro shops have carried the seasonal idea far. Their windows are bordered in black and orange. Behind the gleaming crystal witches and cats, and owls on brooms and bats, and spiders and fantastic imps cavort in grotesque array while pumpkins look on in toothy, grinning approval.

The confectioners and stationers naturally go in more keenly for the Halloween idea than do their commercial brethren of other lines. Their windows bulge with little red devils and vegetable dolls, rattling and squeaking contrivances, ghost toys concealing hollow groans in their pasteboard tummies, wands made of turnips and radishes, pumpkin caldrons and carrot bon bon holders.

COSTA RICAN MEDAL STRUCK IN HONOR CENTENARY

The government of Costa Rica has distributed medals in gold, silver and bronze in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of its independence. The King of Spain, Presidents of the Central American Republics and President Harding were recipients of the gold medal. The Minister of Costa Rica, Senor Dr. Don Octavio Beeche, presented the medal to President Harding at the White House, September 27th.

VIEWS ON CANADIAN POLITICS

The Examiner does not necessarily endorse the following views expressed by its Ontario contemporaries.

ASK PRIVATE CITIZENS.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

It is only as a private citizen, urges Mackenzie King, that Mr. Lemieux favors handling Canada's national railways over to the C. P. R. But this voluble gentleman is doing his utmost to make it one of public concern.

IN NORTH OXFORD.

(London Advertiser.)

Political talk is becoming more pointed in both North and South Oxford. In the South the U. F. O. have no candidate in the field yes, and in the North the Liberals have not named their man. There has been some talk of a conference between these parties, but it seems rather unlikely that such will be the case. The Liberals in the North riding have several men in mind, and a strong candidate will no doubt be placed in the field at a convention which will be held shortly.

POSSIBLE PARTIES.

(London Free Press.)

If the agrarian party, why not other parties? The farmers have set the ball rolling. Should they succeed, other groups might easily have a similar ambition. Someone suggests the following as Canada's 13:

Farmers' party.
Retailers' party.
Wholesalers' party.
Lawyers' party.
Doctors' party.
Preachers' party.
Lumberman's party.
Fisherman's party.
Insurance party.
Bankers' party.
Mothers' party.
Bachelors' party.
Old Maids' party.

Lace veils and lace draped hats are worn extensively.

ITALIAN PROLETARIAT ASKS ACTION TO SAVE SACCO AND VANZETTI

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

ROME, Oct. 31.—The Italian Proletaria never will tolerate the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti unless the Foreign Office "exhausts every means to prevent it," according to an ultimatum made public to-day.

The ultimatum was presented to Foreign Minister Deilla Torrella by a proletarian committee, which demanded immediate information as to the fate of the two Communists, who are seeking to obtain a new trial following their sentence of death for murder in the United States.

WHATTAM CUP STAYS.

The W. L. Whattam Cup, which has been on exhibition in R. G. Sturgeon's window for a month or more, will likely winter in Peterborough. Donated as a sort of peripatetic trophy to be competed for by rinks of bowlers in this district, it was won so often by Peterborough skips this season that it has come to be regarded almost as a local possession. Jack Mayneord was its custodian for weeks on end, and then taking Tom Curvin's rink, he won it again. Most of the bowlers are now getting ready for curling, and with no other games in sight, the Whattam Cup will remain here until the dandelions come up again.

T. McAuliffe, the Peterborough boy who won the three-mile race at the Canadian Woollens meet here in September, and grabbed all of the first prizes in the distance events, won the University of Toronto Harrier Club's six-mile cross-country run on Saturday for the Brotherston team trophy. Ontario Agricultural College won the cup with four of their men first home. Their team finished in second, third, eighth and twelfth positions. McAuliffe is the intercollegiate three-mile champion, having particularly distinguished himself in and around Ottawa.

Carson, of O.A.C., was ahead half a mile out, but McAuliffe passed him and finished first, doing the six miles in 34 minutes 32 seconds. Carson was 34 seconds behind the winner.

McAuliffe wanted to enter The Examiner road race on Thanksgiving Day, but the committee decided not to accept his entry in vilew of the fact that the local pack will be mostly novices.

CITY SOLICITOR INTERPRETS THE DOMINION ELECTION ACT

EXPLAINS WHO IN PETERBORO' ARE ENTITLED TO VOTE AT COMING FEDERAL ELECTION AND WHO MAY REGISTER IF NAMES ARE NOT ALREADY ON LIST.

City Solicitor C. R. Widdifield gives the following explanation of the Dominion Election Act, and in order that there may be no doubt as to exactly who are entitled to vote at the coming Federal Election, nor as to the procedure to be taken by those not on the voters' list to assure registration entitling them to cast their ballots on December 6th:

In order that any person living within the City of Peterboro, may be entitled to vote at the coming Dominion election, it is necessary for his or her name to be on the voters' list.

The list to be used for the election in West Peterborough, will be the list as finally revised for the election last February, and if your name is not already on the same you can remedy the defect by taking advantage of the coming registration of voters.

For the City of Peterborough there will be six Registrars sitting continually from Oct. 31st to November 5th, between the hours of 9 a.m., and 9 p.m., with the exception of from 1 p.m., to 2 p.m., and from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Personal application by the voter is necessary except in the case of sickness, inability or necessary, temporary, unavoidable and bona fide absence from the city, when in which case any other person who is a relative or employer of such first-mentioned person, and who has a personal knowledge of the facts, may appear before the registrar for the purpose of registering the person so absent, etc. (Schedule A to Section 32, Rule 5.)

WHO CAN REGISTER.

The following persons should and are entitled to register if their names are not on the list——

The general rule is that every person in Canada, male or female, is qualified to vote, and should be included in the list of voters for the polling division in which he or she resides, if he or she——

1. Is a British subject, and
2. Is twenty one years of age, and
3. Has ordinarily resided in Canada for the last year immediately preceding the date of the issue of the Writ of election (8th Oct. 1921) and
4. Has ordinarily resided in the electoral district for the two months immediately preceding that date.

A casual reading of Section 29 (2) gives the impression that certain persons who have been, but are no longer British subjects, retain the right to vote, but that is not so. The subsection referred to is to be interpreted only as preventing the acquisition in certain circumstances of British nationality for the purpose of the act, not as preventing its loss where it has been lost by ordinary law.

WHO ARE BRITISH SUBJECTS?

There are a number of ways in which a person may become a British subject in Canada. If a person is found to fall within any one of the classes defined below, it is not necessary to consider whether he falls within any other. Thus, everyone has become a British subject in Canada who——

1. Was born in any of His Majesty's Dominions or on a British ship, no matter what was the nationality of his parents, or
2. Was born elsewhere of a father, who at the time of the child's birth was a British subject, or
3. Has been personally granted a certificate of naturalization, or has had his name as a child included in a certificate granted to a parent, or
4. Is the wife or unmarried widow of a British subject—

And every person who has become a British subject in Canada continues to be unless his British nationality has been surrendered by his becoming a naturalized citizen of some other country.

AGE FOR REGISTERING.

No person is entitled to register until he has actually attained the age of 21 years. Young persons whose twenty-first birthday occurs after the conclusion of the registration, but before the conclusion of the sittings of the Revising Officer, should apply to the latter to be added to the list.

RESIDENCE QUALIFICATION.

There is no technical meaning attached to the words "ordinarily resided" in the Dominion Elections Act. The substantial fact need alone be considered. Residence in a given electoral district for the two months immediately preceding the date of the isue of the writ, may be inferred either from the existence of the electoral district during two months of a personal or family home in which the voter has lived exclusively or partly, or to which, although he may not have actually stayed there during the period, he intends shortly to return, or alternatively, from the voter having actually lodged in the electoral district during the two months. Residence in Canada for the year immediately preceding the issue of the writ may likewise be practically determined by either of these tests. The voter will be included in the list of voters for the polling division in which his home or his dwelling in fact is, but not in any circumstances in the lists for more than one polling division.

REVISION POSSIBLE.

If for any legal reason a person fails to register there is a possibility of their name being added by the Revising Officer, but this is no excuse or reason for not taking advantage of the registration as the revision is primarily for the correcting of mistakes.

In the matter of revision, changes in the lists will be made only upon application; all names placed upon the lists by registrars will be allowed to stand unless an application is made for their removal or correction. Applications for the correction of the list may be made either by the voters concerned or by the registrar; application for the removal of names may be made by any person on giving the statutory notice. Any person is at liberty to apply to the revising officer to have his name added to the list. At the request of any urban registrar any mistake made by him will be corrected by the revising officer upon his being satisfied that the correction is a proper one.

ON TECHNICAL EDUCATION AND THE ADOLESCENT SCHOOL A(

To the Editor: I would like to call the attention of your readers to the Adolescent School Attendance Act and its relation to Technical Education in this city, as in all other cities.

The Act says that all urban municipalities of 5000 population or over must provide full time day instruction for all adolescents between the ages of 14 to 16 years, unless exempted because their earnings are needed at home; or because they have attained certain educational standards.

(1) About 70% of the children of this city leave school at the age of 14, having never gone beyond the third or fourth book. The majority of this 70% have not even tried the examination for entrance to the Collegiate, and therefore could not be admitted no matter how much accommodation might be provided. A certain number of them will obtain work permits as their earnings are needed at home. What are we to do with the remainder of them? There is no room for them in the third or fourth books of the public schools, nor is it wise to keep these older pupils working on with younger children. Where are these unemployed boys and girls between 14 and 16 years of age, who have not passed the Entrance Examination, to go. The law says they must spend full time at some school. Have we in Peterborough anything that is desirable and suitable for them? Not at present.

(2) In September, 1922, another section of the Act comes into force. All employed adolescents between the ages of 14 and 16 years must spend 400 hours each year in day vocational classes. Are we going to delay till this group of boys nad girls is ready and waiting for accommodation before we consider ways and means of providing for them?

(3) In September, 1923, another group comes under the Act. All adolescents between the ages of 16 and 18 years, unless they have attained certain educational standards must spend 320 hours in part-time classes. Thee may be night classes.

What do we propose to do with them? We are finding it hard to provide for the 500 pupils we now have in the evening classes. Shall we say "This proposition is too big for us, the city can't afford to educate these adolescents—let's drop the idea for a few years?"

If we should consider it right and fair to put aside the needs of the adolescent groups to which I have been referring, then in all fairness, the needs of the adolescent group that wishes Collegiate Education must be put aside at the same time. That group now, to the extent of about 500 students, is being carred for, while nothing at all is being done for the group who should have day vocational classes.

Any large expenditure of city money that would benefit only one group would be unfair, unless the group benefited is one that is receiving no attention at present. This is such elementary justice that it seems unnecesasry to argue the point.

Vocational Education, which comprises Technical and Industrial courses, combined with a good general education, is very generously aided by Government grants. A city pays only 50 p.c. of the cost of building and equipment of a Technical school, and each year receives a grant of 50 p.c. of the amount spent on equipment, and from 50 p.c. to 75 p.c. of the amount spent in salaries. These grants cover the Commercial classes also, which would thus cost the city only 50 p.c. of the amount now spent upon them. It will be readily seen that a municipality receives $200 value in building, equipment, and salaries for $100 of its own money expend a Technical school.

What are the prospects of t vice such a school may ren this city?

Dr. Miller says in his surv "The facts revealed show th number of adolescents who n expected to receive service such a school is sufficient to a substantial and permanent gr full and part-time day student The enrollment in the evening es in Peterborough during th few years indicates only the mum of what may be expecte vocational school is establish

As I have stated before it i sible to give a reasonable deg accommodation to our dif groups of adolescents by mean combined Technical School Collegiate Institute. The p.c. grants will be given for portion of the building and ment exclusively used for voca students, with from 50 p.c. to 7 grants for salaries. Proporti grants are allowed for the bu and equipment used jointly by legiate and Vocational students portion used for Collegiate pu es only receives none of these ernment grants.

DANTE'S THEORY OF THE UNIVERSE

THE celebration this year of the six hundredth anniversary of the death of Dante, the author of the Divine Comedy, one of the world's literary masterpieces, gives an added interest to the great Italian poet's conception of heaven and hell. Dante is best known to the world as a poet, but he was also a soldier and an exile. He died Sept. 14, 1321.

Dante is held to be unique among the great writers of the world in that a study of the cosmological ideas he sets forth in his great poem is of great interest, not only because it helps the reader to understand many parts of the poem which otherwise might appear obscure, but also because Dante is a faithful interpreter of the opinions about the construction of the universe which were prevalent in his day and which are not without interest even today.

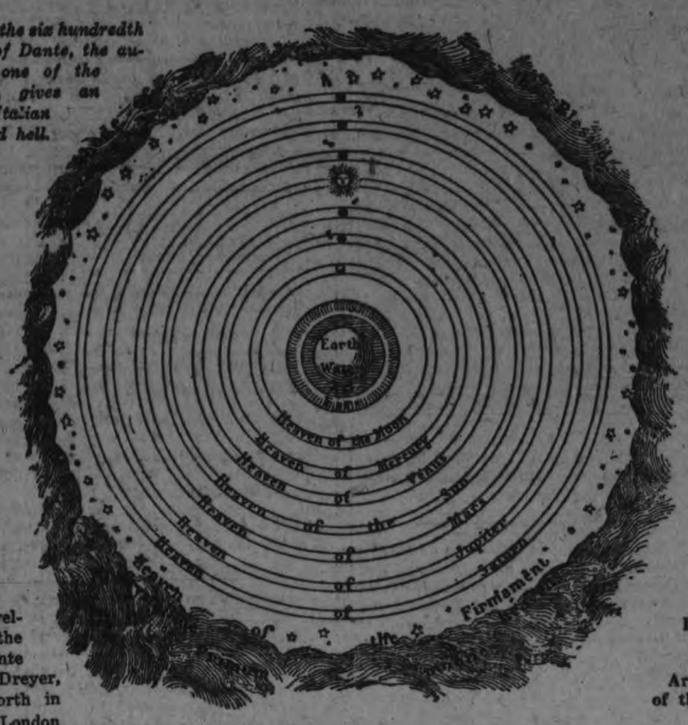

Diagram of Dante's Arrangement of the Universe.

THE origin and gradual development of the system of the world as adopted by Dante has been traced by Dr. J. L. E. Dreyer, whose observations are set forth in a recent number of Nature, a London weekly magazine devoted to scientific subjects.

Without entering into minute interpretations of any particular passages of Dante's great work, Dr. Dreyer shows that the principal feature of the Italian poet's system is the arrangement of the universe in a series of concentric spheres, with the earth in the centre, as shown in the accompanying diagram at the left.

"This is a very old idea," says Dr. Dreyer, "originating in the most striking of all celestial phenomena, the rotation of the heavens in twenty-four hours from east to west. Eudoxus (about 370 B. C.) was the first to design a complete system of concentric spheres, arranged so as to account for this rotation of the heavens as well as for the principal irregularities in the motions of sun, moon, and planets in the opposite direction. Though Eudoxus was a great mathematician, his system of spheres could account only partially for the observed phenomena, probably because it was founded on an utterly insufficient number of observations of these phenomena.

"The system was much improved by Kalippus, and, what was of more importance, it was accepted by Aristotle. To him the spheres were not merely mathematical conceptions, but physically existing bodies, kept in motion by the soul of each. Notwithstanding his great authority, however, this system was rejected by the astronomers of Alexandria, chiefly because it suffered from an incurable defect, that of assuming every planet always to be at the same distance from the earth. That this is not the case is clearly shown by the variable brightness of the planets, most strikingly seen in the case of Venus and Mars.

"The increased number of apparent irregularities in the planetary motions revealed by steadily pursued observations led to the development of a system of the world which finally became known as the Ptolemaic system, because the last touches were put to it by Claudius Ptolemy in the second century A. D. It assumed a planet to move on a circle, the epicycle, the centre of which moved on a larger circle, the eccentric, near the centre of which the earth was situated.

"Among the Arabs we find an attempt to adopt material spheres in the cosmical system of the 'Brothren of Purity,' a semi-religious society which arose at Basra near the end of the tenth century. They taught that there are nine spheres of different thicknesses, fitting inside each other 'like the skins of an onion.' The ninth sphere is the prime mover, and turns in twenty-four hours. The eighth sphere is that to which the fixed stars are attached; it revolves in a very slightly longer period, lagging behind to the amount of one degree in a hundred years. This is supposed to account for the precession of the equinoxes. Saturn (the seventh sphere) lags more, and the motion becomes slower as we descend through the spheres, until we reach the first or slowest sphere, that of the moon, which takes about fifty minutes more than twenty-four hours to make a complete revolution. In other words, all celestial motions take place in the same direction, from east to west.

"Early in the thirteenth century Arabian books on philosophy and science began to be known north of the Pyrenees, and along with them came the writings of Aristotle. As Aristotle, who very soon was accepted as an infallible guide, had adopted a system of spheres, one outside the other, it was very difficult for his Christian admirers to do anything else.

The Infernal Regions Were Believed to Be a Conical Opening Reaching to the Centre of the Earth.

"In contrast with several Italian writers on astronomy even long after his time, who often displayed great ignorance," says Dr. Dreyer, "Dante shows himself well acquainted with the general phenomena of the heavens. Thus he describes correctly the apparent motions of the stars as seen from the poles of the earth or from the equator; he often indicates the time of year by mentioning the zodiacal sign occupied by the sun; he even gives a fairly closely correct value of the length of the year.

"In the centre of the universe is the earth, which is a sphere. These two facts were not disputed by anybody. Hell is a conical opening reaching to the centre of the earth, where the devil dwells at the apex of the cone, as shown in the drawing at the right. Among theologians this was generally accepted as the proper place for him. Even three hundred years later, when the motion or non-motion of the earth was the burning question of the day, the idea appeared very shocking to many that a body having the devil in the middle could be supposed to travel among the heavenly bodies, which were moved by angels.

"Purgatory is a large conical hill, rising out of the vast ocean at a point diametrically opposite to Jerusalem, the navel of the dry land.

"The heavenly spheres, ten in number, surround the earth, and they are repeatedly alluded to as being solid. In each of the first seven spheres spirits, though they have not their permanent abode there, appear to Dante in order to illustrate the gradually increasing glory which they have been found worthy to enjoy, and to indicate their former earthly characters, which had been chiefly influenced by one of the seven planets. The shadow of the earth reaches as far as the third sphere, and the spirits seen in the spheres of the moon, Mercury, and Venus have the lowest degree of bliss in the Empyrean.

"The tenth sphere, the Empyrean, is the dwelling of the Deity. 'It is motionless, because all motion implies change and a desire for something better. The ninth, or crystalline, sphere is the prime mover, endowed with circular motion which expresses its praise of the Creator, and by its almost incomprehensible speed it shows the desire of each part of it to be joined to the Empyrean.

"The eighth sphere is that of the fixed stars; it has a very slow eastward motion of its own of one degree in a hundred years (precession), and transmits the daily rotation received from the ninth sphere to all the lower spheres."

As Dr. Dreyer points out, Dante seems, however, to have been somewhat uncertain about the source of rotation: in one place in the "Convivio" (ii., 15) he attributes both rotation and procession to the eighth sphere, though he immediately afterwards returns to his usual theory; and in another place ("Convivio," ii., 6), when speaking of Venus, he says that "whether the daily movement comes from some intelligence or from the onrush of the prime mover, God knows, for it appears to me presumptuous to decide."

The nine revolving spheres are moved by the three triads of angelic intelligences, the Seraphim as the highest in rank directing the ninth sphere, while the angels govern the lowest sphere, that of the moon. The planets were supposed to move in the plane of the ecliptic. There is no mention of the motion being eccentric, though Dante must have seen the account of the eccentric circles given in Al Fargani's book. But these were inconvenient things to believers in a system of spheres, and were better ignored. On the other hand, there are several allusions to epicycles; thus it is said in a paragraph in the "Convivio" (ii., 4) about Venus that on the circle of its sphere there is a small sphere which astronomers call an epicycle, "and though we say that there are ten spheres, this number does not comprise them all."

The last and lowest of the ten spheres is that of the moon. While the motion of Saturn is the swiftest, because this is the most divine motion, that of the moon is the slowest ("Paradiso," iii., 51). The revolutions of all the nine spheres are therefore from east to west, as supposed by some of the early Greek philosophers and by all the Arabian believers in spheres. As to the nature of the moon, and particularly of the surface-markings, Dante, in the "Convivio" (ii., 14), adopts a theory, due to Averroes, according to which the spots are caused by the rarity of some parts of the moon's body which do not reflect the sun's rays well. But in the "Paradiso" (ii. and xxii.), this is objected to, and the spots, which Dante, looking from above, sees only on the side of the moon nearest the earth, are said to be due to the light differing in various places under the influence of different angelic guides.

Thus from the highest heavens to the lowest depths of the earth, Dr. Dreyer says that in Dante is found a faithful guide to the scientific ideas as well as to many popular prejudices of his time. "Though the theory of spheres was during his lifetime defeated in France, an Italian may well be pardoned for not recognizing this, particularly when we remember that even 200 years later two separate attempts were made in Italy to set up scientific theories of concentric spheres. To the student of the history of science it is a never-failing source of pleasure to find mediaeval cosmology so beautifully illuminated in the writings of the great Florentine poet."

Was CLEOPATRA the INVENTOR of the Modern CORSET?

CLEOPATRA'S idea of what a corset should be is said to be the forerunner of the modern article. Instead of trying to squeeze herself into a steel-ribbed corset—which, of course, in her day hadn't been invented—she made a sort of puttee out of specially woven cloth, wrapped it in a spiral around her waist, and in this way kept her girlish figure.

This is the same figure and practically the same way of retaining it that the young woman of today enjoys, though it required her many centuries and a good deal of torture to get back to Cleopatra.

At the "Pageant of Progress" recently held in Chicago there was shown on living models the evolution of this dress accessory down the centuries.

Norman S. Florsheim, vice-president of a corset concern, gives the following interesting facts regarding the corset, past and present.

"Egyptian mummies, at least lady mummies, are observed to have constricted waists, which appeared about the same time as the stocking.

"In ancient Greece the smart shops doubtless sold some kind of brassieres or girdles, although the Venus de Milo shows no evidence of having worn them. We may thank the men for the introduction of the corset. Corsets were first worn by men as a coat of mail, to protect the wearer from the sword thrusts of an enemy. They soon acquired a certain style, and were built to constrict the waist, expand the chest and tend toward an erect carriage. Gradually, as men became less foppish, the corsets developed into vests.

"The most extreme styles in corsets were reached in Catherine de Medici's day. The tyrannical Catherine, so proud was she of her own wasplike waist, commanded that all the ladies of her court wear corsets, which would give them a waist measure not to exceed 13 inches.

"The motive was the same as that which induced the Chinese women to bind their feet. A woman in a 13-inch corset couldn't be expected to do much work. In fact, it is a wonder how she breathed. But her slim waist became a sign of aristocracy and distinguished her from the peasant. Remarkable as it may seem, the women of that time lived to a good old age, and, as a rule, survived the men, who wore corsets only on occasion.

"We see some of these corsets today in the museums. They are made of exceedingly heavy materials, somewhat resembling burlap. They are usually laced up the back. The steels are very wide and thick.

"The slender waist was still in fashion in America during the civil war days. Then came a gradual movement toward rationalism in dress. The corset of today is a garment which actually improves the figure instead of distorting it.

"'The first great change came in 1890 when Sarah Bernhardt, who had to play a boy's role in 'L'Aiglon,' had a corset made with a straight front. Paris, always watching for new ideas, adopted this. Mme. Bernhardt had inaugurated a new style. Manufacturers of corsets gradually changed their styles until all of them were conforming to the straight-front pattern.

"In 1900 another style was brought out in Paris. It laced in front. This was the inspiration of the Countess Consuelo Fould de Grasse. While walking in the Louvre one day she chanced to notice the Winged Victory.

"'Why couldn't I have a figure as graceful as that?' she asked herself. So she went to her friend, Mme. Margaine la Croix, a famous costumer, and explained her idea. A corset was designed with the steel in front and the laces down each side.

Should LOVE Really Be INSURED?

AN interesting point was raised recently in the supreme court of New York when an application was made for permission to "under-write" love insurance, by which persons could be protected from breach of promise of marriage and the breaking of bonds of friendship and affection.

In the opinion of a great many persons there certainly seems to be no reason why love should not be included in the widely varied list of things that can be covered by insurance.

As the law stands at present, the girl who suffers as a result of the fickle behavior of her lover has only one course open to her in seeking redress. She can bring an action for breach of promise against him.

But it requires courage to face the ordeal of a lawsuit, as well as its resultant publicity, while, in addition, money is needed to set the legal machinery in motion.

A system of love insurance would undoubtedly remove a great many of the difficulties with which jilted girls are faced under present conditions.

As soon as an engagement had been broken off, the girl in the case—if, that is, she were the jilted party—could at once send in a claim to the insurance company, who would investigate. In this way the girl would be sure of getting at least some compensation for the moral injury she had sustained.

Nor does there seem to be any reason whatever why the benefits of love insurance should be confined to members of the fair sex.

In the past a few men have dared to claim damages in the courts for breach of promise, but their example is never likely to be generally followed. The result is that a large number of disappointed males continue to suffer in silence from the fickleness of women.

Love insurance would be a great boon to these forlorn swains. The arrival of a check for, say, $1000, from the insurance company would be a healing balm to the minds of many jilted men, who would find relief from their troubles in cashing the welcome slip of paper and plunging into gaiety.

The idea, in fact, is full of interesting possibilities, and no doubt it would be practicable within certain limits.

"After all," as one writer points out, "we insure ourselves, our children, our furniture, our personal effects and our houses. Why, then, shouldn't we insure the most precious of all our possessions—love, which makes the world go round?"

How to REDUCE by ELECTRICITY

IT has remained for a woman, Fanny J. Niles, of Philadelphia, to invent what she calls a "normalizing machine," which comprises an electric massaging machine adapted to massage the fatty tissue or superfluous flesh on any part or the whole of the body.

This device, as Science and Invention describes it, consists of massaging members that comprise two strips of wooden rollers or bars mounted on flexible belts, so that they can be supported by and also secured to the two opposite sides of an oscillating frame. In this manner the bars can be moved to and fro more or less rapidly as desired.

The belts at the ends of the series of rollers are connected by pins passing through flexible sheets, made for instance of heavy canvas or other strong material, in which there are a plurality of eyelets. These eyelets pass over a series of turned buttons, and thus it is seen that by providing several series of eyelets in the sheets at the ends of each series of rollers, that a wide range of adjustment is provided so as to give the necessary pressure on the body, and thus enabling the physician or person giving the treatment to adjust the roller sheets so as to conform to the shape of the patient's body.

A small electric motor drives the machine through the medium of a set of reduction gears in such a manner that a frame to which the roller belts are connected will be given an oscillating movement. Thus the rolls are more or less rapidly oscillating over the body and the speed of this massage movement may be regulated by controlling the current supplied to the electric motor. The inventor also provides in this device a feature whereby varying widths of belts carrying the rollers may be used as desired; also two or more roller units may be used on the patient.

HEALTH HINTS From the BIBLE

IF you want to keep well and avoid doctors' bills, study your Bible. That would seem to be the moral to be drawn from the remarks of Sir James Cantlie, the famous English surgeon, who recently pointed out that medicine rests on the law of Moses.

"There is not one page of the Bible which does not teach us some hygienic fact," he said.

For instance, the wrong use of milk is the cause of indigestion and bad teeth. Moses laid down the salutary law that milk should not be drunk until at least two hours after eating fish, three after chicken, and four after meat, but this is disregarded and milk is drunk at meals. No careful Jewish mother gives milk to her child when meat is served.

Sir James points out how the dangers of plagues carried by rats was learned from the Bible. Twenty-six years ago, when he was a doctor at Hongkong, there was a bubonic plague, and he and others searched the encyclopaedia for information. Then a clergyman came to him and asked him to read the fourth, fifth and sixth chapters of the Book of Samuel, where five models of swellings and three golden images of rats were described as being offered to the God of Israel.

"That's the cause of your plague, these rats," said the clergyman, and on that basis the medical authorities went to work.

Mystery of the Magnet

THE exact principle which causes a magnet to take hold of metals and cling to them with a force which overcomes the principle of gravity is, like electricity, one of nature's unsolved mysteries.

Scientists merely know that a piece of iron which has been electrically treated will attract and hold various other metals. The force it exerts they call "magnetism," and let it go at that.

The most logical explanation would appear to be that an electrically-treated piece of iron gives off a force analogous to that given off by radium, in that it will affect other pieces of metal without materially lessening its own power.

The name "magnet" is derived from the mineral "magnetite." This, in turn, is so-called because it was first discovered in magnesia. Magnetite is a natural magnet, of which lodestone is one of the best-known varieties.

"BILLY'S TOMBSTONES."

The late Sydney Drew was known as one of the funniest men on the American stage — also as a great picker of winners in the show business. You know it takes a clever man to write a successful play, a good actor to put it over and the person who decides it is worth producing usually knows his business, too. When "Billy's Tomstones" was first played, there were a few who scoffed in advance, called the subject a vulgar one and were surprised at Mr. Drew's lack of delicacy in choosing it. They remained to see the show—to laugh uproariously at at it and proclaim it the best ever.

To those who have never had the novel sensation of having several teeth extracted, possibly a whole set of uppers or lowers, it will be a revelation to see Billy Hargrave's awful predicament. One certainly does not appreciate the possession of all one's faculties or one's molars until deprived of them. Never aagin will I admire shining rows of pearly white "shop" teeth after the condition of drivelling uselessness to which Billy, in this farce is reduced. A perfectly good man, a football hero and everything becomes an object of pity and very nearly loses his sweetheart as a consequence of letting his dining room furniture escape.

"THE TITLE"

Lumsden Hare, who is appearing in the leading role of "The Title", Arnold Bennett's delightful comedy, is not related to Sir John Hare, the famous English actor, although it has frequently been asserted to the contrary. Lumsden Hare is not a stage name, and Sir John Hare assumed this name for professional purposes. Lumsden Hare was born in Tipperary. He is the first of his family to adopt the stage. His stage debut was made at the age of 20 with Frank Harvey in the English provinces, and in "The White Heather" he later made his London appearance at Drury Lane. He has since played with the most famous English and American dramatic companies. His first experience in America was as the leading man for Maude Adams.

"The Title" with Mr. Hare and an excellent supporting company will be seen at the Grand Opera House Thursday evening November 3rd.

In response to the repeated requests for another trans-continental tour of those clever fourth division boys of the "Maple Leafs" company Captain M. W. Plunkett has brought them back from the States where they have been playing Shubert time, and is now presenting them in a new and delightful diverting version of their original overseas revue, "Camouflage."

All of last season's favorites have been retained this year, and several new members have been chosen from other overseas entertainment units and added to the strength of the 'Maple Leafs' making this organization one of the best of its kind in the world. With such brilliant comedians as Ben Allen, Pat Rafferty, Bob Anderson and Ernie Petch, and such charming impersonators of the ornamental sex, as Harry Ashton and Jack Kelly. 'Camouflage' is sure to prove one of the bright spots of the season in Canada.

The "Maple Leafs" will be the attraction at the Grand next Friday and Saturday with popular matinees Saturday.

'THE TAMING OF THE SHREW.'

Peterborough play-goers saw Walter Hampden for the first time on Saturday night, and learned for themselves the reasons why the leading critics of the continent have pronounced him one of the greatest Shakesperian actors the stage has ever known. "The Taming of the Shrew" was the vehicle selected for his local debut—incidentally it was the first occasion upon which this jovial uproarious farce has been presented at the Grand—and Mr. Hampden gave the audience a new conception of Shakespeare. Many Shakesperian actors of the old school Peterborough has seen have strutted unnaturally about the stage, singing the lines or reciting them according to traditional methods, but never imparting an air of reality to their work. Mr. Hampden's art is in glaring contrast to the stilted performances of these older actors. He made Petruchio a stage figure that will live long in the memory of those who saw his performance on Saturday. Not soon will be forgotten the tall figure, the sparkle of fun in the bright eyes, the jovial voice, the toss of the head that seemed to impart to the audience the assurance that he was enjoying the farce as thoroughly as they were. What a tyrant he was as he subdued Katherine by her own methods and yet how successfully he succeeded in never letting the audience forget that in his rough treatment of her he was merely administering a much-needed cure, and that he was enjoying it because he knew that it would eventually succeed. It was a sparkling performance and local playgoers came away filled with envy at the good luck of the people of Toronto, who this week are to have an opportunity of seeing Mr. Hampden in six great roles: Shylock, Romeo, Hamlet, MacBeth and "Manson" in the "Servant in the House," in addition to Petruchio.

If Mr. Hampden's own work reached a new level of art it must be admitted, in justice to his associates, that they too established a fresh standard of excellence. Too often have Shapesperian stars been satisfied to surround themselves with players of mediocre ability, relying upon their own genius to carry the performance through to success. We have had such companies here, with actors who did not even know their lines, let alone how to deliver them. But Mr. Hampden's company was remarkably efficient. The majority of the players were with him on his long run on Broadway, and their work on Saturday was delightful. Miss Mary Hall was a convincing Katherine, whose interpretation of the role of the Shrew was a masterpiece. Ernest Rowan invested the role of Lucentio with a manly dignity, and Reynold Evans, who joined the Hampden organization for the present tour was an admirable Tranio. P. J. Kelly's laugh alone would have made his work as Gremio notable, and Hannan Clarke contributed a striking bit of character acting as Grumio. Miss Elsie Kearns scored in the part of Bianca, and such sterling actors as William Sauter, Allen Thomas, a veteran Shakesperian player, Le Roi Operti and Edwin Cushman, were most successful in their interpretations.

It is hoped that Peterborough may have many visits from Walter Hampden.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Capitol offers a splendid production to-day, "Who Am I," a special six-reel production of sensation, mystery, thrills and lavish gowns.

She had staked herself against the money debt she owed. A cut of the cards was to decide. If she won her debt would be cancelled. If she lost, she was to become the property of John Collins. The cards are shuffled; she cuts the pack and—loses.

This is one of the most tragic moments in "Who Am I?" the sensational National Picture which opens a 3-day engagement to-night at the Capitol.

It is a picture of many unusually tragic moments. It tells the story of a girl who has been reared in a fashionable finishing school, who suddenly finds herself an orphan with a big gambling house on her hands. Lacking the practical, worldly experience of less fortunate girls, this girl becomes an expert at cards. And until one of her opponents, who has lost heavily, kills himself, she doesn't realize that she is following a pernicious practice.

In trying to get away from the life that has claimed her, this girl makes her last and biggest gamble. She stakes herself against her debts, the gamble to be decided by the turn of a card.

"Who Am I?" is described as one of the most dramatic pictures of the year. Unusual of plot, yet credulous and smooth of action, it carries one to the height of suspended interest and breaks with the sharp unexpected climax that characterizes superb drama.

A notable cast is seen in this splendid production which was made under the direction of Henry Kolker.

The balance of the programme and the splendid music of the very excellent Capitol concert orchestra will complete a great show at the popular prices in vogue at this cozy, comfortable resort.

FAN-FAN.

AT THE ALLEN.

"A picture that is a real sermon," was the comment of one gentleman who saw "Over the Hill" at the private screening at the Allen this morning. It is a sermon in the sense that it develops the age-old theme of hypocritcal rectitude as opposed to honest, sincere humanity, and its a mighty interesting sermon. You can't go into the theatre in the middle of the picture, you must see it straight from the beginning, from the place where Mother tumbles her brood out of their warm beds, buttons up their backs, and pours the molasses over their sizzling pancakes. It is a picture of home, not the fixed-up home of the parlor, but the everyday, kitchen, dining room and back porch of a happy-go-lucky, brawling family of boys and girls, and it is essentially a picture of 'Mother.' She renders her squabbling children and the malingering husband who reads the newspaper while she takes in sewing, that unselfish, 'motherly' service which engenders in them the seeds of selfish neglect.

Johnny is the 'wild Indian' of the bunch, the lad who gets most of the beatings, takes the blame of his small brother's transgression on his shoulders and is allowed to take the whipping which accompanies it, just as he shields the horse theif, his father, in later years, and goes to the prison for three years. The elder brother, Isaac, is the lad who insists on grace at meals and steals pennies from his mother's little hoard. His conflict with Johnny throughout the years of their upbringing and the niggardliness which allows his mother to go "Over the Hill" to the poor house in her whitening years, culminate in the long looked-for reckoning, when Johnny comes home and drags Isaac through the town. The theme running through the picture is mother love, undying and warm, the love that finally brings her brood to a safe anchorage under the roof saved for her by the lovable "black sheep."

It was a very hot day and little Eva, having noticed her father looking at the thermometer, asked him about it.

"When it's away up," he replied, "the weather is hot and when it's away down it's cool,' When he went to consult it again it had disappeared.

'Why", Eva explained, "I took za fermometer way down in ze cellar so it would det tooler."

P. C. I. TEAM SCORE EASY VICTORY OVER OSHAWA

LOCAL COLLEGIANS SUPERIOR IN NEARLY EVERY DEPARTMENT OF THE GAME, AND WIN SECOND GAME IN INTER-SCHOLAS-T.C O.R.F.U. SERIES.

Outplaying their opponents at nearly every stage of the game, the Peterborough Collegiate Institute had little trouble in winning the inter-scholastic O.R.F.U. fixture from Oshawa Collegiate on Saturday afternoon, at Riverside Park, the local twelve leading by 17 points to 1 when the final whistle sounded. The victory gives the Peterborough students a clear lead in this group, and if they can win from Belleville here on Saturday, the group honours will be well within their grasp.

Saturday's game was played under ideal conditions and attracted a good-sized crowd, in which many old-time players and fans were noticed.

The Peterborough Collegiate were much the better team on Saturday, with a wing line that smothered Oshawa's bucks and killed off running plays by neat tackling, and a back division that showed cleverness in handling the ball in end runs, and speed in dashes through a broken field. The chief weakness of the winners lay in the poor catching of the rear guard, whose fumbles would have been costly in a close game. The Collegiate backs should devote the next few practices to handling punts, for a bad muff often represents the difference between victory and defeat, and certainly the local team were weak in this department of the game on Saturday. Otherwise they shaped up as a sterling young team, aggressive, full of pep, and unselfish in their passing.

Oshawa trotted out a pretty husky-looking team, with the Irwin brothers of lacrosse fame prominent because of their height and weight. The boys from the Motor town were not as well drilled as the Peterborough students in the science of the game, but they were a willing and hard-working crew, who never stopped trying. They, however, made the mistake of attempting to play Peterborough at the latter's own style and persisted even when it was plain that neither line plunges nor end runs made much impression upon the Peterborough line. In Browne, the visitors had a punter who easily outkicked the local backs, and with the Petes misjudging and dropping his long punts, the kicking game would have been wise tactics for the visitors. They did not, however, resort to it until the game was nearly over, and it was too late then.

For the local Collegiate, Ridpath was especially in the limelight on the back division, by reason of his splendid running. He had several of the longest jaunts of the day to his credit. Grimes, who came on just before half time and finished the game, also ran and dodged in great style, while Fanning's line plunging was of much assistanc. Quarter-back Young handled his team with good judgment and was always prominent on his own account, his dashes around the end proving great ground gainers. There was not a weak spot on the wing line, where the chief honors, however, must be given to Ernie Legon, whose tackling earned him brackets. He mussed up one Oshawa attack after another by spilling the ball-carrier before he could get started. Rishor, the other outside wing, also tackled splendidly, and the rest of the wings were not far behind this brilliant pair.

Had Browne's kicking been used more often he would have been the visitors' most effective player, for the big fellow, who dropped back from the line to do the booting, did some splendid punting. Hall, the little have been always dangerous. Jamieagainst less deadly tackling than that displayed by the P.C.I. squad, would have ebe nalways dangerous. Jamieson, one of the subs, although about the lightest man in the crew, did some great tackling, several times stopping a dangerous run by a flying tackle that grassed the ball-carrier neatly. The rest of the team gave all they had, and the visitors were trying just as hard at the end of the game as on the kick-off.

The line-up:

Oshawa		Peterborough.
	Flying Wing
Wright		Ridpath
	Halves
Hall		Fanning
N. Irwin		Maniece
Engel		L. Browne
	Snap-back
Browne		D. Young
	Inside Wings
Miller		Fleming
Hubbell		Stacey
	Middle Wings
P. Irwin		Eastwood
McKay		Bookhout
	Outside Wings
Luke		Legon
Beath		Rishor
	Subs
Jamieson		Young
Flintoff		Grimes
Clark		Parrington
Hall		Hay
Moffatt		Johnston
Wilson		Manning

Oshawa kicked off and P.C.I. assumed the aggressive immediately. A nice run around the end by Young, another by Ridpath, and a combination run in which all the back division handled the ball, carried the play well into Oshawa territory, and it was held there for the greater part of the period. P.C.I. lost on downs when in a position to score, and Browne kicked out of danger. Peterborough, however, came back again, and aided by two penalties against the visitors, once more threatened at close range. Oshawa stopped two bucks and then Maniece booted over the lien to Hall, who was downed for a rouge. Peterborough 1, Oshawa 0.

There was no further scoring in the period.

Peterborough had possession on the visitors' quarter line when the second period opened and they continued to press. End runs and line plunges carried them to Oshawa's fifteen-yard line and then a well-placed on-side kick by Maniece was nicely taken by Ridpath, who went over for an easy try. Breyfogle failed to convert. Peterborough 6, Oshawa 0.

The figures remained unchanged at half time.

The third was P.C.I.'s best period. They were always on the attack and added two touchdowns to their total. Lionel Brown got the first one when he skirted Oshawa's right end and tore down the side for a beautiful twenty-five yard run, placing the ball squarely behind the posts. Breyfogle's attempt to convert went wide. Peterborough 11, Oshawa 0.

A pretty run around the end by Rishor featured the next few minutes' play. Then Grimes got away and dodging half a dozen tacklers, he carried the ball to Oshawa's five yard line before being downed. Oshawa stopped a buck, but on the next play Young went round the end for a try, which Breyfogle failed to convert. Peterborough 16, Oshawa 0.

Oshawa commenced a kicking gae in the last period, and for the first time were dangerous. Browne's long punts were poorly handled and Oshaaw finally gained possession on a muff close to the Peterborough line. They tried two plunges without avail and then Browne kicked into touch at Peterborough's two-yard line. The situation was relieved for a moment, but another fumble put Oshawa in scoring range again and Browne kicked to the dead line for their first and only point.

Oshawa continued to press, but Ridpath averted trouble by gathering in one of Browne's punts on the dead run and galloping 45 yards, the best run of the day. Grimes kicked over the line and Hall, after a gallnat attempt to get outside, was dragged down for a rouge and the last point of the game. Peterborough 17, Oshawa 1.

SMOKE, GENERAL AND MOORCROFT

CANADA'S THREE BEST MARATHONERS TO HOOK UP IN THE HAMILTON HERALD RACE.

The Hamilton Herald road race, around Hamilton's front yard 'pond,' is going to be a corker this year. Buffalo will be represented by two boys, either of whom may show the Canadian cracks the way down York street. It is expected that there will be other Yankees in the classic, but even if no more toe the scratch, Uncle Sam is sure to be well looked after.

Jimmy Graham and Bob Conboy, both members of the Niagara Association, of the Bison City, have sent along their entries, and advices from Buffalo state that these boys are sure to cut quite a figure. Frank Wendling is another Buffalonian who is almost sure to enter. He has not been heard from, but he took part in the S.P.A. marathon here on October 8, and is reported to be pointing for the Herald's big annual event.

Any doubt that might have been entertained as to the closeness of the race this year was removed Saturday by the entry of Albert Smoke, the Peterborough Indian, who is among the first flight of Canadian long-distance runners. Smoke tried last year and flattened his supporters by running alongside Tom Ellis, the Hamilton boy, for twelve miles. They were leading, but both had to give up the chase, Ellis from a balky stomach, and Smoke because his foot gave out. His tootsies were a mass of blisters when he finally reached the finish. This year the Indian will be prepared for the occasion with a pair of shoes that will stand up under the grind, and he declares that he will go out in front early and stay there.

Smoke is out to show Norman General just how the Hamilton course should be covered. Both are Indians, and there is great rivalry between them. That fact alone assures a great race. On top of the little duel between the redskins there will be Jimmy Delow, Art Scholes, Jimmy Moorcroft, Tom Ellis, Charley Morton and numerous others to be taken into consideration, so that it can be seen that the winner is going to realize that has been to the races. A more open race has never been run over the Herald's course.

The entry list to date:

Fred Makinson, Y. M. C. A., St Catharines.

George E. Holland, Gladstone A. C., Toronto.

Charles Morton, Hamilton.

Henry Williams, Thorold.

Norman General, Brantford.

James A. Graham, Buffalo, N.Y.

Robert Conboy, Buffalo, N.Y.

Albert Smoke, Peterborough, Ont.

MORE THAN TWENTY ROAD RACE PRIZES

WILL BE ON EXHIBITION IN GRANT & THORPE'S WINDOW—ENTRIES MUST BE IN BY THURSDAY AT NINE P. M.

Most of the prizes for the Examiner road race will be on exhibition in Grant and Thorpe's window tomorrow. For the senior race the Examiner is giving the first three prizes, in addition to the shield that goes to the winner. The first prize is a gold watch, second an amethyst and diamond pin and the third a signet ring. A complete list of the prizes will be published to-morrow. In the meantime the prospective entrants in the senior and junior events are reminded that their entries must be registered on or before Thursday at 3 p.m. with Mr. D. Loomis, physical director of the Y.M.C.A.

There are more than twenty prizes to be distributed, a feature that should bring out even a bigger field than has been expected by the committee.

ITHACA, N.Y., Oct. 31.— D. D. Hubbs, a prominent business man of Amsterdam, was killed here when the car he was driving turned turtle while rounding a turn in Highland avenue. Mr. Hubbs came to Ithaca to witness the Dartmouth-Cornell game Saturday.

ELECTION NEWS

CASGRAIN FOR GOVERNMENT.

WINDSOR,, Oct. 31. — Canadian Press. — Lieut.-Colonel R. H. Casgrain, a son of the late Senator C. W. Casgrain, was nominated on Saturday as the National Liberal and Conservative party standard bearer to contest North Essex at the approaching federal election.

Platinum, steel and all of the darker grays, among which may be cited sphinx, are strong.

Lace blouses are among the smartest of the dressy models shown for fall and winter.

One lovely boudoir garment recently seen was of black velvet, cut quite straight and equipped with kimona sleeves.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, October 31 (Canadian Press). — The uneven course of early prices in the stock market today was indicated by Mexican Petroleum's loss of 1 5-8 points, and Baldwin Locomotives' gain of 1 1-2 points. Oils as a group were lower, further selling of Pacific issues being noted. Rails, equipments, motors, chemicals, leathers, and textiles strengthened fractionally to 1 1-2 points. Developments over the week-end seemed to offer little incentive to professional traders.

LIVESTOCK MARKET

TORONTO, Oct 31.—(Canadian Press)—Receipts 5550. Trade steady Heavy beef steers $6 to $6.50; Choice butcher steers $5.75 to $6.00; butcher cows medium $3.00 to $4.00 Calves $10.50 to $12.00; lambs $8 to $8.25; Hogs select, $9.00 to $9.25.

MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Oct 31.—(Canadian Press.—Trading was uninteresting on the local stock exchange during the first half hour this morning and although many of the leaders appeared, no changes of any importance occurred in prices. Abitibi ws down a 1-8 at 32 7-8 while Atlantic Sugar was up 1-8 at 30 3-8. Brazilian lost a half to 24 and Brompton a quarter to 26. National Breweries was unchanged at 56 1-4 Spanish River nd Wyagamack were also quiet.

WEDDING BELLS

LIEBERS—GORDON.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at 7 o'clock this morning at the Sacred Heart church when Mabel Gordon and Carl Leibers were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. J. J. O'Brien. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hamilton. Immediately after the ceremony, they drove to the home of Mr. T. Fredenburg, where a dainty breakfast was served. They will reside in the city.

IN MEMORIAM

LAPLANTE—In proud and loving memory of Sergeant Arthur de Laplante who was killed at Passchendaele Ridge, Oct 31st., 1917. Gone but not forgotten.

Inserted by Father, Sisters and Brothers.

IN MEMORIAM.

SHANNON.—In loving memory of my dear husband, Chas. Shannon, who died Oct. 29, 1920.

One year has passed, our hearts still sore,
As time rolls on, we miss him more;
His loving smile, his welcome face,
No one can fill his vacant place.

Forget him, no, we never will,
We loved him then, we love him still;
His memory is as fresh to-day
As in the hour he passed away.

Oh how our thoughts do wander
To the lone and silent grave,
Where they laid our loved one,
Just one year ago to-day.

The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still;
But death has left a vacant place
The world can never fill.

His weary hours and days of pain,
His troubled nights are past;
His ever patient, worn-out frame,
Has found sweet rest at last.

ADY LAURIER OLLOWS GREAT IATE TO GRAVE

FE OF LATE LIBERAL CHIEFTAIN DIED PEACEFULLY IN OTTAWA AT 11:45 THIS MORNING—LADY LAURIER WAS 80 YEARS OF AGE

ONTRIBUTED GREATLY TO HUSBAND'S SUCCESS

OTTAWA, Nov. 1. — (Canadian ress.)— Lady Laurier died peacelly at 11.45 this morning. Through e night attending physicians exessed the opinion that the end was ar.

Before her marriage she was Miss be La Fontaine, of Montreal. She sided in Ottawa for over a quarr of a century and no one was betr known in the Capital. She was ot a public woman, and like most f the great wives of history, she ntributed to the success of her late usband great assistance.

The late Sir Wilfrid Laurier paid any glowing tributes to his wife nd lifelong helpmate. Theirs was uly an ideal marriage, save for the ct that they had no children. On ir Wilfrid's seventieth birthday, iberal members of Parliament gave im a complimentary dinner, at hich he told of the part Lady Laurier played in his life. At that time e placed himself at the disposal of he Liberal party because of the poition taken by his wife, whom he escribed as a good soldier. When is party was defeated in 1911, she ad told him, "Wilfrid, you must eep the leadership, you must fight n."

FOCH EULOGIZES SERVICE OF U.S.

TELLS AMERICAN LEGION HE CONSIDERS IT HONOR TO HAVE GUIDED AMERICAN ARMY.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 1.—(United Press.)—Marshal Foch, "civilization's first soldier," paid a tribute ringing with emotion to the American Army of 1918, which he characterized as a "real grand army, beginning with its commander," here to-day. The Marshal spoke in French to 15,000 American Legion men. The Legionnaires cheered as Foch declared "the greatest honor of my life will be to have guided along the road to victory the American Army of 1918."

Foch's speech was mostly a review and tribute to America in the war, declaring to the ex-service men, "You may well be proud."

WALTER SMAILL IS THE CHOICE

P.A.A.A. WILL MAKE EFFORT TO SECURE HIS SERVICES AS COACH

After a series of meetings at which the coach problem was discussed from many angles, the Executive of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, voted last night to take the necessary steps to secure the services of Walter Smaill.

Mr. Smaill is remembered here as one of the stars of the famous Wanderers Hockey Club of Montreal. He has been highly recommended to the Association by responsible men who are in a position to know his ability, and character. His qualifications as a coach extend to practically all branches of sport. He is now in Winnipeg.

The Association is in communication with Mr. Smaill and should be able to make a definite announcement shortly.

UNEMPLOYED MAN HEIR TO ESTATE

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Nov. 1.— (Canadian Press.)— While working in the parks as one of the unemployed, C. P. Virtus, former Canadian soldier, received a letter from Edmonton, Alta., informing him that he had become heir to his father's estate of $50,000.

PARADE TO-NIGHT FROM ARMOURIES

57TH RANGERS WILL MARCH OUT IN PREPARATION FOR INSPECTION.

The 1st Battalion, Peterboro Rangers parade at the Armouries at 8 o'clock to-night.

Recruiting was brisk last week, and it is hoped to make a creditable showing when inspection takes place in about a month.

To-night after parade there will be indoor baseball, shooting competitions and bowling. The recreation room is being put into shape, and an outdoor skating rink will be provided for the men as soon as the weather is favorable.

The young men of Peterborough will find healthy recreation and good fellowship and an all round good time at the armouries where all the splendid facilities are free to the members of the militia of Canada.

DOMINION STEEL EMPLOYEES WILL PROTEST SLASH

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 1.—A committee of men from the Steel Workers' Union will endeavor to meet the management of the Dominion Steel plant and enter a formal protest against the ten per cent. reduction, notice of which was posted yesterday by Manager Merrill. They took similar action following two cuts in the past summer, but without results.

During the past nine months three wage cuts have taken place in the plant. The first ten per cent. reduction in February was followed some months ago by a second of twenty per cent. When the twenty per cent. cut came the men said that their wages had been reduced out of all proportion to the reduction in the cost of living. The men claim they are only working now half time, which brings their pay to about one-third of what it was in 1920.

MADAME FAIRFAX SANG AT PROTESTANT HOME

Madame Fairfax who is to give a recital in St. Paul's church tonight visited the Protestant Home last night and gave to the old people an evening of rare enjoyment with her beautiful voice and instrumental music. It was a very kind thought on the part of Madame Fairfax whose theory of life seems to be that her gifts are given to share and to give pleasure as far as possible to those less fortunate.

BARNS, STOCK AND IMPLEMENTS GONE

WIPED OUT IN EARLY MORNING FIRE ON CHAS. HEALY'S FARM IN NORTH MONAGHAN.

Two barns, with their entire contents of stock and implements, belonging to Charles Healy, on the old Tully farm in North Monaghan, on the 1st Concession or the Smith Boundary, were wiped out by a fire of unknown origin this morning between four and five o'clock.

The live stock lost by Mr. Healy included three horses, seven head of cattle, a number of pigs, and all his poultry. The implements stored in the barns were also destroyed.

A fresh north-east wind fanned the flames and carried the sparks dangerously near to the buildings on W. L. White's farm close by. When Mr. White awoke about 4.40 o'clock, both barns, of moderate size, were ablaze and beyond help.

Mr. White's property was threatened by the sparks and brands blown by the wind, and it is more than likely that had the direction of the wind been more easterly his barns would have been burned too.

From The Examiner's information it was learned that the farm occupied by Mr. Healy, who moved on to it last spring, is owned by James Aikey. It is about a mile and a half west of the city on the road leading from Jackson Park.

It is understood that Mr. Healy carried some insurance.

LADY LAURIER IN CRITICAL CONDITION

OTTAWA, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—The latest bulletin issued by the attending doctors states that the condition of Lady Laurier is critical.

EIGHT MILLION FACING FAMINE OF MILK TODAY

WIDE AREA SUFFERING FROM STRIKE'S EFFECT

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.— (United Press.) — Eight million people in New York and vicinity are facing a milk famine as a result of a wagon drivers' strike to-day.

The strike went into effect last night when the demands of the drivers for a $5 a week raise and two weeks' vacation were refused and attempts at mediation by City and Federal officials failed.

About ten thousand drivers met yesterday afternoon and last night at Madison Square Garden. At the same time last minute attempts at mediation were going on. When failure of these were reported, the men went on strike.

Only enough men to supply hospitals and other institutions and to feed the horses at the stables reported for work to-day. It was estimated that 2,500,000 quarts of milk lay unmoved in terminals.

The districts affected by strikes included Greater New York, all of Connecticut, within twenty miles of Massachusettes, a part of Long Island and New Jersey as far west as Patterson and Passaic.

SUPPER TO STAFF OF TURNBULL CO.

ADDRESS AND MOTION PICTURES ON STORE EFFICIENCY

The management of the Turnbull Company, Limited, were hosts at a banquet tendered their entire store staff last evening, in the basement of their building, where the tables were atractively arranged with flowers, and a bounteous fowl supper was enjoyed by nearly 60 guests, including the staff of the store, their wives and husbands. Mr. R. J. Kidd, of the Neil Shoe Store, Mr. F. C. Hungerford of Woolworths, Limited, and Mr. Petite, of New York, the guest of honor.

Mr. W. W. Turnbull, toast master, expressed the sentiments of the company in a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. H. E. Hodgins for his kindness in providing the entertainment, and a toast was also proposed to Mr. Petite. Both gentlemen responded in suitable terms.

After the banquet, an adjournment was made to the third floor, where Mr. Petite, who is an expert representing the Economy Service of New York, gave a very interesting talk on salesmanship and store efficiency, followed by two reels of moving pictures, one illustrating the chain of circumstances involved in the wrong reckoning of a sales check, the other showing the different attitude of mind of two clerks, one being on hand the first thing in the morning to punch the time clock, the other last in the morning and first to leave in the evening.

On the first of January of the incoming year, the Turnbull Company intends to install a store efficiency system for the use of its entire staff of employees. This is a weekly service, and includes photographs showing the right and wrong way of selling merchandise, short talks elaborating on the this subject and on the right and wrong methods of approaching customers, samples of merchandise with short squibs to epitomize the whole idea in a few words and hold the interest, and suggestions with regard to store service and efficiency.

U. S. Exports To Dominion Falling Fast

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—The trade of the United States with Canada right now is waving the red flag, says The New York Herald to-day, discussing the fact that the value of United States' exports to Canada is decreasing much more rapidly than that of the United States imports from the Dominion. It suggests the advisability of extending larger credits to Canada.

"If we lose two dollars of sales to Canada for every dollar of sales that Canada loses to us we are moving decidedly in the wrong direction."

TESTED PRESSURE IN WATER MAINS

FIRE UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION INSPECT WATER SERVICE HERE.

Citizens may have wondered why the fire department were causing all the commotion on George street to-day. They were busy laying hose and testing hydrants. There was all the earmarks of a big fire without the blaze. The Examiner made enquiries and found that L. D. Walker of Toronto, Inspector of the Canadian Fire Underwriter's Association was in the city and the inspection of the hydrants was proceeding under his direction.

It is expected that it will take about three days to complete the inspection Mr. Walker is required to make. He declined to make any comment on the result of this morning's downtown tests to the Examiner when seen at 1 p.m. to-day when starting out with the Fire Chief to examine hydrants in various parts of the city. The afternoon will be spent in this work. Chief Grange stated that they laid 13 lines of hose on George street to-day, testing the pressure at hydrants and nozzle and found the pressure 100 pounds This pressure he considered satisfactory but the inspector was not prepared to make any statement about it to the press saying that everything would come out in his report which will reach the Council directly after the Assaciation have received it.

It is nearly three years, Chief Grange stated since a complete inspection of the hydrants and pressure in Peterboro has been made by the Underwirters. The last inspection was made by Inspector Wilson.

D. 3. Inspections were as follows — water tests 49, smoke tests 29, layout plumbing 10, miscellaneous inspections 28 Total 116. Certificates of completion 46.

LAKEFIELD WILL BUY FIRE ALARM SYSTEM

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. E. Bickell were in Peterborough for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Wooldridge, of Little Britain, motored to the village on Sunday to visit friends.

The first of the series of Chatauqua entertainments given by the Firemen took place on Monday evening in the Memorial Hall. The object of these entertainments is one which appeals to every property holder, and in fact every citizen of the town, the purchase of a fire alarm for the Town Hall. As every citizen will benefit, every one should make a point of being present at these entertainments. The audience on Monday night was fair, considering that it was Hallowe'en and the weather poor.

The programme was splendid, and was given by the "Dixie Duo" — Miss Marie Terry, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Miss Lucy Griffis, of Yazoo City, Miss.

SANG AT HOSPITAL AND PROTESTANT HOME

Madam Fairfax, of Chicago, who was in Peterborough yesterday, and who is to appear in connection with the Grand Recital to be given under the auspices of St. Paul's Ladies' Aid this evening, very kindly entertained the sick at the Nicholls Hospital yesterday afternoon, and the old people at the Protestant home in the evening. Madam Fairfax spent about an hour at each place, and her efforts were greatly appreciated by all who heard her.

In connection with the concert this evening, Miss Garrow, the Electtionist, is appearing in Peterborough for the first time. Miss Agnes Logan, Peterborough's favorite pianist, is also on the programme.

LLOYD GEORGE HAS HOPE FOR ARMS PARLEYS

BRITISH PREMIER SENDS MESSAGE TO PILGRIMS EXPRESSING CONFIDENCE IN SUCCESS OF CONFERENCE.

BALFOUR DECLARES SAME SPIRIT ANIMATING ALL

LONDON, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press.)— Expressing the hope that he would be able to attend the Washington conference, Premier Lloyd George sent a message to the Pilgrims dinner to the British delegates to Washintgon last night in which he stated that: "I share to the full the earnest hope and belief that your gathering will express in the work to be done at the great conference. For summoning it, the world owes President Harding a debt of the sincerest gratitude."

Hon. Mr. Balfour said that the speeches of Ambassadors Harvey and Hayashi, who declared the delegates were going to the conference in the interests of the world, revealed that the spirit in which the United States and Japan were entering the conference was the same as that animating Britain. He was confident the conference would be brought to a happy and fruitful conclusion.

BURGLARS BREAK INTO A JEWELRY STORE AT NIGHT

FIREMEN RESPONDED TO HALLOWE'EN ALARM.

Spirits of the Night Had Fled — But Next Time Trouble Will Follow Them.

At 8.30 last night the Fire Department answered a call from 11 Hilliard Street, where a chimney fire at the residence of J. Taylor was extinguished without even recourse to chemicals. No damage was done.

Some youthful merrymakers misinterpreted the meaning of fun when they rang in a false alarm from Box 31, corner of Sherbrooke and Park Streets. Of course, no one was in sight when the Brigade arrived.

Chief Grange remarked to-day upon the penalty handed out to student classes at Toronto University who had rung in a fire alarm falsely, and were assessed $150.00 by the Students' Council; and he stated that on the next occasion of a false alarm investigations would be made and prosecutions follow. He accepted last night's incident as an outburst of the Hallowe'en spirit, dangerous enough, but apparently a thing to be suffered one night in the year.

False alarms on other occasions are, however, not excusable in any way, and severe measures must be taken to curb persons, evidently with minds unbalanced to a considerable extent, who seem to take pleasure in placing honest citizens' lives and property in jeopardy.

BOYS ARE GATHERING IN THEIR SCOUT-GRAMS

It is expected that either to-morrow or Thursday the executive in charge of the local campaign for Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives will be able to give in exact figures just how much to this worthy cause has so far been subscribed in Peterborough. In the meantime the boys are gathering in their Scout-grams, and any person who may have been overlooked in the canvass may leave his or her subscription with either of the local banks. All workers are optimistic of their $10,000 objective being reached.

LONDON, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Col. Obid Smith has been appointed chairman of the Committee on White Labor, and Hon. Walter Rollo, member of the Committee on Unemployment and Agriculture at the International Labor Conference at Geneva.

SUNDAY HUNTERS HAVE NEW SCHEME

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 1.—Cleft sticks at all trail crossings, holding pieces of paper bearing the legend, "Beware, strangers are abroad, hide your guns and birds," are being used by north country hunters to confound agents of the Ontario government operating to enforce the Lord's Day Act.

So successful was this unseen scheme in outwitting game wardens at one station east of Fort William, keeping at least six in one party from falling into the law's clutches last week end, that Sunday hunters will make use of it generally.

PESSIMISM IS PREVALENT RE IRISH PARLEY

LONDON PRESS TAKES DARK VIEW OF SITUATION FOLLOWING PREMIER'S WARNING LAST NIGHT.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE CALLED THIS MORNING

By ED. L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, Nov. 1. — The Irish peace negotiations were expected to be resumed to-day under threat of renewed civil warfare unless a settlement is reached.

Lloyd George called Austen Chamberlain, Keeper of the Privy Seal; Arthur Griffith, head of the Irish delegation, and Michael Collins, Commander-in-Chief of the Sinn Fein military forces, into conference during the forenoon. While the reason for the meeting was not announced, it was characterized as "important."

This warning was issued in the House of Commons last night by Premier Lloyd George, just before that body endorsed the negotiations by the overwhelming vote of 439 to 43, when he said: "If the conference is broken off the first thing the Government would have to do would be to ask a strengthening of the Crown forces in Ireland on a considerable scale. Unless this is absolutely necessary for the honor and security of the country, this is not the time to ask the House to impose great additional burdens upon the taxpayers and to ask our young men again to risk their lives."

Press comment to-day on the debate over the vote of censure asked by the Unionists, which was turned into a vote of confidence in the Government, was distinctly pessimistic and several newspapers interpreted the Premier's speech as a warning to the public to prepare for a possible breakdown of the negotiations.

The Chronicle referred to the speech as "the last warning and appeal to the Sinn Fein." The Daily News declared the fact "that a small body of determined mischief-makers are able to jeopardize a conference so vital to the Empire is a warning to be taken to heart by the English and the Irish representatives."

"The vote, which is one of the largest majorities ever recorded, should remove from the minds of the Irish any doubt as to the sincerity of the English desire for peace," the Daily Express said.

Both The Times and The Daily News Parliamentary correspondents noted the absence of any assurance regarding Ulster, which had been looked upon as the crux of the situation, and called attention to the significance in that portion of Lloyd George's speech in which he said: "I am not asking the Commons to face anything which some one at this box (meaning the place from which the Cabinet members address the House) might not be inviting you to face in a few days." This was interpreted as a hint of a possible split in the Ministry over conceding the Ulster counties of Fermanagh and Tyrone to the Sinn Fein.

The Daily News writer interpreted the Premier would not consider Sinn Fein's insistence on concessions from Ulster on the grounds of a possible resumption of warfare in Ireland, and that he might resign if he were unable to swing the rest of the Cabinet to his views.

ALLIANCE BRASS COMPANY, LIMITED

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that under the First Part of Chapter 79 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, known as "The Companies Act," and amending Acts, letters patent have been issued under the Seal of the Secretary of State of Canada, bearing date the 16th day of November, 1921, incorporating George Newcombe Gordon and Joseph Aloysius O'Brien, solicitors, Maude Leahy and Jessie Stevens, stenographers, and Robena Hardwick, book-keeper, all of the City of Peterborough, in the Province of Ontario, for the following purposes, viz.:

(A) To engage in the business of metal founders, and to manufacture, buy and sell and otherwise deal in and with metal and metal goods and products of all and every description and kind, and to engage in the business of wholesale and retail merchants in general merchandise, and in manufacturing of all kinds;

poses, viz.:

(B) To pay out of the funds of the company, all or any of the expenses incidental to the formation and organization thereof, and to employ, contract with and provide for the remuneration of brokers, commission agents and underwriters upon any issue of shares, bonds, debentures, debenture stock or other securities of the company;

(C) To carry on any other business (whether manufacturing or otherwise) which may seem to the company capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with its business or calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of or render profitable any of the company's property or rights;

(D) To acquire or undertake the whole or any part of the business, property and liabilities of any person or company carrying on any business which the company is authorized to carry on, or possessed of property suitable for the purposes of the company;

(E) To apply for, purchase or otherwise acquire, any patents, formulae, process, licenses, concessions and the like, conferring any exclusive or non-exclusive, or limited right to use, or any secret or other information as to any inventions, formulae, process, which may seem capable of being used for any of the purposes of the company, or the acquisition of which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to benefit the company, and to use, exercise, develop or grant licenses in respect of, or otherwise turn to account the property, rights information so acquired;

(F) To enter into partnership or into any arrangement for sharing of profits, union of interests, co-operations, joint adventure, reciprocal concession or otherwise, with any person or company carrying on or engaged in or about to carry on or engage in any business or transaction which the company is authorized to carry on or engage in, or any business or transaction capable of being conducted so as to directly or indirectly to benefit the company; and to lend money to, guarantee the contracts of, or otherwise assist any such person or company, and to take or otherwise acquire shares and securities of any such company, and to sell, hold, re-issue, with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal with the same;

(G) To take or otherwise acquire and hold shares in any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company or carrying on any business capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit the company;

(H) To enter into any arrangements with the authorities, municipal, local or otherwise, that may seem conducive to the company's objects, or any of them, and to obtain from any such authority any rights, privileges and concessions which the company may think it desirable to obtain, and to carry out, exercise and comply with any such arrangements, rights, privileges and concessions;

(I) To establish and support or aid in the establishment and support of associations, institutions, funds, trusts and conveniences calculated to benefit employees or ex-employees of the company (or its predecessors in business) or the dependents or connections of such persons, and to grant pensions and allowances, and to make payments towards insurance, and to subscribe or guarantee money for charitable or benevolent objects; or for any public, general or useful object;

(J) To promote any company or companies for the purpose of acquiring all or any of the property and liabilities of the company, or for any other purpose, which may seem directly or indirectly calculated to benefit the company;

(K) To purchase, take on lease or in exchange, hire or otherwise acquire, any personal property and any rights or privileges which the company may think necessary or convenient for the purposes of its business, and in particular any machinery, plant, stock-in-trade;

(L) To construct, improve, maintain, work, manage, carry out or control any roads, ways, branches or sidings, bridges, reservoirs, watercourses, wharves, manufactories, warehouses, electric works, shops, stores and other works and conveniences which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to advance the company's interests, and to contribute to, subsidize or otherwise assist or take part in the construction, improvement, maintenance, working, management, carrying out or control thereof;

(M) To lend money to customers and others having dealings with the company, and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such persons;

(N) To draw, make, accept, endorse, execute and issue promissory notes, bills of exchange, bills of lading, warrants and other negotiable or transferable instruments;

(O) To sell or dispose of the undertaking of the company or any part thereof for such consideration as the company may think fit, and in particular for shares, debentures or securities of any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company;

(P) To apply for, secure, acquire by assignment, transfer, purchase or otherwise, and to exercise, carry out and enjoy any charter, license, power, authority, franchise, concession, rights or privilege, which any government or authority, or any corporation or other public body may be empowered to grant, and to pay for, aid in, and contribute towards carrying the same into effect, and to appropriate any of the company's shares, bonds and assets to defray the necessary costs, charges and expenses thereof;

(Q) To procure the company to be registered and recognized in any foreign country and to designate persons therein according to the laws of such foreign country to represent this company and to accept service for and on behalf of the company of any process or suit;

(R) To raise and assist in raising money for, and to aid, by way of bonus, loan, promise, endorsement, guarantee of bonds, debentures or other securities or otherwise, any other company or corporation with which the company may have business relations, and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such company, corporation, or by any other person or persons;

(S) To adopt such means of making known the products of the company as may seem expedient, and in particular by advertising in the press, by circulars, by purchase and exhibition of works of art or interest, by publication of books and periodicals and by granting prizes, rewards and donations;

(T) To sell, improve, manage, develop, exchange, lease, dispose of, turn to account or otherwise deal with all or any part of the property and rights of the company;

(U) To do all or any of the above things as principals, agents, contractors or otherwise, and either alone or in conjunction with others;

(V) To do all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects;

The operations of the Comapny to be carried on throughout the Dominion of Canada and elsewhere by the name of "Alliance Brass Company, Limited," with a capital stock of seventy-five thousand ($75,000) dollars, divided into 750 shares of one hundred ($100) dollars each, and the chief place of business of the said company to be at the City of Peterborough, in the Province of Ontario.

THOMAS MULVEY,
4d Under-Secretary of State.

BISHOP SWEENY CONDUCTED CONFIRMATION SERVICES—FUNERAL OF OLD RESIDENT

PERSONAL MENTION

MILLBROOK, November 1. — Very solemn and impressive Confirmation services were conducted by His Lordship Bishop Sweeny, of Toronto, in three churches of the Parish of Millbrook and Cavan, on Sunday, 30th October, in the presence of large congregations.

The service in the morning at 10.30 was in St. John's Church, Ida, when thirteen candidates were received into church membership, and the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered.

In the afternoon at Christ Church, Bailieboro, nine candidates were presented, the Rector, Rev. Canon Allen, assisting the Bishop at both these appointments.

In the evening at 7.30, in St. Thomas' Church, Millbrook, Rev. Canon Allen, Rev. Canon Spencer of Hamilton, and Rev. C. R. Spencer of Millbrook, assisted with the service. Twenty-nine candidates, including those from Trinity Church, were received int othe church by the Bishop with prayer and the laying on of hands.

In his address to those presented fo membership, Bishop Sweeny emphasised the necessity and value of the rite of Confirmation, proving its historic precedent from various passages of Scripture, and also its moral and religious significance.

Bishop Sweeny also noted some important changes made in the Revised Book of Common Prayer now authorised for use in the Anglican Church throughout Canada. In his charge to the congregation, the Bishop urged the people to wage battle against the evils of indifferentism and incredulity, which are like deadweights hindering the progress of the Church of Christ in the world to-day.

Mrs. (Canon) Allen presided at the organ at all the services on Sunday. Mr. Devey, Jr., of Peterborough, relieving her for a brief period at the evening service by playing the opening and closing voluntaries.

The flowers were very beautiful in all three churches, and were placed on the altar by the Girls' Guilds.

The offering was, by special request of the Bishop, in aid of the building fund of St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto.

Funeral on Sunday.

The funeral of the late Wilfred Henry Leal, who died in his fifty-fourth year on Thursday, 27th October, took place from the family residence, Lot 2, Con. 4, Cavan, on Sunday, 30th October, at 2.30 p.m.

The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. C. R. Spencer, and also by the Marmora Lodge, No. 222, A.F. and A.M., G.R.C., the deceased having been a member of that Lodge before his removal to Cavan to reside.

About twenty-five Masons motored over from Marmora, and quite a number of members of the local Masonic Lodge also attended the funeral.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered in the Methodist church on Sunday morning, November 6.

A Thanksgiving service will be held on Thanksgiving night in the Sunday school room by the newly organized Epworth League.

On Sunday morning the Methodist church was filled to its utmost capacity, when the Black Perceptory of the Orange Order attended service in a body.

A great many members of neighboring lodges were present.

Rev. Mr. Rogers preached a very able sermon from the text, 1 Corinthians, 1-10, 11.

Epworth League Re-organized.

On Monday evening the Epworth League of the Methodist church was re-organized. The officers elected are:

Hon. Pres.—Rev. Mr. Rogers.
President—Mr. W. Wendt.
1st Vice-Pres.—Miss Nellie Liscumb.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Miss Laura Buck.
3rd Vice-Pres.— Miss Una Duffield.
4th Vice-Pres.—Mr. J. Logan.
Secretary—Miss Verna Scott.
Treas.—Mr. Howard Adams.
Pianist—Mr. Charlie Adams.

Chautauqua Entertainment.

The first of the seriese of Chautauqua entertainments, under the auspices of the I.O.D.E., was given on Saturday night in the town hall by the 'Dixie Duo.' Unfortunately the attendance was not so large as had been hoped for, and those who were not present missed a rare treat.

The two performers were costumed in the quaintest of quaint attires and their songs and stories were exceptionally good. The audience were delighted with the evening's programme.

Personals.

Miss Bessie MacNaughton of Cobourg, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John MacNaughton.

Mrs. John Rogers was in Peterborough on Thursday.

Rev. Mr. Rogers was at Trent Bridge on Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cress, of Toronto, visited this week at the home of the latter's sister, Mr. W. Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrington of Toronto, have been guests of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Rich.

Dr. and Mrs. Weldon, of Peterborough, spent the week end at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Sutton.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fowlds of Hastings, were in town on Saturday.

Mr .and Mrs. I. N. Ackerman returned last week from their summer home at Stoney Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Drope of Alnwick, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Marks on Sunday.

Mr. Moore of Roseneath, spent the week end in town.

Mrs. Will Finlay is spending a short time in town.

BETHANY AND THE DISTRICT

SPECIAL SERVICES

BETHANY, November 1. — On Friday evening the Athletic Club held a social evening in the Town Hall in honour of Mr. Walter Price on the eve of his departure for a position in Merriton. The first part of the evening was given over to games, music, and social chat. Then Mr. Panton called the gathering to order and explained why they were there. He said how much the Athletic Club appreciated the help and assistance Mr. Price had always given in the different sports, etc., which the club had participated in. Mr. Panton said it was the wish of the members to prove in a more tangible way their appreciation, He called on Mr. Wm. Hannah, president of the club, and Mr. Parry Brown, secretary, to come to the platform, also Mr. Price. Mr. Hannah then read a short address, while Mr. Brown presented to Mr. Price, on behalf of the Athletic Association of Bethany, a beautiful Masonic ring. Mr. Price thanked his fellow-members and their friends for their kind appreciations.

The company rose to their feet and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and three cheers and a tiger were given for Walter.

After this, the ladies served a dainty lunch of sandwiches, cake, and coffee, and the remainder of the evening was given over to dancing.

Walter Price will be greatly missed, not only in athletic circles, but in the entire neighbourhood, as he was ever a kind friend and willing helper wherever needed.

Church Anniversary.

On Sunday, 30th October, the members of the Methodist Church held their anniversary services. Rev. F. E. Malott, of Trinity Church, Peterborough, and chairman of the Peterborough District, spoke at both services, morning and evening, in an able manner. In the morning his subject was "Blessings," in the evening "Leaders."

The congregation thoroughly enjoyed both sermons. Miss Given, also of Trinity Church, ably assisted the choir in their service of song, and delighted everyone with her solos, which were so suitable for the occasion.

At both services, the church was crowded to the doors. The thankoffering, which was taken at both services, while fairly liberal, did not come up to the objective set, which was very disappointing to the stewards of the church, as the money was sadly needed.

Mass Meeting.

On Sunday afternoon, the Methodist Sunday School held their annual mass meeting, the service being held in the auditorium of the church instead of the Sunday School Room. A special temperance programme was used for the occasion, with Mr. A. H. Monk, superintendent, as the leader. Mr. F. W. Galbraith, of Port Hope, gave an excellent address on temperance, giving as Bible references passages of scripture where strong drink was almost always referred to as "woe." Rev. Mr. Malott addressed the children chiefly, but the older folks enjoyed it, too. He chose as his subject the "Fruit of the Spirit," taking the word Joy, and then taking each letter of the word as the beginning of a sentence—Jesus first, Others next, Yourself last.

The children greatly enjoyed this blackboard talk — that to make this world better, to make our Chruch better, to make our community bet-

APSLEY NEWS

APSLEY, Nov. 1. — On Friday evening a concert under the auspices of the Methodist Church was given in the Orange Hall, having been postponed from an earlier date on account of inclement weather. The audience, though not a large one, thoroughly enjoyed the programme that had been prepared as well as the refreshments provided by the ladies.

The chair was taken by the Rev. C. Spence, who in the course of the evening spoke on the St. John Ambulance Association work, that the Rev. W Hall is desirious of starting in the village if enough members can be secured to form a class. There is every prospect of success in this respect, as since then Mr. Spence has obtained about twelve prospective members, which in addition to about the same number secured by Mr. Hall will form a good sized class.

The programme rendered during the evening was as follows:

Duet; Organ and Violin—Mrs. Staples and Mrs. Smith; Recitation—Alma Jones; Song, —Willie Hall; Recitation—Mrs. Staples; Song,—Mrs. F. Tucker; Recitation—Mrs. E. Tucker; Address—Rev. C. Spence Song—W. Hall; Recitation—Grace Kilborne; Humorous Medley—Rev. Hall and Spence; Recitation—Mrs. Staples; Duet—Mrs. Staples and Mrs. Smith; Recitation—Mrs. Hall.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to $16.50.

Mr. W. Johnston and family who since they were burnt out last summer have been living in a cottage lent them by the Rev. C. Spence, have removed for the winter into the house formerly occupied by Mr. Hubert James.

Most of the teachers from the surrounding schools attended the Teacher's Convention in Peterboro last week.

Messrs. Harry Tanner and Walter Couch spent the week end at their respective homes.

Miss Lulu Knox and Miss Ruby Windsor have returned home after a few weeks visit in Toronto.

Messrs. Willie and Herbert Earnshaw have returned home from their harvesting trip to the West.

Mrs. Dave Coones has returned home after spending two weeks with friends in Belleville.

Deyncourt Wilson reports having seen eight wolves chasing a big buck a few miles south of Apsley.

NORTH MONAGHAN NEWS

NORTH MONAGHAN, Oct. 31.—Mr. Jos. Allen, of Frazerville, spent a few days last week with friends in North Monaghan.

The many friends of Master Raymond Johnston, North Monaghan, will be pleased to hear that he is recovering rapidly, after having an operation.

Mr. Joiner, Orpington Road, is building an addition to his dwelling.

Mr. John McCall, Cameron street reports that the building business is in full swing. He has just completed the erection of two farmhouses, one at Ennismore and one at Frazerville, and is at present working over time on the erection of three dwellings in Peterboro.

WOMAN SHOT BEAR

LINDSAY, Oct. 31.—When the Haliburton train pulled into here last Friday a bear which had fallen before the unerring aim of Mrs. Long, was carried from one of the coaches and placed on a truck. The animal had been shot at the portage between Big Hawk Lake and Little Hawk Lake near Minden, and was being taken to Peterboro, where the skin would be converted into a mat.

BAPTIST ORDINATION

At an ordination council in the Scotch Line Baptist Church recently when Mr. W. L. Hicks, was set apart for the Gospel ministry, Rev. R M. Frazier of Peterboro read a paper.

ELDERLY people, whose stomach muscles are relaxed from advancing age, find themselves chronically constipated and tormented by headaches. Strong physics react and make matters worse. Miss Jenny McDonald of Parkhill, Ont., writes that her mother found Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin ideal for constipation. It proved effective, ret acted mildly and gently and did not gripe. Increased doses were not necessary.

ESCAPED U. S. CONVICT SENTENCED FOR STEALING.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Two years in St. Vincent De Paul penitentiary was the sentence imposed by Magistrate Millar yesterday upon Alfred Mills, of Ottawa, who, on Saturday, was found guilty of stealing $25 from the person of David Lawrence.

When the accused was called for sentence, Magistrate Millar informed him that he was an escaped convict from the Ohio State Penitenaiary. Mills, through fingerprint records furnished by the R.C.M.P., was shown to be Earle Garvin, alias Eddie Devis, who, after being committed to an indefinite term in the penitentiary, escaped last September. It is likely that after he completes his two-year term in St. Vincent de Paul, he will be extradited and charged with jail breaking.

$1,000 000 IN LAST INSTALMENT OF INCOME TAX.

MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press).—As far as could be estimated by P. F. McCaffrey, inspector of taxation, yesterday, approximately a million dollars had been paid in during Saturday and Monday on the first instalment of income taxes for this district. During the whole of Saturday and yesterday, there was a rush of income taxpayers anxious to have their final instalments paid before the penalty clauses become operative.

WINNIPEG DEALERS CUT SUGAR AND MILK PRICES.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press). — Wholesalers here announced a reduction of fifty cents a hundred in the price of sugar, bringing the wholesale price down to $8.50 a hundred pounds.

Local creameries also announced a drop of one cent a quart in the price of milk, the new price being 12c a quart.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The Prince of Lopburi, brother of the King of Siam, reached here yesterday on board the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia. COMMONS GIVE GOVT. MANDATE TO PROCEED WITH PARLEY ON IRELAND AFTER WEAK DEBATE

LLOYD GEORGE WINS EASY VICTORY IN VOTE ON UNION ST MOTION OF CENSURE ON NEGOTIATIONS.

TO INCREASE POWER OF ULSTER GOVERNMENT

LONDON, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press).—The Government obtained its expected mandate from the House of Commons last night to proceed with the Irish negotiations. The Unionist motion, censuring the Government for initiating the Irish negotiations, was voted down 439 to 43.

The Prime Minister also achieved another of his oratorical victories before an expectant audience. So far as the movement of protest was designed to draw information as to the proceedings of the conference, it failed; the Prime Minister gave no information as to what has been decided, or is being discussed, regarding Mr. De Valera's claim to independence, and the rumored attempts to arrange concessions from Ulster for a United Ireland. These remain in the realm of speculation.

One piece of information the Prime Minister did give. It was that unless something happened within a few days, presumably in the conference, to solve the unsettled status of Ireland's two govements, steps would be taken to give the Ulster Parliament the powers necessary to make it a real government.

Mr. Lloyd George declared that the time to question the negotiations was when he first proposed them to the Sinn Fein by public correspondence, last July. Much of his speech was devoted to holding before the Commons the prospect of a renewal of guerilla warfare if the conference broke down.

He declared the first thing the Government would have to do would be to ask the House to strengthen the Crown forces, but pointed out the cost of renewed warfare and the reluctance of the country to incur greater taxation and ask more young men to risk their lives. He asserted the Government's resolve to refuse concessions which would weaken the Empire, but to explore all paths to an honorable peace, and emphasized the fact that any agreement must be ratified by Parliament.

The motion was proposed by Colonel John Gretton, Unionist, and seconded by Rupert S. Gynne. No conspicuous leaders spoke in its support. Those who most strongly supported the policy of the resolution laid much stress on their opposition to negotiating with men who have denied their allegiance to the Crown.

Arthur Henderson, in behalf of the Laborites, explained that that party favored the negotiations, although opposing what he termed the previous policy of repression and retaliation.

Mr. Asquith supported the motion, but deprecated the suggestion that renewal of fighting was the only alternative if the conference failed. This point of view finds adherents among a section of the Irish experts, who believe that a breakdown of the conference might be followed by a continuance of the truce, pending further efforts of diplomacy.

The comment of one veteran Parliamentarian was that Mr. Lloyd George's talk of further hostilities was not intended as a warning to the Sinn Fein, but to Parliament not to harrass those engaged in the negotiations.

The Prime Minister said that a very grave issue had been raised as to the proceedings conducted by the Government, and it was quite clear that there was a section in the House who had given every loyal support to the Government in the main, but who were full of mis-

Arrest Brothers For Embezzlement Of Over $2,000,000

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 1. — Canadian Press. — Paul and Peter O'Brien, brothers, and for thirty years employed in the D. Sullivan & Company Bank here, a private institution, were arrested yesterday on an indictment charging embezzlement. A total of 150 indictments were returned against each, and the charge the theft or embezzlement of more than two million dollars.

The alleged thefts and embezzlements were alleged to have occurred during a period of three years from early in 1918. Recently a suit by Sullivan against the O'Briens was settled by which they deeded property to Sullivan said to be worth $1,010,000.

The O'Briens left the employ of the bank several months ago.

HEAVY DAMAGE BY HURRICANE

SHIPPING LOSS ON NEWFOUNDLAND COAST HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS — FEAR FISHING CRAFT IN DANGER.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 1. Canadian Press. — According to information available here last night hundreds of thousands dollars damage has been done to shipping along the Newfoundland east coast by a hurricane which has been sweeping in from the Atlantic since last Friday, and still continues.

Numerous small fishing craft were sailing from the fishing beds off the Labrador Coast to their home ports when the tempest broke, and what toll, if any, has been taken of them is not known.

A southern shore message reports a small schooner with four men driven out to sea from Cape Hayden, near the graveyard of the Red Cross Liner Florizel, lost a few years ago with nearly 100 passengers and crew. The steamer Cabot was sent to the rescue of the distressed vessel but the mountainous seas which ran from here to Cape Spear drove the little vessel back. The revenue cutter, Daisy, at Placentia Bay, has been wired to attempt a rescue of the vessel's crew from the other side of Cape Race.

All the Newfoundland coastal steamers have reported themselves safely harbored.

A number of Newfoundland foreign-going craft are thought to have been near the coast when the storm broke but it is probable that they would put to sea and ride it out.

Stories coming in from the outports tell of enormous damage to shore property from flooding seas. Scores of wharves and buildings belonging to fishermen have been swept away. In one section the Reid Newfoundland Railway roadbed has been washed away for five miles. Motor cars are now being used to transfer the passengers across this and other gaps.

The telegraph lines are down in every direction and the incoming news is consequently fragmentary.

Very high seas continue to run through the narrows of St. John's harbor and shipping has been compelled to leaves the wharves and to anchor.

POPPY DAY.

The universal wearing of a poppy on Armistice Day as a tribute of respect to the memory of the men who gave up their lives in the Great War is a method of recognition of the historical significance of the occasion that should meet with general favour. It is gratifying that the Great War Veterans are providing an opportunity for every citizen of Peterborough on Saturday to carry out this tribute and at the same time to assist in relief work on behalf of the families of the men who fought and to provide employment for the war widows and orphans of France who manufacture the silken poppies the public should not regard poppies the ublic should not regard merely as tags, the wearing of which will protect them from solicitation. They should be kept and worn on Armistice Day, when they will be an effective symbol that the people of Canada have not forgotten the brave men whose death brought the peace that is being celebrated. Nobody should be without a poppy on Armistice Day.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

Canadian political leaders, one is forced to admit after reading some of the addresses given by them in the present campaign, have much to learn from the public men of Great Britain when it comes to making effective use of their ability as orators. All three chieftains in Canada are given not only to lengthy speeches, but also to constant repetition night after night of the same arguments, with the result that the majority of the electors conscious that they would find nothing new by perusing the reports in the newspapers, content themselves with briefly scanning the headlines. It is the usual custom for British leaders to confine their addresses to a reasonable length, rarely over an hour, and, in addition, to endeavour to discuss some new point at each meeting. Their speeches are always fresh, and when they are published in the papers people all over the country read the reports because they realize that they will be obtaining a new angle on the political issues. The British system has much to commend it and Canadian leaders could do worse than follow the tactics of their brother statesmen across the seas.

CANADA'S RAILWAYS.

Canadians of all shades of politics should rejoice in the announcement that the Canadian National Railways had net earnings of over half a million dollars in September, the second month in succession to show a balance. In September the gross earnings of the Intercolonial, the National Transcontinental, the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Railway were $11,500,126.24, while the working expenses were $10,995,951.37. In the same month last year the net earnings were $4,617,958.30 less than the splendid showing made this year. If the gain is not merely a flash in the pan—and everybody will sincerely hope that it is not—it gives ground for a more optimistic outlook in regard to Canada's railways than has hitherto been justified. The most cheerful advocate of Government ownership scarcely dared to hope a few months ago that the time was even remotely close when the National system would show an operating surplus for the year and leave something over with which to reduce fixed charges. Yet the September figures indicate that this happy condition may be arrived at much sooner than was anticipated, and that, with good management and economical methods, Canada's National Railways may cease to be a white elephant and prove an asset instead of a liability.

What is said to be the largest single shipment of Dutch herring—10,000 kegs—was sent recently to the West from Port Arthur.

GET ON THE LISTS.

The most important duty that just now faces the people of Canada who are entitled to vote at the coming Federal election is to make sure that their names are placed in the voters' lists and that their franchise is protected. It is a responsibility that they should assume themselves and not entrust to the political organizations, for in past campaigns it has been found that many mistakes were made and qualified voters discovered when it was too late to rectify the matter that their names had been omitted. The citizens of Peterborough who were listed in last February's by-election have no need to worry, for those lists are being used as the basis of the present one, and there will be in their case no necessity of registering. But the attention of those whose names were not on February's list is called to the fact that they must appear in person before a registrar this week and make application to have their names added. Reigstration commenced yesterday and will continue for the balance of the week with six local registrars at work. Those who are not on the list should lose no time in consulting the registrar in their own district. Every man or woman who is a British subject twenty-one years of age and has lived in Canada for a year and in the electoral district for two months is entitled to a vote, and each elector should look after the matter personally—it is too important to be entrusted to anybody else.

COLONIZING ENGLAND.

In view of the magnitude of the unemployment problem in the Old Country and of the opposition which is being manifested by the workers of Canada (who have an unemployment problem of a tidy size of their own to deal with) to the emigration schemes of the British Government, a development which is taking place in the rural districts of England is of great interest. Week after week sees the sacrifices by old-established families of their ancestral estates. These sometimes pass into new hands—the "new rich" and wealthy foreigners—and often they are broken up and sold in lots of various size. Big estates have become a drug on the market, the columns of the press being filled with advertisements of their disposal. The character of English life is rapidly changing; whether for good or ill, time alone will show.

No one can witness the passing of these fine old preserves without some feeling of regret. They represent a distinctive phase of English life, and under the old order of things fulfilled their purpose, no doubt, in maintaining elegance and dignity on the one hand, and affording a means of livelihood to the tenants on the other. It was all right so long as aristocracy and plebeians were regarded as belonging to two distinct species, and when the people were perfectly content "to submit themselves lowly and reverently to their betters." The change that came with universal education, however, made it inevitable that the system would sooner or later disappear. The war has completed the work, and England is now parceled out "like to a tenement or pelting farm."

What is to be done with these discarded estates? An interesting possibility is discussed in the current issue of Overseas by Ethel Adrian Ross. Why not colonize the Old Country? she asks. It is a new kind of "back-to-the-land" movement, suited to the new conditions which have arisen. Enormous country houses are going a-begging; why not organize a group of townspeople, buy these estates, convert them into a communal establishment and cultivate the grounds as farms? If farming can be made to pay abroad, argues the writer, it can be made to pay at home under proper conditions. Men and boys must do the heavy work on the land, as they would have to do if they emigrated, and the women folk must tackle the domestic tasks, including the dairy and poultry-farming.

The suggestion is that several families in the cities should be induced to combine together and emigrate "not across the seas, but just to the country." Capital would be pooled, and they would have their own industries, their own amusements and schools. "It should be just as easy to do this in England as in the colonies," the article proceeds, "easier, in fact; and an enterprise of this kind would not cut them off from their friends and from civilization. The work would be hard, perhaps, but with method and a fair division of labor, not too hard. There would be plenty of companionship and a far larger scope for physical and mental development if the schemes were run on the right lines." Hamilton Spectator.

Hallowe'en is not what it used to be. Getting a Ford on top of a garage roof is not as easy as placing a buggy on top of the stable was twenty years ago.

At one Hallowe'en party last night the old-fashioned custom of ducking for apples in a tub of flour was revived. Girls, however, were debarred from participating as most of them had so much flour on their faces that the effect of the ducking would not be noticeable.

It is said that the night staff at the police station is sleeping in this morning as a result of having to keep awake to watch for the Hallowe'en roisters last night.

As the St. Thomas Times-Journal points out that one nice thing about the apron that the average quick-lunch waiter wears is that it carries so many suggestions for the person who is undecided about what he is going to eat.

Some expressions are more appropriate than they seem on cursory examinations. For instance, calling the "mother tongue' is especially apt, because mother gives father so few chances to use it. But, on the other hand, speaking of the marriage ceremony as making two people one is too indicative of harmony, for often there is considerable difficulty between them as to who is the one.

givings with regard to this particular action, and he felt it was essential that the situation should be cleared as soon as possible, so that they might know what the view of the House really was.

He thought the movers of the resolution had put the case temperately and skilfully, but much they said was not germane to the resolution. It was true there had been breaches of trust. These had been investigated, and so far as they could be put right, they had been; guarantees had been received, which the other side was doing its best to carry out.

When evidence had been forthcoming that arms were being imported into Ireland, the Government received a distinct undertaking that none should be landed during the truce.

Dealing with the complaint of Captain Charles Craig, leader of the Ulster Unionists in the House, that necessary powers had not been conferred on the Government of North Ireland, the Prime Minister explained that the Government of Ireland Act provided that these powers should be conferred on the two parliaments simultaneously. If the southern parliament did not come into existence, he declared, something in the nature of a crown colony would be set up; then powers would be conferred simultaneously upon that and the Ulster Government.

The negotiations had intervened, and the Government thought it inadisable to set up a crown colony until it was known how the negotiations would end. He was sure this was paralyzing the activities of the Ulster Government, and the present situation was intolerable.

TELEGRAPH AND CABLE NEWS

Lapeer last Friday night, confessed yesterday, according to railroad detectives, that he loosened a rail and caused the accident. The officers quote Gates as saying he ascribed the act to a mental lapse due to a sunstroke suffered some time ago.

Three persons were injured in the wreck.

TO USE ELEVATOR TO COPE WITH CONGESTION

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—To cope with a threatened deadlock in the grain movement to the head of the lakes, a local company is putting the government elevator at South Transcona in shape to handle shipments from the west, it was learned to-day. The elevator has a capacity of approximately 1,000,000 bushels, and it will be opened very shortly if the situation demands, it was stated.

It was learned that week-end shipments of grain have intensified a congested condition at the lake terminals and railway companies and grain interests are to-day facing the necessity of an exchange on further shipments unless relief is obtained.

A. E. Warren, general manager Canadian National Railways, stated the railways were making every effort to keep the grain moving, though the situation was becoming serious. D. C. Coleman, vice-president in charge of western lines, Canadian Pacific Railways, said that every effort is being made to remedy the situation.

The railway companies are conferring with the members of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association with a view to dealing with the situation.

Local railway officials declared the railways are unwilling to declare an embargo on shipping grain from the west because they do not wish to do anything which might affect the price of grain adversely, this has also resulted in no undue publicity being given to the situation.

Fred W. Young, manager of the Lake Shippers' Association, said the situation this season was an unprecedented one for the time of year.

"Receipts at the elevators last week were more than 14,000,000 bushels of wheat and 1,000,000 bushels of oats," Mr. Young stated. "We have hopes of the situation clearing a bit, however, as there are several boats due at Fort William this week which are booked for grain shipments."

TWO GOLD COMPANIES INVADE SHINING TREE

SUDBURY, Nov. 1.— (Canadian Press.)—Coming on top of the news that Hollinger gold mines had purchased thirteen claims in the West Shining Tree camp and had sent two drills and a gang of thirty men to the camp is the announcement to-day that an English syndicate, who have had engineers on the ground for several weeks, have purchased outright the Kingston property, owned by J. J. and W. R. Knox, Orillia, and Sam Cochrane, Sudbury. Half cash payment was made.

There are three lots in the group of claims, situated half mile east of the White Rock. The sale to the English Syndicate is said to be the biggest yet made in connection with a West Shining Tree property, and amount exceeding $150,000 being involved. The sale of the claims is confirmed by mining recorder Campbell, Sudbury, but the transfer of the leases was made to private individuals acting on behalf of the purchasers. Heads of the English Syndicate are now in Toronto and plan coming north this week for a visit to the property, according to their representative here. There has been considerable work done at Shining Tree this summr and showings in same cases are even more sensational than those of Porcupine's early days, particularly in regard to extent of ore bodies. The Mond Nickel Co. has invaded the field also.

OPPOSITION TO VALUATION PLAN IS INCREASING.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press). — Opposition to the United States valuation plan in the Permanent Tariff Bill has been intensified by the attitude of a number of leading farmers' organizations. They have determined to fight the United States valuation on the ground it would tend to exclude imports and greatly increase prices of what farmers must buy.

This opposition will be reflected in hearings of agricultural interests on the tariff, which will begin to-day before the Senate Finance Commission.

PRESENT U. S. WITH SULGRAVE MEMENTOES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press). — Mementoes of the dedication last June of Sulgrave Manor, the ancestral home in England of Washington, were presented to President Harding and Secretary Hughes yesterday by a delegation representing the Sulgrave Institution.

The mementoes included photographs of the manor and of recently erected statues of Washington in London and Liverpool, and two huge scrap books, containing autographs of prominent members of the United States, England and Canadian branches of the Institution. The presentation was made by John A. Stewart, secretary of the American branch of the Institution, and a committee including the Earl and Countess of Sandwich, Bishop Darlington, of Harrisburg, Pa.; Dr. Albert Shaw, of New York; Col. Bentham Cameron, of Raleigh, N.C.; Mrs. William Ferris, of Toronto, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

FARM WAGES DISPUTED BY CANADIAN DELEGATES TO LABOR CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press).—According to a Reuter despatch from Geneva, S. R. Parsons, of Canada, speaking on Saturday at the International Labor Conference, objected to the retention of agricultural questions upon the agenda on the ground that any restrictions would tend to prevent the agricultural development of Canada. Legislation upon the subject could not be enforced, he said. Agriculture was a seasonal industry, and could no more be regulated than could rain, wind and snow. It would be unwise, he though, to adopt conventions which the various governments would not pass into legislation. Mr. Parsons declared that while English farm laborers earned thirty shillings weekly, Canadian farm laborers received $60 monthly in addition to board, and sometimes double that amount.

Delegate Tom Moore, of Canada, interposed: "You know that is untrue," to which Mr. Parsons retorted: "The figures are taken from the Dominion Government Gazette." He added that the condition of the Canadian farm laborer was extremely satisfactory.

Delegate Poulton of Great Britain protested against Mr. Parsons' figures, which he declared were inaccurate. Tom Moore, of Canada, also protested, and quoted wages paid to immigrants in Ontario as $20 monthly, and added that if standardization of wages was possible, standardization of hours was also possible. He declared that the standardization of hours was necessary to prevent unemployment of farm workers during the winter, when they drifted back to the cities.

BRITISH DELEGATES TO REACH NEW YORK TO-DAY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Lord Lee of Fareham, First Lord of the British Admiralty; Senator Carlo Schanzer, of Italy; Vittorio Rolandi Ricci, Italian Ambassador to the United States, and Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese Minister to Great Britain, will arrive to-day on the Olympic from Southampton, to attend the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments.

The Olympic is expected about noon. The visitors will be met at Quarantine by representatives of the State Department, the Governor of New York, and at the piers by members of the diplomatic corps.

BORDEN IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Robert Borden, who will represent Canada at the Washington conference on limitation of armaments and discussion of Pacific and Far Eastern problems, arrived yesterday. Sir Robert was met at the border and accompanied to New York by a representative of the United States State Department.

The Canadian delegate will leave for Washington Thursday night. While in New York he is staying at the Plaza Hotel.

10 PER CENT. WAGE CUT BY BRITISH EMPIRE STEEL.

SYDNEY, N. S., Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press).—A further wage reduction of 10 per cent. affecting all employees of the local steel plant and office, was announced by E. P. Merrill, general manager of the British Empire Steel Corporation here yesterday.

A wage cut of twenty per cent. was made at the local plant on January 17, and a second of 10 per cent. on June 5. Company officials state that the minimum wage for a twelve-hour day under the new schedule will be $2.94 to $3.12. Three hundred were laid off at the Sydney plant, following the completion of the last Government rail order, and approximately 2,600 men are working a three-day week.

MOPLAHS ATTACK MILITARY POLICE.

CALICUT, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Two companies of military police proceeding to a spot near Vayakad, where depredations had been reported, were attacked yesterday by Moplahs entrenched on the hillsides. The policemen replied, killing twenty-three of the tribesmen. One policeman was killed and eight of them were wounded, including Assistant Superintendent of Police Colebrook.

French Blue Tweed Has Collar and Cuffs of Linen and a Jaunty Black Tie

Lavender Striped in Gray Is Bound and Belted with White Kid.

By Mme. Frances

The Famous Creator of Fashions

FOR early fall days, when the keenness of the air proves a refreshing antidote to summer's languorous hours, I think there is nothing more admirable than a tweed dress. The smart tweed frock makes a well-liked addition to the wardrobe when summer clothes begin to take on a more or less bedraggled appearance. So when you lose taste for these filmy things nothing will give zest to your dressing more readily than selecting something new.

This season there are so many fascinating tweeds that for the moment they prove a change from the crepe and gabardine frocks. Of course, do not imagine that you must immediately banish all such from your clothes cupboards. Far from it. They still fill most valuable niches in the fashionable woman's apparelling, but it is the tweed frock that demands a welcome at this time.

When creating these frocks I still cling to the simple lines that I find are so much beloved by American women. Such lines do a great deal to accentuate the youthful figures of their wearers, while their very simplicity proves a foil to the beauty of their wearers.

Loose Belt Accentuates Straight Lines

Many are the colors that are shown among the new tweeds, and best of all some of them show novel treatments in stripes or bandings of contrasting or harmonizing colors. A model that I like very much is the frock of French blue tweed. This is lightly plaided in white, so that the blue appears still paler. A straight chemise frock, it boasts a white kid belt, for this, by the way, is a particularly well-liked trimming at this time. Above the belt the waist appears to blouse a trifle, but this, of course, may be regulated by the wearer. Personally, I like to have the belt buckled loosely about the figure, so that the straight lines of the dress are cleverly accentuated.

The collar is interesting. It is made of natural colored linen and is set high about the neck in the back. In the front, however, I have cut it sharply away, as I like to reveal the lovely line of the neck. A tie of black satin is loosely knotted in the front and the ends fall apart, revealing the opening of the dress.

A gray felt hat tops the frock and makes a most attractive finish to the costume. This hat has a soft crown, so it may be pulled well down over the head until the girl who wears it discovers the angle at which it is most becoming.

Of a very different but none the less interesting type, is the model that is cut from white tweed. The skirt is plain and really rather tight, for unless the skirt is elaborated with drapery it perforce falls very straightly about the figure. The slip-over shows a neckline that is decidedly graceful, while the fulness, drawn toward the sides where it takes on the guise of pleats, is restrained by belts. These are finished with ivory clasps.

Perhaps, however, the most striking characteristic of this dress is the sleeve. For some time I have hinted of the change in style, and in this model you see a decided difference. The sleeves are unusually long and tight-fitting. In fact, they extend well over the knuckles, for this is the newest tendency for fall.

They are in decided contrast to the other parts of the frock, for they are made of black satin. However, this unadorned would not possess the individuality that I admire, so I originated a delicate design which I have had embroidered in white wool. The smart tricorne that accompanies this dress is also made of black satin, for the combination of black and white is a most interesting one.

Should you, however, find that you cannot wear black, and there are some women who should not wear it even for mourning, then you might develop this dress in other color combinations. I always indorse the use of a thinner material when a very tight sleeve is used, as you can get far more graceful lines than when you work with heavier fabrics.

That contrasting effects are admired and that they are effective you will readily agree when you study the frock made of lavender striped in gray. This decorative tweed I have developed along lines that have a certain quaintness that is most appealing to the woman in quest of something distinctive.

The skirt follows my general rule in that it is quite tight and snug-fitting. The upper part, which suggests the bodice of long ago modernized to discard its extreme tightness, shows the lines of gray in horizontal position.

I have introduced on this model a trimming that is unusually chic, for about the front where the fastening is arranged I have set a bind of white kid. This is, of course, very soft and can readily be handled. It is at the same time rather a striking decoration, and its daintiness is offset by the close-set row of pearl buttons that give to the front a very decorative appearance.

Quill Returning to Its Own

Small turn-back cuffs finish the short sleeves. They, as well as the trim little collar, are made of white kid. The belt, too, is cut from the kid and is finished with flyaway ends that lend a little variety to the leather belt.

The color of the felt hat is charming. It is a blue violet whose rich tones remind one of the sweet-scented English violet that used to be a favorite boutonniere. A quill is stuck through the crown and makes a delightful trimming. Indeed, the quill is returning to its own as a modish adornment for the fall hat. Sometimes it appears in solitary state or it may be accompanied by another jauntily jabbed through the soft crown or introduced so that it raises the brim to meet it at a desired point.

Such quills are generally distinguished by great size, and in their original state have doubtless appeared in the plumage of some giant bird of prey. Of course, before they take their place in the realm of millinery accessories, they go through many a process that makes their origin decidedly obscure, for some are tinted in colors that no self-respecting bird would care to affect. But it is just the dash of color that is needed on the headgear of the fashionably attired woman.

If, however, you are one of the minority whose views may prevent their using such decorations, although this does not necessarily demand the sudden passing of these winged creatures, then you may favor a fringe-trimmed hat. This is also attractive, for there is practically no limit to the ways in which this decoration may be applied to the hat.

The model that accompanies the fourth frock pictured on this page is of orange felt. Its crown, apparently rather stiff and upstanding, may, however, yield to the cajolery of its wearer, be she skilful with her fingers. The brim, however, laps up softly against the crown and on each side a small cluster of fringe in the same delectable shade droops slightly.

This hat gives a gay touch to the frock, which is made of beige tweed. The little jumper is decidedly short. It is slashed in the front to permit the introduction of a belt of white patent leather, which disappears on the sides. The collar is white plaided with beige and the tie is of white satin.

The beige skirt is almost concealed by a white overskirt, which, like the collar, is striped vertically and horizontally with beige. This dress is particularly well adapted to the needs of the young woman. As a rule she revels in the short sleeve, while the freedom the jumper gives is admirable when she indulges in many of the outdoor activities with which she beguiles the hours of leisure that are hers.

Like some of the other frocks this also offers suggestion to the woman who makes her own clothes. Its lines are really very simple, and if you should be at all skilled in the cutting and finishing of dresses you will enjoy making one like this.

Of course, if you wish to copy this model, it is not imperative that you use the same color or even the same materials. It may be that other shades suit you better, and perhaps you already have something in the house that you desire to use for your first fall frock.

One word of counsel I would give that will eliminate any of the distressing hallmarks that are sometimes the bane of the home-made dress. When you have finished it, I would suggest that you give it a thorough pressing. If you find that this is more than you can manage, it will more than repay you if you go to the trouble of taking it to your tailor and having him press it.

THE FASHION FORECAST

Evening gowns and wraps for fall will be brilliant in color and fashioned from most gorgeous materials.

CHURCH SERVICES AT MARK STREET

The ongregations were large and the services deeply spiritual.

"The Dialogue by the Well", was the subject of the morning sermon and was founded on John IV: 6. "Jesus therefore, being weary with His journey, sat thus on the well: and it was about the sixth hour."

The Journey from Judea to Galilee

The influence of Jesus in Judea was bringing to baptism more disciples than that of John the Baptist. The ire and jealousy of the Pharisees was aroused against both the Master and this mighty wilderness preacher but especially was there anger kindled against Jesus himself. Under these circumstances, our Lord leaves Judea, and takes His journey toward Galilee, a distance perhaps of sixty miles. His great heart aches, and His mighty soul is burdened; for He knows that jealousy, hate, bigotry, malice and prejudice are plotting against His very life. But he will remove the cause of this strife, and depart into Galilee; where His toil will meet with less oppositon. How many bright, happy, jealous, efficient, and enthusiastic toilers in the vineyard of God, have withered and died under the galling curse of indifference and ingratitude on the part of those who should have cheered them on to success. Jesus felt the bitter sting of this ingratitude.

Jesus Athirst by Jacob's Well.

He must needs go through Samaria this dstrict was between Judea and Galilee. The direct and usual way was to pass through Samaria. Sometimes, however, the Jews took a circuitous route on the east side of the Jordan. Jesus does not go that way. It is high noon. He is near the city of Sychar. He is weary with his journey; so the Son sits down to rest by a well. His disciples have gone to buy food. What wonderful humanity there is in this picture. A travel-stained, weary, thirsty, lonely human Christ, seeking a cooling drink from a wayside well. His wants are simplest and most natural in the world, just a litte rest, and a drink of cold water; and He will ask that cup of water from one of the worst sinners in the city. Let us watch Him as He rests and wipes the prespiration from His calm and majestic brow.

A Drink of Water from a Foeman's Cup.

As Jesus sat there and rested, there came a woman of Samaria to draw water at noon. She is amazed as He asks her for a drink of water. He is a Jew, she a Samaritan; and the two peoples have no dealings, one with the other. Note the sublime wisdom and matchless tact of Jesus as He gently breaks through her opposition by asking a simple favor at her hand. The easiest way to reach some men for God is to allow them to help us in some way. Jesus said to the woman "Give me to drink." It was all so simple, so insignificant, so casual. And yet to what vast results did Christ bring out that ordinary circumstance. We have here the quick perception and holy use of an opportunity, by Him who could discern the inner workings of a human soul. Perhaps the greatest sin at our door is our neglect to utilize opportunities. You notice that Christ took the lower ground and placed himself as the one to receive. This is a glorious art, and the follower of Christ will do well to profit thereby. There is a beautiful lesson in the Lord of Life and Glory saying to a poor woman "Give me to Drink". Jesus wanted to open an avenue to that woman's heart, and He knew that the lower we stoop, and the more we put the other on the upper ground, the surer we are to have access to his soul

The Woman of Samaria Drinks from Christ's Cup.

Christ had aroused the Samaritan's interest, then a desire, and then He awoke her conscience. She gave Him a drop of water and He returns a river of grace; she gives him a cup of cool water from Jacob's well, and He bids her wash her guilty soul in the ocean of eternal love. But not until Christ has declared unto her the whole counsel of God. "Go call thy husband", said the greatest teacher and preacher, and soul-winner the world ever knew. We little know what our own prayers involve. Should we pray them if we did? Here, too, the veil is drawn in mercy before the future. You ask for the waters of joy and you have them; but the first drops of the waters of joy are the tears of repentance. That woman desired to drink of Christ's eternal springs of life; but she must first drink of the well of her own sin. Just as soon as Christ awakened bright expectations of the future in this woman's heart, He sent her quivering mind back into the past, and led her to retrace her sinful course. It is better for prospects to precede retrospects. Christ took the woman's sin out of all generalities and call thy husband.' "Go call thy wife,' they husband.' "Go call they wife." Let this injunction be once fastened upon the mind of the people, and the banner of moral purity will soon lift its snow-white folds to the breeze of heaven. A proper diagnosis of disease is more difficult for the physician than the writing of a prescription. Jesus diagnosed the case of the Samaritan woman, as none other could.

The Samaritan Woman Transformed

There was no hand that could deal with that womans case like the hand of Jesus, so faithfully and yet so tenderly. Your own or another hand may be rough, but that of Jesus will rest delicately on the lacerated wounds of the soul. His hand will be true, certain, exact. Immediately, under that wise and loving touch of Jesus hand the woman began to manifest the double sign of a changed heart. She abhorred herself and adored the Christ. At once there was open confession, and acknowledgement of guilt. "I have no husband," and at once Christ stood out before her in one of His greatest offices, "I perceive that Thou are a prophet." And now the path of the Samaritan will be much easier.

The Samaritan Finds Her Messiah in Jesus.

Christ came in one portion of His three-fold office to be a teacher and a speaker forth to us of the will of God. His teaching was earnest and continous, powerful and spiritual, popular, bold, and unflinching; and we are told that the common people heard him gladly. His teaching is also prophetic, supernatural and infinitely beyond the grasp of any human teacher, as well as beyond human character. Varied and profound beyond compare are the teachings of Jesus. Jesus at the well leads the Samaritan to her own scriptures. Yes, she found her Messiah by the well at high noon. Jacob's well is yonder still, 'tis a hundred feet deep but it is dry; and covered with a great stone. But the Christ, who thirsted then; thirsts still, but it is for man's love. Oh, Thou, Christ of the ages hold Thy cup to our parched Lps, this morning. Meet us by the well of life.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the 'fruity' taste of 'California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine 'California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babes and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY AT HOME OF R. B. M'GILL

ANNUAL SOCIAL OF I. X. L. CLASS OF GEORGE STREET CHURCH

The annual Hallowe'en party of the girls' I.X.L. class of George street Methodist church was held last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. McGill, 230 London street, and was a decidedly successful affair.

A very attractive scheme of Hallowe'en decorations in yellow and black was carried out, and with practically everyone in masquerade costume, the party presented a very complete Hallowe'en appearance. In music and games about fifty young people spent a very enjoyable evening. Dainty refreshments were served by the girls, and just after midnight the party was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

Mrs. G. A. Borland, Mrs. B. M. Frederick and Mrs. P. E. Rutherford were hostesses. Mrs. Holmes was a tireless Gypsy fortune teller, who was busy all evening. To Mrs. Frederick the class teacher, no little credit is due for the success of the annual event and the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. McGill in throwing their home open to the merry makers was much appreciated.

Those at the party were: Jennie Frederick, Margaret Storey, Miriam Rutherford, Margaret Holmes, Josephine McGill, Pauline Heard, Eva Elliot, Verna Strong, Leah Rowe, Elma Coon, May Haynes, Esther Thornton, V. Roseborough, Flossie Theobald, Florence Marshal, Annie Kemp, Constance Lewis; Homer Borland, Trevor Miller, Court Miller, Ed. Hall, Tom McCullough, Fred Ash, Bert Graham, Harold Thornton, Ronald Deyell, Harvey Winters, Alex. Elliot, Vernon Skitch, Clarence Pethick, Jack Thornton, John Yarnold, R. Johnston, Graham Russel.

RAILWAY EXCHANGE RATE FOR THE NEXT TWO WEEKS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press).—In accordance with a judgment and order of the Board of Railway Commissioners in January last, the rate of exchange in connection with shipments of freight between points in Canada and the United States from November 1 to 14, inclusive, will be eight and five-eights per cent., and the surcharge on the said traffic will be five per cent. The surcharge on international passenger traffic will be based on 8 per cent. exchange.

HYLAN GIVES WELCOME TO GERMAN MUSICIAN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Dr. Richard Strauss, German composer, was officially received at the City Hall yesterday by Mayor Hylan, who said he hoped that the musician's visit would bring about a still greater appreciation of good music in this country. Speaking in German, Dr. Strauss accepted his reception as a "representative of noble German music," and said that the "happy hour would have its welcome and grateful echoes in Fatherland."

Dr. Strauss was escorted to and from the reception by motorcycle police.

How About Your Stomach?

If Acid, Sour, Cassy and You Bloat or Feel Stuffed Up After Eating Try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

The stomach may be rather sluggish in digesting the fried eggs you eat for breakfast and the delicious croquette and salad for lunch. On top of this a soda confection is apt to add to the indigestion. It is a good rule to follow each meal with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet to avoid dyspeptic results due to eating and drinking. Should the stomach sour, with water-brash, biliousness and the peculiar gassiness due to indigestion these tablets bring relief because they supply the alkaline effect to the stomach and thus offset the acidity of such dyspeptic conditions.

It is well to know this and not deny yourself the pleasures of the good things to eat and drink through fear of indigestion. You will find Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets on sale in all drug stores at 60 cents a box.

LARGEST CANADIAN SHIP ON HER ENDURANCE RUN.

ROCKLAND, Maine, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press). — The Canadian Cruiser, the largest of sixty-three steel cargo steamships built by the Canadian Government at the plant of the Halifax Shipyard, Limited, for the merchant marine service, left port yesterday on her endurance run, at the completion of a standardization test, during which a speed of 12.8 knots was achieved. The requirement was 11 knots.

The run was to be finished before arrival at Halifax, for which port she has a cargo of coal from Sydney, N.S., fulfilling her maiden charter. Representatives of the Canadian Government were aboard.

The Canadian Cruiser has a displacement of 10,500 tons, and cost $2,073,000. She is said to be the largest ocean vessel ever built in Canada and the first to be standardized.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS;

YOUNG MOTHER: What you must guard against is chafing. While there is no particular objection to using powder, it is much better to use CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM before powdering the baby. A liberal application of CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM to the affected parts after each bath will go a great way to prevent chafing and irritation of the skin. You will also find it a wonderful preventative of chapped or red hands. CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM keeps the skin soft and smooth and reinforces the natural oils of the skin in performing their natural functions. You can buy CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM at any Druggist. 40c. a lareg bottle.

XTRA DEER ALLOWED FOR CAMP PURPOSES

ICENSE FEES UNCHANGED THIS ...ear LOCAL HUNTERS PREPARE

Applications for hunting licenses have been issued by C. G. Graham, manager of the Empress Hotel. Of course $25. While only one deer is allowed per person as before a new section of the Act allowing deer to be killed for the camp commissariat has been welcomed by hunters. The section in this regard reads in full:

"Two or more persons hunting together and holding licenses may kill more than one deer for each member of the party but this shall apply to deer taken under the authority of a special camp license, which entitles organized hunting parties to kill one deer to be eaten in camp, and such licenses may be issued to every six persons. The fees for these licenses are $3.

It is likely every party will take out these additional licenses, for in past years some member of the party had either to sacrifice his own animal or go out and shoot an extra one contrary to the law. And it is likely the Act was broken a good many times to supply the camp cook with meat, and most hunters who try to confirm with the Game Act will welcome the concession.

Looking Forward

Peterboro hunters are preparing for the hunt. Stalls citizens have been observed carrying guns and leading dogs on a leash, and the annual display of rifles, ammunition and camp supplies in the hardware store windows indicate the deer hunting season is at hand. Incidentally, shot guns and shells are being sold more readily than last year, because of the lifting of the closed season on ruffled grouse commonly known as partridge. A bag of these birds is allowed, and according to reports they are very plentiful.

REVISE CALENDAR AND FIX EASTER.

Vatican Calls Conference of Astronomers.

ROME, Nov. 1.—The Vatican has announced that a conference of astronomers will take place in Rome next April with the presidency of Cardinal Mercier with the object of reforming the calendar and fixing Easter.

The occurence this year of Easter Sunday on March 27, within five days of its earliest possible date, revived the proposal for a fixed Easter. No fewer than 16 Easters will happen in March between now and the close of this century—an average of one every five years—unless something is done to prevent the erratic wandering of the festival between March 22 and April 25.

Under the existing ecclesiastical rule is that Easter must be a Sunday and that the ecclesiastical full moon (which is not the same as the real moon) upon which it depends must occur on one of the seven days immediately preceding it. Thus to have Easter Sunday on its earliest date, March 22, the ecclesiastical moon must be full on March 21, which date must also be a Saturday. But so rarely are these conditions satisfied in the same year that it is over a century since Easter fell on March 22, and it will not again fall so early until the year 2285.

Of late years the inconvenience of a movable Easter has caused calendar reformers to propose reforms which would allow the celebration of the festival to be greatly restricted in its wanderings. One suggestion is that Easter Sunday should always be the third Sunday after the spring equinox, which would give it a range of eight days, between April 8 and April 15, according to the date and day of the week on which the equinox falls.

Other proposals aim at an Easter absolutely fixed to one date. That, of course, would necessitate a radical reform of the whole calendar, under which the same weekday should always fall on the same date.

Any such reform will probably have to be universal throughout Christendom, for the moon controlled Easter is common to all civilized countries. Enough, owing to the fact that the Greek Church still uses the Julian Calendar, there are always nearly two Easter days every year, one the Gregorian observed by Roman Catholics and Protestants and the other Julian, kept by those countries which are in communion with the Greek Church.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

ST. AIDAN CHURCH WAS CONSECRATED

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT YOUNG'S POINT.

YOUNGS POINT, Nov. 1. — Friday last was a red letter day in the ecclesiastical history of Young's Point, when the Church of St. Aidan was consecrated by the Lord Bishop of Toronto, and following the consecration service 17 candidates received the holy rite of Confirmation at His Lordship's hands.

The following clergy assisted at the services: Rev. W. Creswick, Rockdale Point, a former rector during whose incumbency the church was erected; the Rev. J. Hughes, rector of Coldwater, also a former rector on the parish; Rev. J. Bedford-Jones, rector of Lakefield, and Rev. A. G. Spence, of Auburn.

The church was comfortably filled by 3.30 the clergy and Churchwardens Wilson and McNaughton, met the Bishop at the church steps, when the petition for the consecration was read by the Rev. J. L. Hughes. The Churchwardens presented the deed to His Lordship when the procession had reached the chancel. The Rev. W. Creswick read the sentence of consecration, which was then signed by the Bishop and the impressive ceremony concluded with shortened Evensong.

This was immediately followed by the confirmation service during which the Bishop delivered an inspiring address in which he showed the similarity between the two services—the consecration of the building and the consecration of the individual.

Miss Hilda Wilson presided most efficiently at the organ.

After the service the clergy and the newly confirmed members, and their friends were entertained to a banquet in the basement provided by the ladies of the congregation.

The Bishop was accompanied by Mr. Allin, the Diocesan Finance Commissioner, who addressed a large gathering of the parishioners in the evening.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. W. R. Lyon, F. E. Warren, and A. Boyscott, from Marmora, and Dr. A. Jamieson, T. A. Kelly, and J. H. Paul from J. B. Hall Lodge, Millbrook.

Interment took place at St. John's Cemetery, Ida, Worshipful Brothers H. Lovelace and K. Hekster, of Marmora, having charge of the Masonic service at the grave.

Communion Service.

Next Sunday, 6th November, the regular quarterly Communion service will be observed in the Methodist Church in the morning. The Thanksgiving occasion receiving special recognition at the evening service. There will also be a period of intercession for the success of the Disarmament Conference, whose sessions open next week at Washington. Special music at both services.

Gave an Address.

Mr. Percy Stinson gave an excellent address on "Law Observance and Law Enforcement" in the Methodist Sunday School on Sunday afternoon in connection with the World's Temperance Sunday programme.

Anniversary Services.

Rev. Mr. Dunlop, of Bracebridge, will preach anniversary sermons in the Methodist Church, Cavan, on Sunday, 6th November, both morning and evening, the pastor and the officials of that church having decided to combine the Thanksgiving and anniversary occasion in one this year. There will be special music by the choir at both services.

The Ladies' Aid will have their annual fowl supper on Monday evening, 7th November, serving from 6 to 8 o'clock.

Had Charge of Service.

Rev. Canon Spencer, of Hamilton, father of Rev. C. R. Spencer of Millbrook, had charge of the service in St. Thomas' Church on Sunday morning in the absence of the Rector, Rev. Canon Allen, who was assisting His Lordship Bishop Sweeny, of Toronto, with the Confirmation service at St. John's Church, Ida. Both Canon Spencer and Bishop Sweeny left for Ottawa on Monday to attend a Jewish convention being held in that city, at which each was to deliver an address, the Bishop also having charge of a "Quiet Hour" on Tuesday afternoon. Canon Spencer's pastoral work is entirely among the Jews in the city of Hamilton, and he spoke of it in detail to the congregation on Sunday morning.

Personal Mention.

Miss Lazelle Brown, secretary of Albert College, Belleville, is spending a few days in town the guest of Mrs. J. L. Dyam.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Burnham and little daughter Dorothy, of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Burnham on Sunday.

Mrs. (Dr.) Greer, of Peterborough, is a guest at the home of Mrs. A. A. Smith.

Miss Money and Misses Muriel and Marjorie Smith motored to Uxbridge on Saturday, visiting friends there and returning on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Westmacott and Miss MacNamara are visiting friends in Toronto this week, and also attending to some business matters while in the city.

Rev. Leonard Smith, of the Perry- and Gore's Landing Parish, will preach at the Thanksgiving service in St. Thomas' Church next Sunday evening.

The many friends of Mr. E. Thornedyke, Jr., will be glad to learn that after more than seven weeks' serious illness in the hospital here, he was able to be removed to his home on Saturday.

In the published prize list for the ploughing match which took place on Friday, October 28th, on the farm of Mr. Jas. McGill, Centreville, the name of Mr. Robert McCamus was inadvertently omitted. Mr. McCamus received third prize for land in Class Two.

In the report of officers for Cavan township, whose election took place at Millbrook on October 26th, the registrar for polling sub-division No. 3 was wrongly named as Mr. James Reid. Mr. James Paul was appointed registrar for this sub-division.

NEW PAGE IN THE ANNALS OF LAKEFIELD

FIRE ALARM WANTED

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 1.—The municipal and Military Authorities of the village are preparing a splendid program for the ceremony in connection with the unveiling of the Memorial tablet in the Town Hall on November 11th. This promises to be a red letter day in the history of the village, and one which will fill a new page in its annals. Everyone should honor our brave dead by wearing a poppy, and without doubt there will be a large crowd at the hall.

With a religious service in St. John's Church in the morning, the unveiling ceremonies in the afternoon and the Veteran's dance in the evening, the day will be very full indeed.

Proper Fire Alarm

The Fire Brigade are giving a series of concerts beginning Monday night, with a view of purchasing a proper fire alarm for the village. For over thirty years the village has made use of the bell on the Anglican Church as a fire bell, but the time has surely come when as a town we can stand on our own feet and own a proper alarm.

For some years the old bell on the Dickison saw mill rang fire alarms, but not for more than twenty five years now.

Anniversary Services

The anniversary services of the Lakefield Baptist Church were held on Sunday both morning and evening. Rev. J. Rich, of Norwood was in charge of the services, Rev. T. L. White taking his duty in Norwood. Mrs. H. Young and Mrs. Joe Mann, Smith, contributed solos which were much appreciated. Good congregations attended.

French Exhibit Train

A number of local people took advantage to visit the French Exhibition train in Peterboro. It was well worth the time spent according to their opinion.

Hallowe'en Party

The A.Y.P.A. will hold their Hallowe'en party in the Sunday School on Friday evening, November 4th. All members are asked to be present.

BARE PAST LIFE OF MISS RAPPE

DOCTOR AND NURSES TESTIFY REGARDING GIRL IN ARBUCKLE CASE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.— (Canadian Press.)—Witnesses who knew Virginia Rappe, film actress, who died following a party given by Roscoe Arbuckle, in a San Francisco hotel, which resulted in his being held on a charge of manslaughter, testified yesterday before representatives of the State of California and the defence, relating their knowledge of the girl during her earlier life in San Francisco.

Dr. Maurice H. Rosenberg, the first witness, testified that in 1913, Miss Rappe visited his office for an examination. He told the investigators that Miss Rappe was suffering from chronic cystitis.

Mrs. Josephine Roth, who gave her occupation as midwife, also testified and her testimony was corroborated by Miss Virginia Warren, a nurse, who said she was Mrs. Roth's assistant.

The hearing then adjourned and Attorney C. H. Brennan, who was present in behalf of the defense, departed for New York, where further depositions will be taken.

ELECTION NEWS

MRS. HENDERSON TO RUN FOR LABOR IN MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Rose Henderson has announced herself as Labor candidate in St. Lawrence - St. George division of this city for the forthcoming federal elections.

The other candidates are: Hon. C. C. Ballantyne (Government) and H. M. Marler (Liberal).

Mrs. Henderson, who was formerly probation officer in the juvenile court here, is well-known in the city and throughout Canada as associated with Labor movements. At the time of the Winnipeg general strike she took a prominent part speaking on behalf of the strikers in that and other cities.

THREE CONSERVATIVES, TWO LIBERALS IN YUKON

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 1. — (By Canadian Press.)—The political history of Yukon is comparatively brief. Following the discovery of gold in the territory in the late 90's and the subsequent development of the natural wealth of that far northern part of the Dominion, the district was given parliamentary representation, and the first election was held in 1902 when J. H. Ross, Liberal was elected. Two years later, in 1904, Dr. Alfred Thompson, Conservative, was elected. Then in 1908 F. T. Congdon, K.C., secured the seat. In 1911 Dr. Thompson was again elected and he was endorsed once more at the general election in 1917. Thus in the fifteen years, 1902 to 1917, Yukon has on five separate occasions returned three Conservative and two Liberal members of Parliament.

MEIGHEN MEETING INCLUDES OPPOSITION

HAMILTON, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Facing an audience of six thousand people that contained several persons inclined to disagree with him, Premier Meighen was forced to declare that there are some people who would not believe though one rose from the dead, and whose interruptions show how their minds work or refuse to work.

NORWOOD PERSONALS

Miss Lillie Burkell was home from Cobourg on Sunday.

Miss Jean Fraser of Outlook, Sask, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Beigheim.

Mr. H. G. Buck has reuted his machine shop to two men from Toronto.

Miss Mary Whittington, of Dorre, spent the week end at the home of Mrs. J.S. Calder.

PROBABILITIES.
Showery and becoming cooler.

Got No Sleep
But now the neuritis has gone, the pains have ceased, the nervous system is restored and the winter is over. But later boys a grateful tribute to the medicine which made him well.
Mr. John Woodward, P.T.O., Lucan, Ont., writes:
"It gives me much pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's medicines, especially the Nerve Food. I was a sufferer from pains for several years, and tried all kinds of remedies, yet never seemed to get any better. At last my nerves and whole system seemed to give way, though not being able to get any rest or sleep at night for pain, which nearly used to take me in all parts of the limbs and feet. My nerves would twitch till my whole body would seem to jerk right up as I lay in bed. Almost at the point of despair, I decided I would get Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which I did, and after taking twenty boxes I believe myself almost normal again. I also keep a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills on hand and for the past year I seem to enjoy my usual health."
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

HASTINGS NEWS

HASTINGS, Nov. 1.—Dr. Manning, of Toronto, will preach in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning next in the interest of missions.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. E. Pettigrew, a son.

Mr. Julian Carter, of Havelock, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. S. Carter.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid. Hunter, of Lakefield, and Mrs. Geo. Johnson, of Peterborough, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Hewer, Front Street.

The children of the Mission Band held a Hallowe'en party on Saturday afternoon. Dressed in costume they paraded through the village and were treated to lunch at the church. Prizes for the best dressed girl and boy were awarded Sunday with friends in town.

Born—On Saturday, to Mr. and Mrs. W. Sharpe, a son.

Mr. H. Hand and Miss Rose spent Sunday with friends at Wooler.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Thompson and children, of Keene, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hess.

There is little improvement in the condition of Mrs. C. E. Jones, who is still in a critical condition.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE IN DURHAM SCORED THE LEADERS OF GOVERNMENT AND PROGRESSIVES —R. R. HALL ASSISTED CANDIDATE.

Having regard to the unfavorable condition of the weather, Mr. W. T. R. Preston, Liberal candidate for Durham, held a very largely attended meeting at Bethany last night.

The audience seemed to approach the public questions under discussion with an open mind and each one seemed to ask himself or herself the question, "Should the destinies of this country be placed in the hands of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Hon. Mackenzie King or the Hon. T. A. Crerar?"

Mr. R. R. Hall, ex-M.P. for West Peterborough, stated that the people of Canada had not had an opportunity of expressing an opinion upon the local issues for upwards of ten years.

The people of Canada in 1911 were in a prosperous state, practically free of debt, and when Sir Wilfred Laurier went to the country as Prime Minister in 1911 to obtain authority to negotiate for wider markets for the sale of farm products, products of the mines and of forests and of fisheries, the Canadian electorate gave the answer, "Let well enough alone, we are prosperous, why do any better."

Today the people of Canada are burdened with a debt of $2,500,000,000, and are confronted with problems that were little dreamed of ten years ago, and are faced with tax bills that require the exercise of the utmost earnestness—and intelligence.

An autocratic Government, said Mr. Hall, without consulting the people, have taken over the operation of 22,000 miles of railways that last year involved a loss of not less than $70,000,000 to the people of Canada. This loss means a real loss so far as the tax-payers are concerned—it is just the same as if the $70,000,000 that was lost had been thrown into Lake Ontario.

Both to Blame.

Mr. Meighen and Mr. Crerar were the members of the Government that placed the management of this railway in the hands of a small body of bankers who are not responsible to Parliament and who are not called upon to furnish any details of their expenditures to the people of Canada.

The Hon. Mr. King brought forward a resolution at the last session of Parliament requiring the managers of the Government railways to produce full returns of all the money they expended upon locomotives, passenger cars, box cars, flat cars, betterments of all kinds and supplies of all kinds.

But with what result. Both the Hon. Arthur Meighen as leader of the so-called National Liberal and Conservative Party and the Hon. T. A. Crerar as leader of the Farmer Party in Canada voted down this resolution, and in effect declared that the Canadian electorate should pay this enormous loss and are not intelligent enough to offer any suggestions as to how this huge and enormous loss may be overcome.

If the people of Canada are going to successfully manage this road, said Mr. Hall, there must be the fullest disclosure, and there must be the fullest co-operation among all classes.

Mr. Preston's Qualifications.

Mr. Preston, the Liberal candidate, is especially equipped to be a member of the House of Commons. The knowledge that he acquired during his residence in England and in other countries would be most valuable in the House of Commons in determining the best immigration policy to be adopted, and in determining the best means to be adopted in transporting to the markets of the world the products of our farms, mines, forests, and fisheries.

Mr. W. T. R. Preston spoke at length upon the policy that could be adopted by the Dominion Government to turn the exodus of 810,000 people that has been emigrating to the United States to return in increasing numbers to Canada, to develop its great natural resources. He showed how the inflow of foreign capital could be induced to invest in Canadian enterprises by eliminating our income tax, and by every class in Canada, including farmers, manufacturers, bankers, and working men, unitedly co-operating with each other to the general advantage and prosperity of Canada.

Voice of the People

Dear Sir: On Monday morning I was one of a favored few who after witnessing a special performance of "Over the Hill" at the Allen Theatre, was given a card and requested to write thereon my comment of the picture presented. I did not do so—preferring to express myself more at length through the columns of your excellent paper. Knowing the "Mimic World" from both sides of the curtain I have no hesitancy in saying that few stronger powers exist for good or evil than the moving picture, and it is a wise parent who sees to it that the child sees only the best; in fact it is up to the parent to see that in time there will only be "the best." In "Over the Hills" there is everything to please the most fastidious. Lessons are taught that will never be forgotten; impressions made that will never be effaced, and every child should see it. The majority of the children of to-day are wiser (in their own conceit) than the children of the last century and any influence that can be brought to bear against the cruel selfishness that brooks no parental interference with their jazz pleasures and excitement, should be exercised. "Over the Hills' is one of them. It teaches the horrors of hypocrisy; the baseness of ingratitude, the love of home and parent; in fact it brings home to the child in its fullest sense the true beauty and magnitude of the Fourth Commandment; not a word or gesture belittling the good lessons they learn elsewhere. In short it is a picture calculated to offset the evil tendencies of the present day, and at the same time give wholesome pleasure and food for thought to all those who see it.

Thanking you, I remain, respectfully, Carrie Hodgson.

With reference to the production of "Over the Hill," the local Women's Council, several of whose representatives were present at the private screening on Monday morning were unanimous in their endorsation of this splendid picture. They regard it as a production that should be witnessed by every man and woman, and particularly every growing child, in the city, and consider it an excellent example of the power of the screen towards correcting many evils in national life.

ELECTION NEWS

CRERAR ASSAILS PROTECTIVE PRINCIPLE

NEW GLASGOW, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press.) —"If protection means employment for labor, how is it we have 150,000 to 175,000 unemployed in Canada to-day?" asked Hon. Mr. Crerar in addressing the electors of Pictou County last night. He gave some applications of his own economic views to local industries of coal, mining and steel and repeated that the Progressives had no intention of sweeping away the tariff, overnight, but he hoped to see the day when the principles of protection would be abandoned in Canada's fiscal policy.

COUIN MOOTS TARIFF COMMISSION OF EXPERTS.

MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Speaking in the Laurier-Outremont Division last night, Sir Lomer Gouin declared that he favored a tariff commission composed of experts to aid legislators in their task of tariff revision with a view to greater stability and prosperity of the country. He charged that the Government had retarded the revision of the tariff, not in the interests of the people but in the interests of the Conservatives.

MRS. MEIGHEN HERE WITH HER HUSBAND

TORONTO, Nov. 1.—(Canadian Press.) —Premier Meighen paid another visit to Toronto this morning and left at noon. He was met at the station by Mrs. Meighen, who will accompany him on the remainder of his Ontario tour. The Premier goes to Oshawa and Picton to-day and Campbellford and Peterborough to-morrow. Thursday he will be in Ottawa and Friday in Montreal, Saturday at Lachute, Quebec, going from there to Ottawa for Sunday. His Quebec itinerary includes meeting at Shawinigan Falls, Farnham, Sherbrooke and other points. He will probably leave for the west at the end of next week.

HON. A. B. HUDSON TO RUN IN WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1. — Definite announcement was made to-day at one o'clock that Hon. A. B. Hudson, former Attorney-General of Manitoba, and regarded by many as the outstanding Liberal of Western Canada, would be a candidate for election in South Winnipeg. He will contest the seat as a Progressive party candidate. His opponent will be George N. Jackson, Grand Master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Manitoba, who will be the Government candidate.

HEART WOULD BEAT LIKE A TRIP HAMMER

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it is going to burst.

You have weak and dizzy spells, sinking sensations, are nervous irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk up stairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

We know of no remedy that will do so much to make the heart regain strength and vigor, regulate its beat and restore it to a healthy and normal condition as will

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. Chadwick, Delhi, Ont., writes, "I had palpitation of the heart, and the least exercise such as going upstairs or up a hill, my heart would beat like a trip hammer and at times I was dizzy-headed and had a sinking sensation as if my time were near.

A friend suggested I try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I procured three boxes and by the time the first one was used I began to improve. In all I took six boxes, and now, although in my 66th year I feel like a young girl; no dizziness or heart-thumping and can walk miles without fatigue. At time of sickness I weighed 120 pounds, now I weigh 150."

Seats will be reserved for ladies and their escorts till 8 o'clock at the Armouries on Wednesday evening.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Oils again dominated the Stock Market at the opening of today's trading, repeating their conflicting movements of the previous session. Mexican Petroleum was unchanged at the outset, but after gaining a fraction, re-acted a point under yesterday's closing price. Assorted Oil, one of the strongest features of the domestic group in the recent active market, fell 3½ points. General Asphalt and Royal Dutch strengthened at gains of 1 and 1 5-8 points respectively. Rails and Steels were irregular. American Ice, Davison Chemical and People's Gas featured the firm to strong specialties.

The market steadied on short covering in the first hour. With the exception of Louisville and Nashville, which was heavy, Rails also strengthened. Colorado Southern leading at a gain of 4 3-8 points. Equipments, Gas shares and Sugars improved, but Food and Tobacco specialties were re-actionary. Wilson and Company Preferred adding five points to yesterday's sharp decline.

Call money was firm at 5½ per cent. in connection with heavy transfer of funds required to meet November payments.

Call money relaxed to five per cent. at midday, but another drive against Mexican Petroleum, which cancelled all its gain, caused heaviness in almost every quarter. The Motor group became especially re-actionary, with Independent Steels, Tobaccos, Chemicals and Specialties such as Sears Roebuck and Famous Players.

WITH THE LOCAL ROTARIANS

During luncheon yesterday the Rotary Club fell briskly to work to clear up items of business that had accumulated since last meeting. Rotarian M. A. Morrison, having been just taken into Rotary, was advised to prove his faith by his works and was at once named Chairman of the Los Angeles Convention Committee for this city. The annual convention will be held in the city, as above, during June next, and on the Chairman devolves all the arrangements for attendance, communications relative to the event and other details. All in worthy hands.

In like manner, the care of attendance and attention to the necessary propaganda, getting an attendance and handling details of the 4th district conference, to come off at Rochester, New York, was placed with Rotarian Ross Dobbin. This conference takes in the State of New York and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec in Canada. It might develop that in the coming year that the Canadian Eastern Provinces will be formed up into a district, having been affiliated for the last two years.

Thanksgiving Day, coming on Monday next, the weekly meeting was shoved along to happen on Wednesday, Nov. 9th. Members will please take notice. Rotarian Read Wren was named as official correspondent to the "Rotarian" magazine, the official publication, at Chicago.

The club, having, through Rotarian Kenner, taken under its wing a local case of a young man who had personal disabilities that would place him at a disadvantage in the open business or professional field, and the young man desiring a college training, which had been made open for him, Rotarian Kenner read to the meeting the reply from the Toronto University authorities, to whom he had appealed for suggestion as to the best course to have the young man take up in view of his disability. The reply indicated that several of the professors had taken deep interest, had canvassed the possibilities and have reached a wise decision as to the lines along which the man should be educated. The letter was appreciated, as an evidence of the sympathetic interest taken in the matter and, further, as showing that there was a field of thoughtful suggestion available to others that was not taken advantage of.

Changes in By-laws.

Several changes in the by-laws had been suggested as the result of communication with the directing Rotary body. These changes included a summing up of attendance for each member during each three months. The extension of Rotary to include the county of Peterborough along with the city, thus affording opportunity for excellent men in the neighbouring villages to come into the club and work. Full information will be sent to those likely to be enthused.

New rules to apply to the election of officers were announced, to come into use at the annual meeting, April next. In order to raise funds to further the boys' camp, it is proposed to hold, during the winter, a series of dances, etc., and a committee was named to at once take the matter up and bring in a report. So soon as received this will be acted on.

Rotarian Claude Rogers, in charge of the Boys' Camp Committee, said that arrangements were being made to make use of one of the buildings at the Exhibition Grounds for a rink, the building and ice to be open to the use of children on Saturday afternoons, free of expense. On all evenings a fee would be charged, the avails to go to the boys' camp fund.

He also announced that the Exhibition grounds had been secured for a field day on July 1st next, at which a day would be put on that would supply attraction enough to keep all the people in the city. They looked forward to a big success.

This roused up Rotarian Dr. A. W. McPherson, who disclosed plans now coming to a head on the part of the Amateur Athletic Association. It is in hand to secure a qualified physical director, who will take charge of all sports in the city, cooperate with all the sporting organizations, to think out and devise betterments for the boys of the city, to direct their activities in proper channels, to look after physical training and give his whole time to the effort to better sports and those engaged in them. It was understood that the whole scheme could be put on a sound financial basis, and the cooperation of Rotary was asked to make a success.

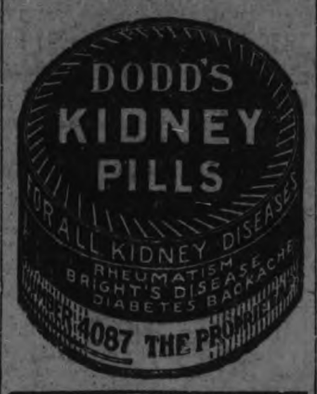
Visitor Coming

Chairman of District, Rotarian Hart Seely will pay a visit to the local Club on December 1st next and enthuse the members. It is hoped by that date the club, now growing in numbers, quite up to all the classifications provide for.

Rotarian Rev. Harold Young called attention to the formation in this city of a Kiwanis Club, one more good effort in a good cause. He approved of such organizations to bring men together to cover the gap between the local and municipal remedial efforts and the churches in doing good to those who might not be as well situated as many others. He suggested that Rotary should welcome the new club, and felicitate it on its coming into the world of effort. On this basis the Club heartily approved that Rotarian Secretary McElderry should convey, by letter to the Kiwanis, the congratulations of Rotary.

Rotarian Wallace Bunton was named to represent Rotary on the governing body of the Children's Aid Society, that institution having suggested, through Dr. King, that a representative would be welcome. Already in harness, Rotarian Bunton agreed to act for Rotary.

Rotarian John Crane, going from the city for a time to recuperate expressions of regret and words of heartiness and sympthy were spoken and such to be conveyed to Rotarian Crane, with the hope for his speedy return in a much benefitted condition.



BRITISH COLUMBIA CONSERVATIVE IN FORMER ELECTIONS.

VANCOUVER, B. C., November 1. Canadian Press.—British Columbia representation in the House of Commons, dates back to 1872, the first general election following the entrance of the province into Confederation being held in that year. During the fourth session of the first parliament of Canada British Columbia was given six members, the province having entered Confederation July 20, 1871. The representation remained at six for seven parliaments. In the parliament elected in 1900 the representation was increased by one and continued at seven until 1914. In that year a redistribution bill was passed, increasing the province's representation to 13 members, and at this number it stands to-day.

For the first six parliaments British Columbias' members were Conservatives and not until the election in 1896 did the Liberals send a representative to Ottawa. In this year they elected four members to the Conservatives' two. The province continued to endorse Liberal candidates in the three succeeding parliaments but the Liberals failed to elect a member in 1911 or in 1917.

	Cons.	Liberals
1900	2	3
1904	0	7

In the 45 years dating from 1872 to the last general election in 1917 British Columbia has been represented at Ottawa by 65 Conservatives and 16 Liberals. Britsh Columbia has contributed its quota to the 1911 of men who in greater or less degree have made their mark in Parliament, although its representation has been small. In 1872 Sir Francis Hincks was elected in Victoria. The Hon. Edgar Dewdney, for many years a Minister of the Crown, represented Yale. Lt.-Col. E. G. Prior, Minister of Militia in 1896, was the member for Victoria. Hon. William Templeman, a Cabinet Minister, was elected in Victoria in 1896 and at a by-election in 1909 he was returned for Comox-Alberni.

The majority of skin and scalp troubles might be prevented by using Cuticura Soap exclusively for all toilet purposes. On the slightest sign of redness, roughness, pimples or dandruff, apply a little Cuticura Ointment. Do not fail to include the exquisitely scented Cuticura Talcum in your toilet preparations.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold throughout the Dominion. Canadian Depot: Lymans, Limited, 344 St. Paul St., W., Montreal. Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Canada's present Minister of Agriculture, also represented Victoria until the dissolution of parliament a few weeks ago. Hon. Martin Burrell, Yale, also obtained Cabinet rank.

British Columbia's relations with the central government at Ottawa have been happy enough, although there have been differences of opinion at various times over financial matters and the fisheries. While there has been considerable political turmoil in the Province this has been confined almost entirely to the provincial arena. In the early political history of the province there was considerable bitterness displayed over the delay in the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the chief condition on which the Province entered confederation.

IN THE POLITICAL LIMELIGHT

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—(By Canadian Press)—Ernest Lapointe, B.A.L.L.D., K.C., member of the House of Commons for Quebec East, the seat made historic by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, is regarded by many statesman especially as regards the leadership of French Canadian representatives in the House. Since his entry into parliamentry life in 1904 he has won for himself a strong position in the Liberal ranks as an orator and clever politician.

Mr. Lapointe first went to the Dominion House of Commons in 1904 when he was elected by acclamation in the riding of Kamouraska, succeeding H. G. Carrol, solicitor general, who was appointed to the bench. He was re-elected at the general elections of 1904, 1908, 1911, and 1917. In 1919 Mr. Lapointe resigned his seat to contest the riding of East Quebec, made vacant by the death of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and was elected by a majority of 3,939 over F. X. Galibois in the bye election of October 27 of that year. He will again contest Quebec East in the forthcoming federal elections and is regarded as one of the sure victors by the Liberal party.

Mr. Lapointe is a Roman Catholic in religion and a barrister by profession. He was educated at Rimouski College and Laval University. He is town attorney for Fraserville, Quebec and crown prosecutor for the district of Kamouraska. Mr. Lapointe was created a King's counsel by the Quebec government in July 1908.

Mr. Lapointe is known in the House as one of the best orators of the Liberal party, and his speeches, both in English and French, are usually the signal for a full house and crowded galleries. Mr. Lapointe made several forceful speeches last session especially those dealing with the status of the National Catholic Union. The feeling is freely expressed by members of all parties that he will go far in parliamentry life.

NO DESTITUTION IN NORTH LANDS.

R.C.M.P. Inspector Returns from Four Months' Investigation.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Inspector J. W. Phillips, of the R.C.M.P. has returned to Ottawa from a four months' trip of inspection to points along the coast of James Bay. Accompanying him were Cpl. E. M. Rimmer, R.C.M.P., and Dr. R. W. Kinsman, Toronto, of the Indian Department, and the expedition was made in order to investigate the condition of the inhabitants, mostly Indians and Eskimos. It was feared that there was a certain amount of destitution, but Inspector Phillips reports things better than had been expected. Throughout the summer there has been an abundance of fish, white whales and seals along the coast, but it is very difficult to induce the Indians to exert themselves. What is wanted, says the Inspector, is some means of getting them to take more interest in life generally. At some points they have gained for themselves the name of "coasters" as they will remain near the coast in spite of any inducement made to them to go inland where fur bearing animals are plentiful. They seem to prefer to remain near trading stations, looking for doles.

No destitution was found among the 450 Cree Indians at Moose Factory. Many of them, says Inspector Phillips are well off as Indians go, having bank account gardens of their own and the opportunity of work with the trading companies when they want it. Whites and Indians alike had been making home-brew or native beer, but the practice is becoming a thing of the past. Both the Hudson Bay Co. and the Revillon Freres Fur Trading Co. have given orders that if any of their employees are discovered making home-brew, they are to be immediately discharged. It was found that there was no sale of the concoction. Inspector Phillips called a meeting of the tribe, at which everyone attended, and explained the law concerning this practice, making it clear that the penalties would be strictly enforced.

At Rupert House, on the east side of James Bay, both the trading companies have posts. The natives are "coasters." They never go inland, but stay about the coast, fishing and hunting foxes. When the foxes are plentiful the natives are self-supporting, but during most years, when not actually starving they are hard up and dependent upon advances made by the trading companies, together with rations issued by the government. Where efforts have been made to induce the Indians to go into the interior where hunting is profitable, they have always been found to return to the post without fur, having merely idled away the time. At Rupert House one Indian was charged before the Inspector with being drunk. He was fined $20, and promptly dismissed by his employers, the H. B. Co.

At East Main, further north, there are 260 natives almost all "coasters." It was here that the H. B. Co. at one time maintained a farm with 80 cattle, 100 sheep and a number of hogs, supplying all their posts in James Bay with meat and butter. The Inspector reports the land as very fertile ,and it would make an ideal spot, he says, for an experimental farm, incidentally providing work for the natives. Something, he says, will eventually have to be done for them. Not only must they be given work, but they must be taught to be industrious and to take more interest in life.

Fort George was also visited. Here there are trading posts and a Church of England mission, but there has been no permanent mission for the past five year. The natives are healthy and there is no destitution except among the older ones.

At White River post, says the report, there is little or no vegetation. The natives are hard up because they are too lazy to fish, although white whales have been specially abundant lately. The Eskimos here are healthy, good natured and hard-working, and given a chance, they make good.

The Indians in this district, says the report, will claim they are starving when they are only out of tobacco, and have plenty of meat, fish and other goods. The use of destitute rations has evidently spoiled them. The Indians at this post are the only ones on James Bay not in receipt of treaty money, and they made a request that Inspector Phillips request the government to grant this.

Inspector Phillips is not of the opinion that to import reindeer into this section would solve the situation. Owing to lack of food, the animals would have to be herded inland, and the Indians refuse to leave the coast. If Laplanders were employed to herd them, the difficulty would be the same because there is no wood in the country and it would be impossible to transport oil, and the Laplanders will not go where tehre is no oil and fuel.

The natives on the east side of James Bay are using clothing made from blankets with calico over them to keep the snow off and the wind out. This is the common clothing where there is no cariboo, and the Inspector holsd it to be an excellent substitute; it can be washed, and therefore it is more sanitary. The Inspector does not mention how often the Indians have a washing day.

The east coast of James Bay, Inspector Phillips says, teems with fish as well as white whales and seals, which have always been the main food of the Eskimo.

Time was too short to admit of the trip being extended to Belcher Island. Reports were received, however, stating that conditions were normal, following a very satisfactory winter.

At all points visited during the expedition, Dr. Kinsman examined the natives, and where necessary distributed medicine. Inspector Phillips reports the need of a hospital in James Bay.

VEGETABLE CROPS IN ENGLAND FAILURE.

Hottest and Driest Summer in Years—Hops Abundant.

In a letter received by Mr. Chas. Kitney of this city from Sittingbourne, Kent County, England, his correspondent gives some interesting information on the weather and crops in the Old Land as follows:

The weather has been very hot, with no rain for months, and on October 6th the mercury registered 84 degrees. Apples are a splendid crop, but dealers will not attempt to store them on account of the heat. There are good crops of grain but potatoes are poor and developing second growth, while the vegetable harvest generally has proven a failure. Cabbages have been selling at one shilling (24 cents) each, and are tasteless. Hops are abundant and a second crop of luscious strawberries is the experience of most growers.

The oldest inhabitants around here Mr. Kitney's correspondent concludes, has never known such a summer and extended drought. Then to make matters worse, unemployment is serious and shows no signs of improvement.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back Its Color and Lustre With Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

SWEDEN MAKES RECORD FOR LOWEST MORTALITY

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 1.—The population of Sweden numbered 5,903,762 persons in January this year, according to official figures just now published. The increase during 1920 was 56,725.

This increase is the highest recorded in Sweden in the last 100 years, both absolutely and relatively.

The mortality was 13.29 pro thousand which is the lowest hitherto recorded in Sweden and Swedish statisticians proudly report this figure as a world's record. They affirm that Sweden is the healthiest place on earth.

Tender Gums —A Warning

Beware of gum tenderness that warns of Pyorrhea. Four out of five people over forty have Pyorrhea—many under forty, also. Loosening teeth indicate Pyorrhea. Bleeding gums, too. Remember—these inflamed, bleeding gums act as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting the joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Forhan's positively prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. As it hardens the gums the teeth become firmer.

Brush your teeth with Forhan's. It cleans the teeth scientifically—keeps them white and clean.

If gum shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment. 35c and 60c tubes in Canada and U. S. If your druggist cannot supply you, send price to us direct and we will mail tube postpaid.

The American Love Colors

Put a woman of to-day into a sixteenth-century costume and see how, almost subconsciously, she begins to take on the character of that period. Dress her in squat lines, in dropping decorations, and note how insidiously bleak clothes depress the mind. That there is a definite psychology in dress was long ago established by the actor whose conception of his role depended exclusively on the costume he wore. Singers like Sembrich and Caruso have called attention to the fact that, often indifferent before a performance, the minute they get into costume, a complete revolution is effected in their ability to sing and in the pure joy of artistic enterprise.

While it is thus evident that dress influences our thoughts, it is equally true to say that our thoughts influence dress. It is not an exaggeration to say that feeling right and dressing right are interchangeable. From which we may infer that the lines of personality precede the lines of dress. As I have pointed out in previous articles, the line of the natural figure must be the criterion of any design which hopes to interpret your individuality. Study, then, the line you habitually fall into, the pose of the body, the line you take in walking and the draped lines when you are seated. You will be surprised and interested in the results of such self-study. And in proportion as you dress in right lines will your clothes be significant, or merely conventional wrappings, meaningless in themselves.

A mechanical adherence to the dictates of fashion can never take the place of this knowledge; on the contrary, it tends to blunt individual traits and to deform our sense of proportion. It is sufficient to meditate on the differences between the American woman and your true Parisienne to realize that in dress we must work out our own salvation. If at times we are offended by the extremes of French fashions, let us comprehend the differences in climate, environment and tradition between our world and the world so nerve-racked by war.

Equally necessary is it to retain our individuality in the matter of color, embroidery and decorations. This theme is of the utmost importance for the harmony of costume, so I will take the opportunity to devote a special section to it.

A healthy people loves color; an artistic people applies it with good taste. The American people, with a sense of humor and a stronger sense of the beauties of life, often represses its natural talent for healthy, robust colors, lest it be accused of frivolity or indiscretion. Only on our vacations do we reveal our true buoyancy in dress of bright and light radiating colors. In the cities very often we are oversubdued. This, of course, has its compensations, as restraint, even when exaggerated, is in much better taste than crude and tawdry self-advertising.

In ages past, when life was more ascetic and gloomy, artists painted pictures in severe blacks and whites. To-day, with the radical changes in our viewpoint and in our social conditions, the painter strives to bathe his drawings in vivid color, veritable symphonies of light, from the school of the Impressionists to the extreme color schemes of a Boris Anisfeld. This passion for color has influenced French dress more than American dress, yet we, too, cannot escape the stimulus of healthy colors.

Is there any guide to the color scheme of your costume? I could answer with high-sounding generalities, as so many dress consultants do. I prefer to adhere to a few simple principles of good taste, applicable to color in dress as well as to the design. There are no secrets in dress; there is either knowledge or lack of knowledge.

On Fashions

The first collections of the Parisian dressmakers were shown towards the end of August, and from the same the following facts have been gleaned. The straight silhouette is maintained, endorsed by the chemise dress with its loose-fitting bodice, low waist-line, and loose corsage. Naturally there are a number of the crinoline frocks with long full skirts that just clear the ground the corsages that accompany them are more than not have curiously shaped basques.

Long Sleeves

Women today are not particularly proud of their arms, as, having exposed them ruthlessly to the sun they have become terribly sunburnt. Therefore frocks that count long sleeves were present. They are inset, and are either extremely wide at the wrist, with a hem of a contrasting colour or material, or are tight-fitting from the shoulder to to wrist, very often being gathered. The consensus of opinion is that sleeves with an extremely deep armhole will enjoy a certain measure of success, as they are comfortable as well as becoming; it must, however, be remembered that they made their debut in the spring.

High Collars and Shallow Decolletages.

The battle still continues between the high and the low neck; those who are in a position to speak authoritatively believe that the hihg collar will be an important feature of tailored suits and out-of-door dresses generally. Frocks that are destined to be worn beneath fur and other wrap coats will have a rounded, shallow decolletage and the deep square, or rounded decolletage, revealing the shoulders, will be an important feature of evening gowns. Many of the evening gowns in these collections were arranged with a decolletage uncovering the draperies caught at the left side. As will be readily understood, this necessitates one side of the figure being revealed, the hiatus, ommitting the shoulder, being filled in with a contrasting material.

Lacquered Lace

Lacquered lace is a novelty; it has a brighter surface than eire lace, and is used for dresses, when the design is picked out with coloured silk or tinsel threads, so that embroidery is suggested. Venetian and Renaissance laces are making a tentative debut, and there is no doubt whatsoever about it that they are admirable foils for the brighter laces. Among the novelties is the apron waist-band. It is no uncommon occurence for the waistband to of suede flowers, and depending therefrom is a jet fringe. In order that harmony shall prevail between the flowers and the fringes, the former are centred with small cartwheels of jets. Narrow ribbon is also employed for the wristbands trimmed with flowers.

LETTERS TELL OF SUFFERING UNDER THE REGIME OF THE REDS.

Missives Come Through After Years of Censorship.

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 1.—(By Associated Press) After several years of censored silence, letters are now coming out of Russia from American English and Russian people of gentle birth who remained and survived the great experiment in human lives in communistic Russia. These tell in an impressive way what the mere task of keeping alive has meant to these persons accustomed before the revolution, to lives of luxury.

Here is an extract from a letter written by an American woman, 83 years old, from Petrograd.

"In three years, I have not heard from any of my friends the dearest I have in the world. They must be greatly astonished at my having so far survived all these horrors, at my years, when thousands of younger people are daily dying of starvation and untold hardships.

"It was most kind and thoughtful of you to send that money, I only hope it may arrive. For of course, although I work seven to eight hours a day (official translation work, comparatively well paid) the economic conditions are so monstrous that it is impossible to earn anywhere near enough for the very barest necessities of life. No wonder when butter and sugar are 25,000 rubles a pound.

"Therefore what I need more than money is food, the plainest articles of food. These three years I and my faithful companion, for many years my maid, but for whom I should certainly not be living today, have subsisted on black rye-bread and water porridge and gruels, drinking our so-called "tea" and "coffee" (sorry surrogates) without milk and sugar, with black bread, well salted. We have forgotten what wheat bread is like, and as for eggs, I should like to see one before I die.

"Now the assistance I would crave of you is simply this: From time to time send me food. We have not seen meat for three years, and for pity's sake send some sweets, but most especially candy and chocolates. Do not laugh at me, just imagine, three years without sugar or anything sweet. The longing for sweets at times becomes absolutely morbid.

"One thing more, and an essential one, send two or three candles. We are given electricity only for a couple of hours. Kerosene or candles are not to be had anymore for any amount of money, so we have no means of striking a light during the dark hours of night, which is not only extremely uncomfortable, but may on occasion be a real danger."

Here is an extract from another letter, this one from a young woman to whom an American in the Baltic states sent a packge of food: "I wish you would write and advise me what and how we could get away from here. To condemn Mamma to starvation, here, would be a crime. We must think of some way out, but I simply get lost when I try.

"To get away, many girls have married foreigners, and thus become foreign subjects, when they can freely leave the country, butI haven't considered that. The doctors advise me to go. They prescribe good food, but I can only smile at them in reply.'

A letter written in faltering English by a Russian girl to the same American recalls the joy which the American workers in Russia spread everywhere. Here are extracts, spelling and all, as she wote.

"You know till the first visit of us of——(some Americans) in our house were not heard laughter nor lively conversations. With them it was as spring came to our house. In the beginning it was strange, but from that time the grave's stillness of our house had gone and we returned to life. Certainly for you it is diff cult to understand us—but in our life with you went away all happiness and light."

Recipes

Sausage Rolls.

If link sausages are used the skin must first be removed from them. Or put sausage meat on a plate and, if necessary, add a little more seasoning, working it in with a knife. Then divide it into pieces and, with a little flour, roll each portion into a cork-shaped piece. Roll out some pastry into a long strip about five inches wide and an eighth of an inch in thickness. Cut it across into oblong pieces. Wet along both sides and one end of these pieces with water or milk and lay a roll of sausage meat, first wrapped in bacon if desired, in the centre of each. Double over first the dry end of the pastry, then the wet end, making one end well overlap the other. Place the rolls on a greased baking tin, brush them over with beaten egg and bake in a hot oven for twenty minutes. Serve hot or cold.

Beefsteak-and-Kidney Pie.

Two pounds of beefsteak, six sheep's kidneys, two tablespoonfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper, half a teaspoonful of powdered allspice,one tablespoonful of table sauce, two hard-cooked eggs, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley and pastry.

Trim the meat and remove any superfluous fat. Cut the steak into narrow strips suitable for rolling up. Split the kidneys, remove the skin and the inside fat, and cut them into small pieces. Mix the flour, salt, pepper and allspice together on a plate. Dip the pieces of meat and kidney into this mixture, coating them on all sides. Roll up the strips of steak with some of the kidney and a small piece of fat inside each. Place these rolls in a fire-proof dish, and sprinkle them with the chopped parsley. Cut the eggs into six pieces and arrange these round the meat, pour in the table sauce and almost fill up the dish with stock or water. Cover the pie with pastry and bake in a moderately hot oven for one hour and a half. Serve hot with vegetables.

A little chopped cooked mushroom or an oyster may be rolled up inside the meat instead of the kidney, and a little chopped onion may be added if desired. A few potatoes, partly cooked and thinly sliced, may be mixed with the meat, to fill up the dish when a large quantity of meat is not wanted.

Veal-and-Ham Pie.

"Very good thing is veal pie, when you know the lady that made it," as Mr. Weller said. To make veal-and-ham pie cut two pounds of lean veal and half a pound of ham into small squares. Mix together one tablespoonful of chopped herbs, the grated rind of one lemon, one teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of pepper and sprinkle over the meat. Slice two hard-cooked eggs. Place the seasoned meat and the eggs into a fire-proof dish, pour in one cupful of water and one cupful of good strong gravy, then cover with puff pastry and bake in a moderately hot oven for one hour and a half. This pie may be enriched by adding a few mushrooms, oysters or sweetbreads, but it will be found very good without any of them.

IMPOVERISHED ARTIST WHO WON FELLOWSHIP HAS ARRIVED IN ROME.

ROME, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Frank H. Schwarz, the young artist of New York and Chicago, who won a fellowship in painting awarded by the American Academy in Rome just as he was about to be dispossessed from his rooms in New York, has arrived here to begin his three years of post-graduate study. This is made possible by his winning the award, which includes an allowance of $1,000 a year for travel and other expenses.

His painting which took the Prix de Rome was entitled "Heroism."

After making a hurried trip over the city, in which he visited the Forum, the Colosseum, St. Peter's and the Sistine Chapel, he said he felt lost in the multitude of artistic things he saw. He said: "The great thing which struck me was the profusion of art representing all the ages that had anything to do with the development of art. One can see at a glance what each great age contributed. It is all here. The spirit of art is here permeating the air. People, even the poorest, struck me especially when I saw a ragged beggar play a classic on an accordeon which I had only once heard before, and then when it was played by Kreisler.

MOVEMENT IN BRITAIN AGAINST DRINK FOR YOUNG.

LONDON, Nov. 1. — (Canadian Press).—A movement is under way in England to prohibit the sale of all intoxicants to any person under the age of 18 years, instead of 16 as at present. A petition to that effect, signed by thousands of teachers, has been presented to the Home Secretary, and temperance reformers are pressing Parliament for a bill dealing with this question.

Attention is called to the fact that the mother counry is behind the Dominions in such restrictions. In Australia, the age limit for the sale of intoxicants has been fixed at 18, and in New Zealand, Tasmania, Ontario and Nova Scotia at 21.

In France, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia the age is 18, in Sweden 17.

NEW DRUG WILL MAKE MILLIONS OF PEOPLE WELL

NEW DRUG WORTH MILLIONS TO SUFFERING HUMANITY. NUMBERLESS PEOPLE GO DOWN TO THEIR GRAVES 10 TO 20 YEARS BEFORE THEY SHOULD.

A poisoned system soon decays, causing early death. We are only as old as our livers. When the liver is out of order the system is unable to discharge the waste matter, causing a poisoning of the whole system, which no doubt causes all sorts of aches and pains. When the system becomes poisoned, some organ of the body is sure to suffer. It may be your stomach, Kidneys, Liver, Intestines, etc.

There is only one drug known that will relieve this, and that is Tanated Calomel, which is the only drug known that will act directly upon the Liver. Tanalated Calomel is very different from all forms of Calomel. It is very quickly taken up by the system, and acts on the Liver in a few minutes after taking. No Salts, Seidlitz, or Castor Oil are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is self-eliminating. No nausea, sick stomach, or griping after taking.

You no doubt have been taking all sorts of Tonics, Laxatives from time to time, with only temporary results. The reason is that none of these medicines act upon the Liver, and you cannot have good health with a disordered Liver.

Doctors recommend that you take One Tanated Calomel about 15 minutes before meals or take two at bedtime, and you will get a good sleep, waking in the morning feeling 100% better, full of vigor, bright, alert, clear-headed, and ready for a good day's work.

Tanated Calomel is sold in Peterborough by F. C. Webber, 220 Charlotte Street.

THE GIRL IN RED

What promises to be the social amateur theatrical engagement of the season is the forthcoming production, entitled "The Girl in Red," with over 250 of Peterborough's most popular young ladies, gentlemen and children in the cast, under the able direction of Theodore H. Bird, who has directed amateur theatricals in Halifax, St. John, Moncton, Chatham, New Glascow, Brockville, Kingston, Pembroke, Kitchener, Galt, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, Cobalt and other Canadian cities for the past twelve years. The entertainment will be under the auspices of the Peter Robinson Chapter of the I.O.D.E., and will be produced at the Grand Opera House, two nights and a Saturday matinee, Friday and Saturday, November 11th and 12th.

The following is an extract from the Lindsay papers, where Mr. Bird has just produced "The Girl in Red," under the auspices of the I.O.D.E.:

"Amateur Show Was First Class.

"Lindsay amateurs scored another success Wednesday and Thursday night, when 'The Girl in Red' was presented here for the first time, with Lindsay's best local talent in the production. The cast was well chosen, and every one portrayed his or her part well. It was one of the few amateur plays produced there where the principals appeared to be well trained. The various scenes were very elaborate and well set. The great variety of costumes were amazing, and the scenes added greatly to the success of the performance. From the first chorus by the entire company to the final chorus, the audience was interested. The opening chorus was the finest ever heard in Lindsay, and the arrangement well carried out," etc.—(Watchman-Warder). 1d-1-4585

HEADS THAT ACHE AND PAIN

It is hard to drag along with a head that aches and pains all the time.

In nine cases out of ten, persistent headaches are due to poisoned blood, the blood being rendered impure through some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels, but no matter which organ is to blame the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be obtained.

which has been on the market for the past forty five years, removes the cause of the headache by starting the organs of elimination acting freely, and when the impurities are carried off from the system, purified blood circulates in the brain cells, and the aches and pains vanish.

Miss Clara Murphy, Centre Dummer, Ont., writes: "My system was greatly run down and my blood out of order. I suffered a great deal from severe pains in my head which made me feel very miserable. After having tried other remedies I purchased a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and was very glad to notice a decided improvement in my health. I took another bottle and it has done me an enormous amount of good. I have recommended it to some of my friends who were in a similar condition and they all say it is a wonderful remedy."

BOUQUETS FOR MR. CRERAR.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

Mr. Crerar's own friends have not been strewing his path with roses since he last showed himself in this Province. The man who was his tower of strength in the House, Dr. Michael Clark, has broken away from hima ndMMMMMM broken away from him and declared the class politics of the Progressive movement to be destined to be the death of it. In a further letter, making his withdrawal final, Dr. Clark said that there can be no shadow of doubt that the shareholders of the Grain Growers' Grain Co. are in politics as a group, and added that it was the knowledge of this fact that prompted the decision to hold an inquiry into the grain trade. "You may take it from me," said Dr. Clark to Mr. Crerar, "there is a grave doubt widely permeating impartial minds whether it was wise for this company to join with other corporations to stop the inquiry. Be this as it may, if evidence is subsequently forthcoming or even the duspicion widely held, that the Grain Growers' Grain Company, is as good at 'farming the farmer' as other corporations, is it not certain that much damage would accrue to poiitics which you and I believe are vital to the best interests of the nation and not hurtful to the legitimate interests of any class or individual?" This very broad hint to Mr. Crerar that his former colleague had his doubts about the kind of deal the farmers are getting from the grain trade, including Mr. Crerar's big corporation would be applauded by many farmers in the west.

SIR LOMER GOUIN.

(Montreal L'Evenement.)

Whatever may be the result of the federal election in relation to the Province of Quebec, the presence in the next Parliament of a man of the prestige of Sir Lomer Gouin will certainly be a valuable security. If the Liberals are victorious, we shall have Sir Lomer, a great Federal Minister. If the Liberals are defeated, he will be all the stronger in opposition because he knows the art of government. And if another political crisis arises after the general election Sir Lomer Gouin will be able to act in a manner that will safeguard the interests and the self-esteem of his compatriots.

MAIN STREET OUT FOR OWN MOVIES.

Small Towns Don't Approve Cities' Choices.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Flashing of a movie star's name in electric lights along Broadway will not be the acid test of screen success in the future if the small town picture show proprietors of the nation have their way about it. The future stars of the silver sheet will have to make good on Main street.

What the big towns frequently stand for, the country folks just won't—at least that's what an army of harassed exhibitors attending the first annual convention of the First National Pictures, Inc., says, and they ought to know because for years they have been hearing some candid remarks concerning the "stars" projected by some director who happened to like the tilt of the lady's nose or the way she rolled her eyes in the vamp scene.

"It's bad enough to have to pay for it," said J. E. Ricards, delegate from Phoenix, who operates a number of small picture shows in Arizona, "but to have to stand at the door ever night and meet the people coming out —that's something different."

So the small town exhibitors, the "80 per centers," as they are known at the convention, have started out to set an exhibitor's value on the movie stars whose names will be emblazoned along the Main streets of the nation. Heretofore the exhibitor's value was fixed by the "20 percenters" in the big cities.

Robert H. Lieber, of Indianapolis, president of the organization, which comprises 3,500 picture theatre owners, said there was some prospect that the price of admission in movie theatres might be reduced, but that the "nickel show" is not likely to return; that the movie vamp is dead and that the tendency now is toward human interest and home stories, that motion picture men figure the Arbuckle case cost them millions of dollars and that in the future screen performers will have to understand that their moral character is as essential to success as artistic ability.

The movie business, he predicted, will pick up; in fact, between 500 and 1,000 new theatres, to cost between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000, are being erected throughout the country.

The fellow who thinks he is saving money by staying at home with his girl to "bill and coo", seldom realizes the progress he's making towards the "bill."

Predestined to Succeed

NEARLY one million people live in Montreal and suburbs. More travellers and tourists pass through, and stay there, in one month, than stay in any other Canadian city in six months. It is also the coming Convention City of Canada.

Yet there are less fireproof hotel bedrooms in Montreal than in one hotel—The Biltmore—New York. Less than one thousand, in fact, whereas Cleveland has 5,000, Buffalo 2,000, although neither Buffalo nor Cleveland are ocean ports or railroad terminals.

For these reasons "The Mount Royal" Hotel is predestined to succeed. Traffic is already enormous—more is coming. It only remains to provide for it.

Consider, too, the Directorate. Do you think fifteen outstanding successful business men would associate themselves with an hotel enterprise doubtful of success? Certainly not!

Then, remember, that the Hotel will be operated by the United Hotels Company of America. This company has made a financial success of every hotel it has managed. It turned the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, from a losing proposition into a profitable enterprise for investors.

Consider these facts, therefore, in the light of making an investment in the 8% Convertible Debentures of The Mount Royal Hotel Company, Limited, at par and interest, carrying a 30% Common Stock Bonus.

For our part we have thoroughly investigated every phase of this investment and unreservedly recommend it.

Every man or woman who has idle money, or money earning 3% or 4%, should consider at once the advantages that will accrue from investing in these 8% Convertible Debentures.

In short, you may invest in the 8% Convertible Debentures of The Mount Royal Hotel Company, Limited, with the assurance that your money is safe—your 8% interest certain and your prospects good for a substantial profit from your Common Stock Bonus.

The price of the Debentures is par and interest, carrying a 30% Common Stock Bonus. Send your order now or write for full particulars. Address:

Hallowe'en Social.

The Public School had a Hallowe'en Social on Monday afternoon. The senior room, under the leadership of their teacher, Miss Edwina Irwin, entertained Miss Gertrude Dewell of the junior room and her pupils. The seniors dressed themselves in fancy clothes and false faces and the Juniors were supposed to guess who they were. A number of games and puzzles were played and prizes given. Altogether the children had a very pleasant afternoon.

BOTH WERE DRUNK

Taxi Driver and Fare Exemplified How Prohibition Works.

Arrested at 7.20 p.m. last night in an intoxicated condition at the wheel of the livery car he was driving, with a passenger in a similar state of inebriety, a tax driver, sentenced to 20 days in the County Goal by Magistrate D. W. Dumble to-day, when he pleaded guilty to driving while under the influence of liquor.

"To drive a car when drunk means murder,' the Magistrate told him.

"I drove the car all night", the accused said, "don't make any mistake about that—I had liquor. I have been driving a car seven years and never had an accident."

He will not drive a car during the next 20 days.

The passenger pleaded guilty to being intoxicated and paid $10 fine and $10.10 costs before leaving the Police station for his abode.

WHAT NEW YORK CRITICS SAID

OF GREAT FOX PICTURE "OVER THE HILL"

"Over the Hill,' the William Fox screen adaptation of the famous Will Carleton poem, not only had an amazing reception by a brillint assemblae on the night of its premiere on Broadway, but from the standpoint of press criticism, was accorded a most unusual welcome. The reviewers of hte New York press apparently vied with each other in singing the praises of this wonderful picture of simple home life and homely virtues.

Frank Pope, writing in the New York Journal of Commerce, prefaced his review with the frank statement that he does not care especially for motion pictures. Then he adds, regarding the premiere of "Over the Hill': "But last night we saw Mary Carr, of whom we had never heard before, play a mother as a mother probably has never been played — for the screen at least—before. Reviewers of pictures raved over the work of Vera Gordon in 'Humoresque,' and reviewers of plays did the same over Emma Dunn in 'Mother' and 'Old Lady 31'; but let them see aMry Carr in this picture. It is safe to say that the camera never has recorded a finer, more faithful piece of cting."

Robert Welsh suggested the acid test to which the picture was subjected when he said in his criticism in the Evening Telegram, "An audience which included many distinguished persons, gave it the hearty welcome which it so richly deserves, and accorded not only the tribute of spontaneous laughter to the many delightful comedy scenes, but also paid that rarer tribute, the gift of sympathetic tears over the pathetic episodes in the story."

James Spearing ,writing in the New York Times, declared: "Its capacity for tear-water and gallery cheers is unlimited. It is impressive —its assaults upon the emotion is sweeping."

Miss Agnes Smith, of the Morning Telegrahp, wrote: "It iss o true and so vividly yet simply told that it impresses itself upon your memory as one of the high spots in film productions.'

"It is a picture too fine, too human and too tender to miss," said H. E. Torres, in the New York Commercial. "The wondrous depths of maternal love are sounded in this picture which grips the heart and holds it for two solid hours."

The opinion of Bide Dudley of the Evening World is summed up in the following crisp sentence: "It abounds with excellent humor and pathos and tells a story of genuine interest that is gripping."

The New York American insisted that "Over the Hill" is a "remarkable impersonation of motherdom.So keen a picturization that your eyes fill—made with a fine big spirit, a remembrance of youth, an appreciation of the eternal mothers-soul, and excellent photography."

Again in the Evening Journal, we read that a "New Fox Film Scores," "It brought tears even from the most unwilling eyes," nd that "it is funny, humanly, riotously funny."

Frank Vreeland, in the Herald, declared that the picture "draws tears —presses a severe strain upon the handkedchief and will undoubtedly have a wide appeal."

Patterson McNutt, writing in the Evening Sun, declared that the "applause was sincere, and the comment fter the picture, was of the kind that ought to justify the management in expecting a long run."

P. F. Raniers, of the New York Evening Post, insisted that "It is the sort of play in which the battle is more than half won before it is started, because it comes pretty close to the heartstrings of anyone who hts a heart."

Beauvais Fox of the Tribune, brought to mind the spellbound audience in the following comments:— "Wonderful it was—brought tears and rapture—kept first night spectators in their seats after the final curtain, applauding."

The Evening Mail review, written by Mr. Rosenfield, included this:— "Over the Hill" entered the Hall of Screen fame last night. It is a sure-fire hit."

AT THE REGENT

STAR WEARS FIRST ENGAGEMENT RING

Alice Calhoun Has Thrill When She Puts on Diamond.

In every girl's life there comes a thrill when she first puts on an engagement ring. As a rule, actresses get used to wearing engagement rings, as they are called upon many times to play the roles of engaged girls.

By some strange circumstances, Alice Calhoun, the Vitagraph star, who will be shown in "Closed Doors" at the Regent Theatre, has been a star without an engagement ring. Never in all her career has she been called upon to play a role in which she wore a diamond. However, one cannot continue to act before the camera without doing almost everything, and in "Closed Doors" Miss Calhoun for the first time in her life put an engagement ring upon her finger.

She had all the thrill and excitement that a young girl naturally feels when her sweetheart presents her with a solitaire. All through the day Alice kept looking at the ring. She could not draw her eye away from it and every move she made the diamond was always in evidence.

She was so natural in fact that when the scene was shot Director Seyffertitz exclaimed, "Miss Calhoun you could not have done better if you had really been engaged. You certainly acted the part to perfection."

LAST CHANCE TO SEE "BARE KNUCKLES" HERE.

William Russell in "Bare Knuckles," the William Fox production, has reached the end of his engagement at the Regent Theatre. Those who have failed thus far to see the star in the role of "Brute" McGuire will have their last opportunity this evening. Russell has scored a positive success in a role that is somewhat different from the usual run of Western heroes of the screen; and probably could have filled the theatre for another week had the house been available for the additional time.

AT THE CAPITOL.

THRILLS IN CAPITOL THEATRE PROGRAM

"WNO AM I?" REPLETE WITH INCIDENT AND DRAMATIC SITUATIONS.

One of the most interesting pictures of the week is the production of "Who Am I?" at the Capitol Theatre. Dramatic situations, tense moments, thrills and wonderful gowns on a beautiful heroine, combine to make it a picture of notable effect from start to finish. Opening with a funeral, an extraordinary beginning for any production, the theme weaves a tortuous way through the mazes of a high-class gambling establishment, and the mystery of a half-revealed, tantalizing legal document which does not answer the question mark in the play until the last moment. There is a convent-bred girl who becomes a professional gambler, a painted lady with a soft heart and a daring and skilful card-sharp for hero, whose father, a musician, supplies a mild note against a background of passion and intrigue.

There is a good comedy at this theatre also for the first three days of the week. The two young men with the trained dog figure largely in this. They escape from a curl-papered, insistent landlady by way of the window and rescue a charming heroine, whose horse runs away. Then they become involved with the fire department of Punkville, and do some weird stunts in pursuit of their duties.—Jeannette.

AT THE GRAND.

"BILLY'S TOMBSTONES."

The masqueraders and the small boy with the pea-shooter did not succeed in capturing all the Hallowe'en fun last night, for the big audience which saw the Rex Stock Company at the Grand got a large share of amusement in the performance of "Billy's Tombstones," a nautical but not naughty farce that proved a prolific source of laughter. It was presented here some time ago under its original title of "Billy" with Sidney Drew in the title role and Spottiswoode Atkins as the bo'swain, but to most of last night's audience it was a novelty, and they enjoyed it thoroughly. While the performance could not fairly be called the best that the Rex Company has given here, they succeeded in putting over a creditable production of this most amusing farce. "Billy's Tombstones" deals with the misfortunes of Billy Hargraves, football hero who has four teeth kicked out in a game, and who in order to get accustomed to artificial molars goes on a sea voyage. The girl he loves happens to be on the same steamer, and to make matters worse, he loses his teeth and, unable to speak plainly, is in a predicament that continually gets more serious. How it all works out is worth a trip to the Grand to see. Rex, of course, is the young gentleman of the strayed teeth, and his struggles to articulate keep the audience in constant laughter. Hazel Williams is amusing as Alice, Zana Vaughn is excellent as Beatrice and William Yule scores many a laugh as "Lofty," the bo'swain, assisted by Billy Seymour, who is very amusing as a deck-hand and doubles up as 'Billy's" father.

Mr. Yule made a big hit in a Harry Lauder vaudeville number, followed by a couple of psuedo-dramatic recitations that were highly entertaining, and the Park children were as usual successful in their specialty.

F.D.C.

"THE TITLE"

Mr. Walter Hampden was much interested to know whether Mr. Lumsden Hare would be appreciated here. He knows him well and says he and his wife are exceedingly clever especially in this show. The following criticism by Clifford Baker in the Montreal Herald:

When he wrote his three-act comedy "The Title," Arnold Bennett seems to have been somewhat divided in his mind as to who really composed the dregs of society, journalists or the recipients of Birthday or New Year's Honors. As he refers specifically to journalists and not newspapermen, the first insinuation may be overlooked; as to the second the persons concerned must speak for themselves.

The play is a clever one and well worth a visit if only for the purpose of seeing Lumsden Hare in the character of Mr. Culver a truly discreet gentleman who has taken a matrimonial course extending over twenty-two years and does not yet feel that he is qualified to graduate. Mr. Hare enters completely into the spirit of the role, making the most of all the many exquisite humorous situations involved. As the whimsical government official who feels that his very integrity being made use of by the authorities to counterbalance the questionable character of other members of the Honor List, he brings out every point with excellent judgment and nothing is overdone. As the theoretical head of the house and member of the domestic circle much harassed by the thousand and one wiles of the female of the species, he is nothing short of superb.

THE MAPLE LEAFS

Unusual interest is attached to the engagement of the Maple Leafs at the Grand next Friday and Saturday by reason of the tact that their musical revue, "Camouflage" has been entirely re-written by Capt. M. W. Plunkett, who has given them a vehicle for their second trancontinental Canadian tour, which will bear comparison with the best musical revues and similiar offerings of the season.

Strengthened by their recent experiences in the American vaudeville field, the boys have returned to Canada with a wealth of new ideas and material. Pat Rafferty, Ben Allen, Bob Anderson and Ernie Petch are the principal comedians of the new show, while Harry Ashton and Jack Kelly are the leading lady and ingenue, and Hughie Williamson is the soubrette.

All the favorites of the original fourth division party are still with the show, together wth several stars from other divisional parties.

"HULLO CANADA!"

The advance sale of tickets in Hamilton for the great de Corville Revue has been so large that bumper business for the big show is more than assured. So encouraging is this evidence of Canadian appreciation that Mr. Albert de Courville has sailed for England presumably to bring out another revue. Most likely it will be the current offering at the Gaiety Theatre entitled "Pins and Needles."

Only ten days remain before the revue comes to Peterboro, "Hullo! Canada has been a sensation wherever it is shown on this side of the water. The Follies, the Winter Garden Shows, and many other super American attractions of the same order, come to Canada and are more than well patronized. They are big shows and well worth seeing but when an equally fine production comes from England when our soldiers can tell is just how good it is and the critics in Toronto and Montreal corroborate their statement we should ask for more. The fun is genuine English humour—not involved not risque but very clever. There are two acts with fourteen gorgeous scenes. The girls are really beautiful I spent a great deal of time trying to decide which types were the most attractive but it can't be done. They're all wonders! You'll be tired laughing at Harry Tate and you'll rave over Shirley Kellog. If you neglect to see the show, you'll never forgive yourself.

DECREASE IN POST OFFICE SAVINGS IS $10,000,000.

Smallest Amount on Deposit in Last Twenty Years—Government Savings Banks.

TORONTO, Nov. 1.—While the six sub-treasury offices which the Provincial Government about to open will pay 4 per cent. interest on savings deposits, the Post Office Savings Bank and the Dominion Government Savings Bank pay only 3 per cent.

It will come as a surprise to most people to hear there are such things as Dominion Government Savings Banks, and even the official at the Toronto Postal Savings Bank was sceptical about their existence. It so happens that there are none in Ontario, but there are thirteen scattered over the Dominion.

In Nova Scotia there are eight Dominion Government Savings Banks, including one at Halifax. There are two in New Brunswick, one being at St. John; one in Charlottetown, one in Winnipeg, where there are also two Manitoba Government Savings Banks, and one in Victoria, B. C.

The Postal Banks and Dominion Government Savings Banks are distinct and separate, there being 1,323 of the former. Both kinds of banks have existed ever since Confederation.

The Savings' Bank Act provides that "there shall continue to be a "tem of Post Office Savings Banks established by the Postmaster General with the consent of the Governor-in-Council in connection with a central savings bank established at a branch of the Post Office Department at the seat of Government."

The Act also provides that "the Governor-in-Council may establish a savings bank at each of the cities of Toronto, Montreal, Halifax and St. John and at any place within the Provinces of Manitoba, British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta."

The word "may" in legislation frequently is interpreted as "must," but in this case the law evidently is not regarded as obligatory as neither Montreal nor Toronto has one of these banks. In fact, the Government is only half-heartedly behind them, as the records indicate.

On deposit in the Postal Savings Bank, in March, 1920, was $31,000,000, which represents a decrease of 10 millions for the year, bringing the total on deposit down to the lowest figure in 23 years.

On deposit in the Dominion Govment Savings Banks, according to the last figures available, was $11,000,000, the smallest amount in 27 years.

In the Postal Banks 15,000 new accounts were opened last year, but 33,000 closed their accounts. The total number of persons having deposits is 97,154. The sum of $1,056,000 was paid in interest. A total of $2,244,000 was deposited during 1919 in Dominion Government Savings Banks and the interest paid reached $340,000.

In Manitoba the Provincial Government started savings banks and printed in large letters "4 per cent. deposits" in the windows of their offices. But only two small banks were opened, both in the city of Winnipeg, though the banks were connected with a rural credits scheme. The first year the banks were open they took in more than $3,000,000.

It cannot be said that Manitoba is pressing its savings bank policy vigorously. Here in Ontario, with six scattered but well-placed subtreasury branches for receiving savings deposits, a very large sum of money should be received yearly. But in this Province as elsewhere the question will arise whether, if the thing is worth doing at all it is not worth doing on a more elaborate scale.

ALLEN SATISFACTION IN EXCELLENCE
Ask Anyone Who Was There
Yesterday the ALLEN THEATRE held the largest crowds in the history of the House, watching the William Fox wonder photoplay, "OVER THE HILL," and its reception was the same as the year-long reception that the same Picture received during its memorable run in New York City. There were the same riotous gales of laughter, and the same moments of tense and unbroken silence, with an audience riveted in their seats. After it was all over, an audience whose hearts had been touched as never before filled the lobbies of the Theatre, giving voluble testimony of their great appreciation of the Picture. If you don't believe that "OVER THE HILL" is the screen event of the season, ask anyone who was there.

DISPLAY OF SILVERWARE AND OTHER GOODS OFFERED FOR THANKSGIVING DAY RACE IS ATTRACTING ATTENTION TO GRANT & THORPE'S WINDOW

Not all the prizes for the road race on Thanksgiving Day are on display in the window of Grant and Thorpe's store. Some of the offerings are more or less perishable, and for that reason they will not be procured until the occasion of their presentation. But the showing exceeds anything ever given before in Peterborough for two events, in the value and utility of the prizes that are offered. The following is a complete list of the prizes now available — two shields for the senior and junior races; for the senior race the first three prizes have been given by the Examiner, viz., a Waltham gold watch for first, amethyst and diamond tie pin for second, and a signet ring for third. The first and second prizes for the juniors have been donated by the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association. The first is a silver watch and the second a baby Ben clock. The third has not yet been chosen, but it will likely be one of the other prizes in the possession of the committee.

Three of them are meat products and will not be collected until later. Mr. Walter Jopling of Jopling and Sons, gave a smoked ham. Fred J. Lowes of the New Centre Meat Market gave a ham or side of bacon, and Gordon Matthews, of the Canadian Packing Company, came through yesterday with the offer of another ham. These are all three worth winning. The Y.M.C.A. has given two membership tickets, one for each race, and other prizes which the committee has not yet allocated are as follows:

Coleman Bros., box of chocolates.
W. Lech and Sons, cap.
E. F. Mason, 5 lb. pail of honey.
Campbell Milling Company, bag of flour. F. A. Laughlin, the new manager, increased this donation from a 25 lb. to a 50 lb. sack of "Cream of the West."
A. A. Fowler, Eversharp pencil.
R. Neil Limited, pair of running shoes.
L. Lebarr, "Satimo" safety razor.
A. W. Cressman, & Co., umbrella.
Grant and Thorpe, flashlight.
Peterborough Floral Company, plant.
W. B. Warne, Gillette razor.
Percy Hooper, box of chocolates.

There is also a gold medal presented by City Solicitor Widdifield.

This brings the total number of prizes up to twenty-five, and it is sincerely hoped that this Christmas tree will bring out the expected number of entries. Those who are breaking into the running game are reminded that they will be given every opportunity to make a showing and to take home a prize. Some of the boys will probably surprise themselves next Monday. At any rate it is up to them to make the race a real success.

Theatre Night Proposed.

If Monday's results are encouraging the committee will likely proceed to arrange for an athletic theatre night at which the road race and city championship prizes will be distributed. Tentative plans for an affair similar to the successful effort in Toronto a short time ago are under way, and with the co-operation necessary to make the road race and a theatre night what they should be in Peterborough, both these events may soon be accomplishments to be remembered.

OLD RIVALS MEET HERE ON SATURDAY

BELLEVILLE WILL CLASH WITH P. C. I. IN INTER-SCHOLASTIC R. R. F. U. BATTLE THAT SHOULD ATTRACT A BIG CROWD.

For those who enjoyed the rugby game last Saturday it will be good news to hear that the Belleville High School team, old rivals of the Collegiate, are coming next Saturday for a bang-up game at Riverside Park. A victory for the Collegiate means the elimination of Belleville from the O.R.F.U. series, so the game should bring out the best in both teams. The Central Park twelve are well aware that they have many defects to overcome and are practising every night to remedy their weaknesses. The Collegiate boys are very grateful for the fine turnout of rugby fans last Saturday. It heartens them to know that their efforts to put Peterborough on the rugby map again are being appreciated.

GENERAL SPORTS IN TABLOID FORM

MONTREAL MAY HAVE ANOTHER RUGBY TEAM.

It is intimated that another Montreal rugby club will apply for admission to the Big Four Rugby Union shortly.

The team is to be composed of former McGill men, and others, who think that this city can make a better showing in Senior Rugby than was done this year.

It is also intimated that Westmount, which has apparently no other way of getting into Senior company, may apply for admission to the Ontario Rugby Union.

McGILL NOT HOPELESS.

Exhausted and crippled, with many of the men leaning on teammates for support, twelve McGill football players stood outside the Varsity stadium late Saturday afternoon and yelled with all their might, "We'll get you Varsity." They had been defeated fairly and they admitted it, but they were all looking forward to the day when they would meet their ancient rivals in the play-off which appears to be almost certain. — Montreal Star.

ROCKY KANSAS CLAIMS THE LIGHTWEIGHT TITLE.

BUFFALO, N.Y., No. 1.—(Canadian Press). — Dan Rogers, manager of Rocky Kansas, of Buffalo, announced yesterday that he would claim the lightweight championship title and defend it against all comers. Kansas bases his claim upon decisions over Willie Jackson, of New York, and Lew Tendler, of Philadelphia, and failure of Benny Leonard to defend the title.

ENGLISH WOMEN WIN.

BOSTON, Mass., No. 1.—(Canadian Press). — The Englishwomen's field hockey team, which has come here to play a series of matches with Greater Boston women's aggregations, yesterday defeated the Boston School of Physical Education, 22 to 0, at the Longwood Cricket Club.

Teams of the Sargent School of Physical Education and Radcliffe and Wellesley College will meet the English women during the week.

Gay Masquerade and Fun Of Carnival at Academy

SKATING FLOOR CROWDED AND GALLERIES ALSO FILLED WITH SPECTATORS AT BROCK STREET RINK LAST NIGHT.

HALLOWE'EN SPIRIT

The grand masquerade carnival at the Roller Academy last evening attracted a large number of contestants for the exceptional prizes offered. The long expanse of floor, in the best of condition, offered ample opportunity for the exercise of the skaters' ability and the exhibition of their many and varied costumes.

Attractive Decorations.

The decorations, carried out in the Hallowe'en manner, were lovely. Flags and huge pumpkin lanterns, with tall sheaves of corn, covered the band stand, panels of orange and black paper with weird skulls and crossbones lined the railings, and from above, twelve-foot paper streamers in all the colors of the rainbow formed a gently-waving, many-hued fringe, with Japanese lanterns and upturned umbrellas.

On the floor, the throng skated backwards and forwards, played tag and cut fancy capers. Here Uncle Josh and Pumpkin Centre, with spreading paunch, wide hat and bright pink suit, pursued a dainty Irish colleen; Topsy's wildly-waving curl-papers bobbed along beside her polite escort, a smiling Japanese gentleman with a fan; an oilskin-clad fireman saisled away with his orange-paper companion, and a coal-black witch in flowing cape and pointed hat chatted brightly with a serious naval officer. Indian maidens, gypsies, fairies, a Chinese mandarin in purple and gold, a jockey girl with her faithful negro escort, an ebony gentleman in abbreviated skirts, woolly head and long earrings, a Scotch Highlander with a pink-clad fairy queen, Red Riding Hood in crimson suit, with basket over her arm, Pierrots without number, clowns of every description, Night gliding by with an orange and black hussar, one and all they added their gay colors, their masked and merry faces, to the brilliant scene. Panteloon escorted a harem lady in red and white, a ragged scarecrow toted his country charmer around the circling promenade, and a high-bred lady of olden days consorted with a daring cowboy in wide sombrero and fleecy "chaps." Charlie Chaplin and Happy Hooligan fell and rose and fell and rose again, as Charlie pursued his moustache, his cane and finally his hat through the maze of merry skaters, and a fat German gentleman with heavy meerschaum wandered along in the wake of a slim yellow sunflower. Here a midshipman gallantly piloted Britannia through the crush, and there a nondescript gentleman in high hat, short pants, green tie and flowing whiskers attempted to flirt with a haughty Colonial dame, while the "dude" reposed on the floor and unconcernedly adjusted his skates as the merry throng slid past.

The Prize-Winners.

The prizes, awarded by Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Perry and Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Cummer, went to the following lucky persons: Prize for best ladies' fancy costume, a silver tea service and tray: Mrs. H. McIlmoyle, as a "Queen"; best ladies' comic costume, a silver mesh bag, to Miss Annie Spenceley, as a comic caricature of an old-fashioned dame of quality; best gentleman's fancy costume, a library lamp, to Mr. Jack Murray, as a Zulu Chieftain; best gentleman's comic costume, solid gold cuff links with chip diamonds, to Mr. Joseph Spenceley, as a "Tramp."

"Little Red Riding Hood" was recommended by the judges as worthy of a prize, and the young lady masquerading in this costume can obtain same from Mr. Pitcher. The prize is a pretty chain and pendant.

Little Misses Isabel Glover and Hilda Sullivan, two dainty little maidens, escorted by Mrs. B. Singleton, gowned as a Dresden China lady, presented Mrs. Cummer and Mrs. Perry with lovely bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums at the conclusion of the judging.

MAY QUIT O.B.A.A.

The Toronto Amateur Baseball Association applied to the Ontario branch of the A.A.U. on Saturday for direct affiliation with the governing body, claiming that it had 1,400 ball players under its jurisdiction and it wanted power to deal with the union direct instead of through the O. B. A. A., whose method of transacting business has not been to the liking of the Toronto body. Owing to the late hour, the matter was not dealt with, but judging from the views expressed by some of the members of the amateur union, it is likely that the application will be favorably received.

Should the Toronto association be successful in its attempt, the Hamilton Amateur Baseball Association will make a similar application and the champions of the two cities will meet each year in a series of games for the intercity championship, ignoring the O. B. A. A. altogether. It is felt that such a series would provide the amateurs with plenty of baseball each season.

U.S. LEGION ACCLAIMS ALLIED EX-COMRADES.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund B. Edey announce the engagement of their second daughter, Eileen Sylvia, to Mr. Cecil C. Shaughnessy, the marriage to take place the early part of November.

About 150 members of the junior gymnasium classes and the junior clubs of the Y.W.C.A. had an uproarious party in the gymnasium of the Y.W.C.A. on Saturday afternoon. This is an annual affair at Hallowe'en, and is eagerly looked forward to by the little tots, most of whom were at hand before two o'clock, instead of the scheduled time of three p.m. Under the direction of Miss Jean McLaughlin, they played all sorts of rollicking games in the gym, had a grand march, followed by a picture taken on the lawn and partook of candy and apples at the end of a blissful afternoon. They appeared in all manner of costumes, gypsies, Pierrettes, Indian maids, Red Cross nurses, old men and women, fairies of all descriptions, Bo-Peeps, Red Riding Hoods, one was Miss Brittania, another was a white-clad ghost, and another was dressed as an old man, with black suit, slouching hat, and long gray whiskers.

The prizes Hallowe'en favors, went to Betty Manning as Columbine, Athene Doukas as a Greek girl, Georgie Hardill as Grandfather, and to small Eddie Reed, who impersonated a bespectacled Clown. Miss Greta Scarrow and Miss Jean Thompson, acted as judges.

Mr. Theodore H. Bird of New York City has arrived in the city to take charge of the rehearsals of the "Girl in Red" which is being presented by the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. on November 11 and 12 th.

Miss Eileen Craig, Stewart street has gone to Toronto for a visit.

The executive of the Women's Art Association were at home to members and would-be-members for a few pleasant hours on Saturday afternoon. The studio at the conservatory of Music was charmingly decorated with crepe paper, cut outs and tiny pumpkin lanterns in the Hallowe'en manner, and bowls of yellow marigolds, and the tea-table was effectively arranged with russet chrysanthemum and soft lights in silver candleabra.

Mrs. W. R. Widdiss acted as convenor, assisted by Mrs. F. C. Neal, Mrs. R. Gliddon, Mrs. W. Sangster, Miss Hatton, Miss Maude Rush and Miss Nan Hall, Mrs. H. Rush and Mrs. G. N. Gordon were in charge of the tea-table. Mrs. J. E. R. Munro and Miss Reinhardt also assisted

Some of those noticed during the afternoon were: Medames Wm. Blackwell, Eric Blackwell, J. C. Smith, Perks, R. J. Devey, Palmer, Waddell, Holmes, Gerald Wood, Basil Hall, Gemmell, E. Wood, Borbridge, G. R. Glover, Edwards, Porter, Cormack, Rollins, Cameron, Edwards, B. Fowler, W. H. Taylor, N. D. Seaton, Adrian MacDonald, Moir, McDougall, E. B. Fowler, Cruikshank, Morphet and Mrs. Lamb of Ottawa, the Missese Kingan, Rubidge, G. N. Scarrow, Florence, Cameron, Ella Edwards, and Miss Katherine E. Wallis.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Varcoe of Roseneath, spent Sunday with the latter's father, Mr. T. Morrison.

Miss Irene Craig, Stewart Street, is visiting her mother in Toronto.

Mrs. H. F. Foote returned home from the Lakes yesterday, and has closed the cottage, "Pine Holm," for the season.

At the tea dansant which is being given by the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. in the G.W.V.A. Hall next Saturday afternoon, Mrs. F. Mills, Mrs. Homer Meyers and Mrs. Gordon Matthews will act as hostesses. Miss Gladys Patterson will have charge of the dance. Those assisting will be the Misses Maida Connor, Dorothy Hill, Seabourne Hamilton, Audrey Huycke, Gladys Mulholland, Mary Harstone, Meta richardson, Helen Morrison, Jean Eastwood, Olga Johnston, Helen Howson, Florence Scott, Georgie Stevenson, Mamie Drope, Marion Greaves, and Celia Dunsford.

Miss Evelyn Bentley, accompanied by Miss Dagmar Koerling, of Minneapolis, have arrived in the city from England, and are staying with Mrs. Homer Meyers, Weller Street.

The Hallowe'en night celebrated at the Salvation Army Temple by a bean and brown bread social, was very much enjoyed. About 75 people attended, and helped to swell the proceeds for the building fund. An interesting musical programme was rendered by selections from the saxaphone quintette, a recitation by "Dad" Edmonson and euphonium solo by Master Tommy Payton. A special feature of the entertainment was the conducting of the saxaphone quintette by little three-year-old Billy Brooks, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Brooks, a little man, whose precocious musical ability is remarkable.

A masquerade social, under the auspices of the Epworth League of Trinity Methodist Church, was held last evening in the Reid Street Hall, attended by about 150 members and their friends. The evening was very enjoyably spent in games, music and the serving of dainty refreshments. A vocal solo was rendered by Miss Doris Pilling, and Miss L. Thomas gave a reading. Mr. Malott, pastor of Trinity Church, whose birthday falls on this date, was presented with an appropriate Hallowe'en gift by the assemblage, who sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," in honor of the occasion. The many varied and beautiful costumes received much favorable comment, first prize for a "Gensy" impersonation going to Miss Pearl Lapp.

The Holy Name Society were at home to their friends at St. Alphonsus Lyceum last evening for a Hallowe'en party. The large rooms were prettily decorated with seasonal flowers and favors. Mrs. Jas. O'Brien, Mrs. Jas. Fitzgerald, Mrs. J. P. Finn and Mrs. W. J. Young were in charge of arrangements. Cards and dancing and dainty refreshments were enjoyed during the evening. Prizes for cards were won by Mrs. W. Gallagher and Mr. Wm. Gallagher. Excellent music was provided by Messrs. Frank Grady and Thos. Taylor.

Mr. W. S. Merrell motored to Toronto yesterday to meet Mrs. Merrell and her sister, Mrs. Fitzgerald, returning from a three months' trip to the Coast. The party were accompanied from Toronto by Mrs. A. L. Brown and Mrs. T. Irwin, who will spend some time with Mr. and Mrs. Merrell.

Mrs. W. D. Scott entertained the choir of Murray Street Baptist Church at her home last evening. She was assisted by Mrs. Joseph Wearing. The house was beautifully decorated with all sorts of Hallowe'en novelties, and a very pleasant evening was spent in games, music, and the enjoyment of dainty refreshments. Recitations, instrumental and vocal solos were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. C. Westbrook, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Graham, Mrs. J. A. Morgan, Mr. Asa Huycke, and Mr. Walter Fitzgerald.

COAL FAMINE THREATENS AS WINTER NEARS

GROWING OUTLAW MINERS' STRIKE AND EXISTING FUEL SHORTAGE COMBINE TO PRODUCE SERIOUS SITUATION.

20,000 MINERS HAVE DROPPED TOOLS ALREADY

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(By United Press.)—On the verge of winter, America was threatened with a fuel famine to-day.

The growing outlaw strike of union miners, combined with the existing shortage in coal supply, produced a situation generally regarded as serious.

More than 20,000 miners already have quit work in Ohio, Illinois and Indiana in protest against the Federal injunction abolishing the "check-off" system of collecting union dues.

The fact that officials of the United Mine Workers in Indianapolis had instructed the 35,000 members of that organization to retard operations in compliance with the injunction as a violation of the present contracts which terminate in March, was looked upon as an invitation to a general walk-out.

Bituminous supplies were far below normal because of the refusal of the public to buy during the summer. Most operators lack storage facilities and their production depends upon an active market.

The "check off" system which has brought about a crisis between the coal miners of the country, their employers and Federal court is the method used to collect union dues.

Mine operators withhold the union man's dues from his pay and turn it over to union headquarters. This is the only method by which the closed shop can be enforced in the industry, Union heads claim.

Enough For Three Weeks.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.— The nation has a reserve supply of coal sufficient to last from three weeks to two months, if production is halted by the big strike, figures obtained to-day from Government sources and the National Coal Association showed.

With the first touches of winter already here, the coal reserve situation, as summarized by the National Coal Association follows:

1—Household consumers have not stocked their bins heavily, but there is available in retail yards, the country over, a sufficient supply to last on an average of three weeks. Taken together, the stocks in bins and yards will average approximately a six weeks to months supply.

2—Public utilities have reserves sufficient to last from 2 to 4 months on the average.

3—The railroads have approximately a six weeks' supply, with another week's supply on wheels.

4—Industries have been buying slowly and have only small reserves supplies.

Taken as a whole, the Association said, the public utilities and the railroad systems are vastly better equipped with coal reserves than are other consumers.

Irish Parley Near Collapse; Election To Follow Break

BY ED. L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, November 2. — The Irish peace negotiations had reached such a critical stage to-day that both factions predicted their collapse.

Should the conference be broken off, it was learned authoritatively, Premier Lloyd-George would tender his own and his Cabinet's resignations, and go before the British people in a general election on the Irish issue.

ENTRIES FOR ROAD RACE CLOSE TOMORROW NIGHT

VALUABLE PRIZES FOR EXAMINER'S SPRINTING EVENT

Entries for the Examiner road race close to-morrow night at 10 p.m. and if entries are not in by then it will be the unpleasant duty of the committee to exclude some of the belated entrants. If entries are not in writing they are as useless as if not submitted at all. Blanks are printed in the Examiner, and these must be used. Charlie Thorpe has had a number of verbal entries made to him. These cannot count, and those who made them must fill in the proper blanks. To-morrow is the last day, and C. Thorpe at Grant and Thorpe's, 418 George street, and Douglas Loomis at the Y.M.C.A., are prepared to accept written entries up to 10 p.m. at night. After that there will be no come-back for those who, having had ample warning, have failed to make their entries properly.

The first five prizes in the events are:

Senior Events.

1st—Gold Waltham watch.
2nd—Diamond amethyst tie-pin.
3rd—Gold signet ring.
4th—Umbrella.
5th—Safety razor.

Junior Event.

1st—Silver watch.
2nd—Baby Ben clock and silver pencil case.
3rd—Gillette safety razor.
4th—Focusing flashlight.
5th—Running shoes.

The Y.M.C.A. has given a membership ticket as a prize to the first senior to finish who is not a Y.M.C.A. member, and a similar prize for the juniors. Other valuable prizes have been donated as special awards, and any runner who finishes having a chance to win one. It is a fine prize list throughout.

AFTERNOON SKATING AT ROLLER ACADEMY

CONTEST TO-MORROW EVENING FOR BEST LADY AND GENTLEMAN SKATING IN COUPLES —BEGINNERS.

There was a very large attendance yesterday afternoon at the Roller Rink. A great many who have the time are using the afternoons to become proficient skaters.

In the evening there was another large crowd participating in the block contest, the winners of which were Miss Jackson and Mr. Edey.

To-morrow (Thursday) night the contest will be held for the best lady and gentleman skating in couples. Only those who have learned to skate this year will take part.

The Roller Skating Academy is a very pleasant, well conducted place of amusement. Band every evening and Saturday afternoon. (Adv.)

RANGERS NEAR STRENGTH, NOW HAVE 230 MEN

LARGE NUMBER OF RETURNED MEN JOINING REGIMENT, SAY OFFICERS — WEEKLY RARADE LAST NIGHT.

PIPE BAND EAGERLY AWAIT THEIR UNIFORMS

Slowly but surely the Peterboro Rangers are coming up to strength, and the records show there are now 230 men with some 30 officers.

Last night they held their weekly parade, and seven new men, most of whom are returned soldiers, were sworn in. Twelve men were posted to companies. Those posted were:

W. M. Hales, D Co.
W. H. Harrington, D Co.
W. T. Armstrong, D Co.
G. H. Moore, D Co.
G. A. Moore, D Co.
A. G. McPherson, D Co.
J. M. Allen, B Co.
S. Calladine, C Co.
J. Gaskell, A Co.
Sam Berry, Stretcher Bearer.
H. Simmonds, Pioneer, H.Q.

Those who were sworn in last night were W. D. Hawley, C Co., V. H. Howland, C Co., C. Fairbairn, C Co., A. Johnson, Signals; Harold Brady, B Co., L. D. Gregory, B Co., C. A. McPherson, A Co.

Private Samuel Calladine was promoted to sergeant in C Co., and Private Joseph Gaskell was made sergeant in A Co., succeeding Acting Sergeant Gibbs, who has been transferred to headquarters.

It is gratifying to the officers to find so many returned men joining up. Sergt. Gaskell has a fine record with the 3rd, 5th Royal North Lancashire in France, serving from 1915. Private Samuel Berry was with the Royal Engineer Stretcher Bearers, from April of 1915. Private H. Simmonds has had 4 years previous experience with the 57th, was 9 years in the R.C.H.A., serving overseas four years with this artillery. W. D. Hawley was a signaller in the 93rd, and was three years and five months overseas. Harry Kelsey served with the Second Battalion, four years and eight months, and C. A. McPherson was five years with the 21st Battalion.

Reinforcements such as these are what the battalion needs. Experienced soldiers are a tower of strength to the unit and an encouragement to the young men.

Company Inspection.

Company inspection took place at 8 to 8.10. At 8.10 Lt.-Col. A. W. McPherson inspected the regiment, and at 8.15 the march out took place.

Led by the Bugle band and Pipe band, the unit marched down George street to Charlotte, Charlotte to Water, Water to Simcoe, Simcoe to George and, and thence to the armouries.

The unit had a smart appearance, and when they marched on the main street their appearance was favorably commented on by old soldiers.

Lt.-Col. McPherson dismissed the battalion when they returned to the armouries and the rest of the evening was spent in a social and recreational way. An indoor baseball match was staged between the officers and men, and a shooting competition between the sergeants and the officers.

The buck privates were served coffee and sandwiches and a very happy time was spent.

The Pipe band under Pipe Major J. Thom, are eagerly awaiting their new uniforms, which the militia department have been preparing. Meanwhile the band is rapidly getting into condition. The Bugle band, under Acting-Sergeant Kenneth Brown, is adding to its numbers and new calls and beats are rapidly being mastered.

WALTER SMAILL COMING HERE AS DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS FOR P.A.A.

he Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association is able to announce today that Walter Smaill, of Winnipeg, will come to this city to direct the activities of the Association. To-day, through the medium of the important newspapers of the Dominion, a similar announcement will be made, as a result of which Peterborough gets back into prominence in the arena of sport.

Mr. Smaill will be here, probably in two weeks' time, and will be introduced to the public at the big theatre night, which is being arranged for, under the auspices of the Association.

The executive of the Association feel that they have done something in a big way for Peterborough. Mr. Smaill is a big man in his profession and he knows that he is coming to a live city. All the Association ask is a continuance of the splendid support accorded them in their work of receiving memberships.

BEATTY AND FOCH IMPRESSED AFTER VIEWING AMERICA

"LARGE BUILDINGS, BUSINESS METHODS AND AMBITIONS," SAYS FOCH.

KANSAS CITY, November 2 (Canadian Press). — In an impression of his visit to the United States, Lord Beatty to-day said, "You Americans have a splendid sense of fairness, and we, Britain, rejoice that you are bound to us by the same language and the same blood ties."

Marshal Foch said that the two things which impressed him were the youthfulness of the people and the tremendous proportions on which things were done. "You have large buildings, large business methods, and large ambitions."

DEEP WATERWAYS ELECTS OFFICERS

HAMILTON, Nov. 2. Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association to-day elected the following officers:

W. M. Germain, Welland, Hon. President; Sir Adam Beck, London, and Mayor Church, Toronto, Hon. Vice-Presidents; O. E. Fleming, Windsor, President; E. L. Cousens, Toronto, George Guy, Hamilton, Geo Graham, Fort William, and T. R. Deacon, Winnipeg, Vice-Presidents; Alec Lewis, Toronto, Secretary; Frank Keefer, Port Arthur, C. S. OSHAWA LADIES GUESTS OF GOLDEN LINK LODGE.

The regular meeting of the Golden Link Lodge, No. 81, was held in the Oddfellows' Hall last evening, with an attendance of nearly 200 members, including about 35 members from Oshawa, who attended to put degree work on for the benefit of several new members initiated last evening into the mysteries of Order.

The Oshawa delegation of ladies was headed by Mr. Caverly as degree captain, assisted by Mr. Samuel Mitchell.

During the evening, Mrs. P. Hannah, who has for several years filled the position of organist for the local lodge, and who is leaving the city, was presented with a handsome wrist watch.

Mrs. B. Watt read the address which accompanied it, and Miss Belle Brealey made the presentation.

Dancing, and a banquet which was presided over by Mrs. E. Sisson, the Noble Grand, concluded the programme.

DRAW ATTENTION OF CHINA TO ITS DEFAULT.

WASHINGTON, November 2 (Canadian Press). — The attention of the Chinese Government has been directed to the seriousness of the failure of that Government to meet its obligations in connection with the payment of the principal and the semi-annual interest on the $5,500,000 loan extended by the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Company of Chicago.

THE WEATHER

The rainfall last month totalled 4 inches and 30-10ths. There was rain on 17 days during the month. Both in the number of days that rain fell and in the amount, it was over double that of October of last year. There are no signs as yet of the approach of winter in the Northwest or in New Ontario, the recent snow storms in those sections having given way to much better weather conditions. More severe weather with snow storms have prevailed in the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, but those sections do not have any effect on conditions here —W. P.

TECHNICAL SCHOOL QUESTION IS AGAIN MET WITH INACTION; MATTER DEFERRED UNTIL 1922

MOTION TO APPOINT COMMITTEE TO ENQUIRE INTO FEASIBILITY OF COMBINED TECHNICAL SCHOOL AND COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE IS AMENDED AFTER MUCH DISCUSSION, TO PROVIDE THAT NO ACTION BE TAKEN AT PRESENT.

A meeting of the Board of Education took place last evening, with Dr. F. C. Neal in the chair. There were present: Mrs. W. R. Morris, Messrs. R. Denne, E. G. Patterson, J. M. Greene, J. A. McKone, J. W. Worth, A. A. Fowler, and Mr. G. H. Thompson, secretary. School Inspector A. Mowat and Mr. Jos. Crowe also attended the meeting.

Communications were read as follows: From Miss Mabel B. Dorman, tendering her resignation from the staff of the Public Schools, resignation to take effect at the end of the term; from Mr. Hutchinson, Inspector of Public Schools in Southern Ontario, tendering the thanks of the teachers from that district who visited Peterborough recently, both of which were received. A letter from the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council, recording a resolution of that body, recommending that a public meeting be called in the interests of a Technical School for Peterborough was read. The secretary was instructed to write the Trades and Labor Council that this matter should be referred to the Mayor of the city.

A letter from the Y.W.C.A., explaining that it was necessary to raise the rental fee for use of their gymnasium by Collegiate Institute pupils from $10 to $30 per annum was received, and the increase authorized by the Supervision Committee.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman wrote, declining his recent nomination to the Advisory Industrial Committee Board, on the ground of being unfamiliar with the work of this committee.

Miss F. D. Walker, secretary of the Teachers' Institute, wrote, thanking the Board for the grant made for the recent visiting teachers' entertainment, and, in a second communication, enclosed a copy of a resolution recently passed by the convention of city and county teachers here, which unanimously opposed the introduction of penny banks into the schools, for reasons already itemized in these columns.

A letter from Dr. A. W. McPherson reported that as a result of swabs taken in the schools, in connection with the epidemics of scarlet fever and diphtheria, forty cases of "carriers" had been reported to the health officers and five families had been excluded from school as a result of five children being discovered with symptoms of scarlet fever. The work of examination will continue until all need of same is past.

Re Technical Education.

Dr. F. C. Neal reported as follows:

"At the meeting of the whole Board, held on Monday, October 24th, at which seven members were present, it was decided to recommend as follows: That this committee recommend to the Board the appointment of a special committee; two members to be appointed by the Board of Education, and two to be appointed by the Advisory Industrial Committee, the two appointed by the latter to be members of the Board of Education, the committee to have power to engage an architect and to report as to the feasibility of a combined Collegiate and Technical School, with not less than the minimum number of class-rooms as outlined by Mr. Kenner and Dr. Marchant, viz., 21."

In the discussion that followed the reading of this report, Mr. E. G. Patterson declared that sufficient thought had not been given the matter. He considered that the building of a combination building would be bad business for Peterborough. The city, in his opinion, was already overburdened with taxes, and he was opposed to the erection of a combination building. He was in favor of an addition to the present Collegiate Institute, as he thought there were numbers of children desiring to attend a high school, and, if the Board did not provide accommodation for them shortly, it would be forced to do so. He felt that rooms to take care of academic training only should be put up in the Collegiate. The county pupils are now paying $25 per year, but the law says that if we can take care of the county pupils, we will receive 80 per cent., or a sum equivalent to $80 per year per pupil.

In connection with technical and vocational training, Mr. Patterson thought that the people of this city did not understand what this means in its last analysis, that is, the average property owner with children going to school. Most of them think that if their children attend a vocational or technical school, they will be fit to hang out a shingle immediately as a doctor or a dentist, which, in the speaker's opinion, was all nonsense. They would in reality only get what the average apprentice in the shops gets, plus a little grammar, etc. The speaker considered that the addition to the Institute should be proceeded with, and then it would be time enough to come to the citizens for a Technical School. He therefore moved an amendment that the report be not acted upon, but be referred to the Board of Education for next year.

Mr. Worth's Remarks.

Mr. J. W. Worth took exception to Mr. Patterson's statement that enough had not been taken with regard to this matter. He thought that each member of the Board had given the subject extra careful consideration. With regard to the allowance for county pupils, Mr. Patterson had forgotten that the combined school proposed would take care of these pupils in their entirety, as it would also take care of the technical department recommended by Dr. Merchant. Although Mr. Worth was enthusiastic over the question of technical education, he realized that it would be more or less of an experiment in Peterborough. He would not wish to try it on too magnificent a scale and have the project fall through, but felt that the proposition for a combination building would meet all requirements in Peterborough at the present time. He felt that every class of citizen in the city was entitled to the education necessary for their future welfare, and maintained that the ordinary collegiate education was not sufficient for the working man's child. He should have an all-round education, and if technical training were included in this, he would be better equipped for his life-work. An apprentice in his early years in most shops would only get the same theoretical education as he would get in a school of this sort.

Further Discussion.

Mrs. Morris reminded the meeting that Dr. Merchant had cut down the Department demands to the bone in connection with the proposed technical work in Peterborough. Two shops instead of three would be allowed, these to be erected over the gymnasium, which was an absolute necessity in any case, one laboratory instead of two might be erected, and for the erection, allowance of fifty per cent. would be made by the Government, with the fifty to seventy-five per cent. allowance for maintenance of teaching staff. The influx of adolescents of fifteen and sixteen into classes of children between twelve and fourteen was referred to as a problem in many schools, a problem which would gradually increase in volume as the Act was more strictly enforced, unless provision was were made for their proper tuition.

Mr. Denne asked Mr. Mowat for his opinion with regard to the adolescent problem, and, on a direct question from Mr. Worth, Mr. Mowat reported that there were a number of adolescents who had not passed the entrance examination in Peterborough, who were required under the Act to attend further school classes, but some of them had obtained exemption. The only solution, in his mind, was the formation of ungraded classes to take care of this problem. He considered that the attitude of the Board and the appointment of an attendance officer who might or might not be lenient in his judgments, constituted the principal factor in the situation.

Mr. J. M. Greene remarked that a point emphasized by Dr. Merchant in his report was the necessity for a hearty sympathy between the technical and academic departments of a combination school of the sort proposed. He considered that the city was not yet ready for such an undertaking, and referred to the difficulty of procuring teachers for this class of tuition. Mr. Mowat should be requested to submit a report on the adolescent question before action was taken.

The amendment, made by Mr. Patterson and seconded by Mr. Denne, stood as follows: That the recommendation of the special committee be not acted upon at present; that the matter be referred to the Board of Education for next year, and that, in the meantime, Mr. Mowat bring in a report with regard to adolescents. A show of hands was called for, and the amendment carried. Mrs. W. R. Morris, who voted for it, explained that she consider-

ALLIANCE BRASS COMPANY LIMITED

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that under the First Part of Chapter 79 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, known as "The Companies Act," and amending Acts, letters patent have been issued under the Seal of the Secretary of State of Canada, bearing date the 18th day of November, 1921, incorporating George Newcombe Gordon and Joseph Aloysius O'Brien, solicitors, Maude Leahy and Jessie Stevens, stenographers, and Robena Hardwick, book-keeper, all of the City of Peterborough, in the Province of Ontario, for the following purposes, viz.:

(A) To engage in the business of metal founders, and to manufacture, buy and sell and otherwise deal in and with metal and metal goods and products of all and every description and kind, and to engage in the business of wholesale and retail merchants in general merchandise, and in manufacturing of all kinds;

(B) To pay out of the funds of the company, all or any of the expenses incidental to the formation and organization thereof, and to employ, contract with and provide for the remuneration of brokers, commission agents and underwriters upon any issue of shares, bonds, debentures, debenture stock or other securities of the company;

(C) To carry on any other business (whether manufacturing or otherwise) which may seem to the company capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with its business or calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of or render profitable any of the company's property or rights;

(D) To acquire or undertake the whole or any part of the business, property and liabilities of any person or company carrying on any business which the company is authorized to carry on, or possessed of property suitable for the purposes of the company;

(E) To apply for, purchase or otherwise acquire, any patents, formulae, process, licenses, concessions and the like, conferring any exclusive or non-exclusive, or limited right to use, or any secret or other information as to any inventions, formulae, process, which may seem capable of being used for any of the purposes of the company, or the acquisition of which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to benefit the company, and to use, exercise, develop or grant licenses in respect of, or otherwise turn to account the property, rights information so acquired;

(F) To enter into partnership or into any arrangement for sharing of profits, union of interests, co-operations, joint adventure, reciprocal concession or otherwise, with any person or company carrying on or engaged in or about to carry on or engage in any business or transaction which the company is authorized to carry on or engage in, or any business or transaction capable of being conducted so as to directly or indirectly to benefit the company; and to lend money to, guarantee the contracts of, or otherwise assist any such person or company, and to take or otherwise acquire shares and securities of any such company, and to sell, hold, re-issue, with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal with the same;

(G) To take or otherwise acquire and hold shares in any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company or carrying on any business capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit the company;

(H) To enter into any arrangements with the authorities, municipal, local or otherwise, that may seem conducive to the company's objects, or any of them, and to obtain from any such authority any rights, privileges and concessions which the company may think it desirable to obtain, and to carry out, exercise and comply with any such arrangements, rights, privileges and concessions;

(I To establish and support or aid in the establishment and support of associations, institutions, funds, trusts and conveniences calculated to benefit employees or ex-employees of the company (or its predecessors in business) or the dependents or connections of such persons, and to grant pensions and allowances, and to make payments towards insurances, and to subscribe or guarantee money for charitable or benevolent objects; or for any public, general or useful object;

(J) To promote any company or companies for the purpose of acquiring all or any of the property and liabilities of the company, or for any other purpose, which may seem directly or indirectly calculated to benefit the company;

(K) To purchase, take on lease or in exchange, hire or otherwise acquire, any personal property and any rights or privileges which the company may think necessary or convenient for the purposes of its business, and in particular any machinery, plant, stock-in-trade;

(L) To construct, improve, maintain, work, manage, carry out or control any roads, ways, branches or aidings, bridges, reservoirs, watercourses, wharves, manufactories, warehouses, electric works, shops, stores and other works and conveniences which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to advance the company's interests, and to contribute to, subsidize or otherwise assist or take part in the construction, improvement, maintenance, working, management, carrying out or control thereof;

(M) To lend money to customers and others having dealings with the company, and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such persons;

(N) To draw, make, accept, endorse, execute and issue promissory notes, bills of exchange, bills of lading, warrants and other negotiable or transferable instruments;

(O) To sell or dispose of the undertaking of the company or any part thereof for such consideration as the company may think fit, and in particular for shares, debentures or securities of any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company;

(P) To apply for, secure, acquire by assignment, transfer, purchase or otherwise, and to exercise, carry out and enjoy any charter, license, power, authority, franchise, concession, rights or privilege, which any government or authority, or any corporation or other public body may be empowered to grant, and to pay for, aid in, and contribute towards carrying the same into effect, and to appropriate any of the company's shares, bonds and assets to defray the necessary costs, charges and expenses thereof;

(Q) To procure the company to be registered and recognized in any foreign country and to designate persons therein according to the laws of such foreign country to represent this company and to accept service for and on behalf of the company of any process or suit;

(R) To raise and assist in raising money for, and to aid, by way of bonus, loan, promise, endorsement, guarantee of bonds, debentures or other securities or otherwise, any other company or corporation with which the company may have business relations, and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such company, corporation, or by any other person or persons;

(S) To adopt such means of making known the products of the company as may seem expedient, and in particular by advertising in the press, by circulars, by purchase and exhibition of works of art or interest, by publication of books and periodicals and by granting prizes, rewards and donations;

(T) To sell, improve, manage, develop, exchange, lease, dispose of, turn to account or otherwise deal with all or any part of the property and rights of the company;

SIGNS OF COMMERCIAL REVIVAL ARE EVIDENT.

Healthier Tone Apparent Throughout Egypt.

CAIRO, Egypt Nov. 2.—Signs of a commercial revival are seen by business and shipping communities in Egypt. After months of depression, they say, there has came a healther tone of confidence and optimism which is most encouraging. The feeling prevails among the business interests that the late fall will ste the country back to normal and healty trade.

The Egyptian public is wearying of the discussions of the country's future political status and is showing far more interest in the price of cotton which is the barometer of commercial activity.

Throughout the spring and summer, the large hold-over from last years cotton crop acted as a damper on the business community which feared a further restriction of the Egyptians purchasing capacity. Efforts have been made to relieve that situation. Prominent groups of Egyptian cotton growers have visited England and told the cotton spinners of Manchester that Egypt will not continue to grow cotton for unremunerative prices.

The Egyptian government has officialy restricted the area of cotton cultivation, and as a result, this seasons crop is considerably less than the average. In addition, the crop has suffered this year more severely than usual from the boll weevil.

Owing in part to these reasons and in part to the rise in American cotton, the Egyptian crop nearly doubled in price. Consequently, optimism prevails among the growers and shippers.

PREMIER IS TO-DAY IN CAMPBELLFORD

NORTHUMBERLAND TOWN EXPECTS IMMENSE CROWD AT ARENA.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2. — Miss Annie and Jennie Martin spent Friday and Saturday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bland, Master Percy and Mrs. John Oliver motored to Hollaway on Sunday and visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hay, and Mr. and Mrs. William Oliver, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Campbell, Holloway.

The Seymour West Woman's Institute met at the home of Miss Gertrude McCullough Thursday afternoon, October 27th, a large number being present.

Some important business matters were discussed regarding visiting the schools, prizes for rural fairs, and a generous donation is being sent to the Navy League of Canada. Miss Mabelle Rutherford, and Mrs. Robt. McCullough were appointed delegates to the annual convention held at Toronto from November 14th to 17th. An instrumental selection was rendered, after which an excellent lunch was served by the hostess and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Premier Meighen Will Visit Town.

Extensive preparations are under way for the reception of the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen and Hon. J. A. Stewart upon their visit to town on Wednesday, where they will address a mass meeting in the Arena. A half holiday has been proclaimed by the Mayor, and it is expected that one of the largest crowds ever seen in town will be present to hear the Premier discuss the important issues of the day. While in town the Premier and party will be entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Carnahan.

Hallowe'en.

Hallowe'en was duly observed in town Monday night by the young folks, who made their annual masquerade in some original costumes. The boys had a plasant evening with lots of innocent fun. There was the absence of any harmful pranks, when the ghosts and spirits were let loose.

Lecture, "The Man in the Moon."

On Monday evening, November 14th, the Rev. F. E. Malott, B.A., B.D., of Trinity church, Peterborough, will give a lecture, "The Man in the Moon," in the Methodist church, under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Society. Mrs. King, soloist in Trinity church, will contribute toward the musical part of the programme.

FOXBORO NEWS

FOXBORO, Nov. 2.—A convention in the Methodist Church here recently was largely attended.

General Strike of Coal Miners Seems Inevitable

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., November 2 (Canadian Press). — A general strike of coal miners in the United States seemed inevitable last night, if operators heed the injunction issued by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson, which prescribed the "check-off" of union dues.

A telegram sent late yesterday from headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America after it had been definitely learned that the injunction was not yet in effect, advised union officials to regard discontinuation of the "check off" as breaking the existing wage agreement.

The telegram, signed by President John Lewis, Vice-president M. Gray, and Secretary John Green, said:

"Any abrogation or setting aside of any part or section of this agreement, including the section providing for the checking off of dues and assessments cannot be regarded as other than a violation of the agreement, and should be treated accordingly by the district officers and local unions."

While no course of conduct for union officials was outlined by the telegram, it was said authoritatively that the international officers regarded the strike as the union's only weapon to enforce a contract. The telegram was sent to officials in sixteen States, where the check-off provision obtains and where 350,000 of the 550,000 union miners are employed.

TELEGRAPH AND CABLE NEWS

FIND WRECKED HULL OF LOST SAILING SHIP.

MILWAUKET, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press). — The remains of the hull of the sailing vessel Rosabelle, wrecked in Lake Michigan Sunday with the probable loss of its crew of nine, was discovered twenty miles off Kenosha yesterday by the crew of the Cumberland, of the United States Engineers' Corps at Milwaukee. No bodies were found. The United States revenue cutter Tuscarora was despatched to bring in the derelict.

FIGHT PICTURES CAUSE PROMOTER TO BE FINED.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Tex Rickard, promoter of the Dempsey-Carpentier heavyweight championship fight, yesterday was fined $500 and costs by Federal Judge Carpenter, after entering a plea of guilty on charges of transporting motion pictures of the contest into Illinois from New York. Rickard will be able to display the pictures in Chicago and other cities in the State without further prosecution, it was said.

STILL SEARCH FOR BODIES OF FISHERMEN.

ANGLESEA, N.J., Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Coastguards were still searching last night for the bodies of eight of the eleven fishermen who lost their lives off Hereford Inlet late Monday, when their boats were capsized during a severe "south-easter."

Three bodies were washed ashore early yesterday, but efforts are being made to reach one of the battered fishing smacks, which ran aground on a bar, in the belief that more bodies might be found on it. High seas made the approach to the wreck a hazardous task.

The fishermen left here to raise their nets for the winter, in accordance with Government regulations. When they were returning in two boats, which had been lashed together to carry the eighty-foot net poles, the men were caught by the storm several miles from shore.

Both boats, according to fishermen here, were dashed to pieces by the high seas while trying to cross the bar. One of them was tossed up on the beach with the three bodies. Hope of reaching the other before it is completely demolished was waning last night when the sea failed to calm down.

ALLIES IN AGREEMENT OVER HUNGARIAN SITUATION

PRAGUE, Czecho-Sloakia, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Pdess).—The Allies and the Little Entente have reached an agreement on the essentials for discussing the details of the Hungarian situation. The Council of Ambassadors replied Monday to the note of the Little Entente, acceeding to most of the demands and undertaking to convey them to the Budapest Government.

The elimination of the Hapsburgs as rulers met with no basic opposition on the part of the Allies, although their removal was not stipulated in the peace treaty. It was pointed out, however, that the question of a Hungarian ruler still remains open.

LORD LEE CONFIDENT PARLEYS WILL SUCCEED

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Confidence that much good would come out of the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments was expressed by delegates from Italy, Great Britain and China on their arrival here yesterday on the the Olympic.

Lord Lee of Fareham, First Lord of the British Admiralty, in a formal statement, said:

"So far as I am concerned, and here I speak not only as the responsible head of the British Admiralty, but as one of the official delegates, I come in a spirit of quiet confidence that the results of this conference will be such as to amply justify President Hardings far-seeing initiative, and, personally I am not prepared even to contemplate the possibility of failure. To do so would be to assume that the world was afflicted with an incurable insanity and could not be restrained from suicide."

PRINCE OF WALES OPENS MALTESE PARLIAMENT

MALTA, Nov. 2. — (Canadian Press.)— The Prince of Wales, on his way to India on the battle cruiser Renown, opened the new Maltese Parliament yesterday. The event marks the introduction of a new type of government in Malta, based on the principle of responsible self-government, subject to definite limitations laid down in the interests of Imperial security.

The main principle is the establishment of two concurrent governmental systems, one for local affairs under the complete legislative and administrative control, of the Maltese people, and another for matters of Imperial concern, taking orders from the Imperial Government.

SIR H. L. SMITH ECONOMIC ADVISER

LONDON, Nov. 2. — (Canadian Press.) — Sir Hubert Llewellyn Smith, attached to the British Empire delegation, will be charged with the duty of advising the delegation on economic matters arising at the Washington conference on limitation of armaments and Far Eastern problems. In answer to a question, Austen Chamberlain, Government leader in the House of Commons, so informed the House.

IRISH BULLETIN ON PREMIER'S ADDRESS.

DUBLIN, Nov. 2. — (Canadian Press).—The Irish Bulletin, commenting on Mr. Lloyd George's speech in the Commons Monday, expresses regret that he failed to see the facts eighteen months ago, when the repressive policy was launched, in the light he now views them.

The Bulletin declines to attach over-much importance to the Prime Minister's allusions to the deciding factors regarding renewal of warfare, and reserves its strongest criticism for his declaration that any settlement must be submitted for detailed examination by Parliament, which it considers will tend gravely to endanger any fruitful results of the conference.

FULL CONFERENCE NOT TO BE CALLED YET.

LONDON, Nov. 2. — (Canadian Press).—The business of the Irish conference continues to be conducted by four delegates, and it was stated last night that there was no intention of summoning a full conference for several days.

At Sinn Fein headquarters no immediate breakdown is expected, and there is no question of the delegates leaving London this week.

The Cabinet met in two successive councils yesterday, presumably in connection with Irish affairs, and arrangements for the Prime Mini-

A MASQUERADE AT COLDSPRINGS

JOLLY HALLOWE'EN EVENING IN SUNDAY SCHOOL HALL

COLDSPRINGS, Nov. 2.—A very enjoyable Hallowe'en masquerade was held in the Coldsprings Sunday School Hall on Monday, when about one hundred masqueraders participated in a merry evening. The characters represented were varied and fun-provoking, including witches and ghosts, Old Dutch, a gipsy, Topsy, a rooster, a little boy with two heads, hobos, Aunt Dinah, Red Cross nurse, Queen Elizabeth, Red Riding Hood, soldiers and sailors, old grandmas and a goodly bunch of niggers.

A number of inviting games were played and an abundance of good things to eat were served in the basement by young ladies of the Sunday School.

The proceeds of a silver collection will go to the building fund.

The judges of the characters impersonated were: Miss Bennett, Miss J. Gillespie and Mr. Geo. Gillespie.

Prizes were awarded to the following:

Lady's—Miss M. McBirnie (Old Dutch).

Gentleman's—Mr. Alex. Huston (a hobo).

Girl's—Miss B. Breckenbridge (Aunt Dinah).

Boy's—Master Harold Rylott (two-headed boy).

Comic—Mrs. Stokes (rooster).

Smallest masquerade — Master John Kitney (sailor boy).

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

SEVERAL HALLOWE'EN PARTIES IN TOWN—GIFTS FOR CHURCH

MILLBROOK, Nov. 2.—A very handsome Altar-Desk and also an Alms' Basin, both suitably engraved, were recently presented to St. John's Chruch, Ida, by Mr. William Lough and his family, in memory of the late Mrs. Lough, who was greatly attached to this church and had been connected with it during practically the whole of her life.

The Rector, Rev. Canon Allen, dedicated the gifts on the Sunday following their being placed in the church.

Mr. and Mrs Lockwood, and their two children, motored over from Lindsay on Saturday and spent the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Stinson.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Birchard and their little daughter, Miss May, spent the week-end visiting friends in Lindsay, Oakwood and Cambray.

Mr. Wiliam Pendrie has moved this week into his house on King street recently vacated by Mr. W. I. Collins.

Hallowe'en Social

A very enjoyable Hallowe'en Social evening was held by the Senior League of the Methodist Church on Monday, October 31st, at 8 p.m. There was quite a large number of young people in attendance, the rooms were appropriately decorated and a good programme suitable to the occasion, was given by members of both the Senior and Junior Leagues.

The whole programme was arranged in the form of an "Apple Evening", and for the social part those present were divided into four groups each marked by the color of the paper apple pinned on as they came in the door; this apple also acting, as a score-card to keep count of the number of points gained in the various contests.

A different "stunt" such as carving a face on an apple using only a fruit-knife, guessing silhouettes, etc., was prepared for each group, and after a stated time each must move on to the next in order, till all had been tried. An apple-shaped silk pin-cushion was the prize given to the one having the highest number of points. Miss Gladys Tucker and Mr. Arnold Raper having an equal number. Miss Gladys had the honor of carrying home the stated reward.

Apples were also served as refreshments, and the singing of the National Anthem brought a very successful evening to a close.

Attended Meeting.

Rev. S. T. Tucker of Millbrook, and Rev. Mr. Rorke of Cavan, were amongst those attending a special ministerial meeting held at the Parsonage of the George street Methodist Church, Peterboro, on Tuesday, November 1st, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. thirteen ministers of the Peterboro District being in attendance. Rev. Mr. Tucker was to have led the discussion following a paper on "The Church and Evangelism" given at the morning session by Rev. S. F. Dixon, of Lakefield, but unfortunately Mr. Tucker was unable until the afternoon.

Hallowe'en gatherings seemed to be the order of the day on Monday, October 31st., and one of the best attended, and most enjoyabe, was that given under the auspices of the "Canadian Girls in Training" in the Presbyterian Church at 8 p.m.

The room was appropriately decorated, an excellent programme provided and several interesting Hallowe'en contests enjoyed besides ghost stories being related with only

OTTAWA MOURNS WIFE OF GREAT LIBERAL CHIEF

SAYS HER DEATH MARKS CLOSE ON GREAT PERIOD

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.— (By Canadian Press.)—Ottawa is in mourning for Lady Laurier, who was called by death at 11.45 yesterday. Messages are being received from all parts of the world, expressing regret at the departure of the venerable and noble-hearted widow of the former Premier of Canada and great Liberal chieftain.

The funeral will be held from her residence, 335 Laurier Avenue East, to Sacred Heart Church at nine o'clock Friday morning. Lady Laurier will be laid to rest in Notre Dame Cemetery beside the remains of her illustrious husband, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, whose death on February 17, 1919, broke a happy partnership of more than fifty years' duration.

DISCUSS GRAIN STORAGE PROBLEM

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—A meeting was held yesterday by the representatives of the two railway companies and the members of Northwest Grain Dealers' Association when conditions at the lake front with respective grain storage were discussed.

It was decided that the line elevator companies and the co-operative elevator companies would lend assistance if called on in order to prevent anything in the nature of a blockade at the lakes.

"As far as the Canadian Pacific Railway is concerned," said D. C. Coleman, vice-president of that company, "there is no congestion on the line and if Lake tonnage continues to offer in any volume at Fort William, loading restrictions won't be necessary."

MONTREAL V. C. IS TO REPRESENT CANADA

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Sergt. John Francis Young, V.C., of the Canadian Grenadier Guards stationed in Montreal, has been selected by the Dominion Executive of the Army and Navy Veterans Association to represent that organization at the ceremony in honor of the unknown United States soldier which is to take place at Washington on Armistice Day. Sergeant Young will leave for Washington in a few days and will take with him a wreath of Maple Leafs to place on the tomb of the unknown warrior.

Other Canadian representatives who will participate in the ceremony are Sergeant Geo. Richardson, V.C. and Sergeant Walter Rayfield, V.C.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOSEPH HUGGINS.

The death occurred at 12.30 this morning of Mary Ann Wood, wife of Joseph Huggins of South Monaghan.

The deceased, whose death occurred suddenly, leaves to mourn her loss, her husband and two children, Karl and Edna, with one brother, Wilfred Wood, of South Monaghan.

The funeral will take place at one o'clock on Thursday from the family residence, South Monaghan, to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. A. H. McConnachie will officiate.

DECLARES RADIUM NOT CANCER CURE

MONTREAL, November 2 (Canadian Press). — Dr. George E. Armstrong, C.M.G., one of the leading surgeons of Canada, speaking at a meeting of the Rotary Club here yesterday, gave support to a recent statement of Dr. J. R. Deaver, of Philadelphia, in regard to radium as a curative agent in cancer cases. He said: "I have never seen radium cure cancer in any of these regions (mouth, tongue, stomach, lip, breast, intestines), and I have never seen case puublished of that kind. Radium will not cur cancer up to date; it has not cured it, except skin cancers, which are not so malignant. What we all think is that radium is a palliative."

The general tenor of Dr. Armstrong's address was that this malady has not yet been traced to a germ, but that all that is known of it is that it arises from irritation.

CONSIDERS THAT FINANCIAL HORIZION IS CLEAR, THOUGH IT MAY BE SOME TIME BEFORE NORMALCY IS RESTOREO.

RECOVERY IS BOUND TO BE SLOW, HE BELIEVES

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Reginald McKenna, former Chancellor of the British Exchequer, who has been making a three-weeks' study of the commercial and economic situation in America, declared in a formal statement last night that "the financial horizon seems clear and though it will probably be some considerable time before normal conditions are restored, I am inclined to say that the corner is turned."

"I would like to add, however," he said, "that it is no time for speculation. Recovery is bound to be slow working through a period of moderate fluctuation, though I hope and expect that the tendency will be an improving one."

"I found", he continued, "that very considerabe interest is taken in the question of international debts between governments. This is a subject upon which I could only venture to speak from the British point of view. We are large creditors and in the relation to the United States we are also debtors. As a debtor I have nothing to say except that England pays her debts. On the other hand, speaking as a creditor, my opinion is that England would be selfishly wise having regard only to her industrial and economic position to remit the obligations due to her.

"If I dared to tread on dangerous ground for a moment it would be to say that the influence of the United States is indispensable in the councils of the world. She is already tied to Europe and the Far East by the bond of trade, and the responsibilities which arise from this relationship cannot be ignored without great loss to the world and an unfavorable reaction upon herself.

"In England the calling of the conference by President Harding is most warmly welcomed, not merely for the sake of the results which it is hoped may be achieved, but because it is the first time that a great and powerful government has assumed the responsibility of bringing together the prime ministers of other nations to confer upon the means of securing lasting conditions of peace. Peace and industry are the prime needs of the world at the present time and the world looks to the United States to lead the way."

The situation in the United States, he said, was similar to that in Britain, both countries being gravely affected by the serious disorganization of the European market. While the United States was not as dependent upon foreign trade as business cannot afford to neglect it business cannot afford to negqlect it because the curtailment of foreign demand is necessarily reflected in general industrial depression.

"Under the influence of false standards created by the war," he declared, "the cost of production is still too high here, as with us, but this cause of depresson seems to be slowly disappearing in both countries."

RAILWAY WAGE DISPUTE AGAIN COMES TO FORE

GRAND TRUNK CONCILIATION BOARD CONFERS WITH CANADIAN NATIONAL BOARD IN OTTAWA.

PRESENT G.T.R. PACT TO NATIONALS' BOARD

OTTAWA, Nov. 2. — (Canadian Press).—Railway wage matters are very much to the fore in Ottawa. The Grand Trunk Conciliation Board, John M. Godfrey, K.C., chairman, had moved from Montreal, where it met last week, to Ottawa for resumption of its hearings, and while here the members were in conference with the Canadian National Railway Board, which, under the chairmanship of Rev. Byron Stauffer, of Toronto, is dealing with the wage dispute between the Canadian National and certain of its employees, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees. The conference took place after the sitting of the Grand Trunk Board, and while no official statement was made at the close, it is understood that an attempt is being made to have the awards of the two boards on an equal basis.

The Grand Trunk Board made little headway in its meeting yesterday afternoon. The question under discussion was the re-opening of the negotiations under way at Montreal last week and whether the agreement then signed by the company and its employees would be accepted by the C.B.R.E.

J. E. Maguire, general chairman of the Grand Trunk employees, members of the C.B.R.E., who entered upon the negotiations with the Grand Trunk Board, was present at yesterday's meeting, after having been called away from the Montreal negotiations by serious illness in his family. Mr. Maguire stated to the board that he was the only one who had authority to sign the agreement for the C.B.R.E., and that before doing so he would have to submit it to the general committee. Therefore, he said, the other two C.B.R.E. delegates who WEDNESDAY, NOV. 2, 1921.

THE PREMIER'S VISIT.

No matter what their political views may be, the wise electors will avail themselves of the opportunity offered by the visit of the Premier to Peterborough tonight to hear the cause of the Government brought forward by its leader. Similiarly, were Hon. Mackenzie King or Hon. T. A. Crerar to come to this city these same electors would be on hand to hear the message these chieftains might bring. It is the duty of the citizens to hear the issues discussed, and to be able to give an intelligent verdict the jury must hear all the evidence offered by the interested parties. Nothing is gained by ignoring the arguments of the other side, and, apparently, more and more people are beginning to realize that fact, for the various leaders have been given a courteous and attentive hearing wherever they have spoken. The majority of Peterborough people, whether they will eventually vote for him or against him, will be glad to welcome Right Honourable Mr. Meighen tonight and to hear his exposition of public affairs. It is not always that a general election offers us a chance of listening to a party leader.

A STRIKING CHANGE.

How great a change has been effected in Canadian politics by the development of the Farmers' party and the increasing political activity of Labour organizations is demonstrated by the fact that with the official nomination day still well in the future there are already forty-three ridings in ntario in which at least, three candidates will have their names on the ballots. This number will probably be greatly increased in the next week and the final analysis will show triangular fights in, at least, sixty per cent. of the constituencies. In fact, some of the ridings will have four aspirants for political honours. Only a few short years ago and such a mix-up would not have been considered possible. Save only when some disgruntled politician, resentful at being rejected by the party convention, interjected himself into the contest as an independent candidate, three-cornered fights were about as plentiful as lawyers in the U.F.O. Government. West Peterborough, however, which in last February's by-election distinguished itself with five candidates in the field, goes back on this occasion to the old-fashioned two-man contest.

PROTECTING THE BANKS.

The newspapers are full of suggestions as to safeguards for the Canadian banks against the attacks of the bandits who have successfully operated in various parts of the country. They run all the way from bank a guard armed with a shotment by means of which the robbers might be precipitated into the basement. One genius advocates a device by which by pressing a button the doors and windows of the bank would automatically lock while a gang outside would give the alarm. That might be a splendid arrangement, but the average bank employee would prefer to see the bandits escape than be locked up with three or four desperadoes. The stationing in each branch of every bank a guard aimed with a shotgun might prove of some avail, but the total expense of such a scheme would be heavier than the amount of loot the thieves have been able to extract. After all, the most effective as well as the simplest protection the banks could have would be to increase the sentence for robbery with violence to such an extent that, comparing the chances for success with the penalty for failure, most men who contemplated entering upon the bandit route to riches would come to the conclusion that the risks were far too great to make the attempt worth while. A few long sentences would give the hold-up squad good reason to wonder if the game is really worth the candle.

SANTAL MIDY CAPSULES — Easy to Take—Quick to Relieve CATARRH of the BLADDER Safe, Essential. Each Capsule bears name MIDY. Beware of counterfeits

A SPLENDID START.

The Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association is proceeding upon sound principles in its decision to secure the services as coach for the various local sporting organizations of Mr. Walter Smaill of Winnipeg, a gentleman whose name has always been prominently associated with hockey and other Canadian games, and it is to be hoped that their efforts to secure him will be successful. It is the intention to have Mr. Smaill act as director of the various activities of the association, and as men of his calibre and qualifications can naturally demand a high remuneration for their services the association is assuming a rather heavy financial obligation in bringing him to Peterborough. They are, however, cheerfully doing so because they believe that the citizens will stand unitedly behind them in their efforts to place sport in this city upon a sound amateur basis and to turn out teams that will worthily represent Peterborough. The Examiner feels that they need have no doubts as to the support of the people who are interested in healthful recreation—and there are few who are not interested in some form of sport or another. A community which is fortunate enough to possess a healthy sporting spirit is usually a good place in which to live, and in this respect Peterborough need not fear comparison with any other Canadian centre. The engagement of a director of athletics whose reputation is Dominion-wide, will be an intimation to the sporting fraternity of Canada that Peterborough recognizes the value of properly directed amateur sport and intends to occupy a position at the head of the procession. The membership of the association, already over 700, should be doubled in two weeks on the evidence that has been offered of the progressive policy of the men at the head of its affairs.

THE THREE PLATFORMS.

Conservative Party.

"A thorough revision of the tariff with a view to the adoption of such reasonable measures as are necessary —(A) to assist in providing adequate revenues; (B) to stabilize ligitimate industries; (C) to encourage the establishment of new industries essential to the economic development of the nation; (D) to develop to the fullest extent our natural resources; (E) to prevent the abuse of the tariff for the exploitation of the consumer; (F) to safeguard the interests of the Canadian people in the existing world struggle for commercial and industrial supremacy.

"The principle of trade preference between the different members of the Britannic Commonwealth should be maintained and extended from time to time to such degree as may be found practicable and consistent with Canada's interests."

The Liberal Party.

"That the best interests of Canada demand that substantial reduction of the burdens of custom taxation be made with a view to the accomplishment of two purposes of the highest importance: (1) Diminishing the very high cost of living which presses so severely on the masses of the people; (2) Reducing the cost of the instruments of production in the industries based on the natural resources of the Dominion, the vigorous development of which is essential to the progress and prosperity of our country.

"That to these ends wheat, wheat flour and all products of wheat, the principal articles of food, farm implements and machinery, farm tractors, mining, flour and sawmill machinery and repairs, parts thereof, rough and dressed lumber, gasoline, illuminating, lubricating and fuel oils, etc., nets, net twines and fishermen's equipment and fertilizers should be free from custom duty, as well as the raw material entering into the same; that a revision downward should be made and substantial reductions should be effected in the duties on wearing apparel and footwear, and on other articles of general consumption (other than luxuries), as well as on the raw material entering into the manufacture of the same; that the British preference should be increased 50 per cent. of the general tariff.

"That the Liberal party hereby pledges itself to implement by legislation when returned to power."

The Progressive Party.

(1) All immediate and substantial all-round reduction of the customs tariff.

(2) The reduction of the customs duty on goods imported from Great Britain to one-half the rates charged under the general tariff, and that further gradual uniform reductions be made in the remaining tariff on British imports that will insure complete free trade between Great Britain and Canada.

(3) That the reciprocity agreement of 1911 be accepted by the Parliament of Canada.

(4) That all foodstuffs not included in the Reciprocity Agreement be placed on the free list.

(5) That agricultural implements, farm machinery, vehicles, fertilizers, coal, lumber, cement, illuminating fuel and lubricating oils be placed on the free list, and that all raw materials and machinery used in their manufacture also be placed on the free list.

(6) That all tariff concessions granted to other countries be immediately extended to Great Britain.

(7) That all corporations engaged in the manufacture of products protected by the customs tariff be obliged to publish annual comprehensive and accurate statements of their earnings.

(8) That every claim for tariff protection by any industry should be heard publicly before a special committee of Parliament.

"I Had To Hear Your Voice To-Night!"

Mother had never used the Long Distance telephone—she had no idea how to go about it.

She longed to hear her daughter's voice; but then, Kingston was a long way from Hamilton—she was afraid she would never be able to hear so far.

But she could wait no longer. "I must speak to my daughter in Kingston" she told Central. A few minutes later she heard, "Ready with Kingston!"

"Is that you, Alice?"

"Why Mother, where are you speaking from?" came the familiar voice that she had longed to hear.

"I'm at home in Hamilton. I just had to hear your voice to-night—I couldn't wait any longer!"

And so mother and daughter, separated by many miles, had a virtual reunion that night.

It's a weekly affair now, those fond, intimate talks. Distance rolls away, and for a few minutes every Thursday night the familiar voices tell the little family gossip that both are so eager to hear.

Ask "Long Distance" to get the absent one on the telephone for you. Often it acts like a tonic to hear the familiar voice that distance has kept silent so long. Your telephone can bridge the gulf that separates you.

He Likes to Wash With Lifebuoy

Its velvety lather cleans and refreshes every pore in his skin. It makes him feel fit all over. He "looks" the difference. It is delightful and invigorating to wash with Lifebuoy.

The "health" odour in Lifebuoy is not a perfume—not the odour of a medicine—but a pure hygienic odour that tells you instantly why Lifebuoy purifies and protects—why it improves your skin.

Lifebuoy "smells clean". It is as pure as soap can be made. The velvety smoothness of a wash with Lifebuoy is a delight which is denied to those who use only ordinary soaps.

Try a cake of Lifebuoy to-day. You can get it at any grocery, drug or department store.

ALPINE GLACIERS SURRENDER DEAD

Body of Guide Missing for Eighteen Years is Found.

GENEVA, Nov. 2.—The Alps are yielding up their dead. Melting of glaciers, caused by the long drought of the unusually hot summer just past, has resulted in recovery of the bodies of many mountain climbers, search for which had long been abandoned. The body of Josef Tresch, of the famous family of Swiss guides of that name, has been found after Tresch was missing for eighteen years. It is even hoped to discover the body of Lord Frederick Douglas, who was killed with three companions while descending the Matterhorn in 1865. Douglas fell 6,000 feet to a glacier below.

Alpine guides believe that if the coming winter is as snowless as last, it may be possible next summer to find the bodies of nearly all persons who disappeared.

WARSAW U. F. O. ORDERED NOT TO WEAR MEMBERSHIP BUTTONS

UNUSUAL INJUNCTION REPORTED FROM DUMMER TOWNSHIP CENTRE—PREPARING TO CONSOLIDATE SCHOOLS 3 AND 5.

WARSAW, Oct. 31.—Douro and Dummer municipal lines are connected and at present, there may be free communication.

A few herds of cattle were brought home from ranches last week.

A joint meeting of committees from S.S. No. 3 and S.S. No. 5, Dummer, was held on Tuesday evening in Warsaw School-house. The trustees signed the "Terms of Agreement"

The "At Home" given by the "Country Club' was very pleasant and well arranged, was not very well well tended, perhaps the price was to steep. Excellent music was provided by the Warsaw Orchestra, Mr. Will Belle was floor manager. A splendid lunch was served.

Warsaw Womens Institute will hold its next regular meeting at the home of Mrs. E. R. Hamblin, on Thursday, November 10th. Mrs. James Moore will give a talk on "Ways and means of getting electricity in our homes," also there will be some suggestions regarding using some of our cast-off material to help needy ones. President of Warsaw Institute is to represent the District this year but there may be another delegate appointed by the Institute. The District representatives Railway fare, but nothing else, is paid by the district. All ladies are welcome.

Geese Going South

Several flocks of wild geese have been seen heading southward.

This Sounds Queer

On Tuesday evening October, 25th there were executive meetings of the U.F.O. and U.F.W.O. Word has been received that none may wear the U.F.O. button for some time prior to voting day. If they do they are to be deprived of the franchise. This order seems rather an extreme interpretation of the secrecy of the ballot.

Recently a woman has been visiting the Public Schools in the District, asking the children to get subscriptions for a paper "The Canadian Farmer" The editorials are against the U.F.O. The children are promised prizes for geting subscriptions.

The regular monthly meeting of the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Alex Calder, Thursday afternoon. 19 ladies were present. It was decided to hold a "Thanks Offering" for missions and have a special missionary program at the next meeting, which will be held in the Church.

The re-decorating of the Church is postponed until spring as work men to do it cannot be had at present. There will be a bee to do some work absolutely necessary.

Hallowe'en Entertainment

On Friday evening the Endeavor League held a social evening in the basement of the Methodist Church. Miss Barrie and assistants had the basement nicely decorted with corn stalks and pumpkin lanterns. There was a witches corner but the witches have nothing to do with married people. A nut guessing contest went on while the guests were gatheing. The turkey hunt and lady who had lost everything but her head created quite a lot of fun. Pumpkin pie was served. There was some community singing, some Hallowe'en stories etc. After the evening's fun was over, before pepole left for their homes a hymn was sung and prayer offered.

Yours! Frocks of Parisian Charm and a New Saving of 50c to $10 on every one!

FIRST of the holidays—Thanksgiving, with its festivities! This year your Thanksgiving dinner frock and evening gown may reveal the smartness that one associates with France's favorite Deauville. And these charming clothes will just be the beginning of the smartest—and most economical—wardrobe you have ever owned!

For a marvelous new invention—the Deltor—brings to your needle Paris' own treasured gift of chic; it enables you to make these smarter clothes for less money than any clothes you made ever cost; it gives you miraculous skill and ease of sewing and adds a wonderful economy of time to an actual saving of money!

The DELTOR

Saves you 50c to $10 on materials alone

YOU will find the Deltor enclosed in the envelope with your Butterick pattern. It is not a part of the pattern itself, but a separate service individually planned for the garment you are about to make.

First,* the Deltor gives you an individual layout chart (yes, individual, not just a general chart, but one for your exact size and for each suitable width of material). You buy ¼ to 1⅜ yards less material on every garment, a saving that amounts to 50c to $10 on every gown you make!

Then,* you follow picture-and-word illustrations which show you just how to interpret your fashion as would the originator himself. You sew more surely than ever before, saving hours of time. And your flying needle deftly embodies in your frock not only perfect set, fit and drape but lines that bespeak Paris itself.

Finally,* suggestions of finish particularly designed for your very own frock are revealed to you—little details that are great in importance—tiny touches that control the whole mouvement of your gown. Your finished frock—behold! it is a creation of *Paris!

STIR OVER "CHILD HEALER."

Cures Are Reported in Lewiston, Me., by Three-Year-Old Girl.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 2.—Practically the whole city of Lewiston, Me., swears by 3-year-old Charlotte Lariver, the child healer, as she is called. They insist that the child drives away pain and cures wounds by simply touching her fingers to the afflicted spot and lisping a short prayer. They say that the mere laying on of her hand and murmuring 'Sainte Anne, cure you," she can cure and has cured tooth achs, headaches, rheumatism, colds, coughs, sore throats and other afflictions, and that in the same way she has healed burns, scalds, bruises, scratches and injuries of every description.

They cite the case of Grandma Thibault, who had been doubled up with rheumatism for twenty years and today is as straight as any woman of her years, all because of the child's laying on of hands.

The child's mother firmly believes that the girl has the gift of healing, and ascribes it to pre-natal influence.

"She is the seventh daughter," she said. "Always I prayed that the gift of healing, and now my prayer was answered. I had been suffering great pain for some days with the toothache. There was an abscess in the tooth, but I did not know it. I had tried medicine, everything but I could get no relef. I I happened to take up my baby and she put her little hand on my mouth. The pain immediately left me, and I went to bed. In the night the abscess broke and the tooth got well."

Your state of health largely depends upon the food you eat

No one who is physically ailing in any way can afford to take chances with the food he eats. For upon the selection of your food, and upon its perfect digestion and assimilation largely depends your state of health.

The most important thing in connection with the digestibility of any cereal food is the way it is prepared—and the length of time it is cooked or baked.

Grape-Nuts, the rich cereal food made from whole wheat flour and malted barley, is probably baked longer than any other cereal food.

A large part of the starch of the wheat and barley is changed into dextrin and grape-sugar in preparing Grape-Nuts. This is one reason why Grape-Nuts is so easily digested by even the most delicate people.

Grape-Nuts is wheat and barley so processed as to make it delicious and appetizing; even young children thrive on it and grow strong and rosy.

Go to your grocer today and get a package of Grape-Nuts. Eat it as a cereal with milk or cream, or make it into a delicious pudding. It will be enjoyed and relished by every member of the family.

A Stabborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

RECEPTION FOR PREMIER MEIGHEN TO-DAY—PERSONAL MENTION.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2. — Judge Ward of Cobourg was in town yesterday.

Mrs. M. Dickey is visiting at the home of her niece, Mrs. Chambers, Bolivar street, Peterboro.

The Willing Workers of Christ Church held a very pleasant evening in the Parish Hall on Monday night. The evening was spent in social intercourse and sewing after which all indulged in a taffy pull.

Miss Beatrice Mitchell entertained a number of her young friends on Monday night.

Funeral.

The funeral of the late Miss Annie Killoran of Peterboro, aged 75 years, was held on Monday on the arrival of the 9:40 train from Peterboro, the remains being laid to rest in St. Mary's R. C. Cemetery. Miss H. Kiloran of Campbellford, is a sister of the deceased.

Social Evening.

The Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the Methodist Church had a most enjoyable social evening in the school room on Tuesday evening, the president Mrs. A. L. Malcolm, presiding. The room was artistically decorated with Hallowe'en decorations and Jack o' Lanterns. Two very interesting contests were convided after which a very dainty lunch was provided to which all did ample justice. The proceeds of the evening will be used to procure materials for the bazaar for which the young ladies are preparing.

Yesterday being All Saints' Day, communion services were held in Christ Church at 6 a.m. and also at 9 a.m.

On Sunday, November 7th, communion services will be held in the Methodist church when a special Thankoffering will be asked to help defray the expenses in connection with the recent renovation of the church.

Hallowe'en was despite the threatening weather conditions, celebrated quite generally throughout the town. Some very pretty and original costumes were seen, and although there were the usual Hallowe'en pranks, little or no damage was done, and all report a pleasant evening.

A number of the young people are preparing to attend the dance at Warkworth to-night.

Premier Meighen in Campbellford.

Arrangements are now completed for the reception to be tendered to Premier Meighen and Hon. J. A. Stewart upon their arrival on the noon train. A guard of honor will meet the train and will escort the premier and party to the arena, the band leading. It is expected that one of the largest crowds ever seen in town will be present to hear the premier discuss the important issues of the day.

Misses Annie and Jennie Martin spent Friday and Saturday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bland, Master Percy and Mrs. John Oliver, motored to Holloway on Sunday, and visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hay and Mrs. Wm. Oliver spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Campbell at Holloway.

Seymour West Women's Institute met at the home of Miss Gertrude McCullough on Thursday afternoon, the 27th, a large number being present. Some important business matters were discussed regarding visiting the schools, prizes for rural fairs and a generous donation is being sent to the Navy League of Canada. Miss Mabelle Rutherford and Mrs. R. McCullough were appointed delegates to the annual convention to be held at Toronto Nov. 14-17.

An instrumental selection was rendered after which an excellent lunch was served.

FALCONER PAYS TRIBUTE TO CIVIL SERVICE'S WORK

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Robert A. Falconer, K. C. M G., president of Toronto Universty, addressed about 300 members and guests of the Professional Institute of the civil service of Canada at a luncheon here yesterday in connection with the annual meeting of the Institute. The meeting was attended by many professional men, deputy ministers of departments of the government service and others.

BOARD FROWNS ON SURCHARGE COLLECTION

CALGARY, Alta., Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The practise of Canadian railways in collecting a surcharge to cover the difference in exchange on shipments to the United States over that portion of the route lying in Canada when the exchange already has been collected in the United States, is not looked upon favorably by the Dominion Railway Board, according to indications at yesterday's session here.

RESCUED AT BRINK OF NIAGARA FALLS.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., November 2 (Canadian Press). — William Gaffey and Phillip Williams were last night rescued at the brink of the Rapids above the Falls after a three hours' struggle. They were in a small boat, and were found clinging to the crib.

"Fruit-a-tives" Restored Him to Health

159 AVENUE PIUS IX, MONTREAL

"For three years, I was a terrible sufferer from Dyspepsia and my general health was very bad. I consulted a physician and took his medicine but I did not improve; and finally he told me that I could not be cured.

At this time, a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives". After taking two boxes, I was greatly relieved; and this fruit medicine made me completely well. My digestion and general health are now splendid".

RAILWAY WAGE DISPUTE

had signed the agreement, had acted under a misapprehension, and in signing the agreement had exceeded their authority. The agreement would have to be submitted to the general committee, which met in Toronto on Thursday, and until it was either accepted or rejected there was nothing the delegates could do.

Representatives of the Grand Trunk at yesterday's meeting declared that as far as the company was concerned the agreement was signed and binding. The company had negotiated with officers of the unions, who, as far as the railway was informed, had all the powers to conclude an agreement. If the company could not deal with a committee of its employees and with them negotiate an agreement which would stand, then it could never hope to attain anything by negotiation.

The chairman, John M. Godfrey, K.C., of Toronto, said he did not want to see the signed agreement cast aside as a scrap of paper. The board should not be trifled with. He would like to feel that the employees' contention was bona fide, and not merely a tactical game to delay proceedings and discard the agreement.

Mr. Maguire declared he could do nothing further until the agreement was placed before his general committee, and the board then decided to adjourn until Thursday morning, when it will meet in Toronto.

The Grand Trunk Board is composed of John M. Godfrey, of Toronto, chairman; P. Berkovitch, Montreal, representing the employees, and H. H. Vaughan, Montreal, for the company.

LIKE LIVING OVER DAYS OF GIRLHOOD

TORONTO WOMAN SAYS SHE FEELS LIKE A DIFFERENT PERSON SINCE HER TROUBLES WERE OVERCOME.

"I had heard so much about Tanlac I expected great things from it, and I was not disappointed, for it does just what they say it will," said Mrs. Wm. Robinson, 331 Gladstone avenue., Toronto, Ont.

"I simply feel like a different person since taking this grand medicine For two years I was in wretched health, and then, to cap the climax, I had the 'flu' which left me in a worse condition than I had been before. What I needed was something to build me up and this is exactly what Tanlac has done.

"I have a splendid appetite now, nothing I eat gives me any bad after effects, and I sleep like a child all night long. I feel so well and happy in the morning that it is just like living my girlhood days over again. Tanlac has certainly been a wonderful blessing to me."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Limited and by leading druggists everywhere.

BELIEVE LOSEY WAS NOT MURDERED.

BUFFALO, N. Y., November 2. — Canadian Press. — Investigation of the death of Kenneth R. Losey, the 20 year old Wesleyan student, whose body was found floating in the Niagara river last week, was officially closed by the police yesterday afternoon when detective sergeants made a report in which they declared they had not been able to find the slightest bit of evidence to substantiate a murder theory.

"I am willing to submit the whole affair to a coroners' jury," said Detective Chief Zimmerman. "Wt have everything to show that the young man either committed suicide or met an accidental death."

The medical examiner's report was to the effect that Losey had been killed by a knife wound in the side.

SERVE NOTICE OF CUT ON NOVA SCOTIA MINERS.

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Formal notice of the intention to reduce the wages of the 12,000 coal miners of Nova Scotia when their present agreement expires on November 30, was served yesterday by the principal operators of the Province upon J. B. McLachlan, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, District 26, which includes practically all the mine workers of the Maritime Provinces.

The amount of the proposed cut is not stated. The miners have already expressed their intention of resisting any wage cut to the last ditch, and many forecast here that one of the hardest industrial fights in the history of the Nova Scotia coal industry will result.

In giving the required thirty days' notice of intention to abrogate the agreement, the operators declare that under present industrial conditions, with coal prices falling, a wage cut is necessary if the mines are to be kept open at all. The notice states that a committee of operators will be ready to meet a committee of the mine workers to arrange a new schedule of rates of pay and working conditions at Halifax, on November 10.

The mission to the United States, the message states, will make an effort to raise a loan guaranteed by economic privileges.

CHINESE DEFAULT LOAN — SECOND ONE CANCELLED.

NEW YORK, November 2 (Canadian Press). — Default by the Chinese Republic of the $5,500,000 loan made by the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, due yesterday, has resulted in the abandonment of a proposed loan to China for $16,000,000.

A United States banker representing the Chinese consortium to-day issued the following statement in connection with China's failure to meet her obligations to the Chicago institution:

"The American group recently received word that it would be agreeable to the Pekin Government to receive proposals for a loan aggregating $16,000,000, the proceeds to be utilised to meet two maturities of the Government, each for $5,500,000, and falling due respectively on 1st November and 1st December; also to take up past due coupons on the Hukuang Railway bonds, the technical default in this issue having been due to the state of war at one time existing between China and Germany; and further to provide funds for the reorganisation of the Wine and Tobacco Tax Bureau, the revenues from which might be available as security for the loan under consideration."

HUGE RECEPTION TO CRERAR IN P.E.I.

SUMERSIDE, P.E.I., November 2 (Canadian Press). — There was no question regarding the welcome of the Hon. Mr. Crerar on his first appearance on Prince Edward Island at a meeting here last night. The main hall was so packed that the crowd swarmed over the platform and overflow meetings had to be held in two other halls.

Mr. Crerar referred to the criticism of H. W. Wood, and declared that he was "betraying no secret when I say that in 1917 Sir Robert Borden sent for Mr. Wood, and discussed with him the question of entering the Union Government. Such charges as those that have been made on Mr. Wood, seek in an insidious way to leave the impression that there is something sinister behind the Progressive member."

OPPOSE INTRODUCTION OF PROFESSIONAL BOXING

OTTAWA, Nov. 2. — (Canadian Press).—A strongly worded resolution, moved by Rev. Wesley Magaw, and seconded by Rev. Orr Bennet, condemning the proposed introduction of professional boxing into Ottawa, was passed at a meeting of the Ottawa Presbytery yesterday. The discussion which followed the introduction of this motion, vigorously favored the encouragement of amateur sports in Ottawa, and was opposed to any steps to allow professional boxing to get a foothold in the city.

PROTEST NEW RATE ON HAY, GRAIN, FODDER.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—A strong protest was made yesterday by the transportation bureau of the Board of Trade against new rates by railways on hay, grain and other fodder for cattle recently promulgated by the railways on the ground that it was claimed the rates were inimical to the interests of those engaged in the trade, and were supporting the direct buying of such products by farmers through the aid of the Government.

VISCOUNT OF SANDHURST IS DEAD

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—William Mansfield, first Viscount of Sandhurst, is dead at the age of sixty-six. The heir to the title of his brother, John William Mansfield.

"I WISH I'D NEVER LIVED," SAYS EVELYN

THAW'S FORMER WIFE, RECOVERING FROM EFFECTS OF POISON, REFUSES ADVICE TO GIRLS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Evelyn Nesbit, who in a fit of despair took poison to put an end to her troubles, is on the road to recovery and financial rehabilitation. Her creditors had given her an extension of time to meet her obligations, and her friends of the days when as Stanford White's protegee, she was the toast of the town, have come to her rescue with their purses.

"I've got a new grip on things today," she said. "I'm going to do the best I can. But there's no use saying I wouldn't like to be out of it all."

The divorced wife of Harry K. Thaw, whose infatuation for her impelled him to slay Stanford White, gazed at her interviewer with dull eyes.

"No, I'm not saying that I wish I'd lived differently," she said. "I just wish I hadn't lived at all."

Looking back over her stormy career, Evelyn laid all her troubles at Thaw's door.

"If I never seen Thaw, I'd never, never have had to go through the things I remember. Though to tell the truth, I don't consider my troubles as amounting to so much outside the Thaw case."

Evelyn refused to blame men as a class.

"Not men—a man," she laughed hollowly, adjusting her dress as it slipped down over one shoulder. "The 'first wrong step'? that sentimental stuff makes me ill. I'll neither sob nor preach nor offer advice.

"Who's going to listen to advice?" she queried. "Girls are going to come to Broadway and live as they want to or someone else wants them to, despite all the advice in the world.

"I don't say that I wish I'd have remained back home and lived the kind of life I started out on when I was a kid. Neither do I say that what I gave up has been compensated for by other things.

"I do say I wish I hadn't lived at all. That's how tired I am of being Evelyn Nesbit."

HAD BAD COUGH AND SORE THROAT

Never neglect a cough or cold however slight. If you do it can have but one result: it leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected. A single dose of will help to stop the cough, soothe the throat, and if the cough or cold has become settled on the lungs the healing virtues of the Norway pine tree along with the soothing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs, roots and barks, promptly eradicates the bad effects, and the persistent use cannot but help to bring about relief.

Mr. Albert Marsh, Lower L'Ardoise, N. S., writes: "About a year ago I contracted a cold accompanied by a very bad cough and sore throat. I sent for the doctor but what he prescribed did me so little good I became discouraged. A friend came to see me and asked me if I had ever used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I told him I had not and sent him away to get me a bottle. I started using it, and after a couple of days I found that I was getting relief, and after taking two bottles the soreness in my throat seemed to be leaving me, so I resolved to continue its use, and after I had used five bottles both my sore throat and the cough were gone. I would not be without "Dr. Wood's" for any money."

WESTBYE ADDRESS THURSDAY NIGHT

PUBLIC INVITED TO OPEN MEETING OF TRADES COUNCIL—MOTION PICTURES WILL BE SHOWN.

On account of the political mass meeting in the armouries to-night, the Trades and Labour Council have postponed their meeting until Thursday night. The public generally is invited to hear Mr. P. P. Westbye, general manager of the Wm. Hamilton Company, in his address to-morrow night on the process of manufacturing steel. This lecture is illustrated with motion pictures.

It is no secret that the Trades and Labour Council have a cordial feeling toward the manager of the Hamilton shops and their delegates will no doubt be all in attendance, but they also hope the citzens generally will accept this notice as an invitation. The address will be given in the main hall, and its educational features should provide a profitable and interesting evening.

FIRST HANGING IN NORTH WEST

TOOK PLACE YESTERDAY UNLESS HITCH DEVELOPED

EDMNTON, Nov. 2.—(Special despatch to the Examiner).—The first hanging in the history of the Northwest Territories was scheduled to take place at Fort Smith, nine hundred miles north of Edmonton, yesterday. Albert Lebeaux, a slavey Indian convicted of the murder of his wife and child, expiated on the gallows his crime of ten months ago unless some unforeseen circumstances arose which delayed the carrying out of the death sentence. According to Major Jennings, superintendent of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, all arrangements were completed and the sentence was to have been carried out.

No definite information regarding the hanging will be available until the middle of December when the bailiff comes out from the north country. Arangements for the carrying out of the hanging were in the hands of Inspector Fletcher of the R.C.M.P. detachment at Fort Smith, who is a deputy sheriff for the North West Territories.

Several weeks ago the official hangman of the Dominion Government Arthur Ellis left for the north but Execution of the sentence was posponed and Ellis returned. It is understood that the Deparment of Justice decided that it was advisable to carry out the death sentence on the date originally pronounced by Judge Dubuc and another hangman was respatched to the north.

The murder trial of Lebeaux was the first in the history of the Northwest Territories. Lebeaux, a Fort Providence Indian, was arhested by Sergeant Thorne on a charge of killing his wife with an axe while it was also charge that he had caused te death of his infant child through exposure. The Indian was brought to Edmonton in the dead of winter and spent several months in the Provincial jail at Fort Saskatchewan. Subsequently he was taken back to Fort Providence under escort where the trial has been held with Judge Dubuc presiding. The trial was conducted in accordance with all the high traditions of British Justce. C. C. McCaul, K.C. of Edmonton, prosecuted, while a Manitoba barrister defended the prisoner. At the conclusion of the tral Lebeaux was sentenced to be hanged on November 1.

MATRIMONIAL BUREAUS DO RUSHING BUSINESS.

Enterprising Institutions Launch Vigorous Campaigns.

BERLIN, Nov. 1 — (Canadian Press.)—The numerous matrimonial bureaus of Berlin, where a spouse may be had for the payment of 101 marks registration fee, are doing a rushing business. The advertising columns of the newspapers are being utilized, "prospects" are being bombarded with letters and circulars extolling the advantages and virtues of the several bureas are being scattered broadcast.

The marriage literature makes it principal appeal to the "home-loving instinct of men, who are in much greater demand in the marriage market than women.

The press agents, however, are not always discriminating or discreet in the selection of "eligible males.' One bureau sent a letter to a married man with a large family urging him to "marry happily; don't select your acquaintances at random from the streets; send us your photograph and 10 marks and we'll find you a good wife.'

The man became very indignant and wrote a scornful letter about it to his favorite newspaper.

Most of the marriages arranged through the matrimonial bureaus are of women more or less advanced in years, and of doubtful physical bank accounts, and young men out of work or weary of working, said the agent of a bureau. The financial arrangements are agreed upon before the marriage.

One young man who accepted a much older woman as wife after she had assured him she had money to support them brought suit for divorce alleging he had been deceived and that the woman really had very little money. The woman admitted she had misrepresented her income but declared she felt justified because of the lonely life she had been living, with no opportunity to become acquainted with marriageable men.

While the young, attractive girls, who make application for husbands are comparatively few, according to the agents, scores of young men apply for wives, virtually always with the stipulation that they must be wealthy or well-to-do. Formerly the chief women applicants were servant girls. Shop girls seldom patronize the marriage bureaus.

Scores of marriages are made through the medium of the matrimonial bureaus every months and their popularity has steadily increased since the war, which left the German woman in a large and conscious majority.

UNINVITED GUESTS.

Invitations had been issued for a duck dinner at the home of one of our Ellen street residents, but notices were hurriedly sent out this morning cancelling the engagement. The host purchased three very fine ducks, twenty-one pounds, at an auction sale the other day. When returning home he stopped at his brother's home for supper, and during this time some mean fellows happened along and carried off the ducks. George E. says he hopes the guilty parties have indigestion until after Christmas.—Port Hope Guide.

THE J.C. Turnbull CO. LTD

USE TAME GEESE TO CARRY HOOTCH ACROSS BORDER.

Muskrat Decoy Was Also Liquor Runner. Trained Goose Made Many Trips Daily.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 2.—Siguard Quvale, Minnesota prohibition enforcement chief, left for Canada today to plan with the Dominion officials a way to dam the torrent of liquor which has been rushing across the border.

Quvale has made arrangements to meet Canadian officials at Regina, Sask., and ask their assistance in breaking up the "liquor running" traffic. Thousands of gallons are run through Minnestota and North Dakota to all parts of the mid-west.

A youth of 19, who has escorted hundreds of quarts across the border, told the Unied Press to-day some of the means used to transport liquor within gunshot of the agents, without their knowledge.

Valuable Geese

One French-Canadian living in International Falls, but working on the other side of the river, had a flock of tame geese which he took across with him in his boat every morning when he went to work. He returned with them at night. Each goose carried a half pint flask of whisky under one or both wings, tied with strings, on the return journey.

Two men had a light wooden frame, covered with muskrat hide on an endless string. That muskrat "swam" the river many times a day. Every time it came this way the frame contained a quart of booze.

Tourists around Interational Falls have heard of the yearling tame moose kept by a trapper at his cabin near International Falls. Few of them knew that the tame moose used to swim the river frequently, dragging behind him a case of whisky.

Other Ruses

Boats with false bottoms defying detection, hip boots with false linings, hunting coats, containing rubber compartments — and various other means of getting across a personal supply are frequent.

Agents detected a flourishing business when they found that fish being shipped across the border each contained two quarts.

SECRET SERVICE MEN GUARDING VENIZELOS

Royalist Plot Feared; Party on Way to California.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Former Premier Venizelos, of Greece, is speeding west today guarded by a special squad of Secret Service men, following apparently authoritative reports of a plot to assassinate the statesman. M. Venizelos is on his way to California.

Details of the plot have been kept secret. It is known, however, that the Venizelos party have been apprehensive ever since it landed in New York last week. M. Venizelos, while in Chicago, appeared to shun onen contact with the enthusiastic crowds which sought to follow him.

It is the theory of investigators that the assassination conspiracy was designed by Greek Royalists, who foresee in Venizelos' visit to the United States, a secret financial campaign for funds with which to overthrow King Constantine.

A RICH YOUNG MAN WORKS IN KITCHEN OF NEW YORK HOTEL

ARTHUR YATES, FREQUENT VISITOR AT BURLEIGH FALLS, LEARNING THE GAME FROM CELLAR UP.

That he may be as skilled in running hotel on modern lines as he is at landing hefty 'lunge from the cool depths of the Kawartha Lakes at and around Burleigh, Arthur Yates, with his chum, Jack Green, spends ten hours daily in the kitchen of the Hotel Commodore, New York City. There these two young men, both born and reared in more or less luxury, mop the floor, cut up oysters and oranges and engage in a hundred and one menial tasks, as measures of preparedness for their future business careers.

Arthur Yates is the son of Frederick Yates of Rochester, President of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Railway. He is twenty-three years of age and a graduate of Yale. Jack Green is the son of Elmore C. Green of Buffalo, President of the New York Hotel Men's Association. His age is nineteen years and he is a graduate of New York Military Academy. Both are veritable young Ajaxs, each hitting the scales at 250 pounds, and are in the hotel game for good.

Arthur Yates spent from June 15th to September 5th this year at the popular fishing resort, Burleigh Falls, where he is almost a yearly visitor. He first came to the Falls when quite a little chap, led by the hand of his father, who was himself an ardent fisherman. Since those days Arthur has acquired considerable skill with both rod and travel, and has to his credit some very fine specimens of maskinonge and bass. It was he who assisted Mrs. Darcy in drawing from Deer Bay the 34¼-lb. 'lunge she hooked on August 26th last, which monster will be on exhibition in a store window in this city shortly.

CROP REPORT

Following is a summary of reports made by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The weather during the past week was favourable for root harvesting, and a considerable acreage was cleaned up. Kent says that beets are well matured and are now showing a good sugar content.

Fall pastures have improved of late, and all kinds of live stock are doing well on the grass.

The price of peas has picked up in Renfrew, $3.00 a bushel being paid. The supply is getting scarce.

Huron tells of a farmer in that county whose bean crop averaged forty bushels an acre.

Elgin says that clover seed is turning out well in the threshing.

Certified seed potatoes (Irish Cobblers) were last week loaded in Murillo, in the Port Arthur district, at $2.25 a bag at the point of shipment. Twenty carloads of ordinary field quality were shipped from New Lowell, in Simcoe County, at prices ranging from $1.20 to $90 cents a bag.

Fort William reports a considerable quantity of hay changing hands around $25.00 a ton. Rainy River places prices at from $20.00 to $23.00, and Kenora at $30.00 a ton. Victoria notes sales of hay at $5.00 and straw at $8.00 a ton.

Brant states that apples are selling from $1.00 to $1.50 a bushel for tree runs with culls out.

Manitoulin has been marketing a large number of cattle and sheep, but speaks of very low prices.

Huron finds the figures paid for young animals disappointing, and cites the fact that seven spring calves of beef type were recently sold for $9.00 a head.

Middlesex reports farrow cows selling at from $30.00 to $50.00 each.

Dundas states that at a recent auction sale good milkers and springers sold at around $50.00, and that dry cows that would dress at about 450 pounds, went for $25.00.

Bruce, however, says that a farmer near Walkerton recently disposed of six pure-bred Holsteins to a breeder near Tavistock at an average of $300.00.

Leeds quotes creamery butter at 44 cents, whey butter 38 cents, and cheese 14 1-8 cents a pound.

Interest in sheep raising is being revived in Grey County, where a number of farmers are replacing their old flocks with Downs, both rams and ewes being good demand.

Bacon hogs are moving rather slowly to market at prices ranging from $8.60 to $8.50 a cwt.

Grey reports the shipment of a carload of horses from Priceville at fair prices. York reports sales of good horses at from $150.00 to $185.00 each.

Dundas is pleased to observe that mill feeds are down to nearly pre-war prices: Bran $1.15 and shorts $1.25 a cwt.

Fall wheat is looking very promising as a whole. In fact, several representatives are afraid of too much top, should growing weather continue much longer. The iniury from Hessian fly has now been serious.

The area of fall ploughing up to date is larger than usual, and at present the land is in good condition for more.

Considerable tile and other field draining is reported. Many farm improvements are also progressing, notwithstanding the general election activity.

Voice of the People

TARIFF IS TWADDLE SAYS THOMAS TOOMS, M.L.A.

Edit Examiner, Sir:

The Labor Party realising the first step to prevent unemployment distress and hunger of the common mass; is the restoration of Parliamentry power into the hands of the people. It looks as if the late government has been so absolutely ignorant of economics, that they imagined Labor could pay the interest on any amount of paper money they chose to print.

Sir Henry Drayton by his paralyzing taxation has closed up the factories, shortened the crop acreage, depopulated rural districts and filled the cities with idle workers.

The Meighen government, deadly reactionary and slavishly subservient to the financial magntes, has not the courage to say one word on the momentous question of the National Debt. The hundred million defict of last year has not yet enabled them, to strike a creative spark from their mentality. But, they are still talking of a restored prosperity through trade with a bankrupt Europe, while here, in a land of plenty, idleness is multiplied and hunger shuffles in the bread line of our larger cities, within a stones throw as it were of unlimited food supplies, rotting in cold storage.

The government headed by Arthur Meighen, father of the War Time election Act and the immigration act, which was blessed by its godfather the Senate in forty minutes, asks the Canadan people to pardon its insults. While in the meantime, it is endeavoring to cover up its record, behind a screen of tariff twaddle etc. Premeir Meighen tells us that a lowered tariff will stop the wheels of industry when under protection they are already stopped; Mr. Meighen, premer by accident, cynic by profession, reactionist by choice; Canada (like Mr. Sam Clarke of Northumberland) might like his cheek, but not his justice..

Old party politicians are staging a battle of confusion, one party murmurs, "tariff for revenue," the other revenue from tariff. It is hard to find which is the most indefinite.

What the workers want to know somethng about is: A move humane and equitable distribution of the products of human toil; which we believe with our resources, the recurring conditions of misery, unemployment and want, are wholly artificial, and directly chargeable to our system of arbitrary financial control.

It is useless telling the people such aspirations for a square deal is an Utopian fallacy impracticable theory, impossible ideal. This country has been and is at present, dominated, and controlled by the eminently practical business men, "Just look at it."

We hage two good men as candidates for West Peterboro: but their leaders, what a past record?

It certainly would be refreshing for the workers to hear, what line of action either parties intend to take, to improve directly the living conditions. The tariff question, as viewed by working people is a twaddle, because we note the same destitution and poverty exists in High Protection, U.S.A. as in free trade or low tariff England. The tariff, is not the solution to the common people's grievance.

Diet Reform Minus Pangs Of Hunger Here Revealed

DETROIT, Nov. 1.—If you are eating a breakfast of bacon and eggs, coffee, toast, butter and grape fruit you are all wrong, according to the food value bulletin of the department of health. Shorter life will be the outcome unless your breakfast is changed to one of fruit oatmeal, milk, sugar, toast, butter, jelly, coffee (if you are an adult) and cocoa for children.

Dr. Henry F. Vaughan, commissioner of health, is for corrective diet in all individuals rather than the establishing of a diet school for persons carrying excess weight such as is being undertaken by Royal S. Copeland, commissioner of health of New York City. A similar school has been organized in Chicago as a part of a health crusade in that city.

"If persons would practice moderation in diet, they would pay few er doctor bills and would feel much better as a result," said Dr. Vaughn. "These spasmodic spurts of starvation may have their effect on the tortured individuals for the time being, but unless the lessons are continued, little benefit will be derived.

Right and Wrong Way.

"Instead, I would suggest a reformed schedule of eating to insure a long life and one free from sickness. Persons are pleased too easily with a routine diet of meat, potatoes and bread and butter principally because it is simple for the housewife to prepare and because it seems to be universally liked.

"Corrected diets are just as necessary for thin folks as for fleshy individuals."

The following diets approved and disapproved by the board of health are those Dr. Vaughn suggests for the use of all persons:

Wrong breakfasts include fried potatoes, fried eggs, toast, butter, coffee. Another is pancakes syrup, sausage, coffee. These should be changed to breakfasts of stewed prunes, or figs, cream of wheat milk, sugar, poached egg, coffee or cocoa. Another reform diet includes fruit, cornmeal mush, raisins, milk, sugar, sausage, or bacon toast butter coffee or cocoa and a third consists of fruit, oatmeal or shredded wheat, milk, sugar soft boiled egg, toast, butter, coffee or cocoa honey tea.

An improper luncheon is one consisting of macaroni, tomatoes, frank furters, peas, salt, pepper, bread, butter, apple sauce,tea; another is, one of boiled potatoes, stewed tomatoes, radishes, bread, butter, syrup, tea. The third is of hamburger balls friend potatoes, stewed corn, bread. These should be changed to the following: Cream pea soup, saltines, macaroni, tomatoes, bread, butter, apple sauce, milk or cream tomato soup crotons, escalloped potatoes, French toast, syrup, radishes, milk or vegetable soup, saltines escalloped corn, cucumber pickle, pear salad, bread, butter and milk.

Incorreet dinners are those of corn beef hash, boiled potatoes, stewed tomatoes, bread butter, coffee mince pie, or pot roast, gravy, browned potatoes buttered peas, carrots bread, butter, fruit gelatin coffee, or lamb chops, French fried potatoes, buttered turnips boiled squash, bred, butter, apple dumpling with sauce, coffee.

These dinners should be replaced by the following: 1—Corn beef hash, creamed potatoes, beet greens, chili sauce, bread, butter, caramel custard, coffee or tea cocoa or milk. 2—Pot roast, gravy, mashed potatoes, creamed peas, carrots, bread, butter fruit gelatin, coffee or tea, cocoa or milk. 3—Lamb chops, creamed potatoes, cabbage, nut salad, buttered turnips, apple dumpling and sauce, coffee, tea, cocoa or milk. 4—Salmon loaf, tomato sauce baked potatoe, spinach, hard boiled egg, bread, butter, mixed pickles, lemon pie, coffee or tea, cocoa or milk. 5—Meat pie and vegetables, creamed turnips pickles, biscuits, butter, cottage pudding, sauce coffee, tea, cocoa or milk

The change in menu, according to Dr. Vaughn, will mean no great reformation on the part of the housewife and will cause her little annoyance in food purchases. In the majority of ordinary menus, the portion of fats, proteins, and carbohydrates are not evenly distributed, he said.

The Kidneys

The office man and the outdoor worker suffer alike from derangements of the kidneys.

Backaches and headaches are among the symptoms. In some cases Bright's disease soon develops, others suffer from high blood pressure until hardening of the arteries sets in.

In order to forestall painful and fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

Mr. A. D. MacKinnon, Kirkwood, Inverness county, N.S., writes:

"I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to all suffering from weak kidneys. I suffered from kidney disease for a long time. I may also say that for three years I was nearly always troubled with headaches, and no treatment seemed to do more than afford temporary relief. I was finally told of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using a few boxes was completely relieved. I have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with the best results, and never fail to recommend these wonderful remedies."

DO YOUR BOWELS MOVE REGULARLY, OR DO THEY BECOME CONSTIPATED

There is no medium through which disease so often attacks the system as by allowing the bowels to become constipated, and there is no other trouble which flesh is heir to that is more liable to be neglected, because material inconvenience may not be felt at once from irregular action of the bowels. When there is not regular action the retention of the decayed and effete matter, with its poisonous gases, soon poisons the whole system by being absorbed into it, causing violent sick and bilious headaches, internal bleeding or protruding piles, heartburn, jaundice, etc.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular, and removing the constipation and all of its allied troubles.

Mr. Samuel Buckler, Tatamagouche, N.S., writes: "For over a year I suffered with constipation. I took several different kinds of medicines, but could only get temporary relief. I was told to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I procured two vials of them, but after I had taken one I found that I was relieved of my trouble. I do not hesitate to recommend Laxa-Liver Pills for any kind of constipation."

Price, 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MEXIAN LIBERATOR NOT CONSIDERED A HERO

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Augustin Iturbide, who 100 years ago led Mexican insurgents in the fight against Spanish rule which resulted in Mexican independence, is not considered a national hero by the Chamber of Deputies which recently voted to erase his name from the roll of honor hanging in the main hall of the lower house.

The campaign against Iturbide was led by the radicals who proclaimed him an imperialist, instead of a representative of democracy.

The newspapers unanimously decried the lower house action.

JAPAN SEES IN HAYTI CHANCE TO SCORE AMERICA.

Look Upon It As the Heel of Achilles—Says States Cannot Throw Any Stones.

By J. W. T. MASON.
(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Japan will make Hayti the Achilles' heel of America in answering any attacks at the Washington disarmament conference aimed at the Japanese policies in Korea, China, Manchuria and Siberia.

Japanese agents have been collecting evidence of American activities in Hayti for a long time, and the Mikado's representatives in Washington are fully informed of the facts.

Japan is prepared to claim that America's record in Hayti makes it impossible for the United States to criticize Japan's program in the Far East. To the American charge that Japan's colonial policy is a military policy, Japan is ready to contend that America's activities in Hayti have been militaristic in every detail from the moment of the occupation to the present time.

Japan's Counter.

The charge that Japan sends her soldiers instead of civilians to control its representatives on the Chinese mainland will be countered by accusing America of using admirals and marines to govern Hayti.

The assertion that Japan is holding possession of Shantung and Eastern Siberia against the will of the inhabitants will be answered by showing America has done the same thing in Hayti.

Pleas Duplicated.

Pleas of Koreans for protection against attacks by Japanese soldiers on their lives and liberty will be duplicated by similar pleas of the Haytians against American marines.

Charges of autocritic control by the Japanese of mainland territory not belonging to them will bring the retort that America had better look to her own conduct in Hayti. The Japanese claim nothing has been alleged against their own conduct in the Orient that cannot be proven by the records to have occurred in Hayti during the period of American occupation.

Since America would refuse to recognize Japan's right to interfere on behalf of the Haytians, the Japanese are prepared to use this fact as an argument against intervention by the United States in Japan's Far Eastern plans.

2 Per Cent of Mankind is Intelligent, Edison States

REST LACK IMAGINATION, INVENTOR THINKS; HE DESPAIRS OF SELF-GOVERNMENT, CRITICIZES EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM, AND BELIEVES EUGENICS WILL SOLVE PROBLEM.

(By ALLAN L. BENSON.

ORANGE, N.J., Nov. 2.—"Neither you nor anybody else, says Thomas A. Edison, "can write a self-evident fact so plainly that 3 per cent. of those who read it can understand it. On second thought I think I would reduce the number who can understand 2 per cent."

The interview took place in his laboratory here. When I entered and caught sight of him he was bending over the same desk where I had seen him 15 years ago. His big white head was bent over papers he was studying. He looked up and smiled with the cordiality that every one who knows Edison will recall.

At my first question he plunged into the interview with all the remarkable vigor that he puts into his work. Mr. Edison is remarkable not only for his achievements, but for the tenacity with which he retains the strength of a young man. His father died at the age of 104 and then only because, as Mr. Edison says, the cells of his body wished to separate and reassemble in some other body.

The elder Edison, in perfect health, had been visiting one of his daughters. One day he said to her "I think I will go over to visit—(naming another daughter) and die." He went and in two days he was dead.

Thomas A. Edison has been going to school lately. His instructors are those who apply to him for employment. By studying their answers to his questionaire, he is learning new things about the human race. He is in his seventy-fifth year and knew a good deal about his fellow men before he launched his questionnaire, but he says the things he has learned recently astonish him. Some of the things he learned saddened him. The answers to one question in his latest questionaire he will not publicly discuss because they constitute an indictment of a large percentage of those applying to him for employment.

"You write an article," continued Mr. Edison, "and write it as plainly as you can and think people understand you. You are wrong. Only 2 per cent. understand because only 2 per cent. have sufficient imagination. That is why it takes so long to get any kind of needed legislation in this country. It takes 25 or 30 years to put anything over. If the people of the United States had imagination, they could understand a thing the first time they were told and be ready to act at once."

"No Self-Government."

"If only 2 per cent. can understand," Mr. Edison was asked, "what chance is there for self-government?"

"Not a chance on earth," he replied. "We have no self-government. We have a government by a little group of men, most of whom are lawyers. You know what Herbert Spencer said about governments. He said the average intelligence represented by governmental acts was lower than the intelligence of the least intelligent member of the government. That explains a lot of things about governments."

Edison was asked if human intellect had gained anything in power since the days of the Greek philosophers.

"I think it has gained a good deal in power,' he replied. "The Greek philosophers were pretty blind. Almost everything we have to-day was before their eyes but they could not see much of anything. The lathe was looking at them. The turbine was staring them in the face. The internal combustion engine that is being so wonderfully developed today could have been produced almost as easily by the ancient Greeks as it was by us.

A Reflection on Science.

"It is astonishing how long things can remain right in front of us and not be observed, or at least not understood. Humboldt said it was a standing reflection on science that it did not understand, and therefore could not explain, the passage of force between the two ends of a horseshoe magnet. It is just as much of a reflection on us that we do not yet know how a bird sustains itself in the air without flapping its wings."

The facts that each generation produces 2 per cent. who are able to understand a self-evident fact when plainly stated, seemed to indicate that there were laws in operation that inexorably produced the 2 per cent. Mr. Edison was asked if he did not consider that the 2 per cent. were created by the fortuitous operation of natural laws. He said he did. He was then asked if he believed it might be possible to discover the laws that create superior beings, and consciously strive to accelerate the speed at which humanity is intellectually improving.

Mysteries of Partnership.

"The possibility already exists in theory," he replied, "and it will exist in fact as soon as we learn more about the laws that produce brain power. At present we know very little about these laws. It is all a matter of association. I mean by that, it is a matter of the association of the little fellows inside of us that contain whatever intellect we possess.

"We are made of cells and some but not all of these cells, manifest whatever intelligence we possess. Some parents happen to be suited to each other and their product has exceptional brain power. It is just like two men going into partnership. If they happen to be just the right kind of men and also happen to be suited to each other, they make a wonderful success at business. A thousand other partnerships fail and nobody knows why one succeeded and the others did not."

Mr. Edison believes in the theory of eugenics but he is not so sure of its practicality.

"A million daisies grow in a field and all are pure white except one," he said. "Burbank, with the eye of a hawk, observes that one is a little different and in a little while produces a black daisy. The point is that daisies can be bred to order and human beings can not. Human beings will not stand for it."

He Knit His Brows.

An effort was made to ask Mr. Edison in a delicate way if he knew of any reason, from his knowledge of his parents, why he was one of the 2 per cent. He wrinkled his brows a good deal ebfore he said a word. When he spoke he was not definite. He said he might have a general idea but nothing definite. It was plain that he did not know.

The only clue he gave to his own case was in discussing education. Edison never went to school, his formal education consisting only of "some instruction from his mother."

"The important thing," he said, "is not to make young children study things they don't like. The moment school is not play it is an injury. I don't know quite the age at which a child's mind altropies, but it is somewhere between 11 and 14. Make a child study what it does not like and keep this up until it is 14 years old and its brain is impaired forever.

"The kindergarten is the place to begin. Children like to learn if they are taught right. They have great curiosity. But they want to be interested.

"I Am a Freak."

"Our educational methods do no interest them. Change these methods and many more 'freaks' will be produced. I am a freak."

Mr. Edison stopped, as he often does during an interview, and remained silent almost a minute. Then he looked up and said:

"The possibilities for the development of the human brain are almost infinite. Think of that boy, 12 years old, who can play 25 games of chess at once and beat the best experts in the world. He is a prodigy, of course, but the prodigy only shows what we are all made of if we can only release our potentialities."

RECOGNITION IS AGAIN THE GOAL OF THE SOVIET.

By LAWRENCE MARTIN.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Senatorial agitation for American recognition of the Russian Soviet Government threatened today to break out anew, as a result of the Red Government's reported offer to assume the Czarist debts in return for recognition.

Senator France, of Maryland, and others are preparing to urge that the United States Government give the most careful and sympathetic attention to the Russian proposal when it is received. Russia owes the American Treasury about $200,000,000 and any proposal which promises to make possible the collection of this apparently 'bad debt" should not be dismissed lightly, France declared today.

Well-Timed.

Russia, in the opinion of high officials and Senators, timed her note to leading powers so as to bring the Russian problem squarely before the Far Eastern and Armament Conference shortly to meet here.

The recent note, coupled with the Red Government's previously announced change in its economic policy clearly signifies an admission by the Lenin-Trotsky Government, officials here believe, that it must have the recognition of the leading powers, and commercial intercourse with the merchants of the world, if the Soviet scheme is to survive. Therefore, it is expected here, every effort will be made to get the delegates to the arms conference to consider while here the question of admitting Russia once more to the circle of nations from which she dropped when the Bolshevists took control.

France Interested.

The French Government, which has been keenly interested in Russian developments because French investments and loans in Russia are larger than those of the other nations, may take the initiative here in bringing the Russian question to the fore, officials thought.

In the Senate, Senator France and Senator Borah probably will discuss the importance of this Government's Russian policy in the near future.

WOMAN'S STORY MAKES PASTOR FLEE

Minister Confirms Her Story; Gets Threat of Tar

CANAAN, N. H., Nov. 2.—The Mahilda Pentecostal Mission of the General Assembly of God, irreverently referred to here as the "Holy Jumpers," is split into two camps as a result of an alleged scandal in the lives of C. H. Bowen, its erstwhile pastor, and a married woman, who is a member of the flock.

The question that divides the mission is whether to forgive the pastor and let him start all over again or to cast him out for good.

Bowen, after receiving threats of tar and feathers, fled to the woods and wandered about for three days. He finally emerged 20 miles away, nearly dead from exposure. Now he is back with his wife here, recovering slowly. And many think he has been punished sufficiently.

Bowen's undoing was part of the cult's declaration of faith which calls for a public confession of sins. One woman came right out in meeting with the story of the fall of the minister and herself. Bowen according to other members, corroborated her confession.

CHURCH LEAGUE BOWLING.

The Church League 5-Pin League got away to a good start last night, with George Street and St. Paul's as the opposing teams. St. Paul's were without the services of some of their regulars on account of the recital at St. Paul's Church. The schedule had been arranged, however, and the game being the first one, it was decided to play as scheduled. George Street won the first two games and St. Paul's the last one:

THE RAYBESTOS BOWLERS SHOWING GOOD FORM

Last night the Raybestos bowlers had two teams getting into shape for the League games and some good scores were put up.

wear more stately and dignified clothes, but always they are beautiful—young and graceful. Their dancing is surely the poetry of motion, their singing a rare delight in these days of half-talking choruses, of nasal twangs and jazz bands. And, after all, like the scenery, they only form a background for Miss Shirley Kellogg. She is quite gorgeous her gowns made by Martial ee Armand (Paris), two ropes of genuine pearls about her neck and full of enthusiasm and vigour. And the "joie de Vivei.' Harry Tate need no background. He is quite substantial as to size, his fun-making is infectious and the very epitome of travesty. One laughs at his first appearance on the stage, and he gives plenty of food for more mirth right through the show.

I told you that the man who plays the stage manager in the opening scene of the revue was a wonderful looking young man. Now is the moment for the feminine heart to throb louder; the dear ladies really should watch for this stunning young Apollo. Everywhere "Hullo, Canada!" has been the beautiful girls have had hosts of admirers. On board ship, in Ottawa—everywhere the imported English girls have been—they've left behind a trail of broken hearts. I know several who have offered themselves, their motors and all their worldly goods simply to annex one of the little strangers; and they say proposals come in on the morning mails so thickly that the evening performance is on before they are all read. Now, I say, what is the matter with our girls? The men appreciate de Courville's efforts, but here is wonderful Billie Holland, one of London's favourite juvenile men, out in Canada, lonely, far from home, looking wistful and ready for consolation, and, so far, not one girl in Canada has proposed to him. His Secretary is already to answer correspondence, to make appointments and arrange rendezvous. Yet there is no rush of business. Frankly, Billie does not know what to make of it. He is so accustomed to adulation, to being the pet of London drawing-rooms that he cannot understand this Canadian indifference. In case you do not take my word for it, I am inserting a small photograph of the young man; it will give you all the details I have missed, all but his voice, and that is charming. Oh, dear! I do hope I have not expressed myself too frankly. LAURA.

ANOTHER GAME ON SATURDAY

BELLEVILLE WILL MEET THE LOCALS AT RIVERSIDE PARK

Peterborough will meet their old rivals, Belleville, on Saturday, in one of the best games of the season at Riverside Park. The services of Bobby Armstrong, who refereed last Saturday, have been applied for, and it is expected that he will handle the game in as satisfactory a manner as he handled the game with Oshawa.

The team had a stiff practice last night. It was rather cold and damp but two teams of the boys turned out. After almost half an hour of kicking and catching, the two teams lined up against each other and practiced end runs and fake plays. Most of the practice, however, was devoted to kicking to the two half lines, who, after a while, began to catch the ball better than they have been this year. The team also had a bit of tackling as each kick was run back. The tackling was not as good as usual, but with practices to-night and to-morrow, the team ought to be in good shape for the game Saturday. After the other players had dispersed the half line stayed and practiced their catching until after dark, and they were certainly catching them at that time. Ridpath, Grimes, Maniece, Brown and Fanning are the most likely ones for the back division on Saturday. While it is not decided yet, they are all out to catch a place on the regulars, and all will be in shape by then to stay back to receive the kicks from Belleville.

Belleville will be out in full strength for the game, and expect to win, because if they don't they will be out of the running for the series. They have, according to reports, been practicing every evening, and with a few players added to their strength, they hope to beat Peterborough on their own grounds. For the past four years the games have been evenly divided between these two teams, each winning their home games, and so the greatest rivalry exists between them. Peterborough also expects to win, and although they know it will not be a walk-over, hope to be able to prove beyond any doubt that they are the better team. If Peterborough wins the game they will practically have the first round, as they will have three games to Belleville's and Oshawa's none.

The round as it stands now is:

LUMSDEN HARE AND SELENE JOHNSON IN "THE TITLE"

Wherever this play has been given the audiences have acclaimed it interesting and well worth seeing. It may not suggest much to the initiated, but the lovers of Arnold Bennett will be glad of the opportunity to see some of his dramatic work. "Milestones" was one of the greatest dramatic hits of the season in which it was produced. The author has such a keen sense of humour, such a deep insight into human nature, with a writing of things as they really are, that a play such as "The Title" with an efficient cast should bring out a large crowd of people. It is effectively staged and Miss Johnson wears some beautiful clothes. More and more is the stage looked upon as a legitimate means for the display of fashions. It goes without saying, of course, that when a role demands old, out-of-date clothing we must accept the situation, but a beautifully dressed heroine is just so much more attractive than one poorly gowned, and the feminine part of an audience rejoices at seeing pretty clothes.

"CAMOUFLAGE" ON FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

When the last two days of the week were chosen for Capt. Plunkett's Fourth Division entertainment it is evident that the Maple Leafs remember the big business they did here last winter. We never shall be tired of these soldier-actors or actresses. They were at the front, they fought well, were wounded and then spent the rest of their time amusing and entertaining their comrades. As you sit in a nice, warm, cosy theatre at home it is difficult to realize that these same clever stunts were pulled off almost within sound of the guns. One officer said that the 'Dumbells," a similar concert troupe, did more to sustain the morale of the troops than any other single agency at the front.

The boys have many friends here, as in every other city and town in Canada. Morley Plunkett, the youngest of the three clever boys, renewed acquaintances with a good many friends last New Year's day, and Ben Allen, Pat Rafferty and the others are all well known. Rafferty's father was a comedian in London for years and a great favourite with the public.

The attractive scale of prices for the Maple Leafs' engagement seems to augur well for full houses Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee.

BRITISH BEAUTIES ARE BREAKING MANY HEARTS IN DE COURVILLE'S CHORUS TRIUMPHANT

Do you like them tall or short, stout or thin, fair or dark or just a happy "Magjum" as the Irishman said? No matter what your taste in feminine pulchritude may be you'll fall for some one of the "Hullo, Canada!" chorus. I know, because I've seen them. Not even Ziegfeld could have exercised more care or have had a better selection from which to choose for his famous "Follies" than did de Courville. There are dainty little girls who look like bits of Sevres or Dresden China, there are larger girls who

AT THE ALLEN.

"OVER THE HILL."

"Over the Hill," the wonder picture of Broadway, that has easily outdistanced every other screen presentation in the matter of a continuous run in New York, will be seen here at the Allen Theatre for the balance of the week.

"Over the Hill" is an unusual picture. It does not depend upon the eternal triangle for its sustained interest. Nor require mob scenes to bolster up shortcomings in plot. There is something so sweet and wholesome and interesting in the story that the blase New Yorker, so particular and discriminating in his choice of theatrical entertainment, has seen fit to give it his steady patronage and unqualified enthusiasm ever since it was first shown there in September, 1920.

Paul H. Sloane adapted the story from Will Carleton's "Farm Ballads" and Harry Millarde directed it. William Fox, its producer, has supplied a corps of singularly competent players.

AT THE CAPITOL.

ETHEL CLAYTON WANTS REAL HOME

"The Price of Possession" Star Speaks of Her Hopes and Aspirations

Ethel Clayton, the charming Paramount star, almost succeeded in fulfilling her one consuming wish in "The Price of Possession" her latest Paramount feature which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre beginning Thursday. Her greatest desire was to return to a domestic screen story—to have a real home in the movies and in "The of Possession" she gets a home, but it is a large London estate.

"It is not exactly the kind of home I want, said Miss Clayton, in speaking of her hope, "but it will do I really want to return to one of the old domestic dramas like I used to do."

Not long after Miss Clayton made her success in "Dollars and the Woman", it was discovered by producers that she had the "air". So they cast her for social queens with pet poms instead of children. In "The Price of Possession" she plays a sort of double role, first as the wife of a bush rider in Australia and later, after her husband's tragic death, as the mistress of Barston Manor, a large estate in the suburbs of London.

Miss Clayton does admirable work in contrasting the simple domesticity of her Australian home and the complex management of the England estate, yet in the latter position she brings into play the homely qualities which she practises in every day life at her own home. Rockcliffe Fellowes is leading man.

The balance of this excellent show will include a very funny two reel comedy entitled "Mamma's Cow Puncher'—this and many other extra fine short reel subjects and the splendid music of the Capitol concert Orchestra will complete a splendid programme at the popular Capitol prices of admission.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2. — (Canadian Press.) — That a great revival in which the Jewish people would recognize Christ as the Messiah would take place in a not too distant future was the declaration of Dr. I. To The Citizens of Peterboro

ONCE IN A WHILE the men whose business it is to produce plays feel the inadequacy of even the power of printed advertising. This is when they know they have something really good, and they would be happy if they could convince their patrons of the truth of what they know. The public soon finds out how worthy this or that play is and will, if it likes it, flock to enjoy it. If a play is successful then the manager declares that it is due to his sagacity in choosing "WHAT THE PUBLIC WANTS."

NOW THE SIMPLE TRUTH IS the public does not know what it wants UNTIL IT SEES IT, and very few managers know either.

NOW WILL YOU give the matter of this little message just a little more credence than you would the usual printed announcements.

ON FRIDAY MORNING you are sure to be told by those that have seen Arnold Bennett's new satirical comedy, "The Title," which will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Thursday evening, Nov. 3, what an enjoyable play this latest work of that well-known English author really is, and they will wonder WHY YOU FAILED to see it. It will be produced here under the direction of Richard G. Herndon, the producer that sent you Nance O'Neil in 'The Passion Flower" last season —this one fact alone should be a guarantee that "The Title," which is making a Trans-Canada tour, will be one of the really high-class attractions to be seen here this season. The company will be headed by Lumsden Hare, seen here as Estaban in "The Passion Flower," and Selene Johnson, who will be supported by a specially selected company of English players.

THE LADIES OF PETERBOROUGH will be especially interested in the stunning gowns worn by Miss Johnson, which are the latest creations from Farquaharson and Wheelock of London and Paris.

REMEMBER THIS—The engagement is for the one night only, TO-MORROW (THURSDAY) at the GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

TECHNICAL SCHOOL QUESTION, ETC.

ed "half a loaf better than no bread" in this matter.

Re Penny Banks in the Schools.

Mr. W. K. Vipond, representing the Penny Bank of Toronto, addressed the meeting for a few minutes, outlining the system in vogue and recounting the benefits of the work among the children. Refuting some of the arguments advanced by the teachers who oppose the scheme, he said that interest of three per cent. is paid on all deposits. Usually a very small number of pupils outside of the fourth book have bank accounts. With this penny bank system, the exercise of thrift is inculcated in the mind of the growing child, most of whom save the money themselves, contrary to the idea of the teachers that they receive it from their parents. The system requires a very small amount of time to operate, and, in a town of 3,000 school children, the average yearly savings would amount to $15,000, a respectable sum.

Mr. E. G. Patterson considered that the outgoing Board should not saddle the teachers with any extra work, without careful consideration, and the whole matter was referred, on motion of Messrs. Patterson and Worth, to the Supervision Committee, who will report to the Board.

A letter from the Royal Black Preceptory, enclosing a copy of a resolution recently passed by them, in opposition to the action of the Roman Catholic Bishops with regard to taxes for Separate Schools was received, with several comments regarding the necessity of avoiding strife in this matter as far as possible.

A motion by Messrs. Fowler and Denne was carried as follows: "That the present arrangement with the Y.M.C.A. for the use of the gymnasium and the service of the Physical Director be continued for the present term of five months from 1st November at $700, payable monthly in the usual way."

GOING OUT OF MISSES' SUITS AND DRESSES

AN EXCELLENT TIME TO BUY FOR JUNIORS AND SMALL WOMEN AT THE WM. E. LECH STORE

The ladies' and children's wear store of Wm. E. Lech, 366 George street, has been so successful with its children's department that the firm has decided to go into children's wear much more extensively. For this purpose a sacrifice sale is now being held of misses' suits and dresses to secure extra cabinet room for carrying a larger stock of new children's wear. Small women may also be fitted with these suits and dresses. The marked-down prices on these misses' suits and dresses furnishes an excellent opportunity for those desirous of making purchases the week preceeding Thanksgiving. A perusal of the large advertisement on another page will afford additional particulars.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor:

Sir,—At last night's meeting of the Board of Education an amendment to drop further consideration of the question of Collegiate extension and Technical education was passed. I voted for this amendment and thereby caused some astonishment so I afterwards learned. Now since even an unimportant person like myself can harm a cause if suspected of "flopping" let me say that I have never yet learned to "flop." I always know where I stand on an important question and never hesitate to state my opinion in the plainest words.

We had eight members out of a Board of ten present at last night's meeting and have never had more than eight (sometimes only seven) since this subject came before the Board in June. In that month Mr. Cameron left town, his seat was not filled and he has never been present at a Committee or Board meeting since. The representative of the Separate School Board is seldom able to attend our monthly Tuesday meetings.

Had a vote on a Technical school, or on a Continuation school been taken last night, Technical education would have lost out and the way would have been cleared for a majority vote in favour of a Collegiate extension, a project I do not think fair to all classes.

In January when the question is to be re-opened, there will be at least one new member on the Board, perhaps more. Also some of those members who are now opposed to spending any money on Technical education at the present time may have changed their minds. Therefore, in the hope that the new Board may see their way to immediate action in favour of Technical education, I voted for delay. I am surprised that anyone could think my ideas on the subject have changed. I stand solidly for Technical education in this city and I consider that now, and not a few years hence, is the time to plan for it. It is the most pressing business of the Board of Education in my opinion. I only wish I had been able to convince a majority of the members.

KATE MORRIS.

DOMINION VOTES AS NOVA SCOTIA.

This Has Been Demonstrated in Almost Every Election.

HALIFAX, November 2 (Canadian Press). — Generally as Nova Scotia has voted in general elections so has the country as a whole voted. On only one occasion, that of the first general election in 1867 when resentment against Confederation dominated the political situation in the East, has Nova Scotia returned a majority of its members in opposition to the Government of the day. Of the remaining twelve general elections Canada's easternmost Province sent back a majority in support of the Government on ten occasions, and in the "doubtful years" of 1896 and 1911, when Governments were overthrown, recorded the changing sentiment of the country by declining to commit herself either one way or the other and returning an equal number of Liberals and Conservatives.

Disregarding the election of 1917, when a number of Liberals, pledged to support the Unionist Government of Sir Robert Borden were elected, Nova Scotia has returned a total of 132 Liberals and 107 Conservatives to Parliament since Confederation in 1867. The Liberals carried a majority of the seats in five general elections, those of 1867, 1874, 1901, 1904, and 1908, and the Conservatives a majority in like number, those of 1872, 1878, 1882, 1888, and 1891. In the general elections of 1896 and 1911 there was an even split as between the two parties. The Conservative high water mark was reached in 1882, when the Government of the day carried fifteen seats of a total of twenty-one, and the Liberals piled up their greatest majority in 1904 when they made a clean sweep of the eighteen seats filled by Nova Scotia in that year. The figures for Nova Scotia are as follows:

Year	Con.	Lib.	Year	Con.	Lib.
1867	3	16	1891	16	5
1872	11	10	1896	10	10
1874	4	17	1901	5	15
1878	14	7	1904	0	18
1882	15	6	1908	6	12
1888	14	7	1911	9	9

New Brunswick's record from 1867 to 1911 inclusive shows that in all seventy-nine Conservatives were returned to Ottawa as against eighty-nine Liberals, the Liberals securing a majority of the seats in nine general elections, those of 1867, 1872, 1874, 1878, 1896, 1901, 1904, 1908, and 1911, and the Conservatives securing a majority of the seats in three general elections, those of 1882, 1888, and 1891. The largest majority of the seats won by the Conservatives was in 1891, when the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald took thirteen of the sixteen ridings contested on that occasion, and the largest majority of seats won by the Liberals was in 1908 when Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government came out of New Brunswick with eleven seats to their credit as against two won by the Conservatives. New Brunswick has not proved as good a barometer as has Nova Scotia, having returned a majority in opposition to the Government of the day on four occasions. The detailed figures for New Brunswick follow:

Year	Con.	Lib.	Year	Con.	Lib.
1867	7	8	1891	13	3
1872	7	9	1896	5	9
1874	5	11	1901	5	9
1878	5	11	1904	5	8
1882	10	6	1908	2	11
1887	10	6	1911	5	8

Prince Edward Island on the whole has dealt fairly equably with the two great political parties, having returned in all twenty-two Conservatives as against thirty Liberals. The Liberals carried a majority of the seats in five general elections, those of 1874 (the first year in which the Island voted in a general election), 1888, 1891, 1901, and 1908, the Conservatives carried the day in four general elections, those of 1878, 1882, 1896, 1904. In 1911 there was an even break with both parties taking two seats. The Conservatives got their greatest majority out of the Island in 1878, when they carried five of the six seats contested in that year and the Liberals made a clean sweep of six seats on two occasions in the general elections of 1874 and 1888. In five out of ten elections Prince Edward Island returned a majority supporting the Government of the day, while in four contests a majority in opposition to the Government was returned. The figures are:

Year	Con.	Lib.	Year	Con.	Lib.
1874	0	6	1896	3	2
1878	5	1	1901	2	3
1882	4	2	1904	3	1
1887	0	6	1908	1	3
1891	2	4	1911	2	2

Regarding the Maritime Provinces as a unit, a recapitulation of the above figures shows that in all 251 Liberals were elected as against 208 Conservatives in the twelve general elections contested between 1867 and 1911 inclusive. The Liberals took a majority of the seas in eight appeals to the people, those of 1867, 1872, 1874, 1896, 1901, 1904, 1908, and 1911, the Conservatives securing a majority in the four general elections of 1878, 1882, 1888, and 1891. The Liberals took their greatest following out of the Maritimes in 1874, when they secured a majority of twenty-five seats and the Conservatives won their greatest majority of nineteen seats in the general election of 1891. In the twelve general elections under review the Maritimes returned a majority in support of the Government on nine occasions and a majority in opposition to the Government on three occasions. The figures are:

Year	Con.	Lib.	Year	Con.	Lib.
1867	10	24	1891	31	12
1872	18	19	1896	18	21
1874	9	34	1901	12	27
1878	24	19	1904	8	27
1882	29	14	1908	9	26
1888	24	19	1911	16	19

WALL STREET

NEW YORK Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Oil shares again monopolized speculative attention at the opening of to-day's stock market, repeating their recent conflicting movements. Royal Dutch, whose merger with Union Oil is expected to be ratified to-day, sustained an initial loss of 1 1-2 points and Mexican Petroleum soon registered similar decline. Domestic Oils steadied and nominal dealings in rals. Steels and equipments were irregular.

Lower money rates failed to stimulate public interest in the slightest degree, trading remaining professional during the mid-session. Rails became slightly more active at mixed gains and losses, but Mex. Petroleum's rally stiffened the oils. Motor subsidiaries and gas shares also improved.

Pronounced easement of money rates was the noteworthy development of the morning. Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent., but on very moderate demand soon fell to 5 per cent, and this was shaded to 4 1-2 before noon. Trading in stocks continued largely speculative with further irregular movements in oils. The cheaper issues strengthened while the major shares, notably Royal Dutch, Shell Transport, Mexican Petroleum and General Asphalt displayed further unsettlement. Food specialties were firm and rails held steady, though still neglected.

EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, November 2. Canadian Press. Sterling exchange was easy. Demand Great Britain $391¼, Canadian dollars 7 7-8% discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2. Cnadian Press. Opening wheat, which varied from unchanged figures to 1-8c lower, with Dec. 1.02 to 1.02¼ and May 1.06 ¾ to 1.07¼, as followed by a material setback all around.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

In the Foreign Exchange Market German marks again became acutely weak. A bid price of .50, new low record, being reported.

LIVESTOCK MARKET

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Receipts 1160, trade quiet. Heavy beef steers $6 to $7; choice butcher steers $5.75 to $6.50; butcher cows, medium $3 to $4; calves $11 to $12; lambs $8.25 to $8.50; hogs selects $9 to $9.25.

MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Very little trading occurred on the local stock exchange during the first half hour this morning. Atlantic Sugar was up a half point at 32 1-4 as was also Brazilian at 25. Brompton was unchanged at 25 while Laurentide weakened a quarter to 79.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, November 2. — Canadian Press. — Brazilian Steamship Preferred and 1933-1934 Victory loans furnished most of the interest in this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange. The 1933 Victory Loan on fair sized dealings advanced to 98 with noon close at 97.65, showing a net gain of 25c for the morning. The 1934 issue was also higher at 95. Atlantic Sugar made a recovery of 1 1-4 points with Brazilian at 25. Steamship Preferred stood at 54 3-4 or 1-8 up from yesterday.

OSHAWA, Nov. 2.—Under instructions from the Attorney-General's Department, a jury has been empanelled to inquire into the death of A. Manelo, an employee of the Ontario Malleable Iron Company, who met almost instant death when struck on the head with a piece of bursting emery wheel. The deceased was at his every-day work in apparently good health when life was cut off, leaving a wife and seven small children a charge upon the state.

Keep Step With Your Market

Nine million Canadians must be fed, clothed and housed three hundred and sixty-five days in the year. There is no chance of the country going cold, naked or hungry whilst wages and profits are backed up by an average savings bank deposit of $200 and an average bond holding of $250, and while there are 100 DAILY NEWSPAPERS TO TELL THEM WHEN AND WHERE TO BUY THEIR NEEDS AND THEIR DESIRES.

Canada's buying power is growing daily

Consider the rural population---with millions of dollars rolling in from the crop harvest. Will this class deny itself the necessities and luxuries you have to sell?

62,062 immigrants entered Canada during the first six months of 1921

Those from the United States alone brought $8,755,200 in cash and effects. The other fifty per cent., mainly British-born, have corresponding needs and the money to satisfy them

Therefore, is it not plain, business sense to use DAILY NEWSPAPER ADVERTERTISING to secure sectional or national demand? The daily newspaper moves the goods five to ten times more quickly and more economically than any other medium because it is the daily buying counsel of all classes of people.

CHIROPRACTIC PAVES THE PATH TO HEALTH

Health is the most valuable asset that any person can possess, and yet how frequently do we see those who pay but slight attention to taking care of their health?

THAT WINTER COLD!

During the winter months "colds" of the head, throat and chest are common, and people wonder what is good for such troubles. In other words, catarrhal affections of the respiratory tract are common during the winter season, and people who have heard of CHIROPRACTIC wonder if it is of any value in such dis-eases. These catarrhal affections are only effects. Every effect must have a cause, and the cause is pressure upon the nerves supplying the respiratory tract. CHIROPRACTIC IS VALUABLE, because the Chiropractor adjusts the displaced vertebrae which are pinching the nerves, and when the pressure is relieved proper impulses can pass over the nerves to the affected tissues, enabling them to regain normal function and the "cold" disappears.

THE TROUBLE MAN"

CHIROPRACTIC is not based on superstition, but on common sense. The Chiropractor knows that the cure is in the hands of NATURE—he is only "the trouble man" who adjusts the obstruction so that Nature can work unhindered. With the life force being properly transmitted to every part of the body, does it not stand to reason that the body is better fitted to ward off these evil conditions which men have learned to call dis-ease?

Get your spine into normal alignment and free the nerves of pressure if you expect your body to do the work for which it was intended.

G. T. R. EMPLOYEES REJECT THE PACT

OTTAWA, Nov. 2. —(Canadian Press.)—The general committee of Grand Trunk employees have rejected the so-called tentative agreement as to wages on the Grand Trunk, signed at Montreal last week.

Society

Mrs. W. W. Wylie, of Ottawa, who has been visiting in London and Detroit for the past two weeks, spent the week end with her son, Mr. John Wylie and Mrs. Wylie.

Mrs. J. B. Ormond, of Toronto, who has been in the city for the past few days, returned yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Richmond, of Fowler's Corners, were hosts at a jolly party held at their residence on Monday night. The house was prettily decorated with all sorts of Hallowe'en favours, and over eighty guests enjoyed a pleasant evening in games, dancing, and the enjoyment of dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Mary Tobin died November 1st. Funeral from 438 Mark Street on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock to Immaculate Conception Church. Interment at St. Joseph's Cemetery, Douro.

Master Eldon Braund, 718 George street, has received a beautiful volume, of musical literature awarded him by the Canadian Academy of Music, Toronto, for obtaining highest marks of the pupils of Mrs. S. J. Richardson, A.T.C.M., who tried the piano examinations last June.

Mrs. Charles Field Griffen of Middlebury, Vermont, is the guest of Miss Linden Hall, 17 Fleming Place.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bondridge and daughter, Misses Beckey and Margaret of Toronto, and Mrs. McDougll of Windsor, are visiting Mrs. Deyell, 265 Park street.

At the homeof Dr. and Mrs. Lacey, East City, on Monday evening, All Hallow Eve was fittingly celebrated. The house was tastefully decorated with yellow and black streamers interspersed with cats, bats, jack-o-lanterns and witches.

The arrival of the guests, garbed in all manner of picturesque costumes, enhanced and enlivened the already pretty scene, which was flooded with subdued lighting from pumpkins and shaded lamps that cast a mellow, yellowish glow.

Dancing and games were indulged in and dainty refreshments served during the evening. The party broke up well after midnight with many and sincere expressions of appreciation to the host and hostess for the enjoyable evening spent by all.

Amon gthose present were: Mrs. S. Blewett, Mrs. C. S. Brown, Mrs. E. Patterson, Mrs. C. Nicholls, Mrs. M. Flowers, Mrs. C. M. Thornton, Miss Ethel Elliot, Miss Theresa Taylor, Miss Wilhelmina Kemp, Miss Gertie Hood, Miss Clara Kidd, Miss Margaret Flowers, Miss Hazel Maude, Miss Nellie Owen, Miss Leith Johnson, Miss B. P. Bolton, Dr. Frank, Mr. S. Blewett, Mr. C. S. Brown, Mr. C. Nicholls, Mr. R. H. Perry, Mr. C. M. Thornton, Mr. V. V. Elliot, Mr. T. H. Holyman, Mr. W. Head, Mr. C. Flowers, Mr. W. English, Mr. H. Stewart.

Dr. Bruce Marshal will be in Toronto Thursday and Friday attending the annual meeting of the Ontario Osteopathic Association.

The first of the series of literary evenings arranged for this season at the Y.W.C.A. took place last evening, when Miss Elizabeth MacVannel of the Normal School staff, delighted an appreciative audience wth a very fine paper on Archibald Lampman, Canadian poet of note. An outline of his life was given, from his birth at Morepeth, Ontario, in 1861 to his death in 1899, with the influences of home life and nature study which shaped his career. This was followed by a reading of some of the poetical works of Lampman, by Miss Elliott of the Collegiate Institute staff, and Mrs. Walter Wright gave a vocal solo. Miss Charlotte Layton acted as chairman, and introduced the speaker in few, well-chosen words regarding Canadian writers and poets, including those of the French-Canadian school.

St. Paul's Church was filled last evening with an enthusiastic crowd of people, who listened to a unique musical treat with evident enjoyment. Madam Hurd Fairfax, of Chicago, was the soloist of the evening, and contributed a programme which embraced both classical and popular numbers, with many of the old favorites, and surprised and delighted her audience with the exceptional range of her beautiful voice.

Madam Fairfax's offerings included groups of songs which were rendered in a high, sweet soprano, with clear, bird-like tones, a middle register of rich, vibrating melody and an excellent rendition of tenor and baritone numbers. In several of her numbers, she achieved a peculiar effect of an entire quintette of changing from one register to another with rapid ease, in none of which was there any noticeable effort or straining of the sweet, rich voice. Her control, tone placing, and perfect enunciation, combined with the mellow undertone which is an outstanding feature with most colored singers, made her programme exceptionally effective, and her different numbers were greeted with rousing encores. The "Miserere," from "Il Trovatore," with three voices, and the Sextette from "Lucia" in five, were fine expositions of the singer's musicianship, and her peculiar type of vocal organs. By request, Madam Fairfax sang "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny," as only one of her race, endowed with outstanding vocal ability, could sing it and finished with a sweet rendition of the hymn, "Steal Away to Jesus."

An excellent recitation by Miss Greta Scarrow and a pianoforte solo, "Clairlune," by Miss Agnes Logan, added their quota to an enjoyable programme, and Miss Ida Sanderson acted as accompanist in her usual efficient manner.

WEDDING BELLS

MARTIN—ALLEN

On Monday morning October 31, at 6.30 in St. Joseph's Church, Douro, by the Rev. Father Maguire, the parish priest, Marietry Lilian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Allen, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Stephen J. Martin of Kingston. The bride who was given away by her father, looked charming in a suit of blue tricotine with grey squirrel trimmings and hat to match. She also wore a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses and carried a pearl rosary, the gift of the groom. Mrs. George Heffernan of Norwood, sister of the bride, played the wedding march, while Miss Mary Quinlan, her cousin sang very beautifully, Gounod's "Ave Maria".

After partaking of a dainty breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, the happy young couple took an early train for New York and other points, followed by the best wishes of their friends. They will reside in Kingston.

THREE TORONTO YOUTHS IN THE TOILS HERE.

When Frank Egerton, William Johnston, and Harold Hussey, three Toronto youths, left their parental roofs to join the Navy in Montreal (They say it is a wet city), they did not expect to wind up at a divisional point on the C. P. R.

This is just what happened, however. C.P.R. Constable G. Evans took them off a freight train at Havelock, and brought them before Magistrate D. W. Dumble to-day. They were remanded for a week.

Adjutant Wallace Bunton, of the Salvation Army, is visiting their parents to see what can be done with them. The bubble of the youths has been punctured, and they are anxious to return home, but they also want a job. Toronto, they say, is jobless.

MOOT ULSTER COMPROMISE; PLEBISCITE IS SUGGESTED; SETTLEMENT HOPE REVIVED

REACTION FROM YESTERDAY'S SITUATION AS CRAIG IS INVITED TO LONDON TO DISCUSS NEW PROPOSALS.

SHOULD ULSTER REFUSE CABINET WOULD RESIGN

(BY ED. L. KEEN)
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, November 3, Canadian Press. — Sir James Craig has accepted the Governments' invitation to come to London and consult the Cabinet on the Ulster situation. He will likely leave Belfast on Friday, and will remain in London until November 16th, when he goes to France. He will discuss the specific plans submitted by the Sinn Fein, which the Government thinks feasible, if Ulster agrees.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Hope of an Irish settlement was revived to-day when Sir James Craig, was expected here to discuss the terms of the Ulster compromise.

Overnight developments caused a great reaction from yesterday's situation when a complete breakdown of the peace negotiations appeared inevitable.

The Ulster Premier was formally invited by the British Cabinet to participate in the conferences and, because of the vital necessity for his presence, it was assumed he would accept.

While the new proposals were not disclosed they were said to provide a choice of the following:

Establishment of a federated Ireland, with the entity of Ulster preserved and three Catholic counties of Donegal, Cavan and Monaghan included.

A plebiscite for Fermanagh and Tyrone, the vote to be taken either by county or by the Silesian Commune plan, alternatively or combined.

Amendment of the Home Rule Act so as to convert the optional Council of Ireland into compulsory body like the Senate in which Ulster would be represented only proportionately instead of equally as at present.

Should Craig refuse to allow Ulster to accede to any of these solutions, it was understood that Premier Lloyd George, who has pledged himself not to coerce Ulster would resign on the grounds that the question of Fermanagh and Tyrone does not justify a resumption of hostilities in Ireland. This would leave to the Unionists the task of persuading Ulster to reconsider or of crushing the Sinn Fein.

In a way the resolutions may have been designed to test the reaction in Ulster, leaving Lloyd George a wide margin for retreat in the event of an uproar.

Advices from Belfast stated that Ulster strongly opposes the idea of a plebiscite, fearing it would be an entering wedge for absorption of additional territory by the Irish Republicans.

Considerable anger was in evidence there because of the fact that Ulster concessions had been discussed before a pledge of allegiance to the Crown had been exacted from the Sinn Fein.

A strong vote of optimism regarding the Irish situation was reflected in the Press to-day. In sharp contrast with yesterday's forebodings.

"The outlook is distinctly improved,' according to the Telegraph, while The Mail asserts that "the ambiguities are being removed.

The Chronicle, Lloyd George's organ, was more reserved and stated that the atmosphere was more friendly but insisted that the Sinn Fein must accept allegiance before Ulster can be approached regarding concessions.

INDIANA COAL MINERS IDLE

PRACTICALLY EVERY MINE CLOSED DOWN TO-DATE--ILLINOIS MINERS ADVISED TO REFRAIM FROM STRIKE.

WASHINGTON WATCHING THE SITUATION CLOSELY

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Practically every mine in the Indiana coal fields was idle to-day as a result of the strike of the miners in protest against the injunction, issued Monday, by Federal Judge Anderson, prohibiting the use of the "check off" system.

ADMINISTRATION WATCHING.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — Administration officials, having just recovered from apprehension over the threatened railroad strike, are again anxious over the danger of a coal miners' strike in protest of Judge Anderson's injunction against the Williamson field miners.

Nothing has been done by Federal authorities in the matter in advance of an actual move toward a strike by the miners, but a careful watch has been set on developments, and decisive efforts will be made, if necessary, to avert the threatened outbreak of the miners.

NO RUNAWAY STRIKE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Illinois miners were advised yesterday by President Frank Farrington to refrain from a "runaway" strike and to stick to their jobs pending a decision by the Illinois Coal Operators' Association on their attitude toward the ruling by Judge Anderson against the "check-off" system.

Society Women to Deliver Milk In Face of Bandits' Operations

(United Press).

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—With milk bandits in high-powered cars stealing and selling milk, and prominent New York society women organizing to drive trucks, Manhattan's milk strike entered the third day with striking drivers and employers locked in a finish fight for the open shop.

Gunmen, stealing trucks or unloading milk cans into their cars last night, did a rushing business selling milk at exorbitant prices in different parts of the city.

Announcement of the conference board's refusal to permit the strikers to return to work at their old wages brought to an end hopes of a settlement to-day and the milk thieves found a ready market.

New York club women, including Col. Helen Basted, who organized the Motor Corps of America, came forward to-day with a proposal to drive milk trucks despite the bandits, and to take milk where it is needed in the automobiles. Armed escorts will be furnished if necessary.

LABOR CZAR IS IDENTIFIED AS THEFT PLANNER

TELLS HOW WHISKEY AND ARGUMENT ENSNARED HIM

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Looking unflinchingly into the eyes of "Big Tim" Murphy, Ralph Teter, star witness for the State, yesterday identified the Labor boss as the man who planned and directed the Dearborn street mail robbery, in which $360,000 was stolen. Murphy, according to Teter and other witnesses, attended to every detail of the robbery, except that he kept out of the danger zone when the actual robbery was being committed. Teter says he received $27,500 in Liberty bonds as his share of the loot.

Teter had a long and honorable record as a railway mail clerk. He was ill in Indianapolis when Murphy sought him out because of his knowledge of big shipments of money by mail. The Labor czar, Teter said, argued with him that the Government had used up the best years of his life and would cast him aside; that there was not the slightest danger of discovery; that Murphy had a gang ready for the work, and that he had every member of that gang under his thumb, and that if anyone interfered he would be killed.

Teter finally fell for the persuasive argument, which was helped along with liberal donations of whiskey. Several conferences were held in Indianapolis and Chicago, and Teter finally learned about the big shipment of money and bonds and told Murphy. The plan worked to the letter. Murphy stood across the street from the railway station. When the bags containing the money and bonds were delivered, Teter raised his hat. That was Murphy's signal, and he then raised his hat as the signal for the robbers to seize the plunder.

REQUEST THAT MUNICIPALITY RETAIN FINES

ATTORNEY-GENERAL REFUSES DEPUTATION THIS, BUT AGREES TO RETURN 50 PER CENT.

PETERBOROUGH BEHIND $725 ON FINE PAYMENTS

Appealing to the Provincial Government to allow the Ontario municipalities to retain the fines collected on Provincial and Dominion statutes, as they have to bear most of the expense of administrating justice, a deputation representing 24 municipalities, of which Peterborough was one, waited on Ministers of the Cabinet yesterday in Toronto.

Peterborough was represented by Thomas Tooms, M.L.A., Mayor A. A. McIntyre, and S. R. Armstrong, City Clerk. Mr. Tooms introduced the deputation to Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney-General; Hon. Peter Smith, Provincial Treasurer, and Hon. Henry Mills, Minister of Mines and Health, who represented the Cabinet. At 10 a.m. the representatives had met at the City Hall and decided on a plan of action. Mr. S. H. Kemp, Hamilton's City Clerk, presented the case of the municipalities, and introduced other spokesmen. They were heard at 12 noon at Queen's Park.

The claim of the municipalities was that they bear the brunt of the expense in connection with the enforcement of the law. They pay all the court expenses, Magistrate's salary, maintenance of police force, etc., and in return get only the fines taken on local statutes and in cases of the O.T.A., in which the police lay the charge. Municipalities claimed yesterday that it was gross injustice.

Attorney-General Raney said that the Dominion Statute and Criminal Code provided fines should be paid to the province, and the Ontario statutes were so worded also. The law must be carried out, he said. Mayor Church and Controller McGuire, of Toronto, went further than the other municipal representatives, and brought up the question of the financial relations between the municipalities and the province.

Many municipalities are behind in their payments of the fines to the Province. Peterborough, they claim, is $725 short for the years 1917 to 1920, during which time she paid $5,562.30 collected in fines in the police court over the Provincial Treasury. Of this amount the city claims that there is at least $156 not due.

Attorney-General Raney said that municipalities whose payments have been belated must pay up at once. He said, however, that arrangements made in 1916 or 1917 with the previous Government that 50 per cent. of the fines collected would be returned to the municipalities, and never acted on would be carried out. He spoke at some length on the burden of the Provincial Government on the administration of justice.

Some of the municipalities are many thousands of dollars behind in the turning over of these funds. Hamilton owes the Government $38,000, it is said. When the Attorney-General made the 50 per cent. reduction in the municipalities received some satisfaction, but maintain that they are still some out at the short end of the proposition.

A VOTE FOR LIBERAL IS A VOTE FOR LOW TARIFF OR FOR BLACK BETRAYAL MEIGHEN TELLS 3,000 IN ARMOURIES

HON. J. A. STEWART, DISCUSSING RAILWAY PROBLEM, SAYS EXISTENCE OF NATIONAL LINES JUSTIFIED AND MANAGEMENT GOOD—AVERS PAST RECORD UNTARNISHED.

SAY CANADA MUST FOLLOW REST OF WORLD ON TARIFF

Before an audience of about 3,000 in the Armouries here last night Hon. J. A. Stewart, Minister of Railways and Canals, discussed the National Railways problem, speaking in justification of their existence and management and the record of the Government.

Dr. M. A. Morrison, president of the West Peterborough Conservative Association, was chairman of the meeting, and confined himself to introducing the speakers.

Local speakers were: V. J. McElderry, J. F. Strickland, R. Denne and J. H. Burnham, the Liberal-Conservative standard bearer in this riding.

For half an hour before the meeting opened a massed band representing the G.W.V.A. and Peterboro Rangers kept the crowd from getting impatient.

The platform was at the west end of the drill hall under the balcony. It was only a small one with room for about a dozen persons on it.

The monotony of the white painted brick wall behind the platform, was relieved by a large Canadian flag surmounted by a painting of King George.

V. J. McElderry

V. J. McElderry, Secretary of the Conservative Association of West Peterboro, spoke first. He eulogizer the policy of protection and said that the national policy of the Conservatives had its origin under conditions not dissimilar to the present. Other countries are turning to protection—even Australia with a Labor Party in power, he said. The United States is also counted among the countries that have seen the benefits of protection, he said.

"This is the only party in Canada to-day that stands unequivocally for protection and only our leader that stand for that policy, and he is the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen."

Soup Kitchens.

J. F. Strickland said if the people of Peterborough wanted conditions such as existed in Canada 1874-1878, to vote for Mackenzie King or Hon. T. A. Crerar. Soup kitchens were everywhere established ,and all that Mr. McKenzie, a namesake of Mr. King's, could advise the people in Millbrook was "to work harder and eat less." Protection changed those conditions, he said. Mr. Strickland attacked Mr. King's war record. "On Aug. 6, 1914, Mr. King left this country. Did he leave it for France or England. No! He left it for the United States. In 1917 he returned again to oppose a policy that meant the vigorous prosecution of the war." Mr. Strickland said he should have used his undoubted abilities in Canada's service. Mr. Strickland said the protection policy was the only sound and sane one in Canada to-day.

Stood Aside.

Mr. Roland Denne said he wasn't in this election, but was standing strongly back of Mr. Burnham. "Realizing the seriousness of the issue before the people after the by-election, when the Conservative party was split, I decided to stand aside and led Mr. Burnham carry the colours," said Mr. Denne.

Mr. Denne charged Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., with evading a reply to a letter written in the press in April last asking him why he had broken his pledge to Peterborough electors by supporting the Fielding amendment." He is not sitting in the City Council now; he is on record in Hansard. Mr. Denne read from Hansard where Mr. Gordon voted for the Fielding amendment. How he, as chairman of the Manufacturers' committee, can seek to bring industries to Peterborough under the tariff he is supporting I do not know. I would like him to answer that question—he hasn't answered it yet."

The Candidate.

In opening his address, J. H. Burnham, Liberal-Conservative candidate in West Peterborough, paid a glowing tribute to Lady Laurier, whose death has been so widely lamented. He launched at once into a tariff discussion, referring to England being a free trade country adopting protection by passing on Aug. 19 last the Safeguarding of Industries Act. Now she has become protectionist—high protectionist. There is no free trade as it is RT. HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN,—Prime Minister of Canada, who addressed a huge meeting in the Armouries here last night in the interests of J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., Conservative candidate in West Peterborough.

Special Train Carried Party

PREMIER REACHED CITY AT SIX LAST EVENING FROM CAMPBELLFORD.

The six o'clock whistles had hardly ceased blowing last night when the special train on the Grand Trunk Railway carried the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, and his party into the city from Campbellford, where he addressed a meeting yesterday afternoon. A special coach, the Chaudiere, and a Pullman car made up the train, which was hauled by a big Mogul. There were probably less than 50 people who saw the Premier arrive. A scattered group of Conservatives stood waiting to receive him.

Wearing a grey hat, in the popular roll, light-brim style, a dark fawn overcoat, the inevitable dark suit and wing collar, Premier Meighen swung himself down energetically from the car with a bright smile for his Peterborough supporters. He first greeted the Conservative standard-bearer, J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., and next Roland Denne, defeated Government's candidate in the February by-election. Other prominent Conservatives greeted were: Dr. M. A. Morrison, T. E. Bradburn, J. W. Worth, W. R. Morris, J. F. Strickland, and V. J. McElderry. J. J. Sexsmith, Government candidate in East Peterborough, was also one of the group sharing in the felicitations.

There was nothing akin to politics in the warm greeting between Premier Meighen and his old friend, Dr. A. W. McPherson. Taking his arm, the Premier walked around the station with him to the cars. Premier and Mrs. Meighen rode in J. W. Worth's automobile to the Empress Hotel, Hon. J. A. Stewart and Mr. Burnham riding in R. H. Turner's car.

CONTEST TO-NIGHT AT ROLLER ACADEMY

BEST LADY AND GENTLEMAN SKATING IN COUPLES—THIS YEAR'S BEGINNERS.

A very large crowd is expected at the Roller Academy this evening, when the contest for the best lady and gentleman skating in couples will take place. This contest is open only to beginners this year.

The big skating nights, Friday and Saturday, and Saturday afternoon, will have the band on each occasion.

With a special musical programme on Thanksgiving Day, the Academy will be open for skating morning, afternoon and evening.

Another carnival will be held before the close of the season. — Advt.

UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE PETER ROBINSON CHAPTER, I.O.D.E. IN THE G.W.V.A. HALL ON SATURDAY, NOV. 5TH, FROM 4 TO 7. 2d-107-4643

GIVES GOVERNMENT SIDE OF HALTED GRAIN PROBE

For nearly two hours last night Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister of Canada, upheld the tariff policy and record of his Government, and discussed the halted investigation of the Western grain trade before 3,000 people in the Armouries here.

Reiterating the need for a protective tariff expressed in previous speeches, the Premier declared that Canada must follow the rest of the world in this respect, and urged the necessity of protecting Canadian industries from fatal competition with those of the United States. Dealing with the belief that the Liberals would not materially lower the tariff, he stated that their leader was pledged to carry out the 1919 Liberal fiscal platform, and summed the situation up by saying that a vote for the Liberals was either a vote for a low tariff or for the blackest betrayal in Canadian history. The present tariff, he averred, is lower than that of the Laurier Government, which had only one-third of the present expense to meet.

Hon. Mr. Meighen dealt at considerable length with the Government investigation of the Western grain trade, which was halted by injunction of a Manitoba court on application by the Grain Growers' Association and private companies. He alleged that the Grain Growers' Association, formed to protect the farmer, was guilty of the same practices as the private companies, and was using the money thus obtained for political propaganda to further the cause of free trade.

Canada in Good Position

Saying that his opinions on vital issues as delivered here last January had not changed in any particular, Mr. Meighen referred to the fact that all was not sunshine by any means on the country's horizon, but critics should remember that the heyday of inflation is past, and we are now down to the bedrock. In comparison with the rest of the world, and particularly with Europe, whose people were wandering in chaos and starvation, and whose currencies were destroyed., Canada was in a very fortunate position. "We have a larger per capita debt than the United States, but this was caused by the war. The United States was in only one-third of the war." Good financial authorities assert that, compared with the condition of other countries, that of Canada is extraordinarily good. "The United States has thirteen times our population, and has twenty-six times the number out of work. And there is no comparison with other countries at all."

Aid to Unemployed.

Mr. Meighen referred to the good work of the Minister of Labour, who foresaw the influx of unemployed labour after the War, and established bureaus throughout the country, which have up to the present time, found work for over 800,000 people, without cost to themselves.

Low Tariff Agitation blamed

The speaker asserted that the reason for the great unemployment problem lay in the agitation which had been going on throughout the country for the last ten years, which had waxed very bitter in the last three years and especially active in the last three or four months, an agitation, according to Mr. Meighen, which had for its object the overthrow of the fiscal policy of the country. "No other country has one party, not to say two parties, who are determined to go down, down in the tariff and sweep it away in the most essential things." The agitators had already swept three provinces, had spent thousands of dollars in their propaganda, and had carried elections by the cry of free trade. If this agitation could be quelled, the unemployment problem would be reduced in a very short time.

Protection The Issue.

Mr. Meighen referred to the commitments of the Wood-Crerar party over tariff issue in West and to commitments of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in the east. He asserted that the former bound themselves three years ago by solemn pledges to make certain alterations in the tariff of Canada, and that the latter had pledged themselves just as solemnly two years ago at their political convention that on ther return to power they would implement by legislation

(E) To apply for, purchase or otherwise acquire, any patents, formulae, process, licenses, concessions and the like, conferring any exclusive or non-exclusive, or limited right to use, or any secret or other information as to any inventions, formulae, process, which may seem capable of being used for any of the purposes of the company, or the acquisition of which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to benefit the company, and to use, exercise, develop or grant licenses in respect of, or otherwise turn to account the property, rights information so acquired;

(F) To enter into partnership or into any arrangement for sharing of profits, union of interests, co-operations, joint adventure, reciprocal concession or otherwise, with any person or company carrying on or engaged in or about to carry on or engage in any business or transaction which the company is authorized to carry on or engage in, or any business or transaction capable of being conducted so as to directly or indirectly to benefit the company; and to lend money to, guarantee the contracts of, or otherwise assist any such person or company, and to take or otherwise acquire shares and securities of any such company, and to sell, hold, re-issue, with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal with the same;

(G) To take or otherwise acquire and hold shares in any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company or carrying on any business capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit the company;

(H) To enter into any arrangements with the authorities, municipal, local or otherwise, that may seem conducive to the company's objects, or any of them, and to obtain from any such authority any rights, privileges and concessions which the company may think it desirable to obtain, and to carry out, exercise and comply with any such arrangements, rights, privileges and concessions;

(I) To establish and support or aid in the establishment and support of associations, institutions, funds, trusts and conveniences calculated to benefit employees or ex-employees of the company (or its predecessors in business) or the dependents or connections of such persons, and to grant pensions and allowances, and to make payments towards insurance, and to subscribe or guarantee money for charitable or benevolent objects; or for any public, general or useful object;

(J) To promote any company or companies for the purpose of acquiring all or any of the property and liabilities of the company, or for any other purpose which may seem directly or indirectly calculated to benefit the company;

(K) To purchase, take on lease or in exchange, hire or otherwise acquire, any personal property and any rights or privileges which the company may think necessary or convenient for the purposes of its business, and in particular any machinery, plant, stock-in-trade;

(L) To construct, improve, maintain, work, manage, carry out or control any roads, ways, branches or sidings, bridges, reservoirs, watercourses, wharves, manufactories, warehouses, electric works, shops, stores and other works and conveniences which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to advance the company's interests, and to contribute to, subsidize or otherwise assist or take part in the construction, improvement, maintenance, working, management, carrying out or control thereof;

(M) To lend money to customers and others having dealings with the company, and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such persons;

(N) To draw, make, accept, endorse, execute and issue promissory notes, bills of exchange, bills of lading, warrants and other negotiable or transferable instruments;

(O) To sell or dispose of the undertaking of the company or any part thereof for such consideration as the company may think fit, and in particular for shares, debentures or securities of any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company;

(P) To apply for, secure, acquire by assignment, transfer, purchase or otherwise, and to exercise, carry out and enjoy any charter, license, power, authority, franchise, concession, rights or privilege, which any government or authority, or any corporation or other public body may be empowered to grant, and to pay for, aid in, and contribute towards carrying the same into effect, and to appropriate any of the company's shares, bonds and assets to defray the necessary costs, charges and expenses thereof;

(Q) To procure the company to be registered and recognized in any foreign country and to designate persons therein according to the laws of such foreign country to represent this company and to accept service for and on behalf of the company of any process or suit;

(R) To raise and assist in raising money for, and to aid, by way of bonus, loan, promise, endorsement, guarantee of bonds, debentures or other securities or otherwise, any other company or corporation with which the company may have business relations, and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such company, corporation, or by any other person or persons;

(S) To adopt such means of making known the products of the company as may seem expedient, and in particular by advertising in the press, by circulars, by purchase and exhibition of works of art or interest, by publication of books and periodicals and by granting prizes, rewards and donations;

(T) To sell, improve, manage, develop, exchange, lease, dispose of, turn to account or otherwise deal with all or any part of the property and rights of the company;

(U) To do all or any of the above things as principals, agents, contractors or otherwise, and either alone or in conjunction with others;

(V) To do all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects;

The operations of the Company to be carried on throughout the Dominion of Canada and elsewhere by the name of "Alliance Brass Company, Limited," with a capital stock of seventy-five thousand ($75,000) dollars, divided into 750 shares of one hundred ($100) dollars each, and the chief place of business of the said company to be at the City of Peterborough, in the Province of Ontario.

Dated at the office of the Secretary of State of Canada, this 20th day of October, 1921.

OIL REFINERY TO BE AT FORT McMURRAY

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The first oil refinery in Alberta and in Western Canada will be in operation near Fort McMurray next year, George J. Hammond, a well-known Vancouver capitalist, announces. According to Mr. Hammond, the object is to supply the whole of Western Canada with oil, gasoline, kerosene, distillate and light and heavy lubricating oils.

Control of 6,000 acres of tar sands near Fort McMurray has been obtained by the company which Mr. Hammond represents, and by a special process, which has already been successfully proven, it is proposed to extract the oil and other by-products from the tar sands.

MEIGHEN OUTLINES AID GIVEN TO AGRICULTURE

HIS ADDRESS IN CAMPBELLFORD TO NORTHUMBERLAND AUDIENCE OF NEARLY 4000 LARGELY A DEFENSE OF GOVERNMENT'S POLICY IN THE INTEREST OF FARMERS.

A CORDIAL RECEPTION

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2.—With an eye to the preponderance of farmers in the audience of approximately 4,000 that crowded the skating rink here this afternoon, Premier Meighen defended the Government's accomplishments in aid of Canadian agriculture, exposed the sophistry in the allegation that only $5,000,000 had been spent last year in helping the agricultural industry of this country, extolled the special qualifications of the Hon. Dr. Tolmie as Minister of Agriculture, and concluded his essentially argumentative address with an exposition of how the Crerar policy of free trade in farm produce would react with incalculable loss against rural Canada by forcing it into free and open competition in the home markets with the agricultural countries of the world.

In his first visit to Campbellford, the Hon. Arthur Meighen was accorded a reception befitting the Prime Minister of the Dominion. Mayor A. J. Meyers declared a half holiday for the afternoon, and all the stores and schools and factories were closed. Seymour Township farmers, irrespective of their political creeds or persuasions, individually knocked off work for the occasion, and the rest of Northumberland County was well represented from its every corner, including numerous contingents from Cobourg and all along the lake front to Brighton and around in the west from Roseneath, Warkworth and Hastings.

Hon. Mr. Meighen and Mrs. Meighen, accompanied by the Hon. J. A. Stewart, Minister of Railways and Canals, were met at the station by Mayor Meyers and the executive of the Conservative Association and by the band of the Northumberland Regiment, under the direction of Prof. T. A. Cowell, and by a guard of honor composed of members of the local company of the battalion, commanded by Lieut. Walter Davidson.

The party went directly to the rink through streets that were lined with people moving in the same direction: Campbellford has seldom witnessed such throngs. The rink was quickly filled, including the 400 seats railed off in front of the platform and reserved for women.

The Premier's evening engagement in Peterborough demanded a smooth and expeditious unfolding of the programme, which was opened by Mr. J. A. Humphries shortly after two o'clock and concluded at five.

Among those noticed on the platform with the Premier and Mrs. Meighen and Mr. Stewart were Mayor Meyers, Milton E. Maybee, Conservative candidate in Northumberland, Mrs. (Dr.) Hall, Miss Dorothy Colville, Miss Helen Campbell, Mrs. M. E. Maybee, Mrs. I. A. Humphries, Mrs. Arch. Meyers, J. A. Sexsmith, ex-M.P. for East Peterborough, Sam Nesbitt, Reeve, George

MR. W. T. R. PRESTON HELD A MEETING IN MILLBROOK

MR. R. R. HALL AND MR. C. R. WIDDIFIELD OF PETERBOROUGH WERE AMONG THE SPEAKERS—SPEECH BY THE LIBERAL CANDIDATE.

MILLBROOK, November 3. — The meeting held in the Town Hall last evening in the interests of Mr. W. T. R. Preston, the Liberal candidate, was attended by a fair-sized audience, quite a number of ladies being noted in the gathering.

Besides the candidate, there were on the platform Mr. C. R. Widdifield and Mr. R. R. Hall, of Peterborough.

Mr. Preston, who acted as chairman, introduced Mr. Widdifield as the first speaker. After stating that his acquaintance with Mr. Preston dated back to the election campaign of 1917, the latter's address dealt mainly with the heavy burden of taxation imposed by the present Government on foodstuffs and clothing, and the enormous increase in the national debt, partly due to the war, no doubt, but chiefly "to the crass stupidity of our present Government."

To divert the minds of the electors from this fact, the Premier, according to Mr. Widifield, dealt mainly on the tarff in his election address. He also mentioned that under the Laurier Government manufacturing buildings and products greatly increased in numbers and valte, and immigration poured in, winning for the West the title of the "granary of the Empire" as its possibilities were increasingly developed.

Tariff revision is necessary every few years for the good of the country, but those made under the Union Government hit the consumer heavily. The speaker concluded by stating that the Government now in power preaches the sermon, but falls down on the practical application.

The Candidate.

Mr. Preston made the next address saying it was thirty-five years since he had stood on a public platform in Millbrook, and announced that on Thursday, 10th November, t ojint meeting would be held here, when the Hon. Dr. Edwards would discuss with him some important questions relating to the present campaign, he having repeatedly charged Dr. Edwards to name a day and date for such a meeting.

After emphasising the momentous nature of the issues now before the electors, the speaker stated that Britain and most of the other European countries had, since the war, developed a workable reconstruction policy, but the Canadian Government was just letting things drift so that conditions were getting worse and worse; they should have gone to the country two years ago, but had clung to office and yet had done practically nothing to bring things back to normal conditions. In the main body of his address, Mr. Preston dealt chiefly with three points—First, the large burden of debt placed an the people's shoulders through the purchase and mismanagement of the 22,000 miles of Canadian National Railways; second, the decline i nthe population of Ontario, 800,000 from this Province having emigrated to the States in the last ten years. Should this continue within the next twent, years, Ontario's representation in Parliament will be less than that of Quebec; 3rd, the need of better transportation facilities both by rail and steamship, and the building of cold storage warehouses in England and on the Continent so as to break the combines which now exist there, and provide a better market for Canadian perishable goods, such as apples, cattle, flour, etc. On this last point Mr. Preston spoke very strongly, believing that absolute Government control of the steamship service and cold storage facilities is the only solution of conditions as they now exist, he having studied the question for years and gained an intimate personal knowledge of it through a long residence abroad, being sent to England as an agent of the Government here to find some solution of the immigration problem, and becoming intensely interested in the market question through seeing the work of the big combines in Liverpool and other centrse. This was chiefly his reason for entering the present contest, and he pledged himself, if elected, to work persistently for its successful carrying out.

In conclusion, the speaker referred to the Military Conscription Act, to which he was, and is, opposed, believing it to have been passed under a misapprehension and approved of. Selective conscrition, he said, was a thing unheard of before; "have money or political pull and you can get your boy off," was in reality the way it worked out. Mr. Preston spoke very feelingly also of the deception practised on the contingents overseas, who were promised a speedy return home if they voted for Union Government, a promise which was utterly unkept. Two men whom he held responsible for playing battledore and shuttlecock with the men's lives in order to retain power were Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Hon. T. A. Crerar, and if re-elected they would undoubtedly gamble with our resources as they had gambled with human lives.

Canadian Railways.

Mr. Preston was heartily applauded, and Mr. R. R. Hall was the concluding speaker, making a strong plea along the lines followed by Mr. Preston and Mr. Widdifield, emphasising especially the mismanagement of the Canadian National Railways, and urging the fullest possible publicity as being the best aid to an honest policy and their eventual successful maintenance. He also touched on the broken promises made by the Government to the farmers and soldiers if they would vote for a Union administration in 1917 ,and in conclusion strongly urged the electors to return Mr. Preston to Parliament on the 6th of December because of his ability and personal knowledge of the questions that must be dealt with for the best good of the Canadian nation. The meeting closed by all

The meeting closed by all present rising and singing "God Save the King."

LIBERAL NOMINEE HELD MEETING IN LAKEFIELD

POLITICAL ISSUES

LAKEFIELD, November 3. — The Liberal rally held here last evening in the Mmorial Hall was well attended, to hear Captain John Dewart, Liberal nominee, for East Peterboro. Mr. Robert Duff was in the chair, and on the platform with the speaker, were Mr. C. F. Tanner and Dr. J. C. Smith, representing the local Liberals.

Mr. Duff in a few words introduced a rousing speech on the past rec-Great War, and Mr. Dewart delivered a rousing speecr on the past record of the Liberal party in Canada. Commencing, he said that Canadian industries were hard hit by the slump,and products are banked up in our own markets because of the tariff. We need efficiency and economy to develop our best national resources. The term of the Liberal Government from 1896 to 1911 was called Canada's fifteen golden years of prosperity. During that period the great west was opened up and the tide of immigration set in.

Electors have tht choice of three parties in the coming contest. The first is the old government with Mr. Meighen. A good war ministry is not a good peace ministry, and there is need of a change. The second choice is the Progressive party, or the U.F.O. party, under Mr. T. A. Crerar, the late Minister of Agriculture with the Union Government, and president of the Grain Growers' Association, the largest grain trust in Canada, which makes enormous profits. The platform of the Progressives is similar to that of the Liberals except in that it only appeals to one class of people. The constitution of our country is based on democratic principles and responsible government, and for these principles many of our men laid down their lives.

The third choice is the Liberal party with Mr. William Lyon Mackenzie King, who was chosen to succeed the old chieftain, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and who has a platform best devised to meet the present needs of the people. He advocates tariff revision and not Free Trade, to assist our four basic industries: agriculture, mining, lumbering and fishing. But the tariff would be for revenue purposes only and would encourage immigration. Recent recruits to the Liberal ranks are James Murdock, Labour leader, Michael Clark and Joshua Fletcher, two stalwarts of the U.F.O. ranks in Alberta, who contend that class legislation is dangerous and is a step to national suicide.

Mr. Dewart closed with an appeal for support at the coming election, and a promise to give his best in the interests of East Peterborough.

"The Sinking Ship."

Mr. Joseph Wearing of Peterborough, was the next speaker. As he said, he was speaking to a mixed audience, in every sense of the word, but it was to be hoped that in the forthcoming election, all differences of race and creed would be forgotten and the best interests of Canada be taken into consideration. Division and new parties were not unusual after a great upheaval, such as we had just passed through, when the Great War took our best manhood and left us with a mountain of debt Mr. Wearing gave three reasons why his audience should not vote for Mr. Sexsmith. The first was: "You will lose your vote. The rats leave the sinking ship and they are going fast,

HOUSE AUTHORIZES $4,000,000 FOR ALASKAN LINE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — The House by a vote of 198 to 76, yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill authorizing an appropriation of $4,000,000 to complete construction of the Alaskan Railroad. A total of $52,000,000 has already been appropriated for construction of the road which, when completed, will extend from Seward to Fairbanks, a distance of 539 miles. Work is now in progress on a final liuk of 61 miles. The $4,000,000 appropriation is needed, Chairman Curry of the Territories committee said, to construct a 1,340 foot birdge over the Tanana River, and one 600 feet long over the Menana River, and for other similar work.

INQUEST ADJOURNED INTO BRITANNIA FLOOD

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 3.—To permit of attendance of witnesses still engaged in the search for missing victims, Coroner Jaffe as adjourned for eight days the inquest in the cases of the 16 identified dead in the Britannia Beach district. The inquiry will be resumed on Thursday, November 10.

SUPREME COURT TAKES UP ONTARIO CASES

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—(By Canadian Press.)—In the supreme court yesterday cases on the Ontario list were taken up. In the case of Canadian Northern Quebec Railway vs. Pleet, an action arising through a claim for damages to potatoes shipped to Pleet at Ottawa and on arrival found to be frozen, judgment was reserved.

The case of Montreal Trust Company vs. Richardson, arising out of the hypothecation of respondent's underwriting of part of the capital of the Canadian Jewellers, Ltd., was still under way when court rose in the evening.

Before the hearing of appeals began. R. V. Sinclair, K.C., of Ottawa, applied for an order directing that seven cases of appeal from decisions on writs of habeas corpus issued on behalf of immigrants should be set down and heard at the present term. An order was made placing the cases at the end of the list.

CRAIG GOES TO LONDON.

BELFAST, Nov. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, will leave here Friday evening for London. He will remain there until November 16. Then he will proceed to France for the unveiling by Sir Edward Carson, the former Ulster leader, of the monument erected to the memory of the Ulster division.

Held For Theft of $125,000 in Fake 1918 Game

ARTHUR ECREMENT, FORMER M.P. SURRENDERS TO BUFFALO AUTHORITIES.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 3—(Canadian Press).—Arthur W. Ecrement, of Montreal, former member of Parliament, gave himself up to the District Attorney late yesterday. He is charged with grand larceny in connection with the alleged theft of $125,000 from the late Captain Connolly, a Montreal contractor, who claimed he was fleeced in a fake poolroom game here in 1918.

Captain Connolly died since the proceedings against Ecrement, Charles Drucker ,of Cleveland, and others began, but District Attorney Moore said that evidence given by Connolly in Police Court here, could be used against Ecrement. The jury in the Drucker case disagreed after a trial in which testimony was introduced to show that Montreal men lost more than $900,000 to a fake poolroom game.

Ecrement was unable to produce $30,000 for bail and was sent to jail.

MEIGHEN SPEAKS TWICE IN MONTREAL FRIDAY

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press.) — Arrangements have been completed for the reception to Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen who will reach here Friday and will address two meetings here before proceeding on a brief tour of the metropolitan district. The first will be held under the auspices of the woman's branch of the National Liberal and Conservative party in the afternoon, at which Hon. Rodolphe Monty will also speak. The second meeting will be in the evening.

LINCOLN LIBERALS MAY ENTER CANDIDATE

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 3.— A gathering of Liberals of Lincoln riding yesterday afternoon decided that another convention to be held in this city on Saturday next and that if any candidate be nominated that he be a straight Liberal. This decision was reached on a vote two weeks ago which is tantamount to repudiating the nomination of Capt. Lovelace, L.L.P. candidate, who three times previously has been Liberal candidate. The "if any" proviso, however, gives a shade of color to the rumor that the convention may not nominate any candidate whatever and that in such event A. A. Craise, the farmer candidate will retire, the farmers and labor uniting under Lovelace.

KENSINGTON JUSTICES FAVOUR EARLY CLOSING.

LONDON, November 2 (Canadian Press). — The Kensington Town Hall was crowded yesterday when the Licensing Justices met to fix the hour for closing the public-house bars.

A number of religious bodies had deputations present to urge that ten o'clock be fixed as the closing time. The spokesman for these deputations said that he had recently visited 32 Kensington public-houses on one evening, and had found 62 unattended perambulators with babies, and in addition 141 children under ten years standing outside.

A representative of "fellowship, freedom, and reform" said he had drunk beer since he was two years old, and he demanded that eleven o'clock be fixed as closing time "in the name of four million English people."

The Justices decided on ten o'clock closing.

An attempt by the religious deputations to sing the Doxology was suppressed.

PROBABILITIES.

LLOYD GEORGE CANCELS PLAN TO LEAVE NOW

VIEWED AS FAVORABLE SIGN OF PROGRESS OF IRISH NEGOTIATIONS IN LONDON.

TO GO TO WASHINGTON EARLIEST TIME POSSIBLE

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Prime Minister Lloyd George has definitely cancelled his passage on the steamer Aquitania, on which he was to have proceeded to the United States November 5, to attend the Washington conference.

This fact became officially known here last night for the first time. It had been known, however, that the critical stage of the Irish negotiations had reached probably would prevent Mr. Lloyd George from sailing on Saturday.

Owing to the grave turn in Irish affairs, it is not even possible to fix a provisional date for the Prime Minister's sailing, but he still intends to go to Washington at the earliest possible moment.

The cancellation by the Prime Minister of his passage is considered a favorable rather than an unfavorable sign of the progress of the Irish negotiations. The interpretation placed on it is that Mr. Lloyd George hopes that a few days delay in his departure will enable him to see a settlement reached, or at least the basis of an agreement arrived at which can be worked out during his absence from the country. In this connection importance is attach ed to the fact that Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, is coming to London Saturday.

The promoters of the Lord Mayor's banquet, which is to be held November 9, have been anxious to have Mr. Lloyd George speak at the dinner, at which for many years it has been customary for the Prime Minister to make a political pronouncement. Mr. Lloyd George, however has declined to make any promise to attend the function, and this is taken in some quarters as showing that he is still hopeful of being able to sail for the United States within a week.

NORTHUMBERLAND GRITS MAY FIGHT

HAVE DECIDED TO CALL ANOTHER CONVENTION IN COLBORNE NEXT WEEK.

WARKWORTH, Nov. 2.—Northumberland Liberals are ill at ease in the enforced political inactivity arising out of their decision a week ago to put a candidate in the field after Sam Clarke M.P.P rejected the nomination they offered him. Leaders of the party at Colborne on Tuesday vented their dissatisfaction with their isolation and decided to call another convention to be held in Colborne on Tuesday November 8. Mr. Charles Kerr, Cobourg lawyer, is mentioned as the probable choice of the Liberals, and it is believed that although a belated start will be made in the party's interests there are good grounds for confidence for a Liberal victory.

VICTIM LIVES HERE.

LINDSAY, Nov. 3.—A copper-weighted bludgeon, bearing an odd trace of blood and hair, lying, dust-covered on the top of a cabinet in the Police station, is a grim reminder of a case which recently attracted considerable attention. The Tannery assault case created a bit of sensation in town at the time. The victim is now recovered and living in Peterborough. The guilty man, her husband, was sentenced, on Oct. 20th, 1920, to eighteen months' imprisonment.—The Post.

PENNY BANKS.

The Board of Education displayed little enthusiasm at its meeting on Tuesday night over the proposed establishment of the school bank system in the local schools. After hearing the explanation of Mr. V. K. Vipond, representing the Penny Bank of Toronto, the matter was turned over to the Supervision Committee, which is to investigate and report back to the board. The committee, it is hoped, will carefully investigate the system and not condemn it without a survey of what has been accomplished by school banks elsewhere. The information of other centres experienced with this thrift-promoting movement should be easily obtainable, and a study of the operations of the system would be profitable. There are objections to the scheme, of course—the teachers of the city have by resolution affirmed their opposition to its establishment here, but the fact that each year sees the number of schools carrying on penny banks increasing and that once tried few schools have abandoned the system, seems rather conclusive evidence that the benefits more than counter-balance the disadvantages. At least, the proposal contains merit enough to warrant an honest investigation and earnest consideration.

ENLISTING THE NEWSPAPERS.

During the war the Dominion Government learned—something private business concerns had long before realized—the value of newspaper advertising. Publicity of that kind was successfully employed in the Victory Loan campaigns, in the recruiting drives, in bringing home to the people of Canada the necessity of greater food production and of the conservation of food, and it was admitted that without the use of the newspapers in this way it would have been impossible to secure such splendid results. Now printer's ink is to be called upon to do its share in relieving the unemployment crisis. The special committee on unemployment, which has been considering the situation in order to make recommendations to the Ontario Government, promises to enlist the services of the newspapers. A publicity agent has been secured and a series of appeals to manufacturers, the consuming public, labour, farmers and other classes of Ontario's population will be published, containing some general advice to each particular section and asking for the co-operation of all interests in dealing with this great problem. Much, of course, will depend upon the nature of the advertising, but, at least, the experiment is a tribute to the efficiency of the newspapers, and its working out will be followed with interest.

THE "BIG THREE" WAGE HOLD-UP.

While the unemployment conference may not have been wholly futile, it is doing it no injustice to say that it got nowhere. It says that employment could be found for 2,000,000 workers, through the building of necessary dwelling accommodation. But the building trades unions say that no such employment shall be found. Anything that is to be done is earmarked for the unionized plumber and carpenter, and to maintain wages the union will take care that the number of carpenters and plumbers shall be restricted. Their laws governing the employment of apprentices say as much. They will not accept the services of a single unemployed idler who is not a member of the union in good standing.

And if the building trades are holding up industrial resumption, what about the coal miners? Cheap production and general employment trun upon cheap fuel; but they say coal shall not be cheap. They say that the wages of a restricted number of miners, at present uneconomically high and tending to paralyze production, are far more important than any number of millions of people out of employment. We have a great trio of labor interests which for their own selfish ends are holding up the business of the country. The railroad workers are the third in its sinister triumvrate. They were willing to wreck the country's business rather than sacrifice wages which are now only 12 1-2 per cent. below the war inflation limit. Put the three things together and see how every other worker in the country is prejudicially affected. The high wages of these dogs in the manger do not come out of the rich man's pocket. They come, partly at least, out of the pockets of every other worker. It is curious commentary upon syndicalism and guild socialism, both of which ideas suppose all these labor interests dwelling together in unity. But we see from actual experience that each labor interest will fight for its own hand, careless of whether it plays havoc with the interests of all the other workers. What has the unemployment conference done but to emphasize the obvious?

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING.

If a large attendance and an attentive hearing constitute the principal factors in a successful political meeting, last night's gathering in the Armouries, at which the Premier was the principal speaker, must be described as coming under that category. Over 3,000 people welcomed Mr. Meighen, and the order was so perfect that every word of his address was easily heard. There was no wild cheering, none of the frantic applause that used to characterize political meetings. It may be that these features belong to the past, for the absence of wholehearted enthusiasm at such affairs in various parts of the country has been commented upon by the newspapers. But at all events they were not in evidence last evening.

The Premier, whose race had tired lines that indicated the strain of continuous speaking, has not been without effect, but who spoke for an hour and a half without signs of fatigue, had no difficulty in holding the attention of his audience as he expounded what he maintained is the only issue in the present election—the tariff question. There was but one interruption which Mr. Meighen, with his usual quickness of repartee, immediately converted to his own advantage. With the exception of this solitary remark from a member of the audience, Mr. Meighen was given the same attentive hearing as if he had been a lecturer dealing with some important but non-controversive subject in which there was great public interest.

The meeting served to introduce one of the new members of the Cabinet, Hon. J. A. Stewart, Minister of Railways and Canals, who, suffering from the handicap of having to follow the Premier at an hour when the thoughts of many of the audience were turning homeward, and the additional misfortune of having the lights go out for a minute in the midst of his address, dealt at some length with the railway problem. Regardless of their political affiliations, there were many in the audience who would have appreciated an expansion of this question which, although one of the greatest problems the Canadian people have to deal with, has not been as prominently brought forward by any of the political parties as its importance would seem to warrant.

THE BOARD'S PROBLEM.

To use the vernacular, this year's Board of Education has "passed the buck" to next year's board, upon whose shoulders the burden of deciding the policy that is to be adopted towards providing additional Collegiate Institute accommodation and facilities for technical training will be laid. On the whole, there is no reason to deplore the delay. The average citizen would prefer to have the matter held up for a while to a hasty decision that might commit Peterborough to a heavy expenditure without adequately solving the problem. There are so many alternatives that offer themselves that nothing will be lost by further consideration of the whole question. Here are some of them:

(1) The building of an addition to the Collegiate Institute providing the additional accommodation for academic training without making any provision for technical education.

(2) The building of a technical school.

(3) The undertaking of both these propositions.

(4) A compromise by which the addition to the Collegiate Institute would also provide for training along technical lines.

(5) These alternatives and any other solution that may be brought forward will be prominent issues in the election for the Board of Education next January, and all candidates for the Board must be prepared to discuss them with the electorate.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Wingham people have been seeing meteors and hearing loud boming noises. Cellars up that way must be still fairly well stocked.

The weary look in Premier Meighen's face last night was convincing proof that the life of a Prime Minister at election times is not all "milk and honey."

A German town has suffered from a mysterious gas attack as the result of a blast of poisoned air from a nearby swamp. Remembering Ypres, Canadians will find it difficult to be sorry at the news.

Oshawa's street railway is now in the seven-cent fare class. With the new rates a daily service ought to be given.

An Office Dilemma

An insurance agent was trying to shine up his new stenographer.

She wrote a letter for him and made a pretty fair job of it.

"For that", he burbled, "I will give you your choice of a package of cigarettes or a nice kiss."

The stenog's eyes flashed fire. Drawing herself up haughtily, she replied, "Sir, I would have you know that I do not smoke cigarettes."

Then he wasn't sure what to do.

WE'RE ALL FOUR IT

A London scientist declares that many of man's ills are due to walking upright and says that nature intended that we should walk on all fours.

This is something worth trying. Before the days of the Ontario Temperance Act a man occasionally got down on all-fours, but the idea was never extensively copied because of what the neighbours might say.

One of the political candidates might get in solid with his constituents by fathering a Society for the Return of All-Fours.

The superintendent of the local street railway is particularly strong for the idea as citizens could then travel abroad street cars in layers of four or five. Landlords, too, endorse the scheme. They have long been anxious to provide more apartments by lowering the ceilings and the new plan offers a way out of the difficulty.

SIMPLER FOOD

From a no less authoritative source than the man who decided what was good for us when Herbert Hoover was food administrator comes the statement that yeast isn't the panacea many folk believe. Professor McCollum, of Johns-Hopkins, who spoke at the Buffalo City Hospital, admits that yeast—the bread kind or the brewer kind—contains a vitamine, but not an important vitamine. It is worthy of note that the experience of this great dietitian is leading us back to the simple ideas of food and living. The research work has convinced him of the presence of those elusive substances called vitamines. In that he is beyond the age. But in the respect that he finds that these much-needed vitamines are in the wholeslome food of former generations, in vegetable tops, in the plebeian beef liver and in dairy products, he is returning to the era when plain, wholesome food, and plenty of it, were deemed all that was necessary in the way of diet.—Buffalo Express.

NATURE

While he loved to contemplate the works of nature, directed and, to some extent, controlled by the art of man, yet he had a great passion for the wilderness — for nature as God made it. At every opportunity he sought the wild country and was peculiarly responsive to its beauties and teachings. There especially the running waters, the trees, the flowers, the birds, and the leaping fish spoke to him in a language he understood.

UNION OIL TO MERGE WITH ROYAL DUTCH

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Stockholders of the Union Oil Company of Delaware will meet here November 17, to consider a merger with the Royal Dutch-Shell Transport and Trading Company, which is controlled by the British and Dutch interests.

Terms of the proposed merger have been outlined, but the exact conditions will depend upon word awaited from abroad.

It is understood that in the prospective consolidation the foreign interests will control seventy-two per cent. of the stock of the new company, the balance going to Union Oil shareholders.

The Milk Diet

For the last twenty years or so a doctor out in California has been treating human ills through the medium of the milk diet and with remarkable results in some cases, but he has made the mistake generally made by the proponents of any special therapy and heralded it forth to the world as a panacea, a cure all, which it is not.

We have been using the milk diet (Dr. Porter's system) according to the precepts of this founder of the system, for fifteen years. Taken in connection with the proper Osteopathic adjustments it will often facilitate a recovery that would otherwise be considerably slower in making itself manifest. In connection with Osteopathy, the MILK DIET will work wonders in any condition dependent either upon the quality, quantity or movement of the blood, by improving the quality, increasing the quantity and speeding up the circulation (where too slow) in anemic conditions, and by equalizing the pressure, whether too high or too low.

Mayor's Welcome.

"All party strife and differences of political opinion which may exist among our citizens have been forgotten on this occasion, and we welcome you as the Premer of our Dominion," said Mayor Meyers in officially greeting Mr. Meighen. "We welcome you as that Canadian who at the London conference fought for a pacific policy of disarmament. Because you have at heart the welfare of our country, you took the stand and firmly held it that all military and naval expansion should cease. You won British journals to your side, and largely as a result of your efforts we shall see on Armistice Day the representatives of the great powers in a conference at Washington trying to decide on a policy of disarmament."

Mayor Meyers suggested that Canadians would be well engaged in praying for the success of that conference.

Reeve Van Volkenburg extended a welcome from Seymour Township and Mr. Harry Phillips of Brighton introduced the candidate, ex-Warden Maybee.

The Prime Minister's presence provided an opportunity of introduction which Mr. Maybee improved with a concise and pithy speech.

Candidate's Address.

"I am no stranger to you," he said. "I have served as a representative in the Counties Council, and if you elect me as your representative at Ottawa you will see the same dutiful efforts as those which characterized my work in the Council. I think Canada needs protection, not only for our manufacturing industries, but for the farmers and the workingmen as well. Lincoln said he did not know a great deal about tariffs, but he also said: 'If I spend $20 in a foreign country for goods, I get the goods but the foreigner gets my money; but if I spend $20 at home I likewise get the goods and my own country gets the money.' Was it protection or free trade that gave the United States the position she has attained? If a country of one hundred million people requires protetion, how much does a country of only eight millions need it, especially with her industries only in their infancy? We need protection, not only for our industries, but also against cheap labour, against Japan where a wage of $4 a week is against our $4 a day. If we hadn't a tariff we couldn't avail ourselves of the preferential tariff with other British Dominions. Agriculture is the backbone of Canada, but we can't divorce it from our manufacturing industries."

Referring to J. J. Morrison's lamentations about the retrogression of agriculture in this country, Mr. Maybee said that in 1896 we had 8,511,000 acres under cultivation with products valued at $88,000,000. In 1920 there were 10,108,000 acres of improved land with crops valued at $367,608,000. And during that interval land increased 50 per cent. in value. In 1920 the Government spent $5,000,000 for agriculture, and the average expenditure for the last five years was $4,800,000. It has also appropriated $20,000,000 for rural highways; and 1919, owing to the severe weather, spent $1,000,000 for the transportation of livestock.

"The Government also loaned $12,000,000 for buying seed," Mr. Maybee enumerated, "and has also given us rural mail delivery. Could a Farmers' Government do more than that? I think not."

Premier Meighen.

Prior to Mr. Humphries' introduction of Mr. Meighen little Wilhelmine Allen presented Mrs. Meighen with a bouquet of roses, and Miss Lois Meyers gave a similar favor to the Prime Minister.

cue from the remarks of Mr. Maybee, 'who, like many of you, is directly interested in agriculture. It might be worth while to expand his remarks upon what has really been done by the Government in regard to agriculture. Mr. Maybee has said that the Department of Agriculture spent $5,000,000 last year. That is correct, and, furthermore, it was expended under the direction of a man who, beyond all question, has had no predecessor his equal in the directin- of the Department of Agriculture in this country. I have no doubt but that if the Opposition or Mr. Crerar's party were returned to power they would have the same Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Dr. Tolmie, if they could get him. He is recognized as pre-eminently the man for that department, especially by livestock men."

Share In Expenditures

Mr. Meighen attended to criticism that only five million dollars out of five hundred millions had been spent last year on agriculture. "Five million dollars is no more spent for agriculture than is a man's hat what he spends on his attire. The statement that we spend only 1 per cent for agriculture although farmers represent 40 per cent of the population may sound plausible. I shall show you that it is dishonest and absurb. But it is more dishonest than many of the other assertions that are made against the government.

Farmers Share in All

Of the $500,000,000 we spent $30,000,000 to demobolize our soldiers. Was that any less for agriculture than for anybody else? We spent nearly $100,000,000 to keep up the railways built fifteen years ago through districts where settlers were few. That expenditure was more for farm settlers than for anyone else."

Continuing, Mr. Meighen said that in the Post Office department rural mail delivery represented the heaviest deficit. This was for a service largely enjoyed by farmers. Then, there was the expenditure in the Department of Justice.

"It may be said that this was for lawyers. Some of it was, but we get along with less than does the Drury government. The expenditure of that Department was for the upholding of the judiciary and the courts. Are judges any less for farmers than for any other persons in the community? In brief, farmers share in all other departments just as the rest of the people do. They share in the $495,000,000 as do the other people of Canada.'

Spend More Than All the Provinces

"We have nine provinces, and each province has its department of agriculture. The federal department of agriculture spends more and does more than do the whole nine put together, although two of them are under farmers' governments. Not only do we spend more but more is got for it, and the agricultural community shares in the other departments as much as any other class of people."

Mr. Meighen appealed to the electors to review the Government's record before they made up their minds. They should ask themselves whether this Government has done anything unfair to the workingmen and to farmers.

"I defied Mr. Crerar to put his hand on anything we did while he was in the Government. He couldn't I asked him to name anything we had done after he went out, if he thought he carried all virtue with him when he went."

Says No Friend of Interests

At last, Mr. Meighen continued, Mr. Crerar recently in New Brunswick said the Government was allied with the "big interests" because of its tariff policy. "This Government so far from treating kindly what they call the "big interests" or men of wealth that it has an income tax more severe from every standpoint than has any government in the world."

As a result of this Act every man who is getting $2000 or more a year could save moneys by leaving Canada providing they could get jobs as good elsewhere, the Premier asserted. Some men could save one-half the tax or one-third of their income by going across the line.

"And this has been done by a Government that is described in the blatant language of the demagogue as the puppet of the "big interests.' As a matter of fact the income tax has become heavier since Mr. Crerar went out of the Government. The Income Act was not put through because of his presence in the Government. In fact I don't know much that we did owing to his presence."

The Premier again challenged the electors, men and women, to "tell me something definite we did or failed to do that you can charge us with." He dismissed McKenzie King's tariff proposals as mere talk to get the workingman's vote with catch phrases. All that could be done was fix a level of duties sufficient to give Canadian industries a fair chance in competition with the industries of other countries.

"Same with wages, Mr. Meighen" called a man from the edge of the crowd, a voice with an Old Country inflection in it.

"The same with wages" replied th Premier. "We could have three million immigrants here in a year if we wanted them. They would come from Japan and China and the starving countries of Europe. But what would become of the Canadian workingmen in the meantime."

The interrupter broke out again with a remark that during the war Canadian men were recruited to fight the Germans and now they were asked to fight the German workingmen by keeping their goods out.

"I'm not sure I have his point because he has none." Mr. Meighen told the audience.

Cries of "put him out" and the voice at the rear was silenced.

Some one who hasn't brains has been paid to come here and make a nuisance and humbug of himself," said the Premier who elaborated his argument that if these immigrants were to be excluded surely some restriction should be placed on the goods made by their cheap labour.

Grain Grower's Profits

Touching upon the effect of free trade in farm products Mr. Meighen said: "If any farmer thinks he has something to gain I can tell him how he is going to lose, but not how he will gain anything. Throw down those duties and you will have to sell your produce at the cheapest price any other country can land their farm produce in Canada. Think it over."

Mr. Meighen asked whether it would not have been better for the Grain Growers Company to have used their profits in manufacturing farm implements instead of bonusing certain periodicals like the Grain Growers' Guide for the boosting of their own political propaganda. They are trying to create political opinion against those who produce. They act simply as middleman between the farmers and buyers. Let them get down to producing with their profits, and it will not be long until they see the difference. Let them establish such an industry in Alberta where there is coal and most of the raw materials needed. Let them employ people to produce implements and if they can do it without protection, all right. It will be the best argument against protection I have heard."

A MASQUERADE HELD AT APSLEY

PARISH HALL SCENE OF HALLOWE'EN FESTIVITIES—THOSE PRESENT.

APSLEY, November 3. — On Monday night a charming Hallowe'en masquerade was held in the Parish Room, and was an unqualified success. The hall was decorated with Hallowe'en novelties, witches, owls, bats, pixies, all the work of Mrs. Spence, and in the subdued orange-coloured light the crowd of gaily dressed masqueraders, as they threaded the mazy intricacies of the "set" dances, provided a novel and pleasing spectacle.

The Witches' Drill and the Ghosts' Dance, performed by Misses M. and P. Spence and A. and S. Jones, were two weird numbers that brought down the house. Besides dancing, Hallowe'en games were indulged in, and the event was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Two prizes were offered for the best costume, lady and gentleman respectively, Mrs. Robert Scott as a witch winning the former and Melville Tucker as a pierrot securing the latter prize. The judging of the ladies' costumes was done by Mr. Dewart, the Liberal candidate for this Riding, who was amongst the audience, and the gentlemen's were judged by Mrs. (Reeve) Scott. All the masqueraders did not enter into the contest, some not taking part in the grand parade for judging. Dancing was kept up until the early hours music, together with Mrs. John Coones and Mrs. R. Scott.

Characters Represented.

EAST EMILY

East Emily, Nov. 3.—Miss Flossie Casey has returned home after spending the past two weeks at the home of her brother, Mr. Allen Casey of Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Finney of Port Hope, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Gardiner of Welcome spent last Sunday visiting at the home of Mr. Walter Moncrief.

The many friends of Mr. Orion Boate are pleased to know he is able to be up and around again after his recent illness.

Mr. Richard Howden is confined to his bed with a very bad attack of pneumonia.

Mrs. Isaac Guthrie made a business trip to Peterboro, on Saturday

Miss Lottie Howden was a visitor to Peterboro, on Saturday.

The East Emily Cheese factory closed the 1st of November not to open again until next season.

Mrs. Walter Moncrief is visiting with friends in Peterboro.

Miss Irene Fee has returned to Chicago to resume her duties after spending the past couple of months with her brother Mr. Wilbert Fee of East Emily and her sister, Mrs. Hubert Cottingham of Peterboro.

The anniversary services will be held in Bethel church on Sunday November 20th. Services will be at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Hallowe'en Social.

The Young People's Guild and the Young Women's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church, held a most enjoyable evening in the basement of the church on Monday night. The room was appropriately decorated with Jack o' Lanterns, etc., and with the lights partially off everything had a rather wierd appearance. A "ghost" was on the reception committee. The evening's entertainment began by several Hallowe'en 'stunts.' This was followed by a programme of music, songs and drills.

The "Ghost Drill" by 16 lively spirits, was greatly appreciated and after it had been repeated as an encore all formed in line, and the gentlemen were each requested to choose a ghost with whom he was to take refreshments. The proceeds amounted to $21.

Poverty Social.

On Monday night a Poverty Social was given in the Methodist church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. The costumes in which some attended, were a source of great amusement, and anyone who wore anything savoring of luxury, was fined. There was also a programme of music, dialogues, etc

SELECT FURNITURE FOR USE

Furniture is not a decoration. Its purpose is to fulfill a need. A chair is first and foremost something to sit on in comfort. A sofa is something to lie on in comfort. A table is a convenient object to place things on. A cupboard is a series of inclosed shelves on which to place dishes and utensils.

All this may seem trite, but it is necessary at times to recall the functional idea in furniture in order to restrain the decorative idea. In selecting furniture only that which fully and satisfactorily fills the purpose for which it was intended should be accepted, and that purpose is use. That it may be and should be, beautiful is the second, but not the primary consideration.

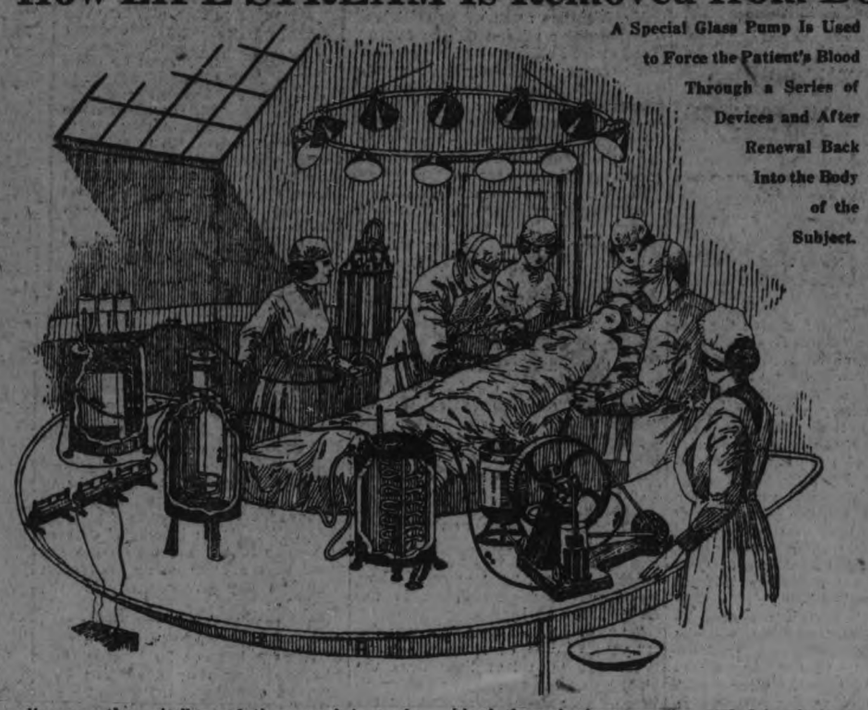
New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

"BATHING" the BLOOD To MAKE IT NEW

How LIFE STREAM Is Removed from BODY and CLEANSED ELECTRICALLY



A Special Glass Pump Is Used to Force the Patient's Blood Through a Series of Devices and After Renewal Back Into the Body of the Subject.

THIS recent discovery of a wonderful method for purifying the blood actually by "washing" or treating it chemically and electrically bids fair to relegate to the medical scrap pile that long-established practice of swallowing copious doses of bitter medicines to correct unhealthy conditions of the life stream. This marvelous new process, which H. W. Secor and J. H. Kraus describe in Science and Invention, consists in extracting the blood from the body, either wholly or in part, and purifying the blood chemically or otherwise; then re-pumping this blood back into the body. The first method, which was tried out experimentally, but which now has been abandoned, was to extract all of the blood from the body, and as this was done the veins and arteries were kept dilated or filled with a substitute solution, such as saline (salt water), or Locke's solution, the pressure in the veins being kept approximately constant by checking with a blood pressure gauge secured to the subject's body.

After two experiments carried out in the laboratory of Long Island College Hospital, by Prof. Kretz, instructor in physiology and physiological chemistry, and by Mr. Kraus, Prof. Kretz being greatly interested in the experiment, in which the animals used for this research work succumbed, it was finally decided that the best method of carrying out the blood purification process here suggested, would be to connect the purifying apparatus with the patient, as shown in the accompanying drawing, so that the blood would be taken from a vein in one arm, passed through the apparatus, and finally allowed to pass back into a vein in the patient's other arm. In this way only a small portion of the blood, possibly 5 per cent. of the total volume (the average human body contains approximately six quarts of blood), would be passing through the purification apparatus at any given time. Following this method the blood would have to be passed through the apparatus for a considerable time, possibly 20 to 30 minutes, so that eventually all of the patient's blood would pass through it, and then the relative condition could be checked from time to time, by taking small samples from the apparatus and applying the usual microscopic and other tests.

The main reason why this latter method has been decided upon as the proper one to be used in this purification process, when it has been worked out in more detail and actually applied in hospitals, is based on the fact that in the former method just exactly what the authors predicted actually happened. That is, the animal in each experiment ceased breathing when about 90 per cent. of the blood had been extracted.

It is interesting undoubtedly for the layman to bear in mind that the blood has the peculiar property of clotting, coagulating or thickening, and in order to prevent this, it had to be kept moving in a warm chamber, free from air, with also a certain amount of saline or Locke's solution added to it. It is a remarkable thing to note that the heart kept on beating very strongly, and in fact was still pulsating three hours after the operation was started. (An animal's heart has been kept beating for eight days after its removal from the body, by placing it in nutrient saline solution.)

Artificial respiration as well as the use of a pulmotor were brought into play in an effort to keep the animal fully alive (of course the animal in each experiment was anesthetized before starting to extract the blood), but as the lungs had no reason for functioning, respiration ceased under the conditions brought about.

No solution equivalent to the blood has ever been developed; in blood the red corpuscles carry the oxygen, and this property is not present in saline or other similar solutions used in such work. Part of this original idea was based upon the interesting fact that in major surgical operations, where the patient may have lost a large amount of blood, the loss is sometimes compensated for by pumping saline solution into the blood stream, and this is left in the body, the natural physiological processes taking care of it.

One of the admirable advantages of the newer scheme in the opinion of Messrs. Secor and Kraus, where only a part of the blood is purified at a time, lies in the fact that the patient does not necessarily have to be anesthetized. In other words, the patient can be fully conscious, as the only surgery involved is to make slight incisions, with the aid of a local anesthetic, and to place the two hollow silver needles in the median basilic veins of either arm. A special glass pump is used to force the blood through the first rubber tube into and through the first stages of the purifying process; this pump is placed near the end of the chain of apparatus, which by its alternate suction and pressure will help to draw the blood through the apparatus and force it back into the body.

The theoretical apparatus used for purifying the blood involves both chemical and electrical actions in the present arrangement; but of course later developments will undoubtedly be worked out, which may simplify the method involved to a very considerable extent.

When the blood under its original pressure enters the first compartment, which is kept warm to the proper degree by an electric heating coil (controlled by a rheostat, and the heat being observed by the thermometer shown in each instrument), the necessary solution or serum and Locke's solution are injected into the blood, passing through the instrument, by adjusting the dropping device on their containers at the top, so that any desired percentage of these solutions can be injected into the blood. The Locke's or saline solution helps to prevent the blood from coagulating, as does also the warmth created by the electric heating coil, while the other solution or serum annihilates any disease germs which may be present. The comparative purity of the blood from disease is checked up in the usual way by taking a small sample now and then. The microscope will show the presence of large quantities of disease germs, while a culture will have to be made to make a final test for small numbers of such germs, which requires some time. If the culture indicates the presence of any disease germs, the patient may need to have the blood purified once more at a later date. Other disease germs can be destroyed by treating the blood with the proper serums or medicines.

When the blood stream reaches the second instrument there is another chance to add any disease germ destroyer or hyperacidity corrective, such as typhoid serum for typhoid germs which may be in the blood.

In the third stage of the purification apparatus, the blood passes back and forth through a glass tube grid and as it does so, it is subjected to powerful ultra-violet rays, which, as is well known, act to kill practically all forms of disease germs.

There are several different arrangements which can be used, particularly owing to the fact that the dosage of ultra-violet rays (here produced by mercury vapor lamps, fitted with quartz tubes), cannot be made very strong, as these and X-rays have an untoward effect on the corpuscles of the blood, the ultra-violet on the white corpuscles, and the X-rays on the red cells, as recently discovered by two French scientists. So if finally found desirable, after further research work in this direction, the ultra-violet ray purifying stage may be eliminated and all the purifying done chemically, by an arrangement such as already provided for in the first and second stages of the apparatus, or by a modified apparatus.

The PALM TREE That "PRAYS"

NEAR Faridpur, in Bengal, India, stands a date-palm known there as the "praying palm," on account of its extraordinary behavior. In the evening, while the temple bells call to prayer, this tree bows down as if to prostrate itself. It raises its head again in the morning, and this is repeated every day of the year. This extraordinary manifestation has been regarded as miraculous, and pilgrims have been attracted in large numbers. It is alleged by the superstitious that offerings made to the tree have been the means of effecting marvellous cures. The movements of this palm have recently been studied and explained by Sir J. C. Bose, the Hindu physiologist, one of the world's greatest authorities on the reaction of plant-tissue to stimulus. The following account, partly quoted and partly abstracted from the Transactions of the Bose Institute, is from the Modern Review (Calcutta):

"This particular date-palm is a full-grown rigid tree, its trunk being about 16 feet in length and 10 inches in diameter. It must have been displaced by storm, and is now at an inclination of about 60 degrees to the vertical. In consequence of the diurnal movement, the trunk, throughout its entire length, is erected in the morning and depressed in the afternoon. The highest point of the trunk thus moves up and down through a distance of three feet; the 'neck' above the trunk is concave to the sky in the morning; in the afternoon the curvature is reversed. The large leaves which point high up against the sky in the morning are thus swung round in the afternoon through a vertical distance of about 15 feet. To the popular imagination, the tree appears like a living giant, more than twice the height of a human being, which leans forward in the evening from its towering height and bends its neck till the crown of leaves presses against the ground in an attitude of devotion.

"A difficulty arose at the beginning in obtaining sanction of the proprietor to attach the recorder to the tree. He was apprehensive that the miraculous power might disappear by profane contact with foreign-looking instruments. His misgivings were removed on the assurance that the instrument was made in Dr. Bose's laboratory in India, and that it would be attached to the tree by one of his assistants who was the son of a priest.

"From results of observation it is found that the tree is never at rest, but in a state of continuous movement. The movement is not passive, but an active force is exerted; the force necessary to counteract the movement is equivalent to the weight of 47 kilograms—in other words, the force is sufficient to lift a man off the ground.

"The special apparatus devised made the tree record automatically its movement day and night. A long course of investigation brought out the fact that the movement was due to variation of temperature. Further research showed that the tree was acted on by two contending forces, the geotropic action in virtue of which the tree tried to erect itself, and the antagonistic action of rise of temperature which opposed the tropic curvature. The tree was never at rest, but in a state of 'dynamic balance,' which was upset in one direction or the other by the changes of the environment. The fully grown and rigid tree is thus 'sensitive' to the slightest external change, even the passing of a cloud across the sky, making known its perception by movement. The arbitrary distinction between ordinary and 'sensitive' plants thus disappears; not only the particular palm, but every tree and its various organs are shown to perceive and execute movements in response to the changes of its environment. It is not the Mimosa that is alone excitable, but trees also instinct with sensibility. Their rigid trunks perceive and respond to the multitudinous stimuli of their environment."

The Same Tree with Head Bowed as if in Evening Prayer.

Walls Have "Ears" and "Tongues," Too

THE very curious and interesting acoustical effects observed in the Whispering Gallery under the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, as explained by the late Lord Rayleigh, are due to the curvilinear propagation of sound, the waves which proceed from a source placed close to the wall of the gallery clinging to its surface and creeping tangentially along it. This view was developed mathematically by Lord Rayleigh ("Scientific Papers," vol. 5, p. 617), the theoretical conclusions arrived at being (a) that the sound-waves travel in a comparatively narrow belt skirting the wall, the thickness of this belt decreasing with the wave-length of the sound; (b) that in this belt the intensity is a maximum near the wall and decreases rapidly and continuously as one proceeds radially away from it; and (c) that the intensity does not fluctuate markedly when one proceeds circumferentially parallel to the wall.

A writer in Nature became much interested in the subject, and by the courtesy of the authorities of the cathedral was enabled to carry out an extended series of observations in the gallery with the view of making a precise test of Lord Rayleigh's theory. The experiments show conclusively that while the indication of theory as expressed in (a) is substantially accurate, neither of the conclusions (b) and (c) is in accordance with actual facts.

Using a steady source of sound placed close to the wall at one point, it was found that elsewhere the intensity of the sound showed pronounced oscillations in proceeding inward radially from the wall, the ear of the observer passing several times through alternate zones of great intensity and of comparative silence. In the latter some of the overtones of the source could be heard clearly, while the fundamental was practically inaudible. These alternations of intensity could be demonstrated in the gallery, using a fairly high-pitched source and a sensitive flame as indicator.

The distance between the successive zones of silence was about the same as the half-wave-length of the source. There were also distinct periodic fluctuations of intensity in proceeding circumferentially—that is, parallel to the wall. The latter were not equally distinct in all parts of the gallery, being most marked at the other end of the diameter containing the source.

It was also found that effects similar to those observed at St. Paul's may be demonstrated in the laboratory with any large circular reflecting surface, using a bird-call with a sensitive flame as sound-detector.

To Prolong Flashlight Battery

THE life of a flashlight battery can be increased if it is treated in the following manner, which is suggested in Popular Science Monthly by Thomas W. Benson:

Before installing a new battery, take out the individual cells and give them a coat of sodium silicate, or water glass, as it is commonly called. The entire cell should be coated, with the exception of the brass cap on the carbon and the bottoms. After drying, the battery may be reassembled and put into service. This treatment prevents the drying out that always shortens the life of dry cells.

How a WOMAN Discovered SILK

NEARLY 4983 years ago, to be exact—a 14-year-old Chinese empress named Si-Ling Chi observed a little worm busily spinning fibre on the leaves of a white mulberry tree. After she had watched this fascinating process until her curiosity was satisfied she began to gather up and reel the fibre.

Soon she made a demonstration to the ladies of her court and interested them in this new and absorbing amusement. Together the empress and her court ladies busied themselves with the task of weaving this fibre into fabrics and embroidering with it. The results delighted them.

So far the emperor looked upon this absorbing hobby of his little consort with tolerant amusement. To him and to the wise men of his court it was only a pretty game for foolish women.

But one day he was startled out of his indifference when Si-Ling Chi presented him with a beautiful ceremonial garment made from the worm's fibre. A garment of such dazzling sheen had never before been seen at the court of China, and from then on it became the fashion for all members of the court to wear clothes made of this wonderful new fabric.

In this way the wearing of silk became the fashion throughout all China. The culture of silk became a national industry. China grew rich through the export of silken fabrics to India, Persia, Arabia and other parts of Asia.

So valuable was the industry to China that it preserved the secret of silk culture with jealous care, and death was the penalty decreed for any body found taking or sending out of China the silk worm, its eggs or the seed of the white mulberry tree. And for centuries neighboring countries sought vainly to obtain from China the secret of silk.

About 350 B. C., however, there came into China a prince of India who won the love of a Chinese princess. Together they eloped into India, and the princess in order that she might be able to enjoy her familiar occupation in her new home, carried with her some silkworm eggs and seeds of the white mulberry tree. She smuggled them through by concealing them in her sandals.

Not long afterward she disappeared mysteriously from her husband's palace and was never heard of again, but the secret she brought with her remained in India, and soon the courts of the rajahs were alive with vari-colored silken costumes.

SAFETY First in SMOKING DEVICE

"I WAS sitting in a smoking-car, puffing a cigar, when a quantity of ashes fell down and soiled my shirt-front; a spark burned a hole in my coat," Mr. B. W. Dedrick, of State College, Pennsylvania, remarks. There is nothing unusual about that; you have had the same experience many times. But did you promptly invent a cigar protector to prevent it happening again? That is what Mr. Dedrick did.

The protector, as described in Popular Science Monthly, is made of metal shaped like the cigar it covers. The end is perforated to admit the necessary air. It is held lightly in place by clamps. The ashes drop into the cylinder and remain there until removed. No more cigar ashes dropping on carpets and rugs to the great chagrin of tidy housewives.

Wonderful WAY That MONEY GROWS

AN astounding example of how the investment of the smallest American coin could increase is that of one cent invested in the year 1, that is, the beginning of the Christian era.

The accompanying table, computed by a wizard at figures, shows the accumulation which would have resulted if such a fund could have been started and maintained until the year 1910, at 5 per cent. interest.

This particular table shows the accumulation which would have resulted at the rate of 5 per cent. to the year 1910. If 6 per cent. had been taken as a basis instead of 5 per cent., or if the table had been carried out a few more years, there would be scarcely enough space upon this page to reproduce it. As it stands the amount runs into the duodecillions, a sum so stupendous as to give every man, woman and child in the world, according to estimate, a fortune of more than a thousand billion times a thousand billion dollars.

It Becomes Many Millions of Billions of Dollars in 1909 Years

Stripping Cedar FORESTS to Make Lead PENCILS

WHERE do all the lead pencils come from and where do they go? Although almost everybody buys one, many folk never buy one, but over 2 more than 750,000,000 are manufactured for use in the United States every year, requiring many thousands of cords of wood.

But woods suitable for lead pencils are becoming scarcer and many manufacturers are turning to paper. Red cedar and red juniper, according to the American Forestry Association, are the woods chiefly used in making lead pencils.

A hunt is on for other kinds of wood that will take the place of these. In East Africa a kind of cedar has been found with which experiments are being made.

The production in the United States is about 80,000 gross of pencils each year. From each acre 300 gross of pencils is made. This results in about 1,000,000 pencils of American-grown cedar.

Since one-fourth of this number is sent to foreign countries that leaves 750,000,000 pencils for the home market, which means an average of seven pencils per person, figuring on the last census.

As far back as history goes man has tried to make things to mark with and to set down his thoughts. The Azetecs and the Pharaohs had crude marking devices. As early as 1750 Kalm, a Swedish naturalist, made experiments with American cedar.

In 1812 William Monroe made 500 pencils at Concord and sold them in Boston, but the war stopped his plans. In 1861 Eberhard Faber began making pencils on a large scale in the United States.

The graphite which makes the mark is, of course, the important part in the manufacture of the pencil. Ceylon has furnished much of the graphite used in America. Graphite is also found in Madagascar and in Mexico.

Czecho-Slovakia contains deposits of both the amphorous and crystaline graphite. In the United States the chief deposits are in Alabama, New York and Pennsylvania.

A Number of Events Will Take Place in Peterboro' on Nov. 11th

It looks as if Thanksgiving Day in Peterborough was going to cover quite a period of time. Armistice Day, the 11th of the month, will probably receive a good deal of attention from those who remember the date when the Great War actually ceased. The ladies of the 57th Chapter of the I.O.D.E. are conservative enough to choose this occasion for their tea in connection with the Consumptive Emergency Fund, and the Peter Robinson Chapter may or may not have had the date in mind when they arranged the first production of "The Girl in Red" to take place on this date.

On Monday, the 7th, the actual celebration at the Armories, with the unveiling of the cenotaph at the G.W.V.A. Hall, takes place, when the monster parade around the city will commemorate the thanks of the coun try for deliverance from war.

On Saturday we will all be wearing red popies for the lads who fell in France and Flanders, and on the day following, Sunday, the churches and public institutions will be decorated for the occasion. On Saturday the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., will hold a tea dance in the G.W.V.A. Hall.

The Origin of Thanksgiving Day

The origin of Thanksgiving Day is interestingly described in a book of reference, which claims that days set apart for special thanksgiving were customary with the ancient Israelites and are mentioned throughout the Bible. As recently as 1872 a day of Thanksgiving was appointed on February 27th for the recovery of the Prince of Wales from typhoid fever.

In North America it was first conducted by an English minister named Wolfall in 1578, on the shores of Newfoundland. The reverend gentleman accompanied an expedition under Frobisher which brought the first English colony to settle on these shores. The earliest reference to a similar service in the United States was held by the Popham colony which settled at Sagadahoc, on the coast of Maine, in August of 1607, but the real origin of the day as an occasion of special thanksgiving is attributed to the first Governor of Massachusetts, Governor Bradford, who in 1621 appointed the 13th of December (old style) to be held as day of public gratitude for a bounteous harvest following upon a period of depression. Feasts, in which turkeys played the principal part, were notable functions on this occasion, which was attended by ninety friendly red men, bearing huge haunches of venison.

George Washington proclaimed a general thanksgiving by the Continental Army on December 18, 1777, and again at Valley Forge on May 7th, 1788. He later issued a proclamation appointing November 26th as a general thanksgiving day, but the observance of this occasion was very limited, and it remained for Mrs. Sarah J. Hall, editor of Godey's Lady's Book, to spend much time year after year in petitioning different Governors to encourage the practise. Her efforts finally met with complete success.

Recipes For Thanksgiving Day

New Fruited Layer Cake.

Beat a cupful of granulated sugar with half a cupful of butter until smooth and creamy. Mix a cupful of flour, half a cupful of cornstarch and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and sift three times. Add a cupful of milk to the creamed butter and sugar and a teaspoonful of almond flavoring, and beat in the flour. The beaten whites of four eggs are added last. Bake in layer-cake tins. Fill with fruited filling and cover with icing.

Fruited filling.—Shred a quarter of a pound of orange peel, a quarter of a pound of candied cherries and a quarter of a pound of citron. Boil a pound of sugar, with enough water to dissolve it, until it threads; pour slowly, while hot, over the beaten whites of three eggs, beating steadily all the time. Color orange tint with a little yellow color paste. Divide into two equal portions; to one stir in the fruit for filling, spread this between layers and cover the top with the plain icing.

Pumpkin Pie With Cheese Sauce.

Cut the pumpkin into pieces and stew until tender. Drain well, dry out all water possible and press through a colander. To each heaping cupful of the pumpkin add a tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of flour, half a teaspoonful each of ground ginger and salt, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, and the beaten yolks of two eggs. Add to a cupful of hot milk a little grated nutmeg and cinnamon, and stir in the pumpkin. Last stir in the beaten whites of two eggs. Line a deep pie plate with pastry crust; pour the pumpkin in, sprinkle the top with a little brown sugar and a few pieces of butter. Bake in a moderate oven.

Cheese sauce.—Melt half a pound of American cheese in a double boiler; stir in 6 tablespoonfuls of milk; pour at once, while hot, over the centre of the pie. Cut and serve.

Salmon Salad.

Boil an onion and a stalk of celery for ten minutes in a pint of beef stock; strain; then add two tablespoonfuls of gelatin which has been dissolved in half a cupful of cold water, season with salt and cayenne pepper, cool, and pour over the bottom of the platter; when firm, make a hollow in the centre of the jelly, fill it with the salmon salad covered with mayonnaise, sprinkle with capers and garnish the dish with chopped pickles and asparagus tips.

Drain the liquid from a can of red salmon; shred the salmon with a fork; add a cupful of crisp white celery split lengthwise and cut into small pieces, and chill on ice.

Pistachio, Pineapple and Raspberry Bavarian.

Pistachio.—Blanch, chop and pound to a paste one cupful of pistachio nuts; scald a pint of milk and pour over one cupful of sugar into which has been mixed one and a half envelopes of gelatin; add the pistachio paste; set the pan in ice water and stir constantly; when it begins to thicken fold in one cupful of cream whipped until stiff, and green vegetable coloring, turn into the bottom of a large wet mold and set in pan of cracked ice.

Pineapple.—Heat two cupfuls of grated canned pineapple; add a cupful of sugar, a tablesoonful of lemon juice and one and a half envelopes of gelatin dissolved in the hot pineapple juice; let stand until cool. Set the pan containing the pineapple mixture in ice water. Stir constantly; when it begins to thicken fold in one cupful of cream whipped until stiff. Pour this over the pistachio layer.

Raspberry.—Chill and add whipped cream to canned raspberries prepared like the pineapple mixture above. When the pineapple layer is firm pour in the raspberry. When ready to serve unmold on a dish and decorate around the mold with whipped cream.

Roast Duck.

Pick, singe, draw and truss the duck. Then peel six large onions, cut them into quarters, put them into a stew-pan, cover with water and bring to a boil. Strain and chop them and cook for five minutes in hot fat. Then add two cupfuls of mashed potatoes, half a teaspoonful of minced sage, half a cupful bread crumbs, pepper and salt. Stuff the duck with this mixture, and rub the fat over the duck and roast, basting it frequently while roasting. Make gravy from the giblets, cleaned and cooked in sufficient water to cover them well, adding an onion, a piece of carrot and a bunch of herbs. Then cook, strain and thicken with browned flour. Serve the duck with molded rice and currant jelly.

Roast Partridge.

Pick, singe and truss the partridge. Then cover the breast with thin slices of fat pork, put it into roasting pan and cook until nicely browned. Serve it with broiled mushrooms on toast.

Fried Rabbit.

Joint the rabbit and soak it in salted cold water for half an hour. Wipe the pieces of rabbit, dip them in flour and fry in hot fat until tender and brown on each side. Then remove from the pan to a hot platter and fry two sliced onions in the fat. When brown, add a heaping tablespoonful of flour and about three cupfuls of water. Bring to the boil and, when thickened, add salt, pepper, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, a little grated lemon rind and two tablespoonfuls of currant jelly. Serve the sauce in sauce bowl. Garnish the rabbit with green parsley.

Roasted Wild Turkey.

The wild turkey is cooked in the same way as any other turkey, but the stuffing is exceedingly good and the recipe is here given. As illustrated, the bird is ready for buffet service. Cooked beets and white turnips cut into flower forms are used as a garnish.

To make the stuffing score one pound of chestnuts and place them in the open for a few minutes to loosen the skins. Then skin and put them into a stew-pan with a little milk and cook slowly until soft and dry. Rub them through a sieve and add two tablespoonfuls of butter. When cold, mix with half a pound of pork sausage, a cupful of bread crumbs, a quarter of a teaspoonful of thyme, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, salt, pepper and a little gravy.

Roast Guinea Fowls.

Singe, clean and truss two guinea fowls; lard the breasts with fat pork, and roast in the oven until nicely browned. Mix with the gravy half a glass of green grape jelly, one-half the rind and juice of an orange, shredding the rind into strips, and a little pepper. Pour into a sauce bowl. Remove the pork strip from the breast and serve with potato croquettes and buttered peas.

In opening his address he took his

Hunky-Dory.

Pop sufficient corn to equal two-thirds pint and add to it one-third pint of shelled pecans. Cut into small pieces a cake of sweet chocolate and place in a bowl in an outer vessel of boiling water. When it begins to melt add one tablespoonful of sweet thick cream and drop in the popcorn and nuts. Stir quickly with a silver fork that all kernels may be covered well with chocolate and dip out in nuggets, placing them on waxed paper to dry, being careful they do not touch.

Cranberry Marmalade to Serve With Game.

Wash three pounds of cranberries; peel and slice one pound of tart apples or quinces very thin. Add just enough water to start the juices to flow, and stew until tender. Press hrough a sieve; add all of three oranges except the seeds and the tough, white pith parts. Mince both skin and pulp fine; add one pound of chopped, seeded or seedless raisins. Add sugar according to tartness desired, cook until thick, and fill into glasses.

Cranberry Salad.

Cook one pint of large cranberries in a thick syrup in order to keep them as whole as possible, then remove them from syrup with a wire spoon. Peel and cut one cupful of tart apples into cubes and moisten with lemon juice to prevent discoloration. Combine the fruits and mix with one cupful of nut meats and one cupful of chopped celery. Serve with mayonnaise.

The Sun-Ray Decoration.

The centre decoration is one of the popular enameled-tin fruit baskets, yellow, decorated in black. It is the new shape, a flaring oblong, and is filled with chocolate apples covered with silver, gold and red tinfoil. The basket is surrounded with fern. These apples are composed of sixteen separate pieces of sweet chocolate and the sections fall apart as the tinfoil is removed. They are very realistic as even the core is imitated. Golden ribbons radiate from the centre to each cover with additional rays between.

Toward the ends of the table, floweroot containers, enameled in yellow on tin and decorated with fruit and flowers, hold some of autumn's yellow blooms. The favors surround the centre and are real-looking waxed fruit boxes—peaches, pears, apples and green corn—filled with candy. Place-cards are decorated in golden autumnal flowers. The china is gold-rimmed. The table is arranged as it would be were ice cream already served on the plates. Nuts and bon-bons in silver dishes are also placed upon the table.

White or Sugar Taffy.

Three cupfuls of cane sugar, two cupfuls of water, one-half cupful of vinegar. Thoroughly dissolve sugar in water before placing on stove, for the syrup must not be stirred while cooking. Boil a long time until syrup hardens or crackles in water. Pour out on to buttered plates. (Do not scrape syrup out of pan for this will grain in the candy.) Add a few drops of desired flavoring to each plate. When cool enough to handle, pull until hard and white.

Melba Tarts.

Make patty shells from any good pie-crust recipe and fill cavity with date-nut paste. Garnish top with whipped cream and serve cold. These are usually served at afternoon tea.

THANKSGIVING

An old-time Thanksgiving had a three-fold character—sportive, festal and religious. Raffles of chickens and turkeys and shooting matches were the order at these times, but in its religious character Thanksgiving at that time was a curious hybrid. On one side was the severe ancestral orthodoxy and on the other the public order to be merry and joyful. Many a dame who remained at home to prepare the dinner was severely censured from the pulpits of the day, and it was at Thanksgiving that one of the staunch Federalist pastors of Connecticut prayed: 'And, O Lord, endow the President (Jefferson) with a goodly portion of Thy grace, for Thou, O Lord, knowest that he needs it."

For the table turkeys were especially fattened, chicken pie, cider and mince meat were always present in great quantities. Pigeon pie was a great favorite, and no higher tribute could have been paid this favorite dish than that given by our ances-

He Needs It—"The Iron Food for Vitality"

The Iron Food for Vitality

Raisins and cereal—for instance, shredded wheat—try this delicious dish.

The Vim-ful Dish

—a luscious breakfast fruit that makes whole days go better for men

Men need dash and vim in business—iron in the blood. And here's a luscious dish that supplies it in abundance.

So delicious that they want it as their daily breakfast fruit, and so get the benefits that come with regularity of use.

Raisins, rich in food-iron, supply rare nutrition—1560 calories of energizing nutriment per pound.

Mere brains alone cannot long compete with those brains that are fortified by iron in the blood. "The Iron Men" are those who can work hard and stay well.

You need but a small bit of iron daily, yet that need is vital.

And you, madam, largely select the food. So it is up to you to replace the energy that "he" burns up each day.

Men won't eat food regularly for nutrition only. It must have delicious flavor to entice them. See how stewed raisins do it, and then note the good they do.

How to Stew Raisins

Serve for breakfast every morning and get your daily iron this way

Cover Sun-Maid Raisins with cold water and add a slice of lemon or orange. Place on fire; bring to a boil and allow to simmer for one hour. Sugar may be added but is not necessary, as Sun-Maid Seeded Raisins contain 75 per cent natural fruit sugar.

Raisin Pie

Men are quickly refreshed at night by a dessert like this

SUN-MAID RAISINS

Use Sun-Maid Raisins, made from California's finest table grapes — American raisins, processed and packed immaculately in a great modern California plant.

Seeded (seeds removed); Seedless (grown without seeds); Clusters (on the stem). Also a fine, ever-ready dessert.

Raisins are cheaper by 30 per cent than formerly—see that you get plenty in your foods.

tors in their daring mutilation of the old hymn:

"When I can read my title clear,
To mansions in the skies,
I'll bid farewell to every fear
And live on pigeon pies."

No tramps went unfed at this season, in the olden days, and even the poor-house had its turkey dinner. Old enemies "made up" their ancient feuds.

In New York State it was a fashionable procedure to pay calls on this day, and another observance was to dress in fantastic costumes and parade the streets. Companies known as the "Square-back Rangers," the "Slender-foot Army" and the "Original Hounds" thronged the public thoroughfares dressed as chiefs, as clowns, Yankees, Irishmen, kings, courtiers and washerwomen. As recently as 1885 the "Sun" for November 27th reported as follows:

"Thirty-six companies of fantastics had permits to march around the streets, making an uproar." These fantastic parades sometimes attained the dignity of a political demonstration. In 1870 the chief feature of the day was the parade of the Shandley Legion, and the whole town turned out to see it. The newspapers announced that 'Senator Tweed will review the troops from the parlour windows of the Blossom Club, and not from the balcony of his residence." Prizes amounting in value to over $10,000 were distributed among the paraders, ranging, as the account says, "from a piano to a shirt stud."

FOR THREE LITTLE MAIDS

Come three little hats. The first one on the left is of crimson duvetyn and beaver banding. Next comes buff and brown velvet with fluted brim and round crown, and last, a half-bonnet shape of hatters plush trimmed with narrow moire ribbon that loops itself in front and falls in streamers on each side.

Why Should You Follow A Crooked Path?

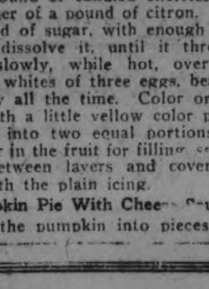
Often a cowpath has been allowed to become a village street, and as the village expanded, tradition has made the winding way an expression of a cow's will.

Habit is always forging chains to enslave us, so that what has been found bearable by the fathers is accepted by the sons.

As children, we were not permitted to drink tea or coffee, because it would stunt our growth or make us nervous and irritable. When older, however, we craved a hot drink with meals, and custom gave us our tea or coffee.

Finally, upon the instructions of the doctor, Mother gave up her tea and coffee. But that meant nothing in our young lives. Our vitality was then strong enough to throw off any ill effects.

But our time came, and we learned by experience that we could not drink tea or coffee. When we had it for breakfast it put our nerves on edge. When we drank it at the evening meal, we tossed about in wakefulness most of the night.



And then we found Postum, a pure cereal beverage, free from the harmful drug, caffeinc, in tea and coffee. We liked the rich, satisfying flavor of Postum—and also the better health which resulted. And, too, we were surprised to find how many of our neighbors had made the same discovery—had learned the value of "health first."

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

THIEVES BREAK INTO TWO HOMES.

Stole a Flashlight From One Home and a Watch From Another.

Taking advantage of the absence of Aylmer Street families last night, burglars broke into the homes of Rev. J. R. Webb and Mr. William C. Frost, 544 and 542 Aylmer Street respectively, and breaking into a drawer in the former, stole a flashlight, and in the latter home forced an entrance into a chiffonier, escaping with a gold watch.

The flashlight was evidently used in the prosecution of the second crime. Mr. and Mrs. Frost were only away about an hour, but returned to find that the lock in the chiffonier had been cut completely out with a chisel and the valuable watch stolen. The chiffonier, valued at $100, was very badly butchered.

in England. I will say I wish to practise protection as it is practised in Old England. They have a 33 1-3 per cent. tariff on over 6,000 articles."

Discussing present conditions, Mr. Burnham said: "No person, Farmer, Grit or Tory is responsible for present conditions. They are a result of Germany's conspiracy to overthrow the world."

Railway Situation.

Hon. J. A. Stewart, Minister of Railways and Canals, provided the last speech of the evening. He referred to the absence of criticism of the government's record. "I believe that never before in the history of Canada has any parliamentary party at the close of their parliamentary term of power asked for a continuation of that power with a cleaner record than the government appealing to the people at the present time."

War Problems.

No parliament, he said, ever had to grasp such problems as the Borden-Meighen government. No parliament had ever had the spending of billions of dollars in the active prosecution of the war. Sir Lomer Gouin says the government has to be judged on its record since 1911. Under our parliamentary system we have to appoint a committee on public expenditure. Notwithstanding that the best accountants and best men in the ranks of the Opposition have been working on the accounts for years, I want to ask you have you heard a single charge of misappropriation or malfeisance? I say in answer to Sir Lomer Gouin that this government will be quite satisfied to be judged on its record of administration since 1911."

Mr. Stewart went on to discuss how Sir Robert Borden had redeemed every plank in his 1917 platform. The first outstanding planks were first the active prosecution of the war; second, Civil Service reform, and third, extension of franchise to women.

A discussion of the National Railway problem took up the greater part of the speaker's address. Going back to 1896, he paid a tribute of respect to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but he charged him with not being a hard-headed business man. He said the government then launched into a mad policy of railroad building. The charter for the Grand Trunk Pacific, he said, was changed for political consideration and for similar ends the line was not extended from Quebec to Moncton. Sir William Mackenzie, President of C.N.R., and Charles A. Hayes, President of the Grand Trunk, failed to reach an amicable agreement on railroad expansion and the result was that two more transcontinental lines were built.

Government Assistance.

In 1914 the C.N.R. was first given government assistance. In 1917 they again became financially embarrassed and the government then took over the railways. The G.T.P. was taken over through much the same circumstances. "Government-owned railways is not a result, it is a condition," he said.

Hon. Stewart said Canada now had 22,000 miles of government owned roads. "Mr. Crerar offers no constructive criticism of what the government has done in railway operation. Mr. King's policy is one of aimless criticism. He drops his drag nets into the slimy sloughs of innuendo."

"We have had to provide for deficits. It is possible we will have to provide for deficits in the future, but the latest reports are favourable. Our railway problem is not without hope. Development may yet solve all our problems."

The meeting closed with three cheers for the King, the Premier and for the Conservative candidate.

A. E. DAWSON RESIGNS FROM IMPERIAL LIFE

Mr. A. E. Dawson has resigned his position as manager in Central Ontario for the Imperial Life Assurance Co., to devote his attention to business of the Toronto Casualty and Marine Insurance Co., of which organization he is now Vice-President and Acting General Manager. He will also actively participate in the operations of the Ackerman-Dawson Co., Limited, in association with Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, regarding general insurance matters.

Mr. A. E. Dawson's experience in the insurance business has been extensive and varied, including over twelve years with the Imperial Life as manager of the Sault Ste. Marie branch, and manager of the company's interests in Saskatchewan Province; also some time at head office in charge of the company's educational and literary work, and subsequently he filled the responsible post of inspector of agencies for the same company. Before joining the Imperial Life he was associated with the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Co. for four years.

Mr. A. E. Dawson is well-known in Peterborough and district, where he enjoyed no inconsiderable successful business connection as representative of the Imperial Life. Endowed with keen business acumen and executive enterprise, Mr. Dawson will not doubt bring to his new associates a policy of expansion on sound aggressive lines.

sweeping reductions in the tariff on wheat flour and wheat products, on farm implements and machinery, and sundry other materials, also on boots and shoes and certain articles of wearing apparel. The Government, he affirmed, was standing on a clear, definite policy with regard to the tariff, but "no human being knows how Mr. Mackenzie King stands on this issue. He is for it in the counties where they want it and against it in the counties where they don't. He is running under the banner of Crerar and Wood in three provinces and declaring in North York on last Thursday night, that the policy of Crerar and Wood was a class, free trade policy and therefore Toryism."

Low Tariff or Betrayal.

The issue, in Mr. Meighen's opinion, lay in the decision of the electorate as to whether they desired tariff revision on a lower scale or thought the tariff should be made even higher than at present. If they voted for the Liberal party, they would get either a sweeping downward revision, ar else the "blackest betrayal this country has ever known.

Need of Protection

"The kernel of the whole thing is; should we abandon the proctective system? Do you want a protective system or do you not? If you have a protective system, do you imagine you can have it in free food stuffs? Can the farmer be asked to have protection on all the goods he produces? We should have a policy that protects everything. As Mr. Mr. Burnham has said, if we think we can do without any protection in our markets, we are the only country in the world that thinks so. There was one country, (Great Britain)—but there is none now. If there is one country in the universe to which protection is absolutely vital, it is Canada." "What would be the common sense of keeping out the lower classes of other countries from Canada in order to be fair to Canadian labour, and let in the goods that class of labour produces?"

Mr. Meighen referred to the bulk of goods bought from the United States when their tariff was based on the Underwood ruling, and stated that Canada bought from the Americans nearly two dollars' worth of goods for every dollars' worth she sold them. Now that the Fordney regulations have gone into effect, the speaker said:

"Do you need to make it easier to buy more because they make it harder to sell?" "Our only course is to make our own tariff to suit ourselves, and make it a sane moderate, protective tariff." The speaker referred to the workingman who had listened to a recent speech of his and had made the remark that the tariff should be built up higher than ever.

A general lowering of the tariff would mean disaster to Canada, said the speaker. "We have the lowest today of any country. Our tariff averages 20 per cent. That of Great Britain on nearly 3,000 articles averages 33 1-3 per cent. and ours is almost as low to-day as it was under the Mackenzie government in the seventies. The Laurier government maintained a tariff ("It was a good one", interjected a Liberal sympathizer) which averaged 26 per cent when they went out of power. At that time they needed a revenue of one hundred and twenty-five millions only. To-day, to pay the interest on our national debt alone, we require one hundred and thirty millions, and we require a total of four hundred and fifty millions to run the country, with pensions, re-establishment problems, etc."

Would Defend Record

Mr. Meighen, remarking that he could not take the time to discuss the record of the government, said: "I stand here prepared, if there is anything in the mind of any citizens of Peterboro which he thinks that this government did that was not in the interests of the people or of any class of people, let me know what it is and I will tell you," going on to say that he himself had been called a puppet of the "Big Interest" because he was a supporter of protective tariff. The small businesses, in his opinion, would be hurt first by a lowering of the tariff walls And the workers in the big businesses would be hurt more than the businesses themselves. The International Harvester Company of Hamilton need only make more machines in its Chicago factory, and the Massey-Harris Company of Toronto keep its New York establishment going at full speed to make as good profits as they were doing now, and close up the Canadian branches altogether, moving their workmen's cottages over the border, figuratively. The mergers of which Mr. King complains so bitterly were nothing in camparison to the mergers which have sprung up in former Free Trade England

Grain Trade Enquiry

Mr. Meighen then adverted to the Grain Growers' Commission in the west, explaining at length the causes which led up to its inception, the complaints of the farmers over unjust treatment which led the Government to appoint the Commission, and the action of Mr. Crerar and his followers in suiting their own interests by declaring it a political organization primarily, and procuring the injunction which caused it to cease functioning. Nearly three-quarters of an hour was spent in an expositon of the causes which led to its appointment, and to its withdrawal from active work, and Mr. Meighen asserted that the funds derived from the sale of screenings the mixing of grades, promotion, difference between street and track offerings, etc., was devoted to the financing of a press which preached the propaganda of its owners, that of anti-tariff legislation. He denied that the appointment of officials on the Canada Wheat Commission had any political complexion whatever, and itemized the claims made by Mr. Crerar in the forming of an investigatory committee. He wishes to name the two men who are to investigate him, he wants to be satisfied regarding the lawyer on the other side, and he wishes the enquiry to be held after the elections are finished

Mr. Meighen concluded his speech with a request that the votes of the audience be cast for the Conservative candidate, J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P.

PIMPLES ON FACE

DIDN'T LIKE TO GO OUT

Those nasty little pimples that break out on the face and other parts of the body are simply indications that the blood is out of order and requires purifying.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and that is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing which can best be done by that old reliable blood medicine, and when the blood is purified the pimples will vanish and you will have a clear, healthy complexion.

Miss Mary E. Flangan, R. R. No. 3, Stella, Ont., writes: "I have suffered for about two years with pimples and blotches breaking out on my face. The doctor said it was caused by bad blood. My face was so bad I didn't like to go out among a crowd of people. One day I was talking to a friend, and she advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and try it. I took three bottles, and there was not a blotch or pimple of any kind left. Some of my friends asked me what I had used and I said, "Burdock Blood Bitters chased them."

B. B. B. has been on the market for the past 45 years, so you are not experimenting with some new and untried remedy.

N. MONAGHAN NEWS

NORTH MONAGHAN, Nov. 3.—The many friends of Mr. Walter Thorpe, St. James' Street, will be sorry to hear that his health is not improving. He is still in Christie Street Hospital, where he has been confined for the past six weeks.

The many friends of Mrs. Blake, St. James' Street, will be sorry to hear that her health is not improving.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Whatley, Park Street, left on Tuesday to reside in Lakefield.

Edison Avenue is fast taking on city airs. Electric light poles have been put up, and some of the houses have electricity installed. The next thing we hope to see is an electric light on each pole to guide travellers when the shades of evening fall.

Hallowe'en Party.

A jolly Hallowe'en party was celebrated on Monday afternoon in St. George's School-room by the Junior Guild. The time was spent in games, etc. Taffy and other Hallowe'en specials were served, and munched gayly amid much merry chatter. The teachers, who supplied the "eats," and in other ways made the affair a success, are to be thanked for the kindly interest which they take in the children.

ACQUITTED FOR MURDER; RE-ARRESTED FOR PERJURY.

QUEBEC, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press).—William Palmer and Raoul Binet were acquitted by a jury last night on a charge of murdering Blanche Garneau in July, 1920. The verdict was received with applause in the court. Binet was re-arrested on a charge of perjury.

CANADIAN NATIONAL WILL EXHIBIT HERE

LATEST IN RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION TO BE SHOWN HERE

Mr. R. A. McVean, travelling passenger representative for the Canadian National Railways, was in the city to-day, making preliminary arrangements for the Canadian National train which will be exhibited here on November 11th. The train will represent the latest in railway construction, and will include dining, sleeping and other cars. A complete operating staff will be on hand to show the visitors through the cars, and those who have never travelled in a modern railway slseeper or had a meal in a Canadian National dining car will have a chance to see the modus operandi. Stewards will be on hand to explain the mysteries of the dining car equipment, including the exclusive quarters of the kitchen squad over which the chef presides.

In many cities this train has been visited by larger crowds than those which visited the French Mission train which passed through Peterborough a short time ago.

FARM YOUNG PEOPLE ENTERTAIN ELDERS

INTERESTING DEBATE AND INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESSES

The Peterboro Branch of the United Farm Young People of Ontario held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, November 1st, in the U.F.O. rooms on Simcoe St. Members of the U.F.O. and U.F.W.O. were guests.

The roll call was responded to with short speeches on current topics; farm laborers' wages, drawback from the Government to the Quaker Oats Company; our attitude toward the tariff, and direct taxation; the Disarmament Conference and General Foch's visit to the United States.

The subject: "Resolved: That a college education is not necessary to a successful farmer," was ably debated by Mr. N. A. Quinn and Miss M. Archer on the affirmative, and Mr. M. Scott and Miss Mabel Grant on the negative. Mr. Smith of the Farm and Dairy staff and Messrs. A. Brown and Charles Moore acted as Judges.

After complimenting the debaters on their logical arrangement of the subject matter, their keen humor and expressive delivery, they offered a few suggestions for improvement. The decision went to the affirmative. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the judges and the debaters.

Mr. Harry McKee, one of the members, then delivered a short but instructive address on Safe Investments and Laws Relating to Investment in Canada and the United States. He pointed out some legislative that may come before our Provincial Government at their next session.

Miss Jean Milburn, club leader in the study of Morals, gave an interesting paper on that subject.

The young people will hold a second meeting in November, on Tuesday evening, November 15th, to elect officers for the coming year. Mrs. W. R. Shields, Miss Pearl Petrie and M. N. A. Quinn, were appointed a committee in charge of arrangements for games, contests and music for this meeting. A sandwich and cake social closed the session last evening.

Without a Doubt This is the Greatest Dress Sale Peterborough Women Have Ever Known!

Some Formerly Sold at $95 and Many at $75 or Thereabouts

IT is important you should know that the majority have been on our racks for less than a year and many only a few months. The fabrics are just as good as the first day they came to us and out of the entire forty-eight garments there is not one you can point your finger at and say "it is out of style." Maybe, when we received them they were a little in advance of the mode. However, be that as it may, they are NOW FASHIONABLE and in most instances worth double or more than double the price we ask for them.

It's One of Those Outstanding Sales That Many Women Hope For But Rarely Have An Opportunity of Participating In

There is nearly everything you can mention in the way of styles, from plain skirts to pleated and frilled ones, or those that hang in circlular fashion, and also the pretty draped models that are caught up so gracefully at the sides or back.

In colors there is everything from white to black, and the materials are charmeuse, taffeta, crepe de chine, crepe meteor, tricolette, plain and fancy georgettes and one of foulard.

We Are Sorry Our Windows Are Not Spacious Enough To Show The Entire Forty Eight, But As Many As Possible Will Be Displayed In Both Sides of The Arcade Window, To-night.

TEN IRISH PRISONERS LIBERATED AT BALLYKINLEAR CAMP

DUBLIN, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press.)— It is announced that ten prisoners in the Ballykinleer internment camp were liberated yesterday.

While no reason was assigned for the release of the men, it was considered here as indicating that a general release of prisoners is not distant, and that their being turned loose might be a part of a general peace agreement.

ENGLISH CHURCHES ALSO TO PRAY FOR ARMS PARLEY

LONDON, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—The National Free Church Council of England, in co-operation with the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, will offer prayers in all the 10,000 churches of the country next Sunday for the success of the Washington conference on the limitation of armament and Far Eastern questions.

Cardial Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, has issued instructions to the clergy of his diocese to offer up special prayers on Sunday. He also has appealed to all the Roman Catholic bishops in Great Britain to do likewise.

APPOINT DR. McCARTAN BOARD OF GUARDIANS

DUBLIN, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—Dr. Patrick McCartan, former representative of the Dail Eireann in the United States yesterday was appointed commissioner of the Dail Eireann to administer to the affairs of the Dublin Board of Guardians. The Guardians recently confessed inability to cope with the administration owing to the vested interests of officials and others since the old regime. They appealed to the Dail Eireann to appoint a commissioner. Former Unionists were the forenlost supporters of the suggestion.

Similar action was taken last year in connection with the Cork Board of Guardians.

RAILWAYS GIVE FREE TRANSPORT TO GRAIN FOR RELIEF IN THE NEAR EAST

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—W. H. Biby, regional manager of the Near East Relief Association, was notified yesterday by J. R. Koontz, Assistant Freight Manager of the Santa Fe Railroad, that the Santa Fe has joined other railroads of the United States in a plan to furnish free transportation to seaboard of a million bushels of grain for shipment to Near East famine sufferers.

BRITAIN CONSIDERS RUSSIAN DEBT PLAN

LONDON, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, on Tuesday sent a note to Leonid Krassin, the Russian Minister of Trade and Commerce, concerning the recent note of M. Chitcherin, the Soviet Foreign Minister, offering conditionally to assume the debts of old Russia up to 1914.

Lord Curzon expressed it as the feeling of the British Government that the Russian Government by proposing to recognize the debts," have set their feet upon the only path by which they can attain to the goal they profess to desire, namely, economic co-operation with other nations."

It is stated that Mr. Lloyd George has expressed a desire to consult with M. Krassin on the subject of debts, and that a conference is likely to be held within a few days.

ARREST GERMAN FOR ASSAULT ON CHILD

MONTREAL, Q., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—After a hunt lasting from yesterday afternoon, the St. Lambert police to-day arrested Richard Ukerman, 24, a native of Bandon, Germany, in connection with a criminal assault upon Alma Pearson, 9 years old, of Greenfield park.

BURGLARS ENTER FLAT, GET LOOT OR $5,600

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press.)— Burglars who entered the apartment of Mrs. Band, 5,044 Sherbrooke street west, in the early hours yesterday morning, made a haul of $5,600 worth of furs, furniture and silverware, according to a complaint laid by the tenant of the flat to-day.

MARKING REGULATIONS CHANGED SOMEWHAT.

OTTAWA, Novebmer 3 (Canadian Press). — Customs regulations respecting the marking of imported goods with an indication of the country of origin have been considerably changed insofar as they concern piece goods, carpets, and oilcloths, it was announced at the Department of Customs here yesterday. Under the new regulations cloth and material in the web or roll will be marked with an indication of the country of origin on one end of each web and on the price ticket.

CUT MUNICIPAL WAGES IN PRAIRIE PROVINCES.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., Novemebr 3 (Canadian Press). — Representatives of Saskatchewan and Alberta cities at conference here today decided on reduction in the wages of civic employees for 1922, on a basis calling for a cut of 32 per cent. on the increase of 1921 salaries over those of 1914.

PARNELL WILL RUN IN WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 3 (Canadian Press). Winnipeg civic elections will be held on 25th November, with nomination day on 11th November. Mayor Edward Parnell will be a candidate for a second term, and it is not expected that anyone will run against him. Sixteen candidates, including six members of the present Council, already are in the field for the nine aldermanic seats that are to be filled.

BISHOP PRUD'HOMME LEAVES FOR HIS DIOCESE.

WINNIPEG, November 3 (Canadian Press).—Bishop Prud'homme, accompanied by his secretary, Rev. S. Caron, former curate of St. Boniface, left here yesterday for his new diocese of Prince Albert and Saskatchwan. Bishop Prud'homme will be enthroned at Prince Albert on Thursday. A number of church dignitaries, including Archbishop Beliveau, also accompanied the newly consecrated bishop.

GRANTS TIME EXTENSION FOR PRIVY COUNCIL APPEAL.

OTTAWA, November 3 (Canadian Press). — By a judgment given verbally at the Board of Railway Commissioners, sitting yesterday afternoon in the application of the Pointe Aux Trembles Railway Company, the Board granted an extension of time to appeal to the Privy Council, and gave the Harbour Commissioners of Montreal permission to operate over the tracks of the Canadian Northern Quebec Railway on the same terms as under the former order.

CANADIAN AND AMERICAN PROHIBITION AGENTS MEET.

REGINA, November 3 (Canadian Press). — Stating that because of their restricted jurisdiction, Canadian authorities are practically helpless to prevent rum-running from Canada across the international boundary into the United States, Rev. J. N. MacLean, inspector of liquor law enforcement for the Province of Manitoba, spoke here yesterday to delegates at an international convention of Prohibition officers. The delegates represented the Federal Government of the United States, State Legislatures, and the Provinces of Canada.

CANADIEN HOCKEY CLUB FRANCHISE IS SOLD.

MONTREAL, P.Q., November 3 (Canadian Press). — It was announced yesterday afternoon that the Canadien Hockey Club franchise was sold to Joe Cattarinich and Leo Dandurand, both well-known local sportsmen. This follows the announcement that Tom Duggan, president of the Mount Royal Arena, had broken off negotiations with the Kendall estate for the late George Kennedy's sporting interests. The price to be paid by Cattarinich and Dandurand was not disclosed.

TEN MILLION WAR MEDALS DISTRIBUTED BY BRITAIN

LONODN, Nov. 3.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Te Secretary of State for War, Rt. Hon. Sir H. Worthington-Evans, answering a complaint in the House of Commons yesterday as to the tardy distribution of war medals, said that ten million medals had already been distributed. Mills, a Laborite member, asked if the War Office would buy up the thousands of medals now being pawned to bbuy food. Shouts of disapproval arose from all parts of the House, and there were cries of "Shirker" and "Who did you lose in the war." Mills worked in the Woolwich arsenal during the war.

SCOTCH PAPER SUPPORTS DOMINION REPRESENTATION

LONDON, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—The Glasgow Herald says it thinks the dissatisfaction expressed by Premier Smuts of South Africa, and by several extreme upholders of the autonomy school in Canada at the failure of the British Government to secure separate Dominion representation at the Washington conference is perfectly natural. Inclusion of Canadian and Australian statesmen would mean a voice for Imperial Britain, according to the Herald.

FIXED ASSESSMENT GRANTED TO COMPANY

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press.)— By a majority of 73, ratepayers of Merritton yesterday carried a by-law granting a fixed assessment to the Independent Rubber Company for ten years of $80,000. The company pays school rate on $130,000. The new assessment is almost double that which recently expired. A few months ago the by-law failed by a small margin.

seeking the sanctuary of the Senate. The second: "Because as Canadians we are a liberty-loving people, and it is our British heritage to love liberty. The tyranny at Ottawa is unprecedented. The Hon. Frank Carvell, speaking at Sarnia, said that the Union government was formed for a definite period for a definite purpose. With the notable exceptions of Guthrie and Ballantyne, the Liberals returned to their fold." The third reason was: "At the last analysis, it has been shown that the present Government is for the Big Interests and not for the people at large. The new Progressive Party is really a Liberal movement, with the main difference that they advocate the extension of reform. It is class government, and the West will dominate at Ottawa. Mr. Brethen if elected, will count for little, and the half-baked ideas of the western American States will be used in the government at Ottawa, and industry will be paralyzed. As to the recall one of the strong planks in the Progressive paltform, it is all right in the Council, but fatal in the Government."

"With regard to Captain Dewart, a man who is ready to fight and die for his country surely deserves support, and men of his type were never more needed."

Mr. F. D. Kerr.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, K.C., of Peterboro, was the last speaker. He advised honest thinking with regard to voting. His experiences in political campaigns dated back to the days of John Laing, as Member of Parliament for East Peterboro, and no one in his opinion, has any right to be ashamed of the record of the Liberal party. Hampden and Tym stood for good government in England in their time, and no one need be ashamed of the wide vision of Charles James Fox, the great leader of the Liberals. In Canada Liberals had a wonderful record. Geo. Brown, one of the Fathers of Confederation, Honest Alexander Mackenzie, who sat with a rifle on the treasury chest at Ottawa, Edward Blake, who did so much in England to bring the English and the Irish together, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Grand Old Man of Canada, George P. Graham, Rudolph Lemieux, A. B. Aylesworth, and Frank Oliver, all of whom lost their only sons in the Great War, and Major Moss, who gave his life on Flanders' Fields. The only member of Parliament who went overseas as a private was a Liberal and it was a Liberl leader, Hon. Mackenzie King, who settled the large industrial strikes in Colorado and in Canada by his honesty and integrity.

"Remember the good candidate," said Mr. Kerr. "Every man should have a square deal, and only under that condition can this country succeed. The man who was brave enough to face the Germans can face the profiteers and win the military cross on the political field as well as on the battle field. Do not fail the man who did not fail you in the dark days of the war."

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

IN BETHANY AND DISTRICT

LIBERAL CANDIDATE FED A MEETING—PERSONAL MENTION

BETHANY, November 3. — Mr. Reid, of Cartwright, U.F.O. candidate for this Riding, was in the village on Monday.

The first political meeting was held here in the Town Hall on Monday night in the interests of the Liberal candidate, Mr. W. R. T. Preston, of Port Hope. Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., of Peterborough, also spoke in Mr. Preston's interest. Quite a number of citizens were present to hear the addresses.

Mr. Tom Magill and Mr. John Magill, of Enniskillen, visited their sister, Mrs. H. H. Ryley, on Tuesday last.

Hallowe'en passed very quietly—with the usual juvenile tricks of taking off gates, piling old carts, boxes, chicken crates, etc., in the doorways and calling on the neighbours in ridiculous costumes.

The members of the Young Ladies' Mission Club have prepared and packed a box of toys and other useful articles, and are shipping it to Miss Alice Jackson, missionary among the Indians, at Nelson House, Manitoba, to be used in her school there

The Young Ladies' Mission Club held a Hallowe'en party at the home of one of its members, Miss Violet Jackson, on Monday night. About fifty young people were present, and enjoyed all the thrills of meeting ghosts, witches, etc. Other Hallowe'en games and contests were played and a dainty Hallowe'en lunch was served at midnight.

Mr. Hector Jakeman, of Brooklin, is visiting his parents for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris, who have been visiting with Mrs. Morris' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mulligan, returned to their home in Toronto on Tuesday.

Rev. and Mrs. Beckel gave a Hallowe'en party at the parsonage to the Tuxis Boys and Trail Rangers on Tuesday evening. About twenty boys were present. After a number of Hallowe'en games were played, story telling and song singing were freely indulged in, and caused great amusement. At an early hour refreshments of taffy, pop-corn, cake, and apples were enjoyed, and a vote of thanks was given to Mr. and Mrs. Beckel for their kindness and the pleasant evening they had helped the boys enjoy.

Hallowe'en Social

On Monday evening, the Young People's Society of St. Andrews Church held a Hallowe'en masquerade which was very largely attended by the young people. All were attired in Hallowe'en costumes. There were gypsies, Indian, darkies, old gents, and old ladies, ghosts and many others The school room was very nicely and appropriately decorated. The crowd began to assemble at eight o'clock and tried to get acquainted before the programme began. Solos were sweetly renderd by Miss Marion Burleigh, Miss Emma Meklejohn, and Mr. Hutton. Partners were chosen and divided into groups of six after which amusing games were indulged in. Everyone joined heartily in the singing of popular songs, after which dainty refreshments were served. The pleasant evening closed with the benediction by the pastor, Rev. C. F. McIntosh.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3.—Rev. M. L. Hinton of Hastings attended the meeting in the arena yesterday addressed by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Hon. J. A. Stewart and Milton Maybee, Conservative candidate in the coming elections.

HEALTH OFFICER DECLARES CANCER IS NOT INCURABLE.

Thinks It Well People Should Be Frightened — Many Wait Too Long Before Consulting a Doctor.

HAMILTON, Nov. 2.—Though Hamilton, in common with certain other Canadian cities, does not appear to have plans lined up which will enable her to co-operate with the United States cities, as was expected, in Cancer Week, it is not unlikely that some means will be taken to bring before the public the meaning of this week.

Under the auspices of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, Oct. 30 to Nov. 5, has been set aside for an educative campaign for the control of this greatest of humanity's scourges. This society, organized in 1913, has played a beneficent role in educating the public to adopt measures which will control, and, ultimately, decrease the ravages of this disease.

In common with Dr. C. J. Hastings, Toronto, Dr. Roberts, M.H.O., is emphatically of the opinion that not harm, but much good, will come of frightening people about this disease.

"I would be glad to see them frightened. That would mean that they would take some action toward fighting the disease," Dr. Roberts commented today.

Dr. Roberts, recalling the fact that an act of Parliament had done away with the advertising of remedies for venereal disease which did untold harm, declared that compulsory stopping of the fake advertising which duped so many victims of cancer, and robbed them of their hope of relief of cure, would be a splendid thing.

"The object of Cancer Week is to help people, and to educate them as to means of safeguarding themselves. The object of the fakirs who advertise cures is to extract blood-money," he stated. "One of the worst features about such fake nostrums is that there are a great many used in the early stages of the disease, when science might cure them. The fake medicine, pastes or serums—of which not one has yet been discovered by science, or accepted by the medical profession as valuable as a cure—fail to cure, of course, and then it is too late for measures which, if used in time, would have been efficacious."

Cautions Against Delay.

Dr. Roberts strongly cautioned against delay, declaring that cancer was a curable disease, and that too many victims lost their lives by waiting until death knocked at the door before taking precautions.

"It should be fought with facts —taken early," he added.

Quoting from a bulletin of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, the M. H. O. instanced its appalling ravages by citing the 180,000 victims who died from the disease during the two years the U. S. was engaged in the Great War, whereas the war victims totaled 100,000 less.

In Toronto, Dr. Hastings, the M. H. O. there, has circularized every clergyman, asking their co-operation from the pulpits. The value of such campaigns of publicity is proved by the fact that this U. S. society, which is becoming strongly organized in Canada, Mexico and Cuba, is credited with having been responsible for the arrest of the disease in the United States, since 1916 the death-rate having remained practically stationary.

In the United States, it was pointed out in a bulletin in the possession of Dr. Roberts, about 10 per cent. of people over 40 years of age die of cancer every year. This means that one person out of every ten, past the fourth decade of life, dies of cancer.

Dr. Roberts submitted statistics to show that the situation in this city approximated rather closely that cited in this bulletin, there being between one-seventh and one-eighth of people over 40 years of age dying from cancer here. Out of a total of 708 deaths last year, 107 were from the ravages of cancer.

The death rate in Hamilton from this disease has grown progressively. In 1914 there were 72 deaths in 1915, there were 79; in 1916, 86, and in 1920, 107.

WOULD TRAIN YOUTHS FOR FARM WORK HERE

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The establishment of camps in Canada where youths on leaving school in the Old Country could come over for a year's practical training before being placed out with farmers, was advocated by Commissioner David G. Lamb of the Salvation Army, at present visiting Canada seeking information on immigration problems.

In speaking of this new plan, Commissioner Lamb said:

"I would like to see four camps for boys established in the Dominion, one in the East, one in Ontario, one in the Prairie Provinces and one in British Columbia. My idea is that one camp should consist of 100 boys under the care of a superintendent and wife, with suitable assistants. Buildings with dormitory accommodation, central kitchen and social hall in close proximity to the dormitories. The boys could help with the harvest—going out for the day or for the week—and during the winter work in the camps could be interspersed with lessons, sports, etc. In the spring of the year the boys would be placed out in situations with farmers. This scheme meets the winter employment difficulty, keeps the boys out of the towns, gets them accustomed to the winter and to country conditions in the happiest and most natural way. A sum of $50,000 would enable us to try out the experiment, and I have no doubt as to its success.

"I think Canada should find the money. The Old Country has educated the boys and brought them up to the stage when they soon become wealth producers. Even "Labor" could scarcely reasonably object to a scheme of this kind.

HALIFAX EXPLOSION WRECKED HER NERVES

The reader will, no doubt, remember when a few years ago there was a collision in the Halifax, N.S. Harbor and one of the munition ships was blown up, causing great loss of life and laying a large portion of the city in ruins, and causing a great deal of suffering and distress among the inhabitants.

Mrs. Winfield Dill, now of Windsor, N. S., was living in Halifax at that time and went through this trying experience and the shock wrecked her nerves. She writes as follows:—"I was living in Halifax at the time of the explosion, and it wrecked my nerves so that I could not do my housework. I would take such nervous spells I would be under the doctor's care.

"I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised, so I took two boxes and they helped me so much I took six more, and now I am completely relieved. I can recommend them to anyone suffering from heart and nerve trouble."

To all those who suffer from nervous shock we recommend our

REAL WINTER 52 YEARS SATURDAY

Commenting on the exceptionally mild weather this autumn, The Orillia Packet says:

"We are reminded by Mr. Thomas Haywood that fifty-two years ago last Saturday night his father's family—the parents, five sons and two daughters—landed at the old wharf, foot of Mississaga street, from the steamer, and, fresh from London, were met by a condition which must have astonished, if it did not appal them. The ground was covered with snow, to the depth of a foot or more, winter having fully set in, with all its regular accompaniments of ice, frost, sleighing, sleigh bells and a general air altogether foreign to the experience or expectations of the newcomers. They were met at the boat by Mr. J. J. Hatley and driven directly to a house on the late John Regan's farm, Coldwater road. This temporary place of residence was accepted because vacant houses in the village were then even more difficult to find than they are today. This was 'the winter of the long snow,' still often recalled by old-timers. Sleighing came, if the Page's memory is not at fault (Mr. Charles Rowe will perhaps kindly correct us if the date is wrong), on October 14th, and it continued without interruption till about the 8th of May. The early snow caught most of the turnips and potatoes in the ground, and there they stayed till next spring, when they were generally found to be in as good condition as they would have been had they been dug in the fall, and stored in pits. One sometimes hears it said that apples too were unpicked, and were frozen on the trees. This could not well be, because at that there was not and had never been an apple grown in the entire district. Indeed, it was then generally thought that apples could not be cultivated here."

INSIST RADIUM AIDS IN CHECKING CANCER.

Memorial Hospital Officers, in Statement, Say Experience Proves It Efficacious.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Recent statements that the treatment of cancer by radium was a failure and that the old methods of surgery were still the only methods giving hope of relief or cure, brought dissenting replies yesterday from officers of Memorial Hospital, Central Park west and 106th street, where radium is used extensively for cancer, and from Dr. C. Everett Field, Director of the Radium Institute, 205 West Seventieth street, a privately endowed institution.

Herbert Parsons and Archibald Douglas, President and Secretary, respectively, of Memorial Hospital, issued a joint statement on behalf of the officers and attending physicians, in which they said that "sweeping and general denunciations, based on data not thoroughly investigated, are misleading to the public and serve no good purpose."

"At the Memorial Hospital," the statement said, "we have under treatment several thousand sufferers from cancer, many of whom are being treated with radium. These people read the papers, and when doubt is cast upon the efficacy of the method with which they are being treated they are apt to suffer grave mental disturbance, their proper treatment may be interfered with or even interrupted and the best efforts of both our physicians and surgeons are hampered.

"The hospital has in its charge $400,000 worth of radium, the largest quantity, we understand, in any public hospital in the world, and the entire emanation from this is used every day in the year. We need double the quantity of radium now on hand.

"The Memorial Hospital treats cases of cancer in several ways—either by surgery only, by surgery and the application of radium or x-ray, or both; by the application of radium or x-ray alone, or by the application of both radium and x-ray.

"We are finding treatment by radium most effective in hundreds of cases, and while our medical staff cannot announce any cures until more time has elapsed, it is significent that great numbers of cases, after several years, show no recurrences of the disease.

"The claim of our hospital is that in many cases radium offers the best probable relief in cancer, that in other cases its use is either ineffective or unwise, that by the proper use of radium under highly trained and expert medical advice only, either separately or in conjunction with other methods, the field for the relief of cancer sufferers is broadened and the outlook for the final conquest of the disease is brighter."

Dr. Field said investigations reported by all of the notable radium hospitals of Europe and America put radium on an equal basis with surgery.

"Ten years' investigation have proven that radium exerts curative action in many types of cancer," he said. 'It carries on its destructive energy by means of rays, which cause no visible effects on normal tissue. Overcrowding the dosage may injure the patient's resistance. At present our belief is that cancer in its primary state may be cured by surgery plus radium.

"To deny either agent of treatment its rightful place must place the critic as either unduly biased or ignorant. More than 500 highly scientific physicians throughout the world are now working daily with 115 grams of radium valued at $13,000,000, and most of them have been working more than five years. I have never heard of a single one of those who gave up his radium or lost interest in the results he is securing. Radium is, at present, fast reaching a standardization of dosage that will insure better results."

Convalescence

Requires Wincarnis

In a state of convalescence, while the crisis is over, the danger of relapse may not be over. It is then that strength and vitality should be restored as quickly as possible.

Fresh air, sleep and such nutritious articles of food as can be easily digested are required to restore the lost vitality and repair the wasted tissues. But as the system is too weak to absorb the mineral elements that compose the body—it is here that WINCARNIS is so wonderful. For it contains Iron and Manganese for enriching the blood; Phosphorus for Brain and Nerves; Calcium, Sodium and Potassium—Phosphates essential for Bone and Tissue-Building—in a form that promotes their ready absorption into the system.

Everyone recovering from illness should take WINCARNIS. If you would quickly restore rosy cheeks and the glow of health to friends or loved ones who have been ill, take them a bottle of WINCARNIS.

MILK DOWN IN PRICE.

Consumers will Receive Fifteen Tickets for One Dollar.

TORONTO, Nov. 2. — Local milk dairies informed their customers esr yesterday that they will get 13 milk tickets for one dollar instead of 14. In other years at this time the milk prices usually went up. The Ontario Milk and Cream Producers Association said the reason for this reduction at this time was because of the exceptionally fine weather this year. "We have had very little cold weather which means lots of pasture, and the lowering of feed prices. As yet the cows have not been stabled. With the lowering of feed prices we feel that the consumer should have the benefit," said an official.

BOY SHOT AT PLAY

Celebrating Hallowe'en, When He Fell, Wounded in Leg.

PORT HOPE, Nov. 2.—While engaged in Hallowe'en pranks at Welcome, with a number of boy companions, little Austin Chestnut fell into the ditch with a gaping wound in his left leg, inflicted by the full contents of a shell from a gun. He was rushed to the hospital here, and under treatment, is resting comfortably.

The shot is alleged to have been fired by Edward Martin while but six feet away from the boys. Martin, however, asserts that he fired in the opposite direction and was not aware that any person was in the direction aimed by his gun. The victim and his friends claim that Martin made a deliberate mark of them.

BERLIN HOTELS SUFFER FROM PETTY THIEVES

Some Check Baggage of Departing Guests, While Others Have Been Closed.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—Hotels in this city are suffering from the operations of petty thieves since the strike of hotel and restaurant workers. The majority of local hostelries have posted the following placard in their rooms:

"Our guests are most strongly forbidden to take bed linen, pillows and room furnishings with them leaving."

Many hotels have fitted the doors of their rooms with electric bells so that when a patron opens the door a clerk appears and carefully examines his baggage which has been previously inventoried and checked. Some hotels have closed and thieves and pickpockets have reaped a harvest by directing stangers to disreputable houses. The guests usually awake in the morning to find most of their valuables gone, and some have considered themselves lucky in not losing their wearing apparel.

The inability of hotels to furnish clean linen has forced guests to buy their own linen, which has complicated the task of preventing strangers from carryng off room furnishings.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

CARE of Child's "FIRST" TEETH Vital to HEALTH

AS indicative of how great to the health of children is the care of t ir "first" teeth, Dr. J. Ross Snyder of Birmingham, Ala., cites the following case:

"I was the consultant," writes Dr. Snyder in the Journal of the American Medical Association, "in the case of a 7-year-old girl who was pallid, had a rapid pulse and accelerated respirations, had been losing weight, was without appetite and had low-grade fever. After what I considered a careful examination I concurred in a diagnosis of tuberculosis. The family asked for further consultation with an eminent surgeon. The physician in charge and his consultant objected on the ground that the case was medical, not surgical. This resulted in both being asked to resign from the case. The surgeon was then called in and discovered a gumboil at the site of the first permanent molar, the latter decayed.

"With proper treatment of the mouth condition the tuberculosis disappeared magically. The girl today is a fine specimen of healthy young woman, but she has a crooked face—all of which is recited to bring out several points, but chiefly to introduce an inquiry as to why pediatric men continue to ignore the subject of dental pediatrics."

A favorite complaint from pediatricians, according to Dr. Snyder, has been that the government gives more attention to the breeding of cattle than to the breeding of a race. "Such a complaint," he goes on to say, "is hardly consistent when through our efforts huge sums are being spent on the cow's toilet, though we ignore the importance of a toilet for the child's mouth."

Dr. Snyder quotes Dr. Thomas of Minneapolis as scoring the family dentist who dismisses the little child with the statement: "Oh! I can't do anything with those teeth, they are only temporary and your child will have permanent teeth in their stead." He says the man who first called the deciduous teeth the "temporary" teeth committed a crime against children which only years of painstaking education can eradicate.

"It has been estimated that in spite of antenatal conditions and quite independent of the state of the teeth of parents, the temporary teeth emerge through the gums to all intent and purposes perfect in 98 per cent. of children. Contrast this with the condition of the teeth of children of school age. Leak, New York state dental inspector, says:

"'Ninety per cent. of children in the first grades, not only in the slums but in aristocratic and best sections of cities, have bad teeth; one-third have abscessed conditions in their mouths, and every fourth or fifth child does not have proper masticating surfaces. Of little tots in the first grades, 7 years of age, 40 per cent. have the six-year molar decayed—a tooth which has not been in the mouth more than one year and yet the first molar of the permanent set, decayed.'"

Dr. Snyder says that equally bad conditions have been revealed wherever inspections of the mouths of the school children have been made.

"It has been conclusively demonstrated," writes Dr. Snyder, "that children with bad teeth are more susceptible to infectious diseases. Granting, as Hellman suggests, that there should be a more scientific investigation of the causes and that the condition should be studied from a developmental, racial, pathologic and nutritional standpoint, this does not preclude the already arrived at conclusion that premature loss of the deciduous teeth is the most frequent etiologic factor in maldevelopment of the face and the jaws.

"I am concerned as to whether we admit that there are in our country millions of children whose health is in more or less jeopardy because of their unclean mouths. Probably a majority of these children display no strikingly marked symptom. There may be no pain, no elevation of temperature, no acceleration of pulse rate, no cough, no glandular swelling, no albuminuria, nothing to attract the attention of the ordinary physician, dentist or parent.

"Many of these children, however, do display symptoms which to the pediatrician ought to be pregnant with significance. The child may not show a proper interest in things that are attractive to the normal child. The appetite may be capricious, the child often spurning good, wholesome food while craving sweets. He may be as reluctant to go to bed at night as to get up in the morning. He may be nervous and fidgety or lethargic; he may be emotional or apathetic; he may be precocious or a dullard; sometimes he is incorrigible. To the uncommonly observant, many indications are apparent of the child's being below standard—sometimes mentally, sometimes physically, sometimes in both ways.

Dr. Snyder says that in every community in which oral hygiene has been introduced as a part of the school system, not merely satisfactory but brilliant results have followed. It has always meant cleaner, better, happier and more intelligent girls and boys. This state of well being is reflected not only on the teachers but on the parents as well. At present oral hygiene has been adopted so exceptionally by school boards that communities in which it exists stand out in marked contrast with their benighted neighbors.

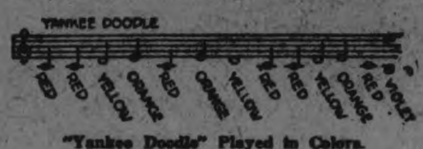
MUSIC INTERPRETED IN COLORS

MRS. MARY HALLOCK GREENEWALT, a noted pianist of Philadelphia, has added color to the charm of music. She believes that there are "notes" in light as well as notes in sound, and that various wave lengths of light may be artistically blended just as wave lengths of sound are blended. The blending of beautiful shades of color with music gives to the music a new artistic effect.

In the case of sound, there are disturbances in the air, while with light there are wave disturbances in the ether. The pitch of a certain sound depends upon the wave length. The high note on a piano vibrates several thousand times a second, and the last bass note vibrates very few times a second.



"Yankee Doodle" Played in Colors.

There is a scale of light waves ranging from a very high pitch to a low pitch. In the case of light waves, however, there are vibrations in the ether that reach several billion a second. By arranging certain colored lights in the order of their wave lengths, a chromatic scale may be produced that may be used in connection with the music scale. How Mrs. Greenewalt has done this is described by Popular Science Monthly.

For this purpose Mrs. Greenewalt employs a single lamp in connection with specially constructed resistances, so that the intensity of the light may be varied progressively. A revolving color-filter is placed before the lamp, and the motion of this is controlled by the operation of the rheostat.

With This Color Orchestration, Lullabies May Be Played to Rest Tired Eyes as Well as Tired Ears.

Mrs. Greenewalt says that the entire outfit is used as an adjunct to a regular orchestra equipment.

How High EXPLOSIVES Are MADE from TREES

SCIENTISTS have just succeeded in stripping the tree of one of its secrets—that is, how to make it furnish the explosive that later can be used to blast its stump from the ground. Cymene, an oil necessary in the manufacture of the explosive known as TNT, is now produced from the pulp of spruce, fir, and balsam trees. And since the war TNT has been used extensively for land-clearing, road-building and similar blasting operations.

The interesting process of deriving cymene from sulphite turpentine is described by a writer in Popular Science Monthly. Sulphite turpentine has always been the bane of paper manufacturers, and it was primarily through the efforts of a paper-making company that it was put to use.

In the manufacture of paper, the logs are chopped into chips, which are put into an enormous steel digesting tank.

This tank is filled with water in which bisulphite of lime has been dissolved. Then the mixture is boiled under pressure and at high heat. This boiling takes the tars, resins and color out of the wood fiber. The cymene escapes in the steam and gas. By the new process, this is now distilled.

The gases are driven into a coiled lead pipe several hundred feet long which rests in a wooden pan filled with cold water. The pipe is cooled by the water passing over it, just as is the worm of a still. The temperature of the gases passing through the pipe is reduced below the condensing point of steam. Therefore, from the end of the coil there emerge a liquid and the remaining vapors, which pass into a separator.

The separator consists of an antimonial lead pipe five feet long and 12 inches in diameter. In the centre of the pipe is a lead partition or a baffle-plate. It extends to within a foot of the bottom of the pipe. The liquid and the gas strike the partition. The liquid, which consists of sulphite turpentine and sulphur-impregnated water, drops into a separating tank. After it has stood in this container for half an hour, the two constituents separate. Cymene, being lighter, rises to the top, and may be drawn off by spigots placed at various levels. A funneled pipe receives the cymene and carries it to a storage-tank. Here again there are spigots, so that if any water remains it will be finally removed.

If there still are traces of sulphur dioxide, they may be neutralized by adding lime. Now the crude cymene is ready to be shipped in large metal drums to plants where it will be converted into an explosive.

The vapors that were left striking against the baffle-plate of the separator go under the leaden partition and are forced into a wooden tank about 80 feet in height called a "reclaiming tower." The inside of this structure is filled with hollow acid-resisting tiles in order to increase the absorbing surface. Into the top of the tower a raw cooking liquor for use in the digester tanks is pumped; it trickles down through the tiles, absorbing the gas, and finally leaves the tower from the bottom through a pipe that conveys it to a tank where it is stored until needed. The vapor thus saved represents real money. Instead of being permitted to escape into the air, it has enriched the liquor which is to be used in cooking fresh wood.

The method of conversion considered most effective was invented by Prof. Ralph H. McKee of Columbia University, formerly the official chemist of the Paper & Pulp Association.

Nearly all the sulphite turpentine as it comes from the pulp-mills, consists of the hydrocarbon cymene. This crude cymene is first passed through a mass of calcium chloride, which is the ordinary bleaching-powder used in laundries. It has a great affinity for water and dries out most of the remaining sulphur solution. The sulphite turpentine is again distilled. It is mixed with about 5 per cent. of its bulk of chloride of aluminum while a stream of hydrochloric-acid gas is passed through it. Here is one of the mysteries of science. The chloride of aluminum is a "chemical parson." Although no trace of it appears in any of the resulting products, it brings about certain new unions of atoms that have undergone molecular divorce. Pure cymene, or toluol, as it is often called, has now been obtained.

The changing of this forest toluol into an explosive is simple. It is combined with sulphuric and nitric acids until it is triply nitrated—whereupon it becomes trinitrotoluol, which is the proper name for TNT.

Just WHAT an INSECT REALLY IS

By I. FOSTER MOORE

THE largest branch of the animal kingdom is the arthropoda, so called because the body is composed of rings, some of which bear jointed legs. This branch is divided into four classes, crustacea, arachnida, myriapoda and hexapoda. The crustacea are the lobsters, crabs, crayfish, etc.; the arachnida are the spiders, daddy-long-legs, etc.; the myriapoda are the thousand-legged worms and their relations, and the hexapoda are the insects.

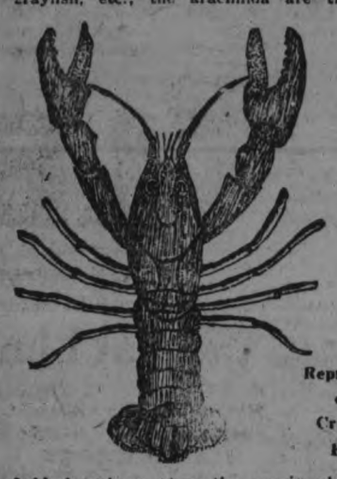


Fig. 1. The Crayfish Is a Representative of the Crustacean Family.

The insects are different from the other arthropoda in several ways. In the first place, they have three pairs, or six jointed legs, from which fact they get their name; they have one pair of feelers, or antennae, growing from the head, and usually one or two pairs of wings.

Insects are air-breathing animals, breathing by means of air tubes which extend all through the body. Where these air tubes end in the body wall openings, called spiracles, appear, usually along the sides of the body. Through these the insects take air into the air tubes or tracheae.

Fig. 2—The Spider Is an Arachnid.

What is called the metamorphoses of insects or the wonderful changes which they undergo while growing, is one of the most marvellous things that Mother Nature provides for us to study and solve.

Fig. 3—The Grasshopper Is Classified as an Insect.

Some insects hatch from the egg in the form that they keep through their entire lives, that is, they have no metamorphosis or change. Others undergo an incomplete metamorphosis, that is, they may have no wings at first and there is at no time a period when they do not resemble the perfect insect. Still other insects change entirely in their form during their life, as the butterflies and moths do, these changes consisting of the larval or worm-like stage, the pupa or quiet stage, and the perfect insect or butterfly and moth stage.

POGO STICK Jumping Is Newest FAD

"WHERE are you going, my pretty maid?"

"A 'pogoing,' sir," she said.

That's the answer you will get when the girls on this side of the pond have taken up "pogo jumping," that newest fad of exercise for which London and Paris have both gone in so strong.

The "pogo" is little more than a bouncing stilt. It is a wooden stick about mouth high, with a foot rest on each side and a rubber-tipped pad working on a strong spring. The idea is to hop on and bounce along until you fall off. Admittedly this doesn't sound very thrilling, but the kangaroo gyrations said to result from a brief session on the pogo are calculated to surpass any former stunt on stilts.

It is thought that the pogo will become more than a pastime, such as the diabolo that came out of France some 15 years ago. Already pogo races are being staged, with pogo polo teams and pogo hockey teams in the offing. An account of the first official sporting event in connection with the pogo is printed in a London morning paper.

"The first race meeting," runs the report, "of a newly formed pogo club was held on the roof of Selfridge's Stores last night. The program included a 40-yard flat race and a contest for the longest time spent in a five foot square.

"About 50 men, women and children entered for the first event, which was won by a 7-year-old Broadstairs girl. She was given a pogo. In the second event a man maintained his balance within the five-foot square for 5½ minutes and astonished the audience by leaping up six wide stairs."

While the sport is not listed as a particularly hazardous one for the participants, some of the amateur jumpers have received a few bumps.

With every pogo stick sold in France a printed list of instructions is included, urging the necessity of each jumper being measured for his own jumping stick. Pogos that reach above the mouth are often disastrous to the jumper. Furthermore, each pogo is made to support a certain weight which is stamped on the stick.

A pogo apparently should be regarded as personal a possession as a tooth brush.

It is advised not to use the apparatus in skiddy weather. Wet pavements and polished floors are danger zones for the pogo. And when the india rubber pad wears down the wise pogo jumper retires his stick until he gets a new pad.

The Pogo Stick Is a Bouncing Stilt on Which You Hop and Bounce Along Until You Lose Your Balance and Fall Off.

Mechanism of the "Pogo," or Jumping Stick.

BREAD Is BOILED and NOT BAKED

THE oven in a modern bakery is heated to a temperature varying from 450 to 575 degrees—that is from two to nearly three times the heat of boiling water. Yet in spite of this great degree of heat the interior of the loaf is really rather boiled than baked. And even after the baking is completed the new loaf contains from 30 to 40 per cent. of water.

The crisp, brown crust is formed by the heat turning part of the starch, which is a chief component of wheat flour, into a substance called dextrin.

Why is it that wheat flour makes such better bread than any other grain? You can make bread out of the flour of oats, rye, barley and maize, but in all cases the bread, though nourishing, is heavy and dumpy. The reason is this, that these other flours do not hold the gas so well as wheat flour.

The lightness of bread depends entirely upon the amount of gas generated during the rising and the baking, and the gas in yeast bread comes from the fermentation of the yeast, or—in the case of baking-powder bread—from the mixing of water with the powder.

Bread, as known today, is, comparatively speaking, a recent invention, for right up to the end of the eighteenth century, the poorer people ate chiefly unleavened bread. Yeast as used today is quite a modern invention, and baking powder even more so.

Light bread in the old days was obtained only by the use of "leaven," and leaven was made by moistening flour, and leaving it in the open for about a week, when it began to ferment and go sour.

Up in the Northwest, where yeast is difficult to obtain, the miners still make their bread with leaven, in the old-fashioned way, and that is how they obtained their name of "sour-doughs."

Why COOKING UTENSILS Are Made of Aluminum

ALUMINUM seems likely to take the place of all other metals as a material for cooking utensils. Not only are aluminum pots, pans and kettles extremely economical, but all kinds of food can be cooked in them without danger to the health.

In the series of tests of aluminum cooking utensils to see how various foods affect them, Prof. John Glasier, of Glasgow University, has found that the only substances which attack an aluminum surface are oranges, lemons, brussels sprouts and tomatoes. But even in these cases the quantity of aluminum dissolved was so slight that it could have no effect whatever on either the wholesomeness or the flavor of the food.

Aluminum is not affected by air at any temperature, and it does not blacken as silver does. Another of its advantages lies in the ease with which it can be cleaned.

Dishes made of aluminum are the most economical, because the metal is so thin that it heats up very quickly. When gas cookers are used this means a considerable saving, as less heat is lost in warming up the material of the vessel. This is particularly true in the case of boiling water.

Thunderstorms Do Not Cause Milk to Sour

THUNDERSTORMS do not any more cause milk to turn sour than the souring of milk is the cause of thunderstorms. By experiments to find the effect of electricity upon milk scientists have exploded this old housewife belief that a thunderstorm will sour milk.

It is not a thunderstorm that has anything to do with the souring of milk, for scientists have demonstrated that it is certain atmospheric conditions from which electrical storms are developed that cause milk to sour. It may then be said that the rapid souring of milk is an indication in summer that atmospheric conditions are favorable for the development of either local or general thunderstorms; in fact, Scotch peasants regard the sudden souring of milk, not merely as an accomplishment, but as a premonitory sign of a thunderstorm.

According to S. K. Pearson, Jr., a co-operative observer of the United States Weather Bureau, the "fall of the barometer (reduced air pressure) and high temperature and humidity are breeders of thunderstorms, and it is these three combined elements that cause the rapid souring of milk, as well as the rapid spoiling of other organic substances, such as meat or fermentable liquids."

"I believe that the first thorough investigation of this fallacy was carried out in France," adds Mr. Pearson. "Numerous samples of milk were submitted to the influence of air which had been electrified by both spark and brush discharges, and compared with milk exposed to non-electrified air, all other conditions being identical. Similar experiments were made in the lactic ferment itself. In neither case was the development of the ferment hastened by electrical discharges—ozone, nitrate of ammonia, etc. Numerous experiments proved that these gases instead of promoting the acidification of the milk had an antiseptic effect.

"Further scientific experiments of a technical nature were carried on in the laboratory until it was demonstrated that milk subjected to reduced atmospheric pressure produced much more rapid souring, particularly when the reduced pressure was combined with heat and humidity. Milk then placed on ice in a closed ice box would not be entirely immune from the effects of two of these elements, as atmospheric pressure will change in an ice box as well as out of it, and humidity will always be found near the ice."

Anaemia

Thin, watery blood is no more nourishing than thin, watery milk—skim milk.

But you can soon enrich thin blood, overcome the anaemic condition and build up the whole system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. F. G. Simmons, 42 Curtis St., Brantford, Ont., writes:

"For about eight years I suffered from anaemia. My circulation was poor, my gums and lips were pale, and my hands and feet were always cold. I was nervous and unable to sleep well. I had frequent headaches, seemed restless and easily worried or irritated. There was a buzzing sound in my ears. Indigestion was also one of my complaints, and I often was attacked by weak spells. I went to a doctor, who told me I was anaemic, but as I did not get any better I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after the first box I felt brighter and my headaches completely disappeared. I continued using the Nerve Food for quite a while. I am quite well now, and cheerfully and gratefully recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to people suffering as I did before I used this splendid medicine."

LUMBERMAN KILLS COUGAR WITH ROCKS

CAMPBELL RIVER, B. C., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Armed only with rocks, Dave Vanstone, well-known Vancouver lumberman, recently killed a large cougar, infuriated as a result of a rifle wound, at Valdez Island.

Mr. Vanstone was in his rowboat skirting a timber claim when he heard calls from a hunter in the woods. Landing, he found that a settler had fired his last cartridge and that the cougar, wounded, was showing fight and acting in a most ferocious manner.

Mr. Vanstone armed himself with two rocks and was fortunate enough to land hard with one of these on the animal's nose. The cougar was momentarily stunned and Vanstone quickly crushed its skull with a larger rock. The hunter who fired the first shot, however, will collect the bounty. The cougar was eight feet six inches long and easily the largest ever killed in the district.

PETERBORO PEOPLE SHOULD KNOW THIS

Nearly all stomach trouble is caused by retained poisonous waste matter in the system. This is also often the cause of appendicitis. The intestinal antiseptic, Adler-i-ka, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing foul decaying matter which may have been poisoning the stomach for months. It brings out matter you never thought was in your system. Adler-i-ka is EXCELLENT for gas on the stomach and chronic constipation as it removes the CAUSE. Guards against appendicitis. PROGRAMME FOR OBSERVANCE OF ARMISTICE DAY

ROUTE OF PARADE ON MONDAY NEXT—THANKSGIVING SERVICE IN THE ARMOURIES—UNVEILING OF CENOTAPH.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY

The beautiful cenotaph erected by the G.W.V.A. stands completed today and arrangements for unveiling on November 7, and observance of the third anniversary of Armistice Day are being completed.

The program for the day is still a little hazed with uncertainity, but before Saturday all plans will be complete. The day's celebration begins at 9.30 a.m. with a great parade of the Peterboro Rangers, Machine Gun section, 4th Field Battery, Great War Veterans, returned men, militia men of any unit, fraternal organizations and other bodies that may wish to participate. The parade led by a massed band, will march past the cenotaph from the Armories where, it will form up, along Aylmer to McDonnel, McDonnel to George, George to Charlotte, Charlotte to Aylmer, Aylmer to Hunter, Hunter to George and George back to the Armouries.

Commencing at 10.30 a Thanksgiving service will be held in the Armories. The program will be as follows so far as is known yet:

National Anthem.

Hymn—"O God Our Help in Ages Past."

Address by Capt. the Rev James Rollins.

Hymn—"Onward Christian Soldiers."

Hymn—"Nearer My God to Thee."

At 11 a.m. Brigadier-General W. B. King, D.S.O., C.M.G., G.O.C., Military District No. 3 will unveil the cenotaph which will be draped with a Canadian Flag and Union Jack.

The "Last Post" will be sounded by massed buglers as the actual unveiling takes place.

After the ceremony the G.W.V.A. will be thrown open to the general public for the day. It is the earnest hope of the G.W.V.A., whose members have been everywhere interested in a fitting observance of Armistice Day, that all returned soldiers will wear their uniform on that occasion. All militia men and returned soldiers have been given permission to wear uniforms and decorations and poppy may be worn on the headdress or if this is not possible on the jacket. Instructions from Headquarters are that ribbons and decorations are to be worn in the following order, right to left: 1914 Star, 1914-1915 Star, British War medal and Victory medal

In connection with the sacred observance of Armistice Day, led by the G.W.V.A. on Monday, it is interesting to note that exactly five years ago to the day the first returned soldiers organization was formed in Peterboro. In the 57th stores quarters a group of returned soldiers, about 25, met that autumn night in '16 and that humble beginning blossomed into the G.W.V.A. on March 27, 1917 and today the Peterboro branch has over 1000 members. J. Cooper, R. Muir C. Ackerman and others were among those returned men in Peterboro who started the returned soldiers' club, which first met in Victoria Hall, then the Barrie building, and when crystallized in the G.W.V.A. had rooms above Moncur's Drug Store, George street, before the present G.W.V.A. hall, the finest home of any branch in Canada, was reconstructed from the old Baptist Church on Murray street.

THE OLD LAND AND THE NEW

(A. H. McCONNACHIE.)

People who have never travelled would like to know the difference between the two. Children of the pioneers, even to the third and fourth generations, have a great yearning to see the land of their fathers. Some day they hope to visit the Old Sod, but in the meantime they are grateful to any who can make visible, as it were, the most famous isles of the sea.

Same Race.

What is the difference between the Old and the New? It is hard to define. You have the same human nature, the same race, under different conditions of climate and environment. The adjectives suggest the greatest difference perhaps. The home-land is indeed venerable. It has attained to a ripe old age in the family of nations, and is respected as the Mother of Parliaments and free, democratic institutions. It is old, but by no means decrepid. It enjoys a lusty old age. Its eye is undimmed, and its vigor unabated. It is rich in experience and in wisdom.

Garden of the Lord.

If the Old Land moves with measured step, its progress may be all the more lasting. The hand of time has dealt kindly by the Motherland. It seems to have beautified it. It has been laid softly on the uneasy head, and has smoothed the wrinkles from the troubled brow. The hills and valleys of the Homeland seem to enjoy a perpetual spring-cleaning. Other lands seem to have been left in the rough. The Isles of the Sea have been swept and garnished as if the Creator had delighted to leave nothing undone concerning them, even to the last finishing touches!

In Burns' country, with all the record heat of July, the Carrick Hills looked as if the gentle dews never failed to water them. Looking down on the waters of the Atlantic, and outlined against blue skies, they appeared as if painted by the Great Artist. Travelling from England across the border, the country seemed fair as the Garden of the Lord.

Imagine miles and miles of hedgerows enclosing diminutive fields and lining the highways, carrying the bramble and the honeysuckle and the wild rose in their season. Verily, in ye olden times, when people did walk, there was joy in the highways and byways of the Old Land.

Canada's Newness.

Canada is new with all the defects and advantages of newness. It has the rashness of youth. It is almost breathless in its determination to get on. But it is full of vigor, and if it does make mistakes it will also make something better. Wisdom can hardly be borrowed. It comes with experience, and the New Land, like the newly-wed, must gather wisdom as it goes. There is an indefinable something about the newness of Canada. It fascinates, it puts a spell on the receptive mind. It seems to be in the air, in town or country, go where you will. It has a charm that makes all the difference to some. Britain for mellow-age, but Canada has found the Elixer of Life.

Spirit of Youth.

Even the older parts of Ontario is brand new compared with Scotland and England. Its stump fences and its snake fences have the stamp of the primitive, but they belong to modern times. The swamp lands and the bush, in many places, make one wonder if Nature had tried her prentice hand on them before perfecting her work elsewhere! But there the time element is awaiting. Given time, Nature will finish her work. Man will assist in the "clean-up." Five hundred years after this Canada will be more like Britain, but there is no reason why we should wish to hasten the development.

Meantime, we rejoice in the spirit of youth and are ready to dare and to do great things.

Housing Drawback.

Industrial Britain has, in time past, favored the tenement building to provide houses for its workers. In Glasgow and Paisley and Dundee, as well as in English towns and cities, the respectable factory worker must rear his family in a tenement house. No chance for a shack of his own! The land has been too dear, wages too low. So, in the big factory town you will find miles of three or four-storey buildings of monotonous sameness. The common entrance (commonly called "the close," not unfittingly, for it is close) has, at least, one house on either side, a room and kitchen, or two rooms and kitchen. Similarly, on the second, third and fourth flats. From eight to a dozen families will make use of a common entrance. Many a long and "satisfying" gossip takes place in 'the close" or on the stair head between neighbors! They are bunched together for weal or woe! The sanitary, the unsanitary, the evil and the good; and the children must take their chances.

Tenements vary from the slum to the apartment house. In the better parts of Glasgow a house of two rooms and kitchen will have a bathroom attached, but the rental of such is correspondingly high.

Far From Ideal.

One would like to say that the tenement system in the Old Land is doomed. It is certainly far from the ideal—as distant from the "Garden City" as one could well imagine. With all that modern science can do it is hard to make these endless tenements sanitary. It cannot atone for the absence of free air and sunshine. It is unnatural that so many families should be penned up in monotonous buildings, within limited space.

There is a real house-hunger in the Old Land, and many would fain possess a place of their own, but it is well nigh impossible. They must live near the factory, and there land is not to be had for the erection of houses for the common people. The result is that in many an overgrown town you feel "built in," and the very air seems stagnant and unwholesome. It is safe to say that if Britain had to do it over again it would build "Garden Cities" and not barracks.

"Garden Cities."

It is said that "God made the country but man made the town." Man's work is always imperfect, but always improving. They have begun to build "Garden Cities" in Britain, somewhat late in the day! Canada has great advantages compared with the Old Land. A working man, in good standing, may aspire to have a house of his own, and in thousands of cases he attains his ambition.

"It is good to break with certain traditions of the past. It is good to learn wisdom from the mistakes of our fathers. So, we may learn from the Old Land while copying the good. Some will never see the Island of Dreams, for the ocean is still a barrier. Let us be thankful for the things that unite us—our common speech, our fervent love and admiration. Let the Old respect the freedom of the New, and let the New World pay homage to the Old.

OIL LIGHT BEATS ELECTRIC OR GAS

BURNS 94% AIR

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal-oil).

The inventor, F. S. Johnson, 246 Craig street W, Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month. 6 20 3 17

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Change in the rule of the road from left to right on the Lower Mainland and on Vancouver Island will come into effect at 6 a.m. on January 1, 1922, it is officially announced.

The Government, looking to the prevention of accidents, will provide automobile windshield stickers in the form of an arrow, with the words, "Keep to the right." Signs with the same legend for the back of motors will also be provided. New road signs with "Keep to the right" on them will be put up and large banners bearing the same caution will be strung across the principal streets of the cities and towns in the area affected.

Pedestrains will also be looked after. All street cars will carry signs both front and rear for two weeks instructing everyone to keep to the right and permanent white lines will be painted on the downtown streets showing pedestrians the proper crossing places.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

There are 8 GOOD Reasons why YOU should associate yourself with RED ARROW TIRES Ltd.

FIRST: You immediately save money for yourself through the large discounts you receive on your tire purchases.

SECOND: Because RED ARROW TIRES will be a quality product. Cords guaranteed for 10,000 miles and Fabrics for 8,000 miles.

THIRD: It is a good investment as you receive 8% interest on the money you invest.

FOURTH: Through the cash discounts that you receive you get back the entire amount of your investment and yet retain your stock.

FIFTH: The amount required to participate in the benefits offered by this company is within the reach of all persons. This investment is offered on the basis of a saving against owning a car, and under our merchandising plan an automobile owner can invest only $100 for each car that he owns.

SIXTH: It means a large factory for Peterborough, to be operated by a financially responsible company, which will when in full production employ 400 men.

SEVENTH: Because it is a Peterborough company with a Board of Directors controlled by reputable and responsible Peterborough business men, who will handle the funds of the company.

EIGHTH: Because a great number of the most substantial and conservative citizens, business men and merchants of Peterborough have already and are daily putting their stamp of approval on this project by associating themselves with this company.

The first five reasons affect you DIRECTLY. The sixth affects you indirectly as anything good for a city is good for those who live in it and in the surrounding territory. The last two reasons should convince you of the safety and merit of this project.

YOUNG SCREEN ARTIST HAS THREE VER YLOFTY IDEALS

May Beth Carr, the seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mary Carr—famed as Ma Benton in the William Fox picture "Over the Hill," now showin gat the Allen Theatre forthe balance of the week, has three ideals, which she expresses as follows:

"I want to become as good a motion picture actress as my mamma. I want to have as many friends in the world as Ethel Barrymore, and I want to be as sweet and pretty as Pearl White."

Despite her tender years, May Beth has been appearing in motion pictures and in the spoken drama for five years. Her experiences include such attractions as "Polly of the Circus," "The Great Divide," "As You Like It," "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "The Barrier," and "Over the Hill."

"I really believe my mamma is the best motion picture actress in the world," May Beth insists. "I have seen "Over the Nill" several times, and mamma's acting makes me cry every time I see it. How fine it would be if I could grow up to do such things as mamma has done in motion pictures. Then, too, I want to be admired like Ethel Barrymore and be as sweet and pretty as Pearl White. I know that is asking a great deal ,and maybe I won't be able to accomplish it all, but I am going to try. You see, mamma gives all of us (meaning five other young Carrs) daily lessons in acting, so by the time I get to be a young lady, I will have lots of experience."

DOG KNOWS 300 WORDS AND 50 OBJECTS BY NAME.

Sherlock Holmes, the sagacious Dalmatian dog that plays an important part in the prologue of "Over the Hill," the William Fox picture, at the Allen Theatre, is educated to the extent that he knows fifty objects by name and understands 300 words. Sherlock is the property of F. M. Stone, of 252 West Thirty-eighth street, New York City, and before being placed in motion pictures appeared for three seasons in vaudeville.

The owner insists that Sherlock performs his long list of tricks and stunts guided only by mental telepathy. His theory was recently put to a test when the dog appeared before an interested audience at the Fox studios on West Fifty-fifth Street. When asked to give —or bark—the total of any number on a calendar ranging from one to ten, the dog invariably looked at his questioner and then barked the correct number. But when a finger was pointed at a cipher, Sherlock refused to bark.

There were those in the audience who remained skeptical as to the mental telepathy claim, but found themselves at a loss to account for the dog's unerring performance.

Sherlock has many funny scenes in "Over the Hill."

ETHEL CLAYTON DARING DIVER IN "THE PRICE OF POSSESSION"

Famous Paramount Star was a "Stunt Actress Years Ago, so Thrilling Deeds Are Second Nature to Her Now.

The prowess she gained while a "stunt" actress for the movies years ago stood Ethel Clayton, Paramount star, in good stead for the spectacular jump she had to make while filming "The Price of Possession," her latest Paramount feature which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre tonight.

One of the strring scenes in the picture Miss Clayton jumping from the second story of a sea-side castle into the sea. Rockliffe Fellowes, the leading male role in the picture, leaps after Miss Clayton and rescues her from drowning. Both Miss Clayton and Mr. Fellowes are excellent swimmers so Hugh Ford had little trouble in getting realistic effect.

When Miss Clayton first started her picture work she used to do spectacular stunts such as jumping off high cliffs, being washed upon the rocks of rugged shores, rescued from burning buildings and other hair-raising stunats. Persons who do these things for the movies are designated in studio parlance as "stunt" actresses. Although Miss Clayton is now a star, she has not forgotten the days of her more strenuous work for the screen. The supporting company is excellent.

The balance of the program will be of the usual Capitol standard, at popular prices.

FAN—FAN.

AT THE REGENT

"DESPERATE YOUTH" AT THE REGENT.

Universal claims to have discovered more real screen talent and developed more big film stars than all other motion picture producing companies in America. This is said to be screen history, for a majority of the successful luminaries of the silent drama, from Mary Pickford down, had their first oportunity in a Universal Production.

Universal discovered Gladys Walton less than a year ago, and now this youthful actress is one of the most popular stars on the screen. A high school girl in Portland, Oregon, two years ago, an ingenu in film comedies a year ago, Gladys Walton has already appeared in half a dozen Universal productions, each of which has sent her higher in the affections of screen fans throughout the land.

With its unequalled facilities and world wide ramifications, Universal is not content to give the theatregoers only what talent may be available. It is always in quest for new faces, new charms and new personalities and has given the screen the first view of many of its reigning favorites.

After giving Gladys Walton several important parts to make sure that their judgment was correct, the Universal officials decided she was ripe for stellar honors, and presented her in "Pink Tights." The success of this picture is film history. It was one of the distinct hits of last year. Soon after she was seen in "Risky Business," "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," and "All Dolled Up," each of which made a most favorable impression.

Her latest success is "Desperate Youth," a screen version of F. Hopkinson Smith's famous story, "A Kentucky Cinderalla," in which little Miss Walton is seen at the Regent Theatre to-night.

AT THE GRAND.

"THE TITLE."

Arnold Bennett, author of "The Title," in which Richard G. Herndon is presenting Lumsden Hare and an all-English cast, at the Grand to-night, began his professional career as a lawyer. Journalism next claimed his interest, and since 1900 he had devoted himself entirely to writing successful novels and plays, with liberal contributions to the British journals. His plays include "Cupid and Comonsense," written in 1908, and produced the following year; "What the Public Wants," written and produced in 1909; "The Honeymoon," written and produced in 1911, "Milestones," written in collaboration with Edward Knoblock, and produced in 1912; a quartette of short plays, published as "Polite Farces," and popular with little theatre companies, "The Great Adventure," founded on his novel "Buried Alive," and produced in London and New York in 1913, and revived in New York last year; "The Title," written and produced at the Royalty Theatre in London in 1918, and now having its first production in America; "Judith," written and produced in 1919; "Sacred and Profane Love," written and porduced in London in 1919, and in New York in 1920. His novel "Helen, with the High Hand," was also made into a play by R. Price in 1914.

For the second time local theatregoers will have an opportunity of seeing the famous show of The Maple Leafs, the Fourth Division entertainment troup, who have been having a triumphant tour through Canada.

The production which will be given here for two nights and one matinee, commencing Friday night, Nov. 4th, is entitled "Camouflage," and is in all details identical with that which The Maple Leafs gave first behind the lines in France after they had completed their "bit" in the fighting line, and afterwards for two years in England, before they came to Canada. They come to this city fresh from a brilliantly successful tour of fifty weeks through Eastern Canada, having played four weeks at Montreal, two in Toronto, and one week in every other big Canadian city.

ALBERT DE COURVILLE, The Thirty Most Beautiful British Girls.

A special feature of "Hello Canada," and the revues de Courville, coming to Peterboro, will be a party of the thirty most beautiful girls in Great Britain. He has advertised in the press of the whole United Kingdom for the most beautiful English, Scottish, Irish and Welsh girls. They have been offered three times the salaries ordinarily paid to chorus girls to come to Canada and show us typical and perfect specimens of British beauty. The result will have to be seen to be appreciated.

DeCourville has the utmost faith in the future of the theatre in Canada. He believes that from now onwards he can make Canada a second Great Britain, for the acceptation of the best of his work. Hitherto, the American entrepreneur has reaped a rich harvest in the cities of Canada, with comparatively little opposition from the English theatrical manager. Surely the Dominion will warmly welcome the competition of a great London impressario, not only because competition is always good and leads to better work, but also because Great Britain and Canada both learned during the war how little the few thousand miles of water that lie between have been able to dilute the common blood that is the heritage of each of them.

MANY ENTRIES LIKELY FOR 200-MILE DOG DERBY

THE PAS, Man., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Cold weather once again revives The Pas 200-mile dog derby as a topic of conversation in this northern country and prospects look for a record list of entries. While still many months away, February 28, 1922, being the date on which it will be run, enquiries have been received from many would-be entrants, and the line-up of eleven crack teams is practically assured, but many more contestants may yet be heard from.

Many of this year's drivers, including Goyne, Dunas, Billy Winterton, Morgan, Brancroft, Larry McKay, Sam Pranteau and Jack Hayes, have again entered. A new entrant will be Billy Rusick, of Lake Athapapuskow, but very little is known of his ability or of his team. Stuv. Bjorkman, of Gladstone, who enters annually but never shows up, is another likely entrant.

An invitation has been sent to the Nome Kennel Club by the Derby Committee to send teams and the Fairbanks racing drivers have also announced their intention of sending a representative.

SELENE JOHNSON in Arnold Bennett's satirical comedy, "The Title," which comes to the Grand on Thursday evening, November 3rd.

Are the Hearts of Peterboro People Like the Hearts in New York and Toronto?

AT a time when the New York Rialto was surfeited with a host of glittering attractions, a production was brought to Broadway, utterly unlike any of its contemporaries. It was a motion picture—but contained not one of the regularly accepted elements that have gone to make the big screen successes of the past. High salaried star? There was no star—designated as such. Sex lure? There was not the slightest trace. Gigantic sets? Not one. Vast armies of auxiliaries? There was no ensemble scene larger than a small crowd in a village street. Intense dramatic action? There was nothing more exciting than a quarrel between two brothers.

And yet—

The picture remained on Broadway for an entire year, and drew such crowds that in several instances its patronage constituted a real traffic problem. What then is the reason that a motion picture, builded along such unconventional lines, can create such a furore among the play-hardened skeptics of the world's greatest theatrical mart?

The answer lies in the fact that here in this strange picture was something that stole down into people's hearts and uplifted them as no theatrical presentation had ever done before.

It swept them off their feet in a surge of emotion one moment and left them weak with laughter on the next.

The picture which is called "Over the Hill," is now playing at the Allen for a limited engagement, and will offer a unique psychological comparison between the people of Peterborough and the people of Toronto and New York. Will Peterborough like "Over the Hill" as New York and Toronto did? You are invited to join in the test.

APPROVE OF THIS CITY'S ACTION IN SECURING SMAILL

PETERBORO'S EFFORTS TO PUT SPORT ON A HIGHER PLANE IS SUBJECT OF COMMENT.

Random notes on current sport, by W. A. Hewitt, in The Toronto Star, gives the following:

The Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association has wisely followed in the lead of the Galt A.A.A. and secured a permanent all-the-year-round director of athletics in the person of Walter Smaill, who in his younger days was one of the greatest hockeyists in the country. The success achieved by Percy LeSueur at Galt has been an object-lesson for other towns and cities in Ontario. Peterborough has started right, and under Mr. Smaill's care amateur athletics in the Electric City should make great strides.

URIC ACID IN MEAT BRINGS RHEUMATISM

Says a little Salts in water may save you from dread attack.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

DRINK SEVEN GLASSES OF WATER EVERY DAY

Say Nutrition Workers, Urging Particularly That Children Be Taught to Do So.

DETROIT, Nov. 2.—"Seven gallons of water outside, and seven glasses inside every day." This slogan is being urged by home demonstrators of the Ohio State University who are co-operating with schools in various counties on health and nutrition instruction.

Modern dietetic studies show that youngsters ought to drink at least four glasses of water a day, and seven glasses is not too much. The water should preferably be taken between meals.

"America is a water-drinking country," the home economics workers believe, "but without parental guidance, the child may fail to acquire this healthful and pleasurable habit."

AMERICAN LEGION RECOGNIZES THE PART OF CANADA

"CANADA" PASSWORD TO FOREFRONT AT KANSAS CITY CONVENTION.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—The part played by Canada in the Great War is being duly recognized at the American Legion convention at Kansas City, according to messages received here from the Canadian delegates, R. B. Maxwell and Rev. C. E. Jenkins, of the Great War Veterans.

Mr. Maxwell says that Canada is the password to the forefront in every function and that Canada's delegates were accorded a place beside Lord Beatty and Marshal Foch at the dedication of the Liberty Memorial. He adds that Marshal Foch is seasoning a Missouri merchaum or corn cob.

THE ENTRY LIST CLOSES TONIGHT

Some runners who are wanted in the Thanksgiving Day road race seem to entertain the misapprehension that entries may be put in at any time. They have had no reason to believe this, for ample warning has been given them, and this is merely intended as another last-minute notice. Entries close to-night at 10 o'clock. They must be made on the regular printed blank which has been daily run in the Examiner. Verbal entries are useless. Someone will be at the Y.M.C.A. till 10 o'clock to-night to accept entries. If harriers are not duly entered by then they will have no chance of competing in the big races.

R. M. C. INTERMEDIATES DEFEAT McGILL SECOND

KINGSTON, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Royal Military College intermediates defeated McGill second here yesterday by the score of 14 to 7 winning the round by 28 points. R. M. C. will now meet Varsity second for the intermediate intercollegiate championship. The score at the end of the first quarter was one to nothing for McGill, second quarter six to one for R.M.C., third quarter 13 to 7 for R. M. C. Hamilton made a sensational field run for the cadets while MacLean scored two field goals for McGill, one of which was a forty yard drop kick.

McGILL IS LEARNING AMERICAN FOOTBALL

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press). — McGill rugby players will go into the game against the Syracuse eleven at the stadium on Saturday with only one week's training under the American rules. Yesterday afternoon three coaches worked on the players in an effort to whip them into a knowledge of the play as used by the University teams on the other side of the line. "Tim' Callahan, captain and centre of the Yale squad last season, took charge of the linesmen on his first appearance as a coach with the McGill and undoubtedly taught the plungers many tricks which are decidedly new to the Canadian players Eddie Brown, who has been assisting Coach Shaughnessy during the week, confined his attentions to the ends, while Shaughnessy supervised the work-out generally.

EMPIRE VOICE NOT BRITAIN'S ALONE, HE SAYS

SIR ROBERT BORDEN LAUDS DOMINION SELF-GOVERNMENT IN ADDRESS IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Refuting the contentions of those who maintain that the attainment by Dominions of the status and influence of self-governing nations tends toward disintragration of the British Empire, Sir Robert Borden, Canadian delegate to the Washington conference, at a luncheon in his honor at the Lawyers' Club today, declared that, on the contrary, this development assured the integrity and security of the British Commonwealth. "The voice of that Commonwealth in world affairs must not be the voice of the United Kingdom alone, but the voice of all British self-governing nations," he stated.

Dealing briefly with the approaching conference, Sir Robert said it was the same high ideal which had prompted the organization of the League of Nations which had inspired the United States President to convene the meeting of the nations in Washington.

"His action had been welcomed throughout the world," he said, "and the nations join their prayers for the fulfilment of his endeavor."

After outlining the development of democratic government in Britain and Canada's growth from a Crown colony to the status of nationhood, Sir Robert pointed out that the system of governance which united the self-governing nations of the British Commonwealth was not made but had grown naturally. When the Canadian Federal system was created, no attempt was made to define relations between the new Dominion and the Mother Country. They were left to develop in accordance with the increasing growth and influence of the Dominion.

"Legally and theoretically, the Crown's veto is still existent; constitutionally, it is dead," said Sir Robert. "Legally and theoretically, the Parliament of the United Kingdom has power to legislate in respect to Canadian affairs. Constitutionally and practically it is absolutely devoid of any such right, and would not venture to attempt the exercise of any such power."

TO PUSH VIGOROUSLY GOVERNMENT SAVINGS OFFICES SCHEME NOW

TORONTO, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press).—"We intend to push vigorously our policy of establishing Government savings offices," said Hon. Peter Smith, Provincial Treasurer, to-day. "We have everything almost ready, although the offices are not definitely located. Branches will be established at Guelph, Ingersoll, St. Thomas, London and Stratford, besides Toronto." The Province will finance the farm loan scheme itself.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Stocks were active and strong at the opening of to-day's session, considerable short covering being induced by the lower discounts announced yesterday by eight of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks and through the Bank of England rate. Rails, Steels and Equipments made more moderate gains. The only unfavorable feature of the early session was the new low record for German marks at .48.

Call loans rose to their early rate of five per cent. at midday, but the market retained most of its advance. Mexican Petroleum showed a four point gain, and Mail Order and Chain Store issues were in demand, especially Sears Roebuck, May Department Stores, Woolworth and Kresge, at gains of 1 to 3 3-4 points.

Trading broadened during the morning, speculative dealings centering in industrials and specialties. All Foreign and Domestic Oils Union excepted, extended their gains. Motors, equipments, coppers and tobaccos and leathers also rose one to two points. The bond market was strong, Liberty and, 3rd 4th, 4 1-4's and Victory 4 3-4's making a new high record for the year. Lower discount rates contributed to the easier local money market. Call loans opened at five per cent. but soon declined to 4 1-2.

EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling Exchange irregular, demand Great Britain 3.93 1-4; Canadian Dollars 7 7-8 per cent. discount.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Receipts 187; trade steady. Butcher steers, $5.75 to $6.25; butcher cows, medium, $3 to $4; calves, $11 to $12; lambs, $8.25 to $8.75; hogs, selects, $9.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Lowering of discount rates by the Bank of England following corresponding action by the Federal Reserve Banks in the United States, is attributed by brokers as the cause of the firming up of the bond market to-day, it being particularly noticeable in Victory Bonds on the Toronto Exchange. The 1933's moved up to 98.10. 34's to 95.15 and 24's at 97.35. The general list was strong with Brazilian and Consolidated Smelters dominating. Brazilian closed at 26. Activity in Smelters was said to be due to buying orders from Western Canada.

MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—National Breweries was the feature of early trading on the local Stock Exchange this morning. This issue, after closing at 55 7-8 yesterday afternoon, opened at 57 this morning and then strengthened another point to 58. A very large number of shares changed hands. Brazilian was also strong and advanced a point to 25 3-4. Brompton remained unchanged at 25 3-4. Atlantic Sugar was fractionally stronger at 33.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.— (Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations which varied from unchanged figures to 3-4c higher with December 1.02 1-4 to 1.02 3-4 and May 1.07 to 1.07 1-2, were followed by down turns all around to below yesterday's finish.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. Corn opened 1-8 to 1-2 higher, December 46 3-4 to 46 7-8, and then underwent a moderate decline. Oats started 1-8 to 1-4 to 38 up, December 36 1-2 to 36 5-8 but the gains afterwards weremore than wiped out.

ELECTION NEWS

CRERAR DENIES SECRET ALLIANCE.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Speaking here last night, Hon. Mr. Crerar referred to newspaper reports of an alleged secret understanding between himself and the Liberal leader. "A telegram is quoted from a gentleman in Manitoba," he said. "You can read that telegram, but how any person can find in it evidence of a secret understanding is more than passes my comprehension. What are the actual facts? I have personal experience of that understanding in that a Liberal is running against me in my own constituency."

WINNERS IN THE WEIGHT CONTEST

IMMENSE SQUASH TIPPED SCALES AT OVER HUNDRED PRUNDS

The winners have been declared in the weight guessing contest at the Peterborough Co-operative Store. R. R. Dixon, R. Rte. No. 8, Peterborough guessed that the mammoth squash weighed 100 pounds, and was closest to its actual weight of 100 pounds 4 ounces, as weighed by Mayor A. A. McIntyre.

Mr. Dixon wins a 100lb. bag of Reindeer flour donated by the Peterborough Cereal Company.

Albert Mills, R. R. No. 2, Peterborough, and Mrs. W. E. Wood, R. R. No. 1, Indian River, shared second honours, both guessing 101 pounds. Each were awarded one pound of fine tea donated by the store.

The contest was open from Thursday last to last night.

One guess was given with each $2.50 purchase. Some guessed the weight of the hugh squash at 300 pounds, others not venturing more than 10 pounds. Considerable interest was manifested in this contest.

The child or person who is too forward doesn't get ahead very rapidly in the estimation of those about him.

IN MEMORIAM.

MAGEE.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Francis John (Jack) Magee, who died Nov. 3rd, 1919, age 12 years, son of Frank and Ellen Magee, of Toronto, formerly of Albert Street, City.

There was an angel band in Heaven
That was not quite complete,
So God called our darling Jack
To fill the vacant seat.

No stain was on his little heart,
Sin had not entered there,
And innocence slept sweetly on
His pale, white brow so fair.

We cannot clasp your hand, dear Jack,
Your face we cannot see,
But let this little token show
We still remember thee.

—Ever remembered by his loving Mother, Father and Brother Willie.

Society

A very successful Hallowe'en party was held in St. John's Parish Hall last evening by the combined Anglican Young People's Associations of the district. Nearly 200 people were in attendance, and spent a very jolly evening. A sumptuous dinner was served to the merrymakers—all of whom were in costume and masked—in the hall, which was beautifully decorated with Hallowe'en favours in orange and black. Dr. Blagrave made a short address of welcome, and during the banquet, song-sheets were distributed, with Kenneth Brown at the piano. After supper, games, marches, and dancing were indulged in, and Mr. C. Coleman rendered two enjoyable comic songs. Dr. and Mrs. Blagrave acted as the judges for the costumes, with representatives of the A.Y.P.A. from Lakefield and Millbrook, and the awards were presented by Rev. R. B. Grobb. The prizes went to Miss Maisie Stone as the best fancy dress, a representation of the costume of the Stone Age; to Miss Kathleen Cuffe in the best comic costume, as Sis Hopkins; to Mr. R. F. Moore as Pierrot; and to Teddy Bourne as "a perfect lady."

Those who were instrumental in making the affair such a success were Miss Jean Horsfield, president of St. John's A.Y.P.A., Mrs. Harold Devey, Mrs. L. Spriggs, and Messrs. Bert Graham and Arthur Horsfield. Some of the more striking costumes noticed were Gladys Watson as a jockey, Nellie Austin as pierrotte, I. Connelly as Bo-Peep, E. G. Brown as an Irishman, Marjorie Evans as a colonial lady, Thomas Holyman as a clown, Helen Bell as an early Victorian lady, William King as George Washington, Austin Nixon as Litte Jack Horner, Dorothy Tyrer as a Japanese girl, Ethel Cooper as an Italian girl, and Laura Clarke as a gipsy.

The jam and linen shower held at the Peterborough Protestant Home yesterday afternoon was a complete success. A large number of people attended, and the returns were most successful. Nearly fifty quarts of preserves, jams, and pickles, and a quantity of linen, including sheets, pillow-cases, towels, even a basket of apples, and a number of useful remnants, were realised. The Board of Managers and the superintendent are most thankful to all who contributed in this way. Tea was served to the visitors, with Mrs. James Ellis in charge of the table, assisted by Mrs. W. Roger, Mrs. R. Neill, Mrs. D. Walker, Mrs. E. Harvey, Mrs. Robert Hall, and Miss Sara Robinson. Among those noticed were: Mrs. R. Waddell, Mrs. J. Walsh, Mrs. E. F. Mason, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Adrian Macdonald, Mrs. Barclay, Mrs. C. S. Thomoson, Mrs. F. R. Armstrong, Mrs. H. Foote, Mrs. F. E. Malott, Mrs. T. Barrie, Mr. and Mrs Aylmer, the Hon. Mrs. Aylmer from Lennoxville, Mrs. C. S. Suckling, Mrs. Adam Hall, Mrs. Stenson, Mrs. Hodgens, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, Mrs. W. J. Green, Mrs. F. Ellis, Miss Katherine E. Wallis, Misses Archer, Hugel, Walton, Langford, and Laidlaw.

The Right Hon. Arthur Meighen and Mrs. Meighen were entertained last evening after the meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Denne.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brambridge, of Toronto, are visiting at the home of Dr. W. T. Rogers, 520 Weller street.

WEDDING BELLS

KEMP--HEAD.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at 11.15 this morning at All Saints' Church, when Florence Helen daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Head, of Bethune street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Jack H. Kemp, of Peterboro. Rev. Mr. Grobb performed the ceremony.

The bride was charmingly costumed in a stylish suit of brown broadcloth, with beaver collar, and large hat, and carried ophelia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Hazel Maude wore a suit of navy tricotine, with henna hat, and carried premier roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Walter Head. Mrs. W. A. Logan played the wedding march.

The young couple left on the noon train via the C.P.R. for Montreal and Boston. They will reside in Peterboro.

"A rolling stone gathers no moss," but the people of today prefers the "rolls" to the "moss."

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Francis John (Jack) Magee, who died Nov. 3rd, 1919, aged 12 years, son of Frank and Ellen Magee, of Toronto:

No one heard the footsteps
Of the angels drawing nigh
Who took from us to heaven
The one we loved so dear.
The golden gates were opened,
A gentle voice said come,
And with farewells unspoken
He calmly entered home.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
A world can never fill.

FLAMES SWEEP PIERS; DAMAGE IS $3,000,000

FIVE PIERS, TWO OIL-LADEN TRAINS AND 30 BARGES DESTROYED ON WEEHAWKEN WATER FRONT, NEW YORK.

EMBERS RAIN DOWN ON THE THEATRICAL DISTRICT

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, No. 4.—Fire swept the Weehawken water front for half a mile early today, destroying five piers of the Erie Railroad, two oil-laden trains, a huge warehouse and thirty barges before it was finally under control. The damage was estimated at $3,000,000.

Embers from the terrific blaze rained down upon New York's theatre and cabaret district, while crews of vessels up and down the river were called to fire posts because of blazing fragments blown across the river.

Fanned by a high wind, great columns of smoke and billowing flames from the burning piers and oil trains on the Weehawken River front made the blaze the most spectacular witnessed from Manhattan since the Black Tom disaster.

The fire was discovered in Pier D, whence it spread rapidly despite the efforts of a large fire fighting force to neighboring piers and barges, while a Standard Oil train was quickly consumed, its tanks bursting, sending towering pillars of flame high into the air.

INTERESTING TRIP INTO HALIBURTON

S. D. CARVER SAYS THIS HIGHLAND OF ONTARIO IS THE COMING SUMMER RESORT—NATURE UNSPOILED HERE.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Carver have returned from a pleasant holiday in the highlands of Haliburton County, the Koo-Shog Lake district, where many summer cottages have been built and also a beautiful new summer hotel in Haliburton village, called the Royal Koo-Shog. That section of Ontario, Mr. Carver believes, is the coming resort. It is still unspoiled by man, and has attractions which the older settled districts have lost long ago. One of the most interesting things seen by Mr. and Mrs. Carver was a beaver farm owned by W. J. MacKnight and A. Lochlin. It is situated on the Burnt River, where there is also a beaver meadow of 1,000 acres. Mr. Carver brought home a block of a tree cut by a beaver while he was there, also the skull of a fifty-pound beaver.

These mementoes of his trip are on display in Dr. Lacey's window. The beavers are now just storing their winter supply of food, which indicates, according to Mr. Carver, an open fall.

GUN FIRES WHEN LEANED AGAINST WALL; MAN SHOT

LINDSAY, Nov. 4.— (Canadian Press.)—Peter Weaver, Coboconk was badly injured by his own rifle last night when, leaning the loaded gun against the verandah of a house, it fired and the contents lodged in his abdomen. He was rushed to a Lindsay hospital by motor, and his recovery is doubtful.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(Canadan Press.)— Broad and active dealings in bonds and stocks were resumed at the opening of to-day's session on the stock exchange. Victory 4 3-4's notes repeated yesterday's record price of par on sales of two large individual lots and Victory 3 3-4's at 99 3-4 established a new high price for the year.

Oils were the strongest of the stock list. Baldwin, Chandler, Studebaker, Endicott Johnson and Sears Roebuck averaged one point gains. Among the rails Delaware and Hudson, Northern Pacific and Union Pacific were firm to strong. German Marks established a new low record here, falling to .43 cents on further pressure from London.

Bonds continued to establish a firm foundation for the general market during the morning. Liberty 2nd, 3rd and 4th 4¼'s scored new high prices for the year. Trading in stocks was largely speculative, embracing numerous obscure specialties, while Rails and many standard industrials were neglected. Among the more striking gains in the miscellaneous group were Associated Dry Goods, First and Second Preferred, which rose four and six points respectively. American Car, Pullman, Pierce Arrow Preferred, U. S. Rubber, Kelly, Springfield, Famous Players and International Paper were moderately higher. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

Trading in stocks became more uncertain at midday, in marked contract to the further rise of bonds, including European issues. Western Union, Corn Products, May Department Stores and Allied Chemical were strong, but Standard Oil of New Jersey, United Drug and National Cloak and Suit Preferred were reactionary.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange irregular; demand, Great Britain, 3.93 7-8; Canadian dollars, 7 7-8 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4. — (Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 1¼c lower, with December at 99¼ to 99, were followed by a rise all around to above yeterday's finish.

Corn and oats developed independent firmness. Corn opened unchanged to ¼c higher, May 50 3-4 to 50 7-8, and after a slight sag, made a moderate general ascent. Oats started 1-8c off to a like advance. May 35 5-8 to 35 3-4, and then eased a little, but soon hardened with corn.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, November 4 — Very little trading occurred on the local stock exchange during the first half hour this morning. Atlantic Sugar was down a point at 31 3-4; Brompton was up a quarter at 26 1-2; Laurentide was unchanged at 80. National Breweries strengthened a half to 58 1-4.

TORONTO

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Trading was much lighter on the Toronto Stock Exchange this forenoon with no important changes in prices. Smelters showed some activity with the price around 19 1-2. Victory Bonds held yesterday's gains, trading being for most part centered in the 1934 issue in which there was a turnover of 146,000 par value, with the high at 95.20 a shade above yesterday.

DEER HUNTING SEASON OPENS AT NEXT DAWN

MANY PARTIES IN WOODS ALREADY AWAITING BREAK OF DAY TO-MORROW TO UNLEASH THEIR DOGS.

OLD HUNTERS EXPECT POTTING TO BE GOOD

The deer hunting season opens to-morrow morning and the Peterboro hunters are now in the woods anxiously waiting for the first break of day tomorrow when the dogs can be unleashed and the grand old hunt inaugurated.

Old hunters say it should be a trifle colder and with a good stiff frost, even if there is no snow, the potting should be good.

A good many parties went into camp yesterday but some were not going till today. The automobile has revolutionized hunting. The hunters can go far into the scrub county in a few hours now while in the pre-automobile era it took two days in a waggon and it was rought travelling too.

Ketchecum Club

The Ketcecum Hunt Club are ready for the season and the following members are registered at the lodge: Robert Stuart and J. H. Andrews of Chicago,, W. G. Morrow, Harold Morrow, E. F .Mason, Dr. A. W. McPherson W. C. Ackerman, W. G. Thompson, M. Comstock, Fred McKibbon, W. H. Hill and R. Dobie.

The Eagle Lake Club headed for the woods yesterday. Charles Gunsolus is captain Others in the party are: Harry Evans, Walter Evans and Gordon Evans, Alec. Johnston Gus Sawers, W. H. Henry, R. G. Soden, T. O. Donaldson, W White C. Westlake, Clinton Coones, Mr. Carruthers.

Up on Stoney Creek the Stoney Creek Club are cleaning their guns and watching the dogs. Fred Jopling is chief factotum as of yore. Harry Jopling, Fred Dobson, Charles Forsythe and R. S. McManus complete the party which is being guided by Bert Mann. James Jopling, Clayton Telford and John McNamara are going up on Monday.

Licenses Issued.

Nearly two hundred hunting and trapping licenses have been issued by C. G. Graham, manager of the Empress Hotel, to date, and hunters were pouring in to get licenses at such a rate to-day that this number will be greatly swelled.

The G.T.R. have been carrying more hunters northward this year than ever before, the reporter was told at the station to-day. A canoe, six dogs, and 26 pieces of baggage made up the auspicious equipment and armament of a party from Hastings that passed through this morning, en route to Tory Hill, on the I. B. and O. A great many parties have gone through; five canoes have been handled, and innumerable hounds, during the last week. The Examiner was told. Several parties went through ten days ago, en route to Sudbury and the country north of the French and Mattawa Rivers, where the season opened on October 25. Very few Peterborough hunters have been seen going north on the train, it was stated.

Costs Lower.

Hunting costs less this year than last in every way. Food is down, clothing cheaper, and rifles and ammunition are reduced. At one of the leading hardware stores to-day it was learned that rifles and shot guns are down generally about 20 per cent. Reductions in ammunition amount to 10 per cent. because of the lifting of the luxury tax, otherwise the manufacturers have made no reduction. The .303 cartridges, used considerably, are selling at $2.25 a box of 20. Shot gun shells are reduced 25 cents on a box of 25, which costs now from $1.50 to $1.75.

Classing all the other hunting paraphernalia, such as knives, water bottles, etc., together, it was said that on these, prices were from 10 to 15 per cent. below last year's level.

Deer Sighted.

Jack Fitzgerald's Bottle Lake Club are snugly located and have already seen signs of deer, according to the latest word from the deer country. They anticipate some fine shooting to-morrow. Those at the camp now are: J. E. A. Fitzgerald, George Boucher, Gus. Corcoran, George Hall, Ray Best, Jack Bertram, Ald. J. J. Turner, Albert Copoway (guide), Dan. Lean (cook), E. S. Martin, manager of the Bank of Montreal, expects to join the party to-morrow.

RECEPTION TO GRAND MASTER

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 4.— Grand Master Col. W. N. Ponton was last night tendered a reception by his mother lodge, the Belleville Lodge No. 123, A. F. and A. M. Prominent Masons from all parts of the district were present.

ROMANCE, MYSTERY, HUMOR, FIGURE IN BULL DOG DRUMMOND

Hugh Drummond, just back from the Front, was "fed up" on the monotonies of a peace-time existence He advertised for adventure, and received some fifty answers. The one he chose seemed to him to include all the ideal points for a joyous adventure—some danger and much humour, romance and mystery. It was from a girl who said she "was up against it."

As they met at the Carlton and as Hugh watched her pour out his tea, as, with her beautiful troubled eyes upon him, the girl told him of the peril of her father in the clutches of an unscrupulous band of arch-crooks he felt sure that ROMANCE was going to play a large part in the program, and swore that she should never complain of him as a "quitter."

Before twenty-four hours had passed, however, "Bull Dog Drummond" found himself involved in an enterprise which taxed his courage and wit to the utmost.

Read how he defeated the deep-laid plots of the master villains and in so doing realized his visions of Romance (with a capital "R") by winning a golden-haired sweetheart, in the story of "Bull Dog Drummond" by Cyril ("Sapper") McNeile, which contains interesting and thrilling situations n every chapter, and will be commenced in The Examiner to-morrow.

1,000 BRITISH FAMILIES COMING OUT TO B. C.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—One thousand families will come to British Columbia from the British Isles to settle in the Stuart Lake country as a result of the action just taken by a committee of the British House of Commons on the proposal made by Hon. T. D. Pattullo.

ARMS PARLEYS ARE ENDORSED BY RESOLUTION

MOTION BY BRITISH LABOR MEMBERS PRAYS SUPREME EFFORT WILL BE MADE TO REACH AGREEMENT.

SAY U. S. DOING WHAT LEAGUE FAILED TO DO

LONDON, Nov. 4.— (Canadian Press.)—A Resolution approving the Washington Conference and praying that a supreme eort will be made to reach such an agreement as will secure substantial and progressive reduction of the crushing burden of armaments were introduced in the Commons to-day by the Labor members, Henderson, Clynes, Walsh Thomas and Shaw.

Robert Clynes said the world is indebted to President Harding for calling the conference. The League of Nations was incomplete for its purpose he thought and he regarded the United States, in relation to the conference, as having taken a step to carry out mainly the principles and objects that ought to be obtained by the League.

The resolution was adopted unanimously.

LADY LAURIER IS LAID TO REST BY SIDE OF HUSBAND

FUNERAL AN IMPRESEIVE MANIFESTATION OF PUBLIC REGARD

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Side by side with her late husband in a sneltered knoll in Notre Dame Cemetery, Lady Laurier was laid to rest this morning. The funeral was an impressive manifestation of public regard for a charming personalty. Thousands of people, including some of the most distinguished men of the country, paid tribute to the noble woman. The Governor-General was represented by Major Willis O'Connor, the Government by Sir James Lougheed, the Government of Quebec by Premier Taschereau the Liberal Party by Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Sir Lomer Gouin and a score of Senators and Members.

RUSSIA NOT BOUND BY ARMAMENT DECISIONS.

MOSCOW, Nov. 4 — (Canadian Press). — Foreign Minister Chitcherin to-day sent a note to the Entente and the United States that Russia would not be bound by the decisions of the Washington conference.

KEI HARA,

Premier of Japan, who was assassinated at a railroad station in Tokio to-day by stabbing. His death comes at a dramatic moment, when the Japanese delegation is assembling for the Washington conference on limitation of armaments, and when Japan is so intensely interested in international matters in which he took a large part.

STILL MANY CASES OF DIPHTHERIA AND FEVER

BUT EPIDEMIC IN PETERBOROUGH IS UNDER CONTROL

There are still a great many cases of diphtheria and scarlet fever in the city and the Isolation Hospital is comfortably filled, but the epidemic is under control, Dr T. W. H. Young, M. O. H. said to-day.

The carriers among the children have been "spotted", to use a police term, and some in the hospital, others in homes ,quarantined from the outside world, will not have a chance to spread the disease. Out of 1000 school children 50 carriers have been found. In cases where there are large families the children have been sent to the hospital and treated, otherwise home treatment has been efficacious. The house is put under quarantine, but members excepting the carrier have unhampered access. The quarantine is lifted as soon as the tests show the child is not carrying the disease germs.

If the damp weather gives the disease another lease of life, Dr. Young says the health authorities are ready to cope with the situation. Citizens will be glad to learn there are still a few empty cots at the Isolation Hospital.

COURT DECIDES GRAIN ENQUIRY IS LEGAL BODY

APPEAL OF ROYAL COMMISSION AGAINST INJUNCTION RESTRAINING PROBE OF GRAIN TRADE IS UPHELD.

ENTITLED TO PROCEED WITH ITS INVESTIGATION

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—The Manitoba Court of Appeal has decided that the Royal Grain Enquiry Commission is a legally constituted body and is entitled to proceed with the investigation of the Canadian grain business. The decision dissolves the injunction which restrained the Commission from proceeding with the investigation.

MONTREAL Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—It is altogether likely that the grain investigation which was halted by an injunction on application of the grain companies will be proceeded with immediately now that the Manitoba Court of Appeal has decided that the commission is a legally constituted body.

Premier Meighen was asked today whether the investigation would phoceed immediately and intimated that this question was one for the commission to decide. He preferred not to be quoted in the matter. He has stated from the platform on different occasions, however, that the investigation up to the time it was shut off had produced enough evidence to assure him that it must proceed and that the whole grain business must be sifted to the bottim. It is understood that the Premier is favorable to having the investigation carried on without further delay.

FIVE HUNDRED HAVE PAID POLL TAX HERE

SOME 200 DELINQUENTS MUST SETTLE BY SATURDAY NIGHT

City Tax Collector W. J. Green has sent out the pink bills notifying those persons, considered fortunate by other tax-burdened brethren because they only have to contribute $5 a year to the city's revenue, that the time for payment of poll taxes is past and if they are not paid within two days. Police Court action will follow.

These notices have had a salutory effect. There are 710 men assessed for poll tax. About five hundred have paid, on the first notice the Tax Collector's figures showing that to date $2,500 in round numbers has been netted by poll tax

Those who are exempt are volunteers and persons paying other taxes. Volunteers must present a certified statement from the Commanding Officer of the regiment that they are actively in the Militia. The Tax Collector will be in his office at 8 p.m. Saturday night to receive taxes that cannot be paid during the day because of employment in factories or shops. After Monday if all the taxes are not in prosecutions are threatened.

ELECTION NEWS

KING REITERATES HIS "AUTOCRACY" CHARGES.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—At a meeting here last night Hon. Mackenzie King was introduced to the audience by the chairman, ex-Mayor Horton, as the next Prime Minister of Canada after December 6. Alluding to his returning to Ottawa in order to attend the funeral of Lady Laurier, Mr. King said he regarded as a tribute to her memory, the attendance of the audience at such an early hour.

It was 10 years, said Mr. King, since the electors had had the chance to listen to a discussion of public affairs. The working man, the returned soldier, not to speak of the women voters, had a right to hear matters of interest to them thoroughly threshed out.

The real issue to-day, despite the assertions of Mr. Meighen, was whether the people of Canada were going to endorse autocracy or whether they would demand the right of self-government. Mr. King accused the Government of a cynical disregard for the people's right to be consulted in matters of large public expenditure. Particulars in regard to the Grand Trunk Railway negotiations, instead of being explained in the House of Commons of Canada, had had to be learned by cable from England.

Asked on the floor of the House as to whether the directors of the Canadian National Railways were also directors of the concerns, Mr. Meighen had declined to give any information. Mr. King said it had been found that the Canadian National directors were directors of companies.

A Government which has such loose ideas as to the way in which public money shall be spent in Canada has a right to the confidence of the people. "The Government to-day was being carried on by a little group of political autocrats, combined with industrial plutocrats, for their own ends," asserted Mr. King. "If you endorse that sort of thing you can't complain if your taxes increase."

Mr. King once again warned his audience against the danger of splitting into different parties; the forces of freedom once united could defeat the common enemy. There was more than a political conflict in progress, he asserted. "We are seeking the dawn of a new and better day for our country."

As Mr. King left the hall the audience arose and gave him a spontaneous ovation of God-speed to Ottawa.

Judge Colter treated in humorous style the attitude of the Conservatives toward the tariff. "You might almost see the tears running down Sir George Foster's cheeks," he said, "when a revision downwards was suggested." That unclean hands should be laid upon the sacred tariff inspired him with veritable horror, yet said Judge Colter, "The Fielding tariff had introduced a period of unprecedented prosperity." The population in Canada from 1901 to 1911 had increased as much as in the 30 previous years.

QUEBEC FARMERS NOMINATE LANDON

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—George Landon, a young farmer of Chichester, was nominated as standard bearer of the Quebec Farmers' party for Pontiac county by a convention here yesterday. Wm. Hodgins, Mayor of Shawville and former member in the Provincial legislature, declined nomination.

MR. G. N. GORDON REPLIES

Mr. G. N. Gordon replying to some matters referred to at the meeting of the Right Hon. Mr. Meighen, said that he stood for a Custom Tariff equitable and sufficient to protect all classes in the community, including the workingman, manufacturer and consumer. He said that a Custom's Tariff was absolutely necessary in order to raise a revenue for the purpose of meeting pensions and other war debts, and this Country for generations could never be free from a fairly high Custom's Tariff because of the necessity to raise money to meet nearly three billion dollars of indebtedness.

Mr. Gordon said that he was pledged to no platform except the proise he had made to the electors of West Peterborough that he intended to stand by a properly balanced and equalized Tariff to make it as light as possible on foods and such necessities as the workingman daily required.

The ex-member said that a Convention would be placed in the field and some of these statements that have been made so freely will be corrected during a series of meetings for the Liberal candidate. Mr. Gordon said, as far as he was concerned, he had been on the factory hunt for years for this city, and the people knew that he was absolutely sound, as far as any Tariff matters went in regard to Peterborough's industries, but there had ben a revision of the Tariff, which the Prime Minister had promised, for ten years and the time had come for a proper adjustment of the Tariff.

Mr. Gordon intimated that he would deal with some of the statements of local speakers and call them to account for making these statements Wednesday night which had no foundation in fact.

Yes, prosperity is just going around the corner. Now why didn't somebody think of going the other way.

ELECTION NEWS

KING REITERATES HIS "AUTOCRACY" CHARGES.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—At a meeting here last night Hon. Mackenzie King was introduced to the audience by the chairman, ex-Mayor Horton, as the next Prime Minister of Canada after December 6. Alluding to his returning to Ottawa in order to attend the funeral of Lady Laurier, Mr. King said he regarded as a tribute to her memory, the attendance of the audience at such an early hour.

It was 10 years, said Mr. King, since the electors had had the chance to listen to a discussion of public affairs. The working man, the returned soldier, not to speak of the women voters, had a right to hear matters of interest to them thoroughly threshed out.

The real issue to-day, despite the assertions of Mr. Meighen, was whether the people of Canada were going to endorse autocracy or whether they would demand the right of self-government. Mr. King accused the Government of a cynical disregard for the people's right to be consulted in matters of large public expenditure. Particulars in regard to the Grand Trunk Railway negotiations, instead of being explained in the House of Commons of Canada, had had to be learned by cable from England.

Asked on the floor of the House as to whether the directors of the Canadian National Railways were also directors of the concerns, Mr. Meighen had declined to give any information. Mr. King said it had been found that the Canadian National directors were directors of companies.

A Government which has such loose ideas as to the way in which public money shall be spent in Canada has a right to the confidence of the people. "The Government to-day was being carried on by a little group of political autocrats, combined with industrial plutocrats, for their own ends," asserted Mr. King. "If you endorse that sort of thing you can't complain if your taxes increase."

Mr. King once again warned his audience against the danger of splitting into different parties; the forces of freedom once united could defeat the common enemy. There was more than a political conflict in progress, he asserted. "We are seeking the dawn of a new and better day for our country."

As Mr. King left the hall the audience arose and gave him a spontaneous ovation of God-speed to Ottawa.

Judge Colter treated in humorous style the attitude of the Conservatives toward the tariff. "You might almost see the tears running down Sir George Foster's cheeks," he said, "when a revision downwards was suggested." That unclean hands should be laid upon the sacred tariff inspired him with veritable horror, yet" said Judge Colter, "The Fielding tariff had introduced a period of unprecedented prosperity." The population in Canada from 1901 to 1911 had increased as much as in the 30 previous years.

QUEBEC FARMERS NOMINATE LANDON

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—George Landon, a young farmer of Chichester, was nominated as standard bearer of the Quebec Farmers' party for Pontiac county by a convention here yesterday. Wm. Hodgins, Mayor of Shawville and former member in the Provincial legislature, declined nomination.

MR. G. N. GORDON REPLIES

Mr. G. N. Gordon replying to some matters referred to at the meeting of the Right Hon. Mr. Meighen, said that he stood for a Custom Tariff equitable and sufficient to protect all classes in the community, including the workingman, manufacturer and consumer. He said that a Custom's Tariff was absolutely necessary in order to raise a revenue for the purpose of meeting pensions and other war debts, and this Country for generations could never be free from a fairly high Custom's Tariff because of the necessity to raise money to meet nearly three billion dollars of indebtedness.

Mr. Gordon said that he was pledged to no platform except the proise he had made to the electors of West Peterborough that he intended to stand by a properly balanced and equalized Tariff to make it as light as possible on foods and such necessities as the workingman daily required.

The ex-member said that a Convention would be placed in the field and some of these statements that have been made so freely will be corrected during a series of meetings for the Liberal candidate. Mr. Gordon said, as far as he was concerned, he had been on the factory hunt for years for this city, and the people knew that he was absolutely sound, as far as any Tariff matters went in regard to Peterborough's industries, but there had ben a revision of the Tariff, which the Prime Minister had promised, for ten years and the time had come for a proper adjustment of the Tariff.

Mr. Gordon intimated that he would deal with some of the statements of local speakers and call them to account for making these statements Wednesday night which had no foundation in fact.

Yes, prosperity is just going around the corner. Now why didn't somebody think of going the other way.

CAMPBELLFORD WINDS UP NEW SIDEWALK WORK FOR SEASON

REPAIRS TO SOME SECTIONS OF OLD WALKS LAID OVER UNTIL NEXT SPRING BECAUSE OF SEVERE FROSTS — COUNCIL'S SESSION A LIGHT ONE.

APPOINT REVISION COURT

CAMPBELLFORD, November 4.—The Council meeting last night was an unusually light session. Instead of running close to the midnight hour, the business was wound up shortly after ten o'clock.

Mayor Meyers presided, with the following members present: Reeve Davidson, Deputy-Reeve Stone, and Councillors Palliser, Wiggins, Baker, Wilkinson, and Meiklejohn.

The Mayor called attention to the cessation of the work of sidewalk construction for the year. The lateness of the season, with the recent heavy frosts, were also urged as reasons why certain relaying of sunken blocks in the sidewalk on business streets should not be undertaken now.

Mr. Baker had moved, seconded by Mr. Wiggins, that a block or two in front of T McEvoy's store have the top chipped off and relaid to level the surface so as to prevent the accumulation of water after rains, Mr. Wilkinson asked hat a similar repair be made in front of T. Tate's store.

Reeve Davidson mentioned the walk in front of Ackerman's barber shop.

Mayor Meyers: We have stopped the construction of sidewalks because of the frost. Do you think it advisable to go ahead with these alterations? The work wouldn't be started for a week.

Mr. Davidson: Not at this time of the year.

Mr. Wiggins: There's not half a day's work.

Mr. Meiklejohn: I'm afraid some of the cement work would be nipped by the frost.

Mr. Baker finally told the Mayor he would not insist on the motion, but he remarked that the work should have been done long ago.

$1,200 to Contractor.

Reeve Davidson moved, seconded by Mr. Meiklejohn, that $1,200.00 be paid John Hall on his sewer contract.

Mr. Wilkinson commented that Mr. Hall was making good progress.

Assessor's Salary.

When the accounts were presented Mr. Stone moved that N. Grills, the assessor, be piad his original salary of $250 and not the increase latterly raised to $275.

Mr. Baker seconded his motion that Mr. Grills be paid $250.

Mr. Palliser and Mr. Wilkinson submitted an amendment that the increase be sustained.

Mr. Stone — I moved that Mr. Grigs get the position. That was the time he should have objected to the salary. He should have known the work he had to do. I think he was well paid.

Mr. Griggs asked for the increase because he had to include the women voters in his list.

When Mayor Meyers called for the vote Reeve Davidson supported the amendment. Mr. Meiklejohn had just gone and Mr. Wiggins declined to vote, saying he wanted more information and would like to look into the question.

On that showing the amendment would have carried, but it was finally agreed on Mr. Stone's suggestion that the item of Mr. Grill's salary be omitted from the list until the next reguar meeting.

Mr. Palliser—What about the amendment?

Mayor Meyers— The motion has been withdrawn so theer is no amendment. I should have asked you to withdraw the amendment also.

Plenty of Work.

Everybody is working in Campbellford these days, except those who are habitually idle. As an evidence of the happy condition of employment, two men were wanted a short time ago to load a car at the pulp mill, but it was only after the town had been combed for labour that the required help was obtained.

The mills are humming along steadily, except the pulp mill, and the Hydro has somewhere between 150 and 200 men on its pay-roll at the Rannev Falls power house.

In addition to these activities, the municipality has certain sewer work in progress; and altogether the labour situation heer is quite encouraging.

Court of Revision.

Mayor Meyers named the following members as a Court of Revision to meet on Tuesday night, November 8, Deputy-Reeve Stone and Councillors Wiggins, Palisser, Wilkinson and Southworth.

Meet the Commission

Tuesday, November 15th was chosen as the date of a special joint meeting of the Council with the Light and Power Commission to receive the Commission's report on the lighting of the town.

Thanks to A. L. Killaly

The Council formaly acknowledged by resolution the gift of a set of Trent Canal Maps from Mr. A. L. Killaly, superintendent of the canal.

Provincial Secretary's Letter

A circular letter from the Hon. H. C. Nixon, provincial secretary sought the Council's opinion on a proposal to extend the franchise in municipal affairs to include the wives and sons and daughters of property holders was received.

The first and principal question was as follows:—

"Are you in favor of the municipal franchise being extended to all or any of the following persons of the age of 21 years or over:—the wife, husband, sons, daughters, brothers, sisters, sons-in-law and and daughters-in-law of and residing with the person possessing the necessary qualifications to vote at municipal elections?

Mayor Meyers said that all property owners now held municipal franchise.

"This should get careful consideration", remarked Deputy Reeve Stone, who moved seconded by Reeve Davidson that the provincial secretary's query be laid on the table.

Representations Made to U. S. Over Treatment of British at New York Immigration Station

LONDON, November 4 Canadian Press). — Alleged hardships suffered by British subjects at Ellis Island, New York, came up for brief consideration in the House of Commons yesterday.

Cecil Harmsworth, Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, was asked whether representations had been made to Washington on this score. He replied that, judging by the distressing accounts received of the treatment of British subjects at Ellis Island, and the conditions under which they were compelled to live, the strongest complaints would be justified.

"Repeated representations made to the United States Government," declared the Under Secretary, "have, I regret to say, had no tangible result, but further negotiations are proceeding at the present moment, which I hope may lead to some permanent improvement."

Several complaints have been made to the British Foreign Office respecting the treatment of British subjects at Ellis Island. Specific cases have been mentioned of ill-treatment after detention at the immigration station on the ground that their respective quotas for admission were filled. In one case, a British subject, born in Egypt, was detained for a considerable time, but was finally admitted. In another case a British subject, hailing from South Africa, with his wife and son, was held up. All three finally were excluded, and returned to England In these and other cases bad treatment and "filthy" surroundings were alleged.

OFFICIALS AT INTERNATIONAL CONFENENCE IN REGINA DECIDE TO LAUNCH PROSECUTIONS.

B. C. OFFICIALS DENY TRAFFIC THERE GREAT

REGINA, Sask. November 4 (Canadian Press). — As a result of a conference yesterday between the members of the Saskatchewan Liquor Commission and Provincial and United States delegates over Prohibition enforcement, a number of prosecutions will be launched immediately against branches of Saskatchewan liquor firms operating in other points of the Dominion.

'The prosecutions, which will be made under the provisions of the Doherty and Canada Temperance Acts," declared Rev. J. N. MacLean, Chief Insector of Liquor Law Enforcement for Manitoba, "will be made with a view of putting a stop once and for all of shipments of liquor into dry Provinces. The decision in the Gold Seal case has greatly strengthehed the hands of Prohibition enforcement authorities. Results, quick and decisive, may be looked for."

Some men who have been trying to rise by crookedness are likely to have their ambitions gratified—by being "sent up."

U.S.-CANADIAN HISTORY FORMS GREAT EXAMPLE

GOOD OMEN OF WHAT CAN BE ACCOMPLISHED

NEW YORK, November 4. Canadian Press.—There can be no greater example of what can be done in limiting armaments laid before the Washington Conference than the common history of the United States and Canada, declared Sir Robert Borden, speaking last night at a dinner given in honor of himself and Lady Borden by the Governors of the Sulgrave Institute. The dinner was at the home of Robert Fulton Cutting, New York financier, a director of the Institute.

Earlier in the day, at a luncheon of the Lawyers' Club, Sir Robert emphasized the responsibility which rested on the Britsh Empire and the United States in preserving the peace of tre world.

"There are no two nations of the world under separate systems of government that are so closely united socially, commercially and politically as the people of Canada and the United States," asserted Sir Robert last night. "There are no two nations with thousands of miles of boundary so unguarded; no nations bordering on great inland seas, whose waters are so untroubled by armed navies. It is almost commonplace to speak of the disarmament of 1817, but it is always timely to recall the fulfillment of the promise that it bore.

"May we not in this retrospect find good omen of what may be accomplished at the great conference that your President has summoned, and high hope that glad tidings of disarmament and of peace may be borne to a weary, waiting world?"

Among the guests at the dinner were Gloster Armstrong, the British Consul-General in New York, and Mrs. Armstrong; Admiral and Lady Chatfield, Judge Alton B. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert H. Gary, Mr. and Mrs. Adolf S. Ochs, Col. and Mrs. I. Newton Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Darwin P. Kingsley and others.

After paying his respects to the purposes of the Sulgrave Institute, which aims at bringing about good feeling between the people of Great Britain and the United States, Sir

BOSTON, Nov. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—Edward W. Brigham, former District Attorney of Sagadahoc County, Maine, and former City Solicitor of Bath, was arrested here yesterday on a Federal warrant charing fraudulent use of the mails in the promotion of the North Shore Fish Corporation of Booth Bay, Maine.

Arrested with Brigham, who was said by Federal agents to be counsel for the company, was Orlando H. Lane, of Bath, on similar charges. Milton A. Stone, a Boston lawyer, was arrested earlier in the day on the same charge. The men were held in $500 bail each for hearing Saturday.

The complaint said that thousands of New Englanders had been victimized through sale of stock of the North Shore Fish Corporotion, adding that the company had no assets.

AMBASSADOR SAYS PRITAIN AND FRANCE MUST NOT EXPECT DEFINITE ALLIANCE WILL BE MADE

CITES MUNRO DOCTRINE AND REPUBLICAN POLICY

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 4.— (Canadian Press.)——George Harvey, the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, told an audience at the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce last night that it was futile to hope that the United States, as Lord Derby recently had been suggesting, may some day be merged in a definite alliance with Great Britain and France. This statement was made as a digression from an address on economics and the industrial situation in which the United States Ambassador attacked Communism and Socialism and defended the principle of individualism.

In his digression, Mr. Harvey recalled Lord Derby's statement in a recent address in Birmingham, in which the latter voiced the conviction that the success of the Washington limitation of armaments conference would mean peace and that its failure would mean war in the immediate future. The speaker also recalled Lord Derby's suggestion to former President Poincare of France at a dinner last Tuesday evening that an Anglo-French alliance would be desirable in the interests of peace, intimating the "strong hope" that the United States might eventually join this combination.

"Now it seems to have fallen to my unhappy lot since I have been in England," continued Ambassador Harvey, "to dispel illusions respecting the attitude of the United States. I can conceive of no more effective service on the part of an envoy, desirous as I am of eliminating all causes for misapprehension, than to set forth frankly any certainty which

GRIFFENHAGENS ARE NO LONGER BEING EMPLOYED

STATEMENT ISSUED BY SENATOR ROBERTSON DEFENDS EMPLOYMENT OF EFFICIENCY EXPERTS

TELLS OF THE RESULTS ACCRUING FROM THE WORK

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 4.—(By Canadian Press).—Denial of reports to the effect that Griffenhagen and Associates were still being employed by the Dominion Government in reorganization of the Civil Service, was made in a lengthy statement handed to the press last night by Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, who, since the retirement of Sir George Foster from the Government, has been chairman of the subcommittee of the Cabinet or reorganization and efficiency.

The statement says that Messrs. Griffenhagen and Associates are a Canadian firm with headquarters in Toronto, who were engaged by the Dominion Government on May 13, 1920, to reorganize the post office, customs and Inland Revenue departments 'and to install therein modern systems of business efficiency." On February 2, 1921, the sub-committee gave Griffenhagen and Associates sixty days' notice of termination of their contract; "the work having been quite well advanced."

"It was important, however," says the statement, "that the sysem and establishment outlined by Griffenhagen and Associates should, so far as possible, be made effective, and while the services of the firm as such and the cost consequent thereto were discontinued, the sub-committee engaged the services of some six expert individuals for the limited period to supervise the installation of the necessary physical changes The services of a number of these experts were dispensed with on September 1, 1921, and of the balance as of October 23, 1921.

"On October 23, the offices of the firm here were closed and all of employes engaged on this work, who had not been borrowed from various departments, have been retired as on October 31.

"The post office and customs and Inland Aevenue departments are undertaking to carry out, as circumstances permit, the reorganizations outlines, most of which has already been given effect to," the statement says. "Further reductions in staff will not take place but the new establishments recommended are agreed upon between Griffenhagen and Associates and the departmental officials will be made effective gradually. Vacancies occurring in these departments will be filled from the surplus staff until the staff is reduced to the basis outlined in the new organization establisment.

"When the reorganization plans have been fully carried out in the post office department, the annual saving to the government will be $2,268,000. Of this $1,183,000 has al-

A LAST REMINDER

The registrars who are making additions to the voter's lists for the coming Federal election are through with their sittings tomorrow, which means that those who were not on the lists in last February's election and have not yet registered have but one more day in which to ensure for themselves the privilege of voting on December 6th. The Examiner because of a desire to be of service to its readers has endeavoured to keep before the electors the necessity from the standpoint of the duties of citizenship of protecting their franchise and has kept the subject before the people of Peterboro, in the hope that when election day comes around none of them will find that their names are not on the list. It is a responsibility that each individual elector should assume for himself and remembering that those electors who have not yet taken the trouble to investigate whether or not they are on the list should take advantage of the short time that is left. There will be no use in arguing with a deputy-returning official on December 6th. If you are an urban resident he can't add your name to the list then, if its not on you won't be able to vote. But tomorrow it is a simple matter to get on the list—see that your name is here.

CANTEEN PROFITS

The vexed question of what is to be done with Canada's share of the profits from the canteens opearted during the war, is at last to be settled, and in a way advocated many months ago by the Examiner. The disposition of the funds is to be decided by the people who alone should have any voice in the matter, the veterans themselves whose purchase from the canteens made the profits possible. The Government proposes to take a referendum of the returned soldiers in order to secure their views, although what form the inquiry will take or how the vote will be taken has not yet been disclosed. The total sum involved amounts to about two million dollars. Some veterans will of course propose that the profits be divided equally among all overseas men and that would be the simplest solution, but scarcely a satisfactory one. Much more constructive is the policy suggested by the local branch of the G.W.V.A., which by a resolution passed when the question first came to the fore, recommended that the canteen funds should be utilized for the establishment of scholarships for which the children of veterans would alone be eligible. There is much to be said in favour of that proposal and now that the matter is again receiving publicity the local veterans should see that their resolution is not forgotten.

POLICE COURT FINES

The request of municipalities of Ontario that they be allowed to retain the fines collected in police court except in cases instituted by Provincial or Federal officers, seems to be logical and just. Municipalities have to assume practically the whole cost of the administration of Justice within the boundaries. They are required to pay the salary of the Magistrate or Magistates, to meet the expenses of police court and to maintain a police department, yet the Government takes the bulk of the fines. A more equitable arrangement would appear to be necessary not only in the matter but in all others in which there is a joint responsibility between Government and municipalities for the maintainance of various public services. The municipalities have reason to complain that in many instances they are being too heavily taxed and that the Province is escaping too lightly. It has been suggested that the whole question should be investigated either by a committee of the Legislature or by a special commission selected by that body and the matter is of such importance that an inquiry of some kind has become necessary.

The country boy doesn't make as much of a fool of himself in the city as the city rube does on the

POPPY DAY

Tomorrow the Great War Veteran's Association will offer for sale on the streets of Peterboro silken poppies made by the war widows and orphans of France and intended to be worn by the citizens as a tribute to the memory of the men who gave up their lives in the Great War. "Another Tag Day" some one who believes that form of soliciting funds has been overdone in Peterboro, will doubtless remark. Yet tomorrow is much more than a tag day. Some universal form of honouring the men who made the supreme sacrifice is surely necessary on the anniversary of the coming of peace for which they fought. What more appropriate way of paying a tribute could be devised than the general wearing of replicas of the flowers which grow to profusely in the country in which they are buried? The War Veterans are providing Canadians with the opportunity of adopting that method of honouring our unreturning brave. At the same time the campagn benefits the victims of the war among our gallant allies the French, because the poppies are purchased from the women and children who are supporting themselves through the manufacture of these silken flowers and a portion of the receipts goes to relieve cases of distress among Canadian Soldiers and tehir families. There should be a ready slee of poppies in Peterboro tomorrow.

BENEATH THE SUGAR-COATING—WHAT?

Thirteen general elections have taken place in the Dominion since Confederation. Through all of them there has run the golden thread of national ideals. Whatever may have been the particular issue of the campaign, it has had its foundation in the common good. And that is the highest of all political ideals. It is only at the time of a general election that electors have an opportunity to give positive and effective voice to their judgment in relation to national aims and national enterprises, and beneath all these there should be a lofty and permanent purpose—an ideal—if the highest destiny of the nation is to be reached. Lacking such ideals, the instincts of selfishness and sectionalism are apt to be given play, which is always as demoralizing as it is dangerous.

A people moved by sound and practicable ideals are free from pettiness. They think and plan in broad terms. They look ahead to better things as the fruits of unity in a good work; and there can be no better work than the laying of foundations for national strength nor progress, however, if the common good is made subordinate to class selfishness, sectarian interests or sectional advantages. These things are opposed to that national spirit which is at once the parent of co-operation and the basis of popular contentemt. When the people of a country are not pulling together they become discontented, and they can only pull together when they are moved by a purpose which embraces the interests of the whole people. Broken up into classes or sections, they pull against each other. And a nation divided against itself will, like the house in conflict, come to disaster.

As class conciousness finds assertion at the polls unity breaks down. It could not possibly be otherwise. And by no legerdemain could a class aim be presented as an ideal. To be an ideal it must fit to the whole people—to the nation. To break down the unity of a people for the sake of a class triumph is to do a very dangerous thing, even for the time being. Failure must come in the end; for the permanent domination of a class is absolutely unthinkable in a democracy. The common good must be served or you must give up your democracy, the two things being as incompatible as fire and water. Inasmuch as the democratic principle constitutes the warp and woof of our national fabric, the logical conclusion is that anything contrary to it must ultimately fail. At all events, you cannot have class rule and a democracy at the same time.

This is an eminently timely topic, for the discussion of which no apology is offered. It has nothing of the abstract in it. We ought all to be agreed that co-operation is an elementary thing in its bearing on national progress. It is peculiarly in a new country, and, as nations reckon their age, Canada is still a child—strong and lusty, but nevertheless young. We have a sound foundation, and what may appropriately be called the fundamentals are unquestionably sound too; but a divided people may easily neglect their heritage, and possibly wreck it, by giving themselves up to class rivalries. This is too self-evident to need the support of argument. Yet the interjection of class interests into a general election is at this juncture a grave menace to all that has been said in relation to unity of purpose and the concentration of popular effort on the common good.

Of course class rule could not triumph indefinitely. It may not triumph at all. It could only have a brief success if it were permitted to develop by an electorate blind to what is happening. It will be abandoned by many who are now passively suporting it the moment they pause to think. There are very few men in Canada who would deliberately do the country harm for sake of any class advantage. Therefore, sooner or later all the men will see the folly of separation which is just now being attempted.

To cover up a class movement under a misleading name does not alter the situation one whit. The class principle remains the same under all disguises. No amount of sugar-coating can change the deadly nature of the poison at the centre. Veneer it, gild it, decorate it as you may, it continues to be the antithesis of unity; and only unity can make Canada strong and prosperous. Every man who pauses to think must see that.

PIONEER DENTIST DIES IN MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, November 4 (Canadian Press). — The death occurred yesterday at the Royal Victoria Hospital of Dr. Benjamin Stephen Stackhouse, D.D.S., L.D.S., who was a resident of Lachute, Quebec.

Dr. Stackhouse, who was 72 years of age, was born in St. Andrew's East, Quebec, on 17th February, 1850. He graduated from Harvard University in 1874 and was one of the pioneer dentists in the Province of Quebec, where he has held a distinguished position for a great number of years.

BANDIT'S WIFE IGNORANT OF HIS WORK.

MONTREAL, November 4 (Canadian Press). — The wife of Albert Slade alias Norman Ryan alias Texas Bell, held for the attempted hold-up of the Park Avenue branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce on 26th October, and believed to have been concerned in a number of burglaries in Hamilton, Ont., arrived in Montreal yesterday.

Mrs. Ryan came from Toronto, and immediately went to Detective Headquarters in order to get a pass to see her husband, who, together with Patrick O'Hare alias George McVittie, are confined to Bordeaux Jail awaiting trial.

The pass was refused.

The wife of the suspect told the police officials she had married Ryan on 29th August of this year in Toronto. They had lived in Winnipeg for a short time, after which they returned East. She is said to have been unaware of her husband's mode of livelihood.

NEW WESTMINSTER ON WATER RATIONS.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., November 4 (Canadian Press). — New Westminster was on water rations to-day as a result of the cutting off of her normal supply through the destruction of water mains by the recent Coquitlam floods. The schools are closed, and 2,000 students are on enforced holidays.

KEMP TO SENATE.

OTTAWA, November 4 (Canadian Press). — It is understood here to-night that Sir Edward Kemp, former minister without portfolio, is likely to be appointed to one of the four vacancies in the Senate.

The appointment has been rumoured for some time, and definite action is expected in the near future.

FLOUR DOWN 30 CENTS.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 4 (Canadian Press). — Following the decline in wheat values, flour has dropped another 30 cents per barrel, or 15 cents per 98-pound sack, it was announced last night. The first grade patent flour will now sell at $3.75 for a sack of 98 pounds.

2c-CENT SUGAR DROP.

VANCOUVER, B.C., November 4 (Canadian Press). — A reduction of 25 cents a hundred pounds in the price of sugar is announced here. It is now quoted at $7.25.

EMPLOYEES ASK PROBE OF THE STEEL INDUSTRY.

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—A request for a government board to investigate the Cape Breton steel industry with particular reference to the additional ten per cent. wage cut put in effect on December 1, by Dominion Steel Corporation, was wired to Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, by the Sydney Steel Workers' Union yesterday. Progressive reductions since the first of the year have lowered steel wages here by 35.2 per cent. from the 1920 standard and only short time work has been available, the workers say.

The Steel Union is following the telegram with a letter, in which it is set forth that the workers are not satisfied that the latest wage reduction is necessary.

BUSINESS REVIVAL IN 1922, SAYS STATISTICIAN.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Roger W. Babson, the well-known American statistician, gave it as his view, at the Canadian Manufacturers' Association luncheon, which he addressed here yesterday, that an upward turn in business would come some time in 1922, and that it had not yet arrived, no matter what optimists were saying. He based his opinion upon statistics for the past 150 years, and added, that those trades which were the first to be depressed would be the first to recover, and those caught last by depression would be the last to get back to prosperity. He said that he had no use for unemployment conferences, which, in his opinion, were about as good as discussing the rise of the tides. "Hard times are produced by monkeying with the ten commandments or the multiplication table, and until men find that out they are only delaying the final cure," he declared.

FRENCH-CANADIANS ARE NOW BREAKING INTO RUGBY.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—That French-Canadians are breaking into the rugby football game is evidenced by the fact that the National Rugby Club, composed of French-Canadian players, will meet the Ottawa University team here on Thanksgiving Day.

It is expected that the National Club, which includes players of the calibre of Marier, Caisse, Gendron and H. Gauthier, will put up a good fight with Ottawa on Monday.

BRITISH DELEGATES TO HAVE FULL POWERS.

LONDON, Nov. 4. — (Canadian Press).—Mr. Lloyd George was asked in the House of Commons yesterday whether resolutions adopted at the Washington conference would require Parliamentary sanction in each country represented, or whether the delegates would possess plenipotentary powers. To this he replied:

"I am not in a position to answer the first part of the question, pending the outcome of the conference. The British delegates will be furnished with the usual full powers."

OPEN GOLF CHAMPION THOUGHT TO BE SUICIDE.

NEWTON, Mass., Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The body of Louis Tellier, Massachusetts, open golf champion, was found yesterday hanging by a small rope in a shelter on the links of the Braeburn Country Club. The medical examiner and police said death was due to suicide.

The motive for the suicide was not known, but the fact that Tellier had not been well for some time was advanced by friends as a possible explanation.

Tellier came to the United States from France in 1913 to play in the national open golf championship tournament at the Country Club, Brookline. He was one of the best known professional golfers in the country and one of the high rank in players nationally. He had won no titles, however, until the Massachusetts open championship tournament, which he captured this fall.

SERIOUSLY INJURED PICKING APPLES

PORT HOPE, Nov. 4.— While picking apples in Keeler's orchard, on Hope street, Blake Symons fell from the top of a ladder and sustained a double fracture of his ankle. He was sent to Toronto for an X-ray examination.

ready been accomplisred, the balance to be gradually made effective as above outlined

"The total saving in the operation of the customs and Inland Revenue department per annum will be $1,100,000, of which $572,000 has already been accomplished and the remaining reduction in cost of operation will be made gradually on the basis outlined.

"All rumors to the effect that the services of Griffenhagen and Associates have not been dispensed with are utterly without foundation as the government's formal contract with them was terminated on April 2, 1921, and no contract of any sort has existed since that time. The special individuals retained by the sub-committee to supervise the work of re-organization have, as above stated, all been dispensed with.

"The ultimate result accruing from the work done will be on annual saving to the people of Canada of over $3,000,000 with greatly improved and modernized systems of accounting and simplified forms of making reports, thereby greatly increasing the efficiency of these two very important departments of the public service.

"Many unfair references to Griffenhagen and Associates have been made, the implication being that these gentlemen were of German descent with German sympathies. This question was carefully investigated a year and a half ago. The firm is composed of a number of skilled accountants and skilled efficiency engineers, only one of whom bears the name of Griffenhagen, and that particular gentleman was born in the New Brunswick, as were his ancestors three generations back, and a number of whose descendants served in the American Army during the Great War. It is to be noted that those who have opposed the organization most are loudest in their demands for economy in operation of our public services."

TRENT RIVER HAPPENINGS

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 4.—Recent guests at Cedar Isle were: Col. Barker, V.C., A. B. Smith of Toronto, John Lake and Sac. Smoke, of Alderville.

Mr. E. Parsons left Tuesday for Toronto after spending the past two weeks at the Cook cottage.

Mr. J. Dafoe left yesterday for Perth, where he has secured a position.

High winds have prevailed here for the past two days and the weather has turned much colder.

A number from here went to Campbellford to attend the mass meeting in honor of Premier Meighen, who spoke in the Arena.

The Ladies' Aid held a successful afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. John A. Hutchinson, Trent River road.

Mrs. Hendren of Norwood, was a recent visitor with her daughter, Mrs. T. J. Brown, Browning avenue.

ONCE over with the New Improved Gillette and your face will be smoother, cooler, fresher than after any shave you've ever had before.

The free shaving edge, safely guarded from the face, slips smoothly over chin and cheek without pull or effort. Cut hairs and lather go into the channel. They cannot jam in between blade and guard and cap. They cannot clog the shaving action.

Men who believe in enjoying the inventions of this age are not hesitating to discard their razors of yesterday for the 75% greater efficiency of the New Improved Gillette.

NOTE.—One of the first things to strike the user of the New Improved Gillette is its simplicity.

Most men prefer to screw the handle up tight to get the most satisfactory shave.

The Gillette Blade and Gillette Razor are developed to work together. No Gillette Blade can deliver its full shaving quality unless used in a genuine Gillette Razor—built by Gillette, in the Gillette way and up to Gillette standards.

U.S.-CANADIAN HISTORY FORMS GREAT EXAMPLE

Robert spoke of the century of peaceb etween Canada and the United States.

"It will be my great privilege to represent Canada at the approaching Washington conference," he said. "Among the overseas nations of the British Commonwealth she holds the premier place, and to the Mother country as well as to the other dominions she is united by ties of kinship, of institutions, of language and of a common allegance. By like ties of blood, of language, and of common ideals, she is associated with this great commonwealth.

"The agreement of 1817 was expressed in the simplest language, not even couched in the terms of a solemn treaty, merely the exchange of notes, scraps of paper, if you like, yet the record of that agreement is unstained by the blot of any violation. Its terms covered only disarmament on the Great Lakes, but its spirit has extended to the entire boundary.

"A century had almost elapsed when another impressive advance was made. It was inevitable that disputes and even controversies should arise in respect of a borderline of nearly 4000 miles, much of it extending through inland waterways and everywhere intersected by many streams rising in one country or the other and flowing across the invisible boundary. The treaty that established the International Joint Commission ten years ago was almost as notable in its character and far-reaching in its effects as the agreement of 1817. It expressed the cardinal and controlling principle of determining international questions by arbitrament of a permanent tribunal. It signified the crowning of each nation's resolve that by methods of peace and justice, not by resort to brute force, should the reciprocal rights and duties of each community in such matters be adjusted and determined.

"At the conference in Washington we can point to no prouder events events than these in our common history. They carry a moral and a lesson that the statesmen there assembled may well bear in mind and take to heart. Upon the boundary from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the two nations laid down their arms more than a hundred years ago. The weapons then discarded have never been resumed. Can you doubt the infinite advantage? Observe the pride of the two peoples in their preparation for peace and their unpreparedness for war upon each other. Consider the hundreds, yes, thousands of millions that might have been squandered on bristling fortifications, on navies, on armaments, along that vast boundary. Bear in mind the suspicions that might have been engendered; the hostile spirit that might have arisen from the mere existence of such warlike preparations.

"Is not the later lesson equally manifest? The American and the Canadian nations have created a standing tribunal to which they have entrusted the determination of most important and often very difficult questions in connection with the boundary. This experiment has been a remarkable success and I believe it has developed into a permanent system. With the assent of the two governments and the approval of your Senate, the jurisdiction of the commission may be extended to any questions in dispute between our countries. The very fact that such a tribunal exists in a permanent form increases the probability that such disputed questions will be referred thereto. That which has proved of marked and unmistakable to these two nations must surely be for the benefit of all civilized communities.

"May be not in this retrospect find good omen of what may be accomplished at the great conference that your president has summoned, and high hoep that glad tidings of disarmament and of peace may be borse to a weary, waiting world."

Recipes

Old-Faishioned Chocolate Caramels

Shave a quarter of a pound of unsweetened chocolate into three cupfuls of sugar and add one cupful each of butter, corn sirup and milk. Stir well, then put on the fire and boil until a little of the sirup hardens when poured into ice water. The candy should be stirred just often enough to keep it from burning. When ready remove from fire, beat in a teaspoonful of vanilla, and pour into squares when cool and wrap in pieces of paraffin paper.

Japanese Peanut Candy

Cook in a double boiler equal parts of white and brown sugar, stirring till the mixture is melted and forms a thick, smooth sirup, remove; flavor with almond extract pour it over a buttered baking-tin on which has been strewn a layer of chopped peanuts, and let harden. Break into pieces before serving. This candy will not melt in transportation.

Peanut Creamed Candy (Pulled)

Stir one-fourth teaspoonful of cream of tartar into a pint of white sugar; add two-thirds cupful of boiling water and let boil till a drop of it "cracks" in cold water. Then pour out on a buttered slab and place on top enough lumps of peanut butter to cover if spread over it. Let cool enough to handle, then pull as with molasses "taffy." Cut it, when pulled, into small pieces and set aside four days to "ripen."

Peanut Macaroons.

Mix a tablespoonful of flour with two cupfuls of powdered sugar and chopped peanuts. Beat the white of one egg with a inch of salt and cream of tartar, then add the sugar mixture gradually. Drop by teaspoonfuls on buttered paper. Bake slowly. For almond peanut macaroons use the unroasted peanuts. Blanch; dry and chop fine, flavoring with almond flavoring, then use as above. For pistachio macaroons make as for almond macaroons, but add a few drops each of almond flavoring and vegetable green coloring.

A New Peanut Candy.

Boil two cupfuls of sugar with two tablespoonfuls of chocolate shavings and a quarter of a cupful of water until the syrup threads from the fork. Two cupfuls of peanuts roasted, freed from all shell and broken into small pieces, should be thoroughly heated through, and, while piping hot, added to the candy with two teaspoonfuls of vanilla when the syrup is at the thread stage. Beat rapidly and pour into buttered pans, or get some one to help you and drop in spoonfuls on paraffin paper.

DON'T NEGLECT BRONCHITIS

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a cough which is dry, harsh and hacking, accompanied with rapid wheezing, and a feeling of tightness through the chest.

There is a raising of phlegm, especially in the morning after rising from bed. This phelgm is at first light color, but as the trouble progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color and is sometimes streaked with blodd.

In

you will find a remedy that will stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, subdue the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucous, and help nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Mr. John H. Root, 40 Maple Ave., Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with bronchitis and I had a very bad cough. I had it so long I aws beginning to get afraid of other developments. I tried all kinds of cough remedies without relief. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Wood's Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle, and it convinced me to believe that I had at last gotten the right medicine. I used several bottles and am practically well. I have recommended it to others since, and good results followed."

Be sure and get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it; price. 35c. and 60c. a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

New Uses For The Pumpkin

In the days of Cinderella nothing less than a fairy godmother could change the nature of a pumpkin from its ordinary yellow pumpkinhood. From these days to these is a far cry, but the housewife is little better off than Cinderella, for with the exception of pumpkin pie—noble exception indeed— she has not explored its golden possibilities, coming as it does in the autumn when appetites are sharpened by the tang of crisp days and frosty nights.

During the recent adventures in canning many a housewife rather overestimated the family capacity for pumpkin pie, and now finds herself, like Cinderella of old, longing for a fairy godmother to turn her pumpkin into something different with which to surprise the 'prince.' The recipes given below are equally delicious and perhaps even more simple to prepare.

PUMPKIN AS A VEGETABLE

Fried Pumpkin.

1 cupful of pumpkin, 1 tablespoonful of molasses, 1-4 teaspoonful of salt, 1-8 teaspoonul of pepper, 1-2 cupful of milk, 2 eggs.

Mix pumpkin, milk, molasses and seasonings with the eggs, which have been well beaten. Melt two tablespoonfuls of fat in a hot frying pan. Spread the mixture evenly in the pan and fry over a low fire until a brown crust has formed on the bottom. Fold like an omelet just before serving.

Pumpkin Sausages.

1 cup of pumpkin, 1-2 cupful of finely chopped salt pork, fine crumbs, 3 tablespoonfuls of finely chopped onion, 1-8 teaspoonful of pepper.

Mix the pumpkin, pork and seasonings. Form into flat cakes, roll in crumbs and brown slowly in melted fat in the frying pan. If pumpkin is very moist, add half a cupful of crumbs to the mixture before shaping into the dry ingredients, stirring constantly. Add the melted buttter, and drop by spoonfuls on a greased hot griddle.

PUMPKIN AS A DESSERT

Pumpkin Pudding.

3-4 cupful of pumpkin, 1-2 cupful of sugar, 1-4 cupful of molasses, 1-2 teaspoonful of salt, 1-4 teaspoonful of nutmeg, 1-2 teaspoonful of ginger, 1 teaspoonfulu of cinnamon, 1 cupful of milk, 2 egg yolks, 2 egg whites.

Mix the pumpkin with all the other ingredients except the egg whites. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake in a slow oven until firm. Beat the egg white until stiff; add two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, and spread on top of the pudding. Brown quickly in a hot oven and serve hot or cold.

Pumpkin Tapioca.

1 cupful of pumpkin, 1-2 cupful of tapioca, 2 cupfuls of milk, 1-2 cupful of sugar, 1 teaspoonful of cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoonful of salt, 1-2 teaspoonful of ginger.

Cook the pumpkin, tapioca and milk in a double boiler until the tapioca is tender and transparent. Add the sugar, salt and spices, and cook for five minutes. Pour into a serving dish and chill. Serve with cream.

Steamed Pumpkin Custard.

1 cupfulof pumpkin, 1 1-2 cupfuls of milk, 1 teaspoon of cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoonful of nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoonful of allspice, 3-4 cupful of sugar, 3 eggs.

Heat the pumpkin, milk and spices in a double boiler. Add the sugar to the beaten egg, and add to the heated mixture. Pour into greased custard cups, set in a pan of water and bake in a slow oven until firm.

Reduce Your Fat Without Dieting

Years ago the formula for fat reduction was "diet" — "exercise". To-day it is "Take Marmola Prescription Tablets.' Friends tell friends —these friends tell others. Marmola Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar for a case, or if you prefer you can order direct from the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

CHOOSE SOAP WITH CARE

A perfumed soap that is really good leaves a very faint and attractive memory on the hands, but, like poor perfumes, nothing creates a worse impression of bad taste than cheap, strong-smelling soap, says Delineator. If you cannot afford a really good brand, by all means use an odorless one. There are good eau de Cologne soaps, lavender, and also heather, which is a little unusual and very fresh and sweet.

A really fine small cake of perfumed soap is a wholesome addition to the guest-room. So is bed linen with a cool scent of lavender, dress-hangers with a faint sachet inside or a rose jar, waifing its fragrance in welcome to the entering guest.

REAPED TWO CROPS.

Mr. Fred. W. Smith of Enniskillen this year grew two crops of peas in the same field, threshed and sold them, all in five months. He sowed his first crop in the spring at the usual time, and realized 28 bushels to the acre. The peas shelled out, after the ground was plowed up the second crop appeared. It time 12 bushels to the acre. The second crop was of splendid quality. able to harvest it, realizing this looked so promising that Mr. Smith watched it with interest until he was able to harvest it, realising this time 12 bushels to the acre. The second crop was of splendid quality.

When carving, the cutting must be clean and sharp, not jagged. Always cut across the grain of the meat, with the exception of a saddle of mutton, which is cut lengthwise.

GRAIN GROWERS DENY CHARGES

WINNIPEG, November 4. — Canadian Press. — Claiming that information given before two government enquiries had been distorted into deliberate misstatements, the United Grain Growers, Limited, have issued a statement in which explanation is given for the stand of that organization with respect to the Grain Enquiry Board and the "False Bottoms" charges disputed. The statement says: "Twice the United Grain Growers willingly submitted full details of their business to government inquiries, which the company believed to have been instituted for useful purposes. Twice the company saw their confidence betrayed and the information so freely given used for no public purpose at all, but falsified into material for political attack."

NORTH MONAGHAN NEWS.

NORTH MONAGHAN, November 4. — The Hallowe'en party held at St. George's Church was given to the Sunday School children as well as to the Junior Guild.

On Sunday evening, 6th November, a memorial service will be held in St. George's Church, South Peterborough, in honour of those who fought in the Great War.

A cross of poppies (the Flower of Remembrance) has been secured for the altar.

About 40 pupils are in attendance at the day school, which is held in St. George's Church basement.

The sale which was held at Mr. H. C. Jay's, corner of Park and McKellar Streets, was a decided success.

Mrs. McCormick, St. James Street, has just had her house decorated.

Be Beautiful You Can Be!

Stuart's Calcium Wafers Have a Knack of Making the Complexion the Kind You Rave Over

If after each meal you will take a Stuart's Calcium Wafer there will soon be discovered the coming of a complexion that will make you proud of yourself. You can wear your best gowns and hats and feel at ease.

All you need to do to clear the skin of pimples, blotches, liver spots, blackheads, muddy complexion and skin erruptions is to use Stuart's Calcium Wafers. These troubles seek the skin as one of the natural outlets of the body. And if you supply it with the proper materials the skin will pass off impurities through the pores of the skin instead of retaining them in the form of ugly accumulations. Get a box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers in any drug store at 60 cents. You will then realize how easy it is to be beautiful.

FENELON FALLS MAN HELD UP BY BANDITS

FENELON FALLS, Nov. 3.—When two men held up Mr. Paul Ouilette on the road near Brokenshire's corner, they found their victim too tough a proposition for their nerves. While one bandit held his horse's head the other demanded his money. But Mr. Ouilette's reply was a knockout blow on the jaw, which sent his assailant to the road unconscious. Evidently unnerved by Ouilette's pluck, the other bandit dragged his companion to a waiting motor car and quickly made his getaway without the anticipated spoils.

THE MISERY OF BACKACHE

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Meaford, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for backache, and I also had a female weakness. I felt dizzy and nervous, and was without energy. I had to force myself to do my work, and was always tired. Saw a Pinkham advertisement which induced me to take the Vegetable Compound, and my back gradually stopped aching and I felt lighter in spirits. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound with pleasure to all I meet who complain as I did."—MILDRED BROOK, Meaford, Ont.

Woman's Precious Gift

The one which she should most zealously guard is her health, but she often neglects to do so in season until some ailment peculiar to her sex has fastened itself upon her. When so affected women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a remedy that has been wonderfully successful in restoring health to suffering women.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

IF YOU HAVE A CAR

If you have an automobile and have travelled around the country lately you will have noticed the fine plump Turkeys that are to be seen this year. The warm dry Spring and the rainless Summer has made this a splendid year for these birds and we invite you to take the opportunity of eating Turkey while it is in such splendid condition. We have some fresh killed Turkeys that have been reared on the neighboring Township farms and are wonderfully plump and tender. We feel sure that you will find in them all that you could wish. May we select one for you before they are all sold?

BY THE WAY

There is not an encampment more picturesque than one of the nomads of New Chile, as the Chileans call their southern territory. Notwithstanding the Patagonian winter is rough and cold, with heavy rains, the Tehuelces prefer to remain in their toldos or skin tents that are like a half loop in shape. They group their toldos around that of the head tribesman, together with their innumerable dogs and fowls and horses; and as quickly strike camp as they pitch it.

At a word from the chief there is bustle everywhere. The young men and boys lasso and bring up the horses, and the women, who are well treated, place on their backs the bolsters or reeds, tied with hides and skin ponchos and blankets, forming the saddles.

Others strap their belts on, get pots and pans, etc., together, or put their babies into wicker-work cradles; some of them rolling up the skins forming the covering of the toldos, and tying them and the tent poles on the baggage horses.

Meantime the men collect their herds of horses and fill the water skins, which are carried on the march.

The women mount astride of their bolster saddles, their babies and pet dogs are hoisted up behind, then they take their baggage horses in tow and set off in single file, the men driving the spare horses.

The Duke of Wellington's wife, Lady Catherine Packenham, daughter of the Earl of Langford, is said to have loved him with devotion. Lady Catherine, an exceptionally beautiful girl, met Wellington, or Col. Sir Arthur Wellesley, as he then was, in Dublin, at the vice-regal court. They were immediately attracted to each other, and soon he proposed marriage. She accepted him, but her father refused his consent because the young soldier did not have enough money.

At this time Col. Wellesley was sent to India with his regiment; the pair deided upon a secret bethrothal. Within a few months after his departure Catherine was stricken with smallpox and her radiant beauty was gone forever. When her fiance returned nine years later she offered to free him of the obligation, but he was a man of honor and would not accept his release. They were married at once.

The marriage, however was not a happy one. There was little in common between them, and Wellington's original infatuation had been caused by the girl's rare beauty.

Catherine's eagerness over his Waterloo victory testified to her devotion. While he was never deeply affectionate to her, she never suffered any humiliation at his hands.

Although he had seen her but little for some years before her death in 1831, the duke attended her faithfully in her last illness, and she died happily with her distinguished husband at her bedside.

A naturalist is the last person in the world one would expect to succeed as a farmer. They wouldn't plow a field if a bird has made its nest there. John J. Audobon, greatest nature student of his day, bought 40 acres at Carmansville, on the Hudson to do some farming. The best part of his property was fenced in for deer, elk, and wolves. His orchard, 200 trees of apples, pears plums, apricots, and nectarines, was left as a paradise for birds—it was Audobon's study. However he had no scruples against fishing, and caught 200-pound sturgeons in the Hudson.

Mr. Bonomi, the new Italian premier, is reported by L'Europe Nouvelle to have derived much entertainment from his attendance at the Paris conference of the supreme council. The two things that impressed him most were Lloyd George's laugh and Briand's voice, says the Living Age.

In fact, the British premier has a remarkable laugh, which shakes off his glasses, closes his eyes and convulses his whole person. It was so contagious at first that Bonomi invariably laughed with his colleague; but he seems to have become weary at its frequent repetition. Briand's voice produced an equally powerful impression upon the new premier.

It is generally known that the towering dome of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, England, is a dummy. It is built of wood and covered with lead, but is not strong enough to support the lantern and gold ball that appear to rest on it. Sixty feet below it is another and quite separate dome. This is built of brick and is a brick cone, 18 inches in thickness and reinforced with iron tierods. The lantern and ball, which weigh 700 tons, are supported by this cone. The total weight of the whole structure (64,000 tons) is carried on eight central piers.

The Indian mission school at Resolution, in the Mackenzie Country Candian Northwest, is under the supervision of the Little Gray Nuns of the North. This organization has a unique history, having been founded in Montreal nearly two centuries ago by a group of middle-aged ladies banded together under the leadership of Madame D'Youville for the purpose of accomplishing some good work in the world.

The present name of the order was derived from a derisive appelation leveled at the few original members in the beginning, for the people called them the Gray Sisters, from the fact that all were gray-haired and had agreed never to marry after forming their little association. They accepted the title thus bestowed on them, and adopted a somber gray habit to conform to it.

"You love flowers. I have a bouquet to give you—the Petit Thianon." said Louis XVI to his wife, the famous Marie Antoinette. Thus was built the most exquisite play farm ever known. Here is a wood of 800 trees, beyond the formal gardens of Versailles, the young queen and her court had their own dairy and garden poultry, with a thatched Swiss chalet to live in. Here they serve suppers, the queen herself serving her guests—an experience for her, who, according to the court etiquette, could allow no one even to sit in her presence.

The luck token of the Near East is the blue bead. Its supposed potency is recognized equally by the highest personage and the humblest soldier and peasant.

M. Gounoris, the right-hand man of King Constantine, carries a whole string of beads in his pocket, which he takes out and fingers while being interviewed by foreign correspondents. No Cabinet meeting or war council is complete without beads.

In the Angora Parliament, where the sittings are often stormy, members shake their beads at each other and sometimes throw them across the chamber. Peasants of Turkey and Greece put beads on their carpets, hang them over the door like a horse-shoe, decorate the tails and bridles of their horses and the horns of their buffaloes and oxen with them.

No journey is undertaken without beads on the horses and waggon. No peasant woman is happy unless she has them stuck in her hair, while her wealthier sisters wear them as necklaces. The shops of Asia Minor are full of these cheap beads, and the blue glass one is the most popular of them all.

INDIANS EAGER FOR SODA DRINKS, TOO

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Young Canadians have nothing on the Indians of the North Country when it comes to getting away with red, green, pink and yellow soda water, declares J. A. Morie, a local confectioner, who established the "furthest north" soda fountain at Fort Smith during the past summer. Mr. Morie took in a complete plant for the manufacture of various soft drinks and the production of these was an unending source of wonder to the aboriginees.

The cylinder in which the drinks were made was buried under the ground, the various liquids being piped to the store, and this enthralling process resulted in the entire Indian population being on hand just so long as the performance lasted. Hour after hour, the squaws, children and men would sit in the store and gaze stolidly at the new fangled apparatus, and every few minutes a round of drinks would be in order according to color.

In addition to soft drinks, the Indians are "strong" on candies and for the nonce the natives' diet of straight fish and meat was tempered with the confections of civilization, and they are just as good at eating candies as at drinking "pop," states Mr. Morie.

Like the camel of other cities, the Indians of the North appear to have eight sets of stomachs specially constructed for the containing of liquids, and when Mr. Morie left the North they were still "going strong," with apparently no idea of going out on their trap lines until such times as the total supply of lemonade, ginger pop and candies had disappeared.

COVERS HELP CLEANING.

One of the essential points in cleaning, whether it be the seasonable house-cleaning or the regular weekly cleaning, is to prevent more dust from landing upon furniture than is necessary. Especially is this true in the case of upholstered and other types of furniture that do not have a smooth, hard surface from which the dirt may be easily removed.

As a preventive measure, grey paper cambric cloths to throw over the furniture during the cleaning process, may be used. Of course, other materials may be used, but when made of a special material, their use is limited to the original purpose and there is less danger of their getting mixed up with sheets and other linens or being used by some careless member of the family.

To mend lace place a piece of paper under lace and stitch on machine until the holes are filled. Pic out paper.

BOYS AND WHAT THEY DON'T KNOW

FACTS DISCOVERED FROM TESTS MADE BY SCHOOLMASTER

For some years it has been part of my job as master in a large preparation school for boys to make out each year two "informaion tests," and to superintend the correction of the papers, says Alfred G. Rolfe, in the Atlantic Monthly. Each test contains 100 questions and presupposes on the part of the pupil a bowing acquaintance with the masterpiece of English literature, including the Bible, some knowledeg of the political doings of the day at home and abroad, and smattering of what is politely, but vaguely, styled "general information," which comes from the habit of keeping open the eyes and ears.

The boys who take the tests range from 12 to 19 years of age and are for the most part sons of wealthy parents. They have enjoyed all the advantages that money can buy. Many have travelled widely. Not a few have been exposed to the society of refined and cultured persons.

After reading some hundreds of these "general information" papers I am forced to conclude that the average boy's ignorance of literature, especially of the Bible, is profound, not to say abysmal. The unplumbed depth of the abyss may, perhaps, be assigned to the youth who gave as his version of the third commandment, "Thou shalt not commit Deuteronomy!"

Every boy has a few favorite authors, whom he holds responsible for all that has been written in prose or verse since Shakespeare's day. Longfellow heads the list, with Tennyson and Kipling following closely; and many are the crimes that are committed in their names. There is some reason for attributing "The Vision of Sir Launfal" to Lord Tennyson, for he sang of knights and their visions; but why should he be made to father "Two Years Before the Mast," "Westward Ho!" and "The Ancient Mariner?" Evidently in the minds of many boys, "the sea is his, and he made it."

There are, however, two persons which every boy hails with joy as his very own. These are "Hiawatha" and "The Raven." Few boys have read them, and fewer could quote a line of them, but the majority identify without difficulty quotations from either.

When the history and geography of the United States are in question, the answers are equally astounding. The largest city of Ohio is Detroit. St. Louis "Sinsinnatah" and "Omerhaw." (The average boy refuses to be a slave to orthography.) Washington, Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and Roosevelt were all impeached. Farragut was admiral in the Spanish war, and Mr. Taft was the third President of the United States. In his youthful mind "a hundred years are as a day," and it matters little whether Lee surrendered at Appomattox or at Yorktown.

ADMIRAL BEATTY GUEST OF CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Lord Beatty was Chicago's guest yesterday. On his arrival he was escorted to his hotel by a naval guard of honor and troops. His uniform, decorated with yards of gold cord and rows of service buttons, his service cap tipped saucily over one eye and his famous smile much in evidence, the great Admiral paid a visit to the Great Lakes' Naval Training Station, and when leaving was acclaimed by officers and men as the "world's greatest living commander."

THE PURCHASING AGENT

Useful Function He Performs Under Existing Conditions.

According to figures gathered by P. W. Stamps, Secretary of the Purchasing Agents' Association of Northern California, the annual purchases of these specialists in California alone are estimated at $850,000,000, while the sum total for the country is approximately $5,000,000,000. In describing the duties of these men and urging that they be given the necessary authority for their position, he says:

"A purchasing agent is first of all a co-ordinator. He gathers all the necessary information as regards quality, quantity, and passes it along shaped into an order. He must have a technical knowledge of the articles he buys and, in many instances, must and does know more about the commodity to be purchased than does the seller.

"He must have authority. Without it he is like an automobile without an engine—powerless. Many a salesman, in a short-sighted way, endeavors to go around the purchasing agent. Just as soon as this can be done, then just so soon does the efficacy of the purchasing agent cease. The salesman should recognize that the purchasing agent saves him valuable time because of his knowledge of conditions, markets and commodities, and also because he eliminates country trips and the necessity of dealing with more than one person in an institution.

"The buyers of the old days of cigars and drinks went into the discard with long spirts, and in their place has come a set of men who hope and pray for the day when the majority of salesmen will know at least as much about their own product as does the buyer."

MARRIED 7 SISTERS.

Fred. Harris, ninety years old, has just wedded the last of Peter Yost's seven daughters, each of whom in her turn has been his wife. This eclipses the famous record of "Swiftwater Bill," of Klondike fame, who married the three La More sisters in order of their seniority, bringing to each a new fortune as a bridal gift.

WATCH YOUR RECORDS.

Every car owner should keep a little book with records of the mileage each of his tires have travelled, the quantity of gasoline put in, etc. This is a valuable practice if the owner keeps careful tabs on the various records. He knows which make of tire is giving him the best service, and if the car begins to fall off in its mileage per gallon of gas or oil, he can run down the cause and remedy it.

RUMOURED ENGAGEMENT OF VISCOUNT GREY AND LADY GLENCONNER.

TWO PIERS BURNED.

WEEHAWKEN, N.J., Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Two piers of the Erie railroad, loaded with freight were destroyed by fire which swept the water front opposite 42nd street, New York, late last night.

USES OF THE CALL SLIP.

It Puts Stores in Touch With Demands Made by Customers.

The necessity of closely following the wants of customers, by always having the merchandise desired in the store, makes the question of call slips, as they are termed, an important one. These slips record the wants of customers that cannot be supplied by the store at the moment. They are turned over to the buyers or heads of departments so as to serve as a guide in making future purchases.

A difficulty which this system must overcome to be effective, it is pointed out, is to gain the sympathy of buyers who too often resent the call slip as a slur on their ability to provide what is wanted. A local store, however, has met this objection by showing the buyer it is to his or her advantage to see that the slips are made out for every customer who asks for something which cannot be supplied. Buyers of this store encourage the clerks to put in calls for such articles.

The system used in this establishment is for every sales person to turn in a slip at stated intervals, whether they have a customer's want to write down or not. They merely sign the slip if there has been nothing asked for that the store did not have. When the slips are made out they are turned over to the section head, who is not under the jurisdiction of the buyer. The records then go to the office, where they are combined for the different departments without the names of those who made them out. The buyer receives the report without names, so that the sales person would run no risk of antagonizing the buyer even if the latter were unconvinced of the usefulness of the practice.

Left-over, unsweetened suet pudding is delicious toasted and served with molasses.

DOUGHNUT AS A SYMBOL.

A hotel man was endeavouring to express metaphorically the difference between a pessimist and an optimist by employing as a symbol the humble doughnut.

"The optimist," said he, "sees the doughnut, while the pessimist sees but the hole."

"Perhaps," suggested some one, "that is due to the fact that the optimist has mostly doughnut and the pessimist mostly hole."

STRAIGHTEN FRONT AXLE.

A method of straightening a front axle that has been bent in a vertical plane is to take two lengths of four by four joist, long enough to reach from the upper side of the axle, just outside of each spring plate, to a cross timber of the ceiling or roof of the garage. Then if the jack is placed beneath the axle at the bend enough pressure may be applid by means ef it to force the axle back into shape.

MILK STRIKE IS BEING MINIMIZED

NEW YORK, (Canadian Press). —The employers organization announced last night that sixty per cent. of city's normal milk supply was availabe yesterday and bought by public. It is estimated that seventy per cent. will be available today. The places of four thousand of the eleven thousand men have been filled.

THE NEW TEA WAGON

Tea wagons are becoming more and more efficient as new ideas are introduced in their designing. One of the very newest wagons contains a deep drawer for linen and silver, above which is a rack that pulls out to the side and holds the tray, leaving a clear expanse of table-top when the drop-leaves are raised.

The Reina Cristina, the Spanish flagship at Manila, was hit 75 times in three-quarters of an hour.

MANY LAY CLAIM TO FINDING AMERICA.

Irish Among Seven Nationalities Taking Credit for Discovery at "America's Making."

The exposition of "America's Making" at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory has served to revive one of the oldest questions known to the United States: Who discovered America? So far there are seven nationalites that claim the honor, and new entries are expected every day.

The dispute on occasions has become rather lively particularly as the Icelanders and the Norwegians claimed Leif Ericson. The Italians of course, claim the distinction because of Columbus, as does Spain, because Columbus was backed by Ferdinand and Isabella. A discoverer not so well known is fastened on by the Welsh to prove that they are entitled to having first shown the way to the New World. He was known to tradition as Madoc Ap Owen Gwynedd.

Now come the Irish, who say that it was an Irish saint, St. Brendon, who found America 1,000 years before Columbus stood the egg on the end. St. Brendon's Isle is one ot the mythical islands about which legends grew in the early days, and it was shown on some of the maps which Columbus probably had with him on the voyage. The island was supposed to be somewhere near the West Indies, but it has been known a long time that no such island exists. But the Irish claim at their booth in the exposition that St. Brendon, who was a mariner-monk, born in County Kerry in 484, set forth in a little craft and made his way to the New World. St. Brendon's Fairy Isle is one of the places where Kingsley's water babies played when they were good.

The Irish also say that an Irishman, William Eyres of Galway, was a member of Columbus' crew, and was the first man to step ashore at San Salvador. The Poles also lay claim to America. The threshing out these interesting points is arousing interest in the exposition.

SOME NICE SALADS FOR WINTER MENUS

Salads are always a welcome and also a healthful feature of the dinner menu, and for the winter months the following combinations will be acceptable.

Ripe pears, skinned, halved and served with cream cheese in the core cavity on lettuce with French dressing.

Dates served in the same way.

Cream cheese and nut balls, on lettuce, with mayonnaise or French dressing.

Pineapple slices, with cream cheese ball in center and two strips of pimento laid across. On lettuce, with French or mayonnaise dressing.

Pineapple diced, halved hard grapes and diced ripe peaches, with mayonnaise on lettuce.

Crisp, cool bacon on watercress, with French dressing.

Diced apple, diced orange and broken nut meats, mayonnaise and lettuce.

Diced beets and peas, mayonnaise and lettuce.

Green pepper stuffed with cream cheese and nut meats, sliced on lettuce, with mayonnaise.

Hearts of celery stuffed with cream cheese and nut meats, sliced on lettuce leaves with French dressing.

A slice of tomato, thick with a cream cheese ball and mayonnaise on lettuce.

Two strips of boiled bacon crisscrossed across a slice of tomato, on lettuce with mayonnaise.

A little pat of cottage or cream cheese with a teaspoon of currant or bar-le-duc jelly on lettuce which has been well dressed with French dressing.

String beans and shredded carrots, with mayonnaise on lettuce.

Endive with orange segments, from which the skin has been removed, with mayonnaise. This salad is capable of a very attractive arrangement. Place two segments of orange lenigthwise and nicely fitted into strip of endive, with a spoonful of thick mayonnaise between the pieces of orange. Place a couple of other leaves of endive on the plate.

Chopped celery and beet, with mayonnaise, well mixed, and served in a cup-shaped piece of lettuce.

Halves of canned pears drained of all juice and sprinkled with chopped pecan nut meats, with mayonnaise or French dressing.

Sliced stuffed olives and sliced celery hearts with mayonnaise on lettuce.

SEARCHING FOR LOST CANADIAN EX-SERVICE MEN.

Work of Canadian Investigation Office in Great Britain.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—Searches that sometimes extend across continents for former members of the Canadian Expeditionary who have have disappeared after securing discharge in Great Britain are carried out by the Cnadian Investigation Office, Parliament Mansions, London, Eng.

Capt. H. R. Pickup, who is in charge of the office, is now in Canada for the purpose of arousing interest in the organization. His description of the work of his office tells of much tragedy and romance and deals with women as well as men, of desertion and dishonesty and weakness.

The organization headed by Captain Pickup has been in existence for some years. It not only tries to locate missing ex-service men, but does much in the way or repatriation. At the present moment its existence is seriously threatened by lack of funds.

Eight Men Employed

"Investigation can be started for a missing soldier forty-eight hours after we receive the information at our office in London," said Capt. H. R. Pickup when seen at the Windsor Hotel this morning.

"Eight men only are at present employed in our office, yet our searches for missing men sometimes lead us all over England, across the Channel and even across the Atlantic to Canada and the United States. Scotland Yard has done invaluable work in aiding us, indeed, we have had the cooperation of various societies and police in whatever city a clue might have brought our investigator. There is no special system on which our work can be based. This is what happens:

Securing Information

"The first information usually is brought to us by the missing man's wife or near relative. Then we apply to his former regiment. We learn about his habits. Does he gamble? cards? and so on. Has he any favorite haunts; men with whom he chummed around. Had he any trouble with the police? If he did, we ask Scotland Yard to help us locate him. If we can't get any definite information from ther we try the steamship companies. He may have sailed. A detailed description is sent to the police of the country for where we find he has taken passage and the rest is out in their hands until we hear from them."

Reasons for disappearance of exsoldiers are many, Captain Pickup said. A man has no job, he is down and out and does care to face his family; so he simply disappears. Loss of memory has explained many cases in which, of course, it is sometimes difficult to locate the man and then the medium of the press becomes very useful.

Cases of Desertion

Then they are cases of plain desertion. The missing soldier probably has a wife in Canada who writes to the Canadian Investigation Office to locate her husband for she and her children are in need. Or it may be that the wife has deserted her husband. A month ago, they received word of a man who had deserted his young wife in London. He was located in Minneapolis. Now he has promised to right his ways and is building a home for his family to come to.

"Of the 22,000 Canadian soldiers discharged in England there now remain about 11,000," he said, and explained the reason of their remaining there at the time instead of taking advantage of the opportunity to return to Canada. "Some of them married; others were in trouble and did not want to go back to their people; and yet others had a very good time in England and France and they thought the good times wold last.

"Six months ago they refused the Government's offer of repatriation and waived their right for aid todo the unemployment situation is so bad that they are begging us to pay their passages to Canada. But we can't do anything until they prove to us that they have a position waiting for them and won't become a public charge.'

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

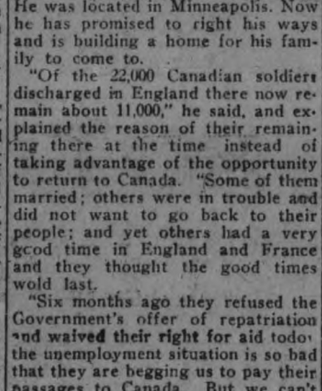
The price of African wives has increased from $5 to $6 and an extra fine one costs $6.50.

Many Chinese women now consent to be photographed something which has been practically unknown among the women of that country heretofore.

Mrs. Bessie P. Bruggeman, of St. Louis, has been nominated by President Harding to be a member of the United States Employees' Compensation Commission.

Dr. Lucy Wanzer, of San Francisco, first woman to be graduated in medicine from the University of California, recently celebrated her eightieth birthday anniversary and forty-fifth anniversary of her practice as a physician.

Grease the wheel bearings at intervals.



STOPS 50 YEARS' DYSPEPSIA

Mr. James amazed at quick results with Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin.

Sufferers from dyspepsia and indigestion often think they can get permanent relief by chewing charcoal tablets, mint lozenges and such things. But constipation usually accompanies dyspepsia and a medicine is required that contains ingredients for both conditions.

Mr. G. James of 5 Norfolk Ave., Galt, Ont., found such a fortunate combination in Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, which gave him relief from 50 years of dyspepsia. With the same remedy Mrs. Ellen Laira of Pictou, N. S., now in her 87th year, freed herself from a lifetime of chronic constipation.

This remarkable medicine is a vegetable compound of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin, the greatest of all the digestants. It acts mildly and gently and does not gripe, and hence it is ideal for old people. It is so safe, however, that thousands of mothers give it to babes in arms. Every druggist sells Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, and a dose will cost you less than a cent. People who once use this medicine never afterwards resort to strong physics, calomel, etc.

Mr. G. James, Galt, Ont.

HALF-OUNCE BOTTLE FREE

Few escape constipation, so even if you do not need a laxative at this moment, let me send you a Half-Ounce Trial Bottle of my Laxative Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE so that you will have it handy when needed. Simply send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 22 Front St., Bridgeburg, Ont. Write me today.

SENATE COMMITTEE RESUMES TARIFF HEARINGS

WASHINGTON, November 3. — Canadian Press. — The Senate Finance Committee is scheduled today to reopen public hearings on the permanent tariff bill, which was laid aside in September for the Revenue Bill. Chairman Penrose announced last night that the first schedule to be taken up would be that of agricultural products, and that at least the first day's sessions would be devoted to rates on wool and woollen products.

Mr. Penrose said also it was planned to take committee action on the resolution extending the emergency tariff. Action on the resolution, which has been adopted by the House has been sought twice, but each time a quorum of the committee was lacking. Suggestions for rates on farm products, decided upon by the agricultural senatorial group, will be presented to the committee as soon as it resumes work.

Drinking a Glass of Hot Water is a Splendid Habit

Cleanse and sweeten the system each morning and wash away poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise—splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can instead both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before eating more food.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity, and gives one a fine appetite for breakfast. A quarter of a pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is enough to make anyone who is bothered with billousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism an enthusiast on internal sanitation.

ARRAIGN ROADMASTER ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

MONTREAL, November 3. Canadian Press. — Otis Kirkland, roadmaster of terminals at Montreal for the Canadian Pacific Railway, was yesterday afternoon arraigned btfore Judge Lanctot on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of George Robert Woodburn, of Westmount, who was killed Monday last, when his automobile was struck by a train at the St. Hubert street crossing. Kirkland pleaded not guilty and was allowed bail in $1000 personal bond.

Kirkland has been found guilty of criminal negligence by a coroner's jury. Evidence submitted was taken to show that Kirkland had not observed all possible care to protect human life at the crossing. A man with a green flag was on duty at the time of the fatality, and the coroner's jury was of the opinion that this did not constitute a sufficient safeguard, more especially as the man had only one eye.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF

Wrist purses fastened on grosgrain bands are being shown.

Lovely and striking ornaments for the hair continue in high favor.

London shops are favoring coats with deep borders of fur, among which are many long-haired pelts.

Capes fashioned of tweed with frocks to match are being shown for sports, travel and utility wear.

Gorgeous fans of straight or curled ostrich are sharing honors with the transparent ones trimmed with glittering sequins or hand painted.

A new fabric for underthings is "crepe d'or," a heavy quality crepe de chine with an allover fine polka dotting done in gilt. It is guaranteed washable.

Bloomer frocks for small girls increase in popularity. For cold weather wear this year some very practical little model of corduroy are used. One little smock dress of black velveteen had bloomers of black and white checked silk.

DISCUSS ARMS PARLEY IN BRITISH COMMONS.

LONDON, November 3. Canadian Press.—A discussion of the Washington conference on limitation of armament and Far Eastern problems, will take place in the House of Comomns next Friday in connection with a resolution presented by the Labor Members "warmly approving of the conference," Austen Chamberlain, the Government leader announced yesterday.

Sir Francis William Lowe, Unionist member from Birmingham, protested against such a discussion at this time because of the adverse effect it might have in the United States and other countries. Mr. Chamberlain replied that this point had been given most serious consideration.

"In indicating my views yesterday," continued the government leader, "as to whether it was desirable to have the discussion, but since then I have considered the matter in consultation with the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary. We are in such complete accord in our desire to see the Washington conference succeed, that the Government confiding in the discretion of the House so to conduct the discussion that it will not prejudice the success of the conference, agreed to the discussion."

STRIP SEEDING TO FIGHT SOIL DRIFTING

CALGARY, Alta., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Strip seeding as an experiment to combat soil drifting has been commenced by the Noble Foundation at Nobleford, C. S. Noble announces. This experiment is a process by which crop is sown in strips at intervals across the land and was one discussed by soil drifting experts at the irrigation convention in Lethbridge last year. Mr. Noble is the first to introduce the experiment in Southern Alberta.

He has large areas in rye this fall and has planted the crop in strips twenty rods wide and twenty rods apart across the western portions of his sections in crop. If wheat is planted in the other spaces this method gives an alternative of stubble and crop, since rye matures early in the summer and wheat is harvested in the fall, thus giving an effectual protection against drifting. The Nobleford farms will have about 11,000 acres in rye this fall.

PAVEMENT FOR TRENTON.

TRENTON, November 2.—Plans for big local improvements here next year, including paved roads, have matured. Already preliminary work for storm drainage is under way.

Could Not Eat

Constipation is caused by a torpid condition of the liver. Dosing with salts, castor oil, etc., to move the bowels, cannot afford more than temporary relief.

If you are to rid yourself of this ailment and the scores of annoying symptoms and diseases which come in its wake, it is necessary to get the liver right by such treatment as is suggested in this letter:

Mrs. Alvin Richards, R. R. No. 1, Seeley's Bay, Ont., writes: "For two years I was afflicted with indigestion, and in the morning when I got up my breath was bad. I had a poor appetite, and just felt like eating certain foods. I used many different medicines as a laxative without benefit, and the doctor's medicine did not help me at all. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and found them better than anything I had ever tried. I can highly recommend them to anyone troubled with constipation or kidney troubles."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

ANOTHER STAGE IN LONG BATTLE OVER GOLD MINE.

Engineer Case May Yet Reach Privy Council.

VANCOUVER, B. C., No. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The recent decision of the Supreme Court in favor of the heirs of Captain J. Alexander and the notice of appeal, which it is believed will take the case ultimately before the Privy Council, marked another stage in the long-drawn-out legal battle waged for control of the famous Engineer gold mine claims. The claims are on the east side of Taku Arm, fifteen miles from Atlin, B. C., and are said to be the richest in free gold in the world, with a valuation of three million dollars.

The defendants in the case were James Allen Fraser, administrator of Captain Alexander's estate and of the estate of Allen I. Smith, sole beneficiary of Alexander, and also Veda M. Smith, wife of Allen Smith; Louisa Smith, his mother, and Charles C. Smith, his brother.

The plaintiffs were the Engineering Mining Company, consisting of 180 shareholders and His Majesty's Attorney-General for British Columbia.

The decision in favor of Alexander's heirs was given on the ground that certain requirements of the Mineral Act were not complied with before commencing the action.

The plaintiffs alleged that the late Captain Alexander and his associates "jumped" the claims; and that although the defendants might have an apparently good Crown grant, this claim was nevertheless based upon a trespass in the first place; and that so long as the root of the title was bad the whole structure fell to the ground.

On the other hand, the defendants rested their case largely on the regularity of the proceedings, and the opportunity afforded the plaintiffs to object in the early stages and their acquiescence during a long period of years.

Six of the leading witnesses in the case met death during the course of the legal struggle. Captain Alexander and his wife went down on the Princess Sophia, wrecked on Vanderbilt Reef. Alexander's heir, Allen I. Smith, committed suicide in Philadelphia in 1919. Edwin Brown, Secretary for the shareholders, disappeared mysteriously from Elma, Wash., many months ago. Joseph Hislop, prominent stockholder, was killed in an accident in Chicago. A. P. Mead, President of the company, slipped on the stairs of a Portland, Ore., building and was killed, and D. C. Brownell, shareholder, died of cancer in San Francisco.

$40,000 LOSS BY FIRE

BAIE ST. PAUL, Que., November 3. Canadian Press. Five houses were destroyed here early this morning by a fire originating in the store of J. O. Baron, the cause of which has not been determined. Damages are set at $40,000 of which only a very small part is covered by insurance. No lives were lost but six families have been rendered homeless.

POLITICAL LEADERS AT LADIES' BAZAAR IN BRIDGENORTH

MESSRS. BURNHAM AND GORDON BOTH GAVE APPROPRIATE ADDRESSES---HALLOWE'EN PASSES OFF SMOOTHLY.

BRIDGENORTH NEWS

BRIDGENORTH, November 4.—Hallowe'en passed off smoothly here, householders anticipating the calls of the youngsters by having on hand a tasty supply of taffy and cake, on the assumption that little folk full of such delicacies are not so prone to indulge in mischief. The pranks played last Monday were as nothing compared with those in the days of our fathers.

Ladies' Aid Bazaar.

The Ladies' Aid bazaar on Tuesday afternoon and evening, though not so largely attended as hoped, was, however, a decided success, socially and financially. The occasion was honoured by the presence of Mr. J. H. Burnham and Mr. G. N. Gordon, who gave two very appropriate addresses.

The evening was spent informally, the story telling and singing were full of wit and wholesome humour, and the social life of the community was seen at its best. The proceeds amounted to $150.00.

Sunday's Services.

Rev. R. S. Longley, B.A., a Methodist missionary on furlough, will speak next Sunday on the Bridgenorth Ciruict, at the regular hours of service, viz., Selwyn 10.30, Fairview 2.30 p.m., and Bridgenorth 7 p.m. Mr. Longley has been in Western China for a number of years, and will interest all with the story of the work of missions in connection with that important field of missionary endeavour.

HARVEY DENIES

may bear upon the immediate future, however disappointing it may be to his hearers. In pursuance of this policy, rightful or wrongful as it may be, I feel impelled to say frankly that the hope voiced by Lord Derby must be regarded as futile.

"Our first president fixed the foreign policy of the United States clearly and unequivocally when he adjured his countrymen never to enter a permanent alliance with any other power. This policy has been re-affirmed by practically all his successors. It was reiterated with great positiveness in our latest national campaign by our present President and was confirmed by a majority of the people so great as to be beyond the pale of comparison.

"In view of these circumstances, am I doing more than stating the whole obvious and inescapable fact when I pronounce the entrance of the United Staes into any permanent alliance, however desirable that action may seem to be, an utter impossibility? May it not be, then, the part of wisdom to avoid discussion or even suggestion of a proposal which, however praiseworthy it might be, could hardly serve any purpose other than to feed enemies and distress friends of both Great Britain and France, who live in the United States?"

CAMPBELLFORD MEN OFF FOR THE HUNT

SIXTY LOCAL HUNTERS HAVE TAKEN OUT LICENSES AND ARE ON THE WAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 4. — The following hunters have already left or will leave during the week-end for the hunting grounds:

James Irwin, Campbellford, Dr. E. J. Free, W. Longmuir, C. Cochrane, H. Green, C. A. Gillespie, Dr. F. De. Free, P. Anderson, E. Barnelle, G. Vanvolkenburg, P. Cochrane, W. J. Meiklejohn, Chas. Duncalfe, F. S. Keller, John Shaw, R. J. Sarginson, R. Cole, F. C. Bonnycastle, J. R. Gay, Ed. Fleming, H. Little, P. Nesbitt, John Nesbitt, J. Greenly, C. Greenly, Norman Bailey, J. McArthur, Thos. Blute, G. E. Beckett, S. A. Hoard, C. Maybee, E. J. Martin, A. Puffer, H. Abernethy, Jas. Mitchell, W. J. Mitchell, Claude Duncalfe, A. Kelleher, Chas. Nells, T. Varcoe, A. L. Rundever, Chas. Keller, G. B. Phillips, G. Stanbury, W. T. Lattie, G. W. Brady, W. H. Brady, C. W. Bocker, Bert Nicholson, S. Nicholson, E. Ayhart, R. Ayhart, W. Ayhart, W. C. Connor, H. Saunders, Thos. Atkinson, Dr. O. C. Watson, W. Jones, J. Scott, J. Gay, E. McCook, P. Denyes, R. Little, S. E. Gust, Hoard Station.

Averted Accident.

Only the presence of mind and prompt action of Councillor Wilkinson saved one of the school children who were watching the test of the fire brigade at noon to-day near the Standard Bank. A milk waggon driving east from across the bridge was almost on top of one of the children standing on the corner when Mr. Wilkinson intervened and snatched the child from danger.

Mr. Forman, of London, Eng., is visiting Mrs. Malin.

Hunting in Haliburton.

Among the local hunters who left this morning for the north country, was the following party: Councillor W. Meiklejohn, Captain, Chief Chas. Duncalfe, Fred Keller, Harvey Graham and Art Kellher. Their headquarters will be at Tory Hill in Haliburton. Dick Cole joins them on Monday.

Jack Dooher's Condition.

Jack Dooher, one of the two brothers who were injured in the collapse of the bandstand at the exhibition grounds during the last lacrosse game of the season, is reported in not quite so favorable a condition. He had made splendid progress until three weeks ago when a change was noticed by his physician, Dr. E. F. Richardson, who is giving the case close attention. The next two weeks will likely determine whether any further operation will be necessary.

Dance at Warkworth.

Harry Walker's dance at Warkworth on Wednesday night was a delightful social success and evidentdently a financial success also. The arrangements were excellent and the music by Jack Strathdee's orchestra of Toronto was thoroughly enjoyed.

Guests were present from all parts of the district. Among those from Campbellford who were present were Mr. F. A. Burgar, Miss Jean Kennedy, Miss Dorothy Colville, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. F. Wilsher, Miss Gertrude Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Birmingham, Mr. D A. Owen, Mrs. Walter Tate, Miss Doren, Frank Nancarrow, Eric Fowlds, Mr. Ennis, Miss Smith, Mr. P. Nancarrow and others. Luncheon was a feature of the evening. The guests received numbers upon entering the hall and were called to supper in groups according to numbers. Each table was set for four persons and with crowding completely eliminated the luncheon proved an unusually pleasant feature.

COBOCONK MAN SERIOUSLY INJURED

LINDSAY, Nov. 4.—Terribly injured by his own rifle, a resident of Coboconk village, lies near death's door at the Ross Memorial Hospital. The accident occurred a few miles from Weaver's home. He had leaned his loaded rifle against the verandah of a house, when the gun apparently slipped and the contents lodged in his abdomen. He was rushed to the Lindsay hospital by motor, and everything possible is being done for him, but very little hope for his recovery is entertained.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

SOCIAL EVENTS IN TOWN—A POLITICAL DEBATE

MILLBROOK, November 4. — Three members of the Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, Mrs. Thos. Bradley, Mrs. P. I Bentley, and Miss Florence Clarke, went to Peterborough on Tuesday evening, 1st November, to enjoy a special meeting with the Goldn Link Lodge of that city, when the Degree Team from the Oshawa Lodge, No 3, initiated three candidates for membership — putting on the work in an especially well-prepared and efficient manner.

Social Evening.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' Church having been invited to spend a Hallowe'en social evening with the Young People's Association of St. John's Church, Peterborough, on Wednesday, 2nd November, three carloads drove in and were most enjoyably entertained by their Peterborough friends. The following were amongst the members of the local society who accepted the invitation: Misses Theo McBride, Hilda and Thelma Spencer, Lillian Clarke, Gertrude Gray, Elsie Weeks, Pearl and Irene Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Hilton, and Messrs. George Needler, A. and M McCorry, and Allan Pitt.

Funeral Yesterday.

The funeral of the late Elizabeth Ferguson Hunter, beloved wife of Alxander Watson, who died on Tuesday, 1st November, in her 65th year, took place from the family residence, Anne Street, on Thursday, 3rd November, at 2 p.m. Rev. G. S. Gervan, pastor of the Grace Presbyterian Church, had charge of the services. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. T. A. Kelly, J. Hunter, A. Hunter, S. Hunter, L. Moore, and I. Pritchard. Interment took place at the Presbyterian Cemetery.

Besides her husband, an adopted daughter, Mrs. Horner (Elizabeth Watson), residing in Millbrook, are left to mourn the loss of a faithful wife and mother.

Went to Port Hope.

Seven carloads of members from the local Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, accepted the invitation of their sister society, Gananarska Lodge, No. 131, Port Hope, on Wednesday, 2nd November, to enjoy an evening with them. Those belonging to the local degree team, who initiated two new candidates at Port Hope, were: Mrs. Harry Fallis, N.G., Mrs. T. Bradley, Mrs. J. A. Vance, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, Mrs. B. R. Roper, Mrs. H Armstrong, Mrs H. Ball, Mrs. A. J. Henderson, Mrs. W. Thorne, Mrs. E. Ball, and Misses Edna Lowery, Belle Harkness, Florence Clarke, Isabelle Handley, May Hales, Olive Sisson, F. Greer, I. Francey, May Byam.

Owing to illness in their families, six other members of the degree team were unable to go. All report a thoroughly enjoyable time.

Seriously Ill.

The many friends of Mrs. James Bingham will regret to learn that she is again seriously ill at the hospital here. Accompanied by her father, Mr. Porteous, Mrs. Bingham expected to have left for Florida on Tuesday of this week to join her husband, who went south about three weeks ago, and spend the winter there. Mr. Bingham returned here on Thursday.

Colonel O'Dell of Cobourg, was amongst those who attended the Preston political meeting here on Wednesday, November 2nd. He and Mr. J. W. Hutchison left on Thursday for their annual deer hunt back north. Others from Millbrook who have gone on a similar expedition are: Messrs. W. H. Bingham, G. R. Todd, J. R. Newton and C. Robinson.

The G.W.V.A. are announcing their next dance to be held in the Armouries on Thursday, November 17th.

Much interest is being taken in the political meeting to be held here next Thursday evening, November 10th, when the Hon. Dr. Edwards, Minister of Health in the Ottawa Cabinet, will be one of the speakers, debating certain questions with Mr. T. R. Preston, the Liberal candidate. It is expected that Mr. F. W. Bowen, the Conservative nominee, will also be present. A lively meeting is predicted for next Thursday evning, and a large crowd expected to be present.

CAMPBELLFORD WINDS UP NEW SIDEWALK WORK to the Roads and Bridges Committee, who agreed to examine the place this morning.

Would Cost Too Much

A letter from the Northern Electric Company suggesting that the company be given an opportunity of revising their estimate of the cost of installing a complete new fire alarm system was left in abeyance. The original estimate was about $10,000, but the Company pointed out that reduced costs of materials and labour would be reflected in the expense of securing a new alarm system.

Manufactured by the Bon Marche, Simcoe Street

We Have Purchased the Entire Stock of the Bon Marche's Samples and Overmakes

at a price that is away below the manufacturing price to the wholesaler. A great many of the women in Peterborough will remember the great Bon Marché sale put on last year of their samples and overmakes. This year we have purchased the entire stock at a much smaller figure on account of the drop in cottons, etc., and on Saturday it will be on sale on the Main Floor, Wash Goods and Lace Goods counter, south aisle. These two departments have been cleared of their regular stock to make room for this great sale. (The prices marked are less than wholesale prices). Here are some of the articles in the lot:

INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS WITH FILMS ON IRON AND STEEL BY P.P. WESTBYE

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL SEE PROCESS OF MANUFACTURE PORTRAYED WITH STARTLING REALISM.

AN ANCIENT INDUSTRY

Mr. P. P. Westbye, vice-president and managing director of the Wm. Hamilton Company, gave an address to the Trades and Labour Council and the public generally in Labour Hall last night, on the subject of Iron and Steel, illustrating his address with exceptionally interesting, and in many respects marvellous, films showing the process of manufacture of iron and steel from the crude ore iron into the highly finished product in sheets, bars and ingots which eventually form some component part of a machine or goes into one of the every-day objects recognized as part of the 20th century civilization.

Alfred Mesley, president of the Council, presided.

"We've learned more about steel to-night than if we had visited the plants. I have been through some of the big American plants, and I assure you you can not see as much as we've seen here." This was the testimonial of William Rudkins.

Mr. T. Tooms, M.L.A., spoke very highly of the educational value of the films and commended the combination of pictures and address highly, while referring to Mr. Westbye's harmonious relations with labour men.

A very warm vote of thanks, moved by Mr. Tooms and seconded by Mr. Rudkins, was tendered to Mr. Westbye and his assistant, who operated the lantern.

It was to be regretted that a larger number did not hear Mr. Westbye or see the pictures. The three reels were secured by him from the Bureau of Mines, American Department of the Interior, and were taken at the plant of the American Rolling Mills, Middleboro, Ohio. So realistic were the films, those who saw them seemed expecting a fiery blast to sweep from the furnaces portrayed on the silver sheet across the room or to have a huge ingot dash from one of the immense electro-magnets upon their unprotected craniums. Mr. Westbye has obtained numerous films from the U. S. government, all of which have been without exception of a very high order, and if others are secured the opportunity to see them should be grasped.

BRITISH NAVAL HERO ARRIVES

Lord Beatty, hero of the North Sea, smilingly acknowledged the greetings of the crowds that lined his path from the Battery, N. Y. to the City Hall.

The Address.

The following is the address he gave on "Iron and Steel":

Iron is a metallic chemical element. It is found sparingly in the free state, but in abundance in ores from which it may readily be obtained, and this abundance lead to its earlier application in the arts at a very remote period.

The Assyrians and Egyptians made use of this metal, and you will find in Genesis that mention is made of Tubal-Cain as the instructor of works in iron and copper. Archologists divide prehistoric times in three periods — stone, bronze and iron age. The iron age is the third of these periods; the utensils and implements being as a general rule made of iron. The term has no real chronological value as there has been no universal synchronous sequence of the three epochs in all quarters of the world.

The Island of South Pacific, the interior of Africa, and part of North and South America passed direct from the stone age to the iron age. In Europe the iron age covered the last of the prehistoric and the earlier part of the historic periods.

In China, Assyria and Egypt it reaches perhaps as far back as 400 years before the Christian area. In the black pyramid of Abusir, at least 3,000 years B.C. Gastin Maspero found some pieces of iron, and in the funeral text of Pepi 1st, about 3,400 B.C. the metal is mentioned.

The use of iron in Northern Europe seems to have been fairly general before the invasion of Caesar. In Denmark it was fairly common in the 1st century; in part of Russia and Siberia as late as the 8th century, while Ireland enters upon the iron age in the 1st century.

Homar states that Greece entered upon the iron age 1200 years before our era.

It is suggested that iron first came into use in Africa, and the finding of worked iron in the great pyramids seems to corroberate this view.

Iron is very scarce in the collections of the Egyptian antiquities. The explanation of this may lie in the fact that the relics are in most cases the paraphernalia of tombs and funeral vessels and vases, and as iron was considered an impure metal by the ancient Egyptians it was never used in the manufacture of these, or other religious purposes.

This idea of impurity would seem a further proof of the African origin of iron, and it was attributed to Seth, the spirit of evil, who, according to Egyptian tradition, governed the central deserts of Africa.

Iron is the most abundant, and the cheapest of the heavy metals. It is also the strongest and most magnetic of known substances. It is perhaps also the most indispensible of all with the exception of the air we breathe and the water we drink. We can substitute most articles for others; one kind of meat for another; wool for cotton; glass can be substituted for other transparent solids. However, even if the earth can be made to yield a substitute for the 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 of tons which we use for rails, wiring, machinery and structural purposes we cannot replace the steel for our cutting tools, or the iron of our magnets. In fact its usefulness and abundance has led us in the last few thousand years to adopt our ways to it. The chief single quality in which it excels is strength, its magnetism, and the property which it alone has of being made at will extremely hard by certain cooling, and soft and extremely pliable by slow cooling; its welding and its shaping, and also its great variety of its properties. In our files and razors it is extremely hard; in our horse shoe nails it is extremely soft, and in some countries in fact the smith will reject the horseshoe nail unless he can bend it on his forehead. With iron we cut and shape iron. It is extremely magnetic and also non-magnetic. It is brittle as glass and almost as pliable as copper. It is extremely springy, and also springless and dead. It is wonderfully strong, and also very weak. It conducts heat and electricity easily, and it also offers great resistance to their passage. It is being readily welded, and it is also incapable of being welded. It is infusible, and also melting with relative ease.

These variations in the properties of iron are brought about in part by corresponding variations in thermal and mechanical treatment to which it is influenced, and in part by variations in the proportions of certain foreign elements which it contains, for unlike most other metals it is never used in the pure state.

Foremost among these elements is carbon, which iron invariably absorbs from the fuel which is used for extracting it from the ore. So strong is the effect of carbon that the use to which the metal is put and indeed its two great classes—the malleable one comprising steel and wrot iron with less than 2.2 p.c. of carbon, and the unmalleable one, cast iron with more than this quality, are based on carbon content.

The history of iron may be divided into three periods. The first was the direct extraction of wrot iron from the ore; the second, which added to this primitive art of extraction of iron, in the form of carbonized, or cast iron, to be used either as cast iron or for conversion into wrot iron, and the third in which the iron worker used a temperature high enough to melt wrot iron, which is called molten steel. For brevity we may call these the periods of wrot iron, cast iron, and molten steel, recognizing that in the second and third the earlier processes continue in use. The first period began in extremely remote prehistoric times. The second period in the 14th century, and the third with the invention of the Bessemer process in 1856.

First Period.

The first period must be left more or less to the imagination, and how the savage smith gradually improved his devices, etc. until we get to the fourth century when valves were invented. The process of iron extracting and manufacturing remain, however, in a very crude state, wasteful of fuel, labor and iron until the 14th century.

Second Period.

This period began in the 14th century, and with this period also began the displacement of the direct extraction of wrot iron from the ore by carbonizing or turning it into cast iron, and by converting it into wrot iron by melting it in a forge. This displacement has gone on ever since, and I venture to say that it is not quite complete even to-day. People at that period were familiar with the casting of bronze, and the casting of iron, therefore, came comparatively easy, thus ornamental castings were made in Susses in the 14th century, and canons weighing 6.000 lbs. in the 16th century. In the 15th century they had blast furnaces of no small dimensions. The progress if the iron industry placed a great demand on fuel, and made such inroads in the forests of England that Queen Elizabeth in 1558 prohibited the cutting of timber in certain parts of the country for iron making, and in 1884 and 1885 it was forbidden to build any more iron works in Surrey, Kent and Sussex. In 1611 Simon Sturdevant patented the use of mineral coal for iron smelting. In 1733 Abraham Derby showed how to make cast iron with coke. The next great improvement came in 1811 when Aubertot in France used for heating steel the furnace gases rich in carbonic oxide, and 1832 the workof heating the blast was done by waste gases. The rapid advance in mechanical engineering in the second period stimulated the iron industry greatly, and iron was rolled into sheets in 1760. The steam engine in 1760 to 1770 improved the facilities of making iron on a large scale, and then came the railroad in 1825.

Third Period.

The third period has above all the invention of Bessemer and open hearth processes, which essentially is the freeing of wrot iron and low carbon steel from mechanically entangled cinder by developing the hitherto unattainable high temperature of 1,500 to 1,600 degrees.

Thus the distinctive work of the second and third period is freeing the metal from mechanical impurities by fusion. In 1856 Bessemer not only invented his process, but also made it known that this product was a very valuable substance. In 1864 the Martin Bros. of Sereuil, France, further developed the open hearth process of making the steel of any desired carbon content by melting together wrot iron and cast iron. After the remarkable development of the blast furnace the Bessemer and open hearth process, the most important part of the third period of the history of iron is the birth and growth of the science and art of iron metalography. In 1868 Tschernoff laid down the fundamental laws for steel. These were supplemented in 1885 by Berniell. In 1888 Osmond showed what wonderful changes could be wrought by thermal treatment. About the same time the so-called Alloy steels were developed by Sir Robt. Hedfield. Then came "high speed steel" by White and Taylor.

A Great Name.

In the history of the progress of science and invention some one great name is usually prominently associated with outstanding advances. This is true in the history of modern steel industry, and the central name here is that of Sir Henry Bessemer.

Bessemer was born at Charlton, England, in Janaury, 1813. He was always of an inventive turn of mind and experimented at his little iron works near London, and in 1858 he announced his results to the British Association. In this paper he described a process of converting cast iron into steel by removing the excess of carbon in the molten metal by a blast of air driven through it. This paper attracted considerable interest amongst the steel masters, and several firms applied for licenses for the use of the process. They had little success, due to the fact that they did not handle the process in the right way. Bessemer, however, went on making steel successfully. Henry Bessemer soon started to sell steel at something like $100 less per ton than the other manufacturers and all the iron masters had to apply for licenses to be allowed to use the new process. Bessemer accumulated a well-earned fortune, was honored in due course by a Fellowship in the Royal Society and knighted by his government.

Robert Musket also deserves great credit for discovering that by adding a certain amount of manganize, which simplifies steel making.

In 1900 the steel production of U. S.A. was 10,188,329 tons. Germany next with 6,645,870 tons and Britain third with 4,901,100 tons. In 1917 U. S.A. turned out 45,060,600 tons, or more than 2-3 of the world's output.

The United States' Steel Corporation is capitalized to $1,404,000,000, and if this capital was turned into gold it would weigh 2,320 tons, or 5,200,000 lbs. A train of 58 railway cars would be required for transport, with 2 big engines at either end. If this capital was made into dollar bills it would measure 166,200 miles, forming a ribbon that would girdle the earth six times and leave two streamers 8,000 miles long floating behind. It would take an expert bank teller 133 years' to count them all, working 8 hours a day, Sunday and Monday.

Acid proof ink is the thing for writing checks, but a soft lead pencil is safest on love letters.

Meet Us In Church on Sunday

NEXT SUNDAY is the Sunday before Thanksgiving. If each of us will but stop to count our blessings we will find that we have much—very much—to be thankful for. There is no better place in which to voice our thanks than in the House of God. Let us attend Church then on Sunday, Nov. 6th, both morning and evening and give praise to the Giver of every good and every perfect gift.

ATTEND CHURCH EVERY SUNDAY IN NOVEMBER.

These are days when the drag-of-life is such that it is easy for us to be neglectful of our Christain duties. One of these is faithful attendance in the Lord's House each Sabbath. Most of us have failed—more or less—in this matter.

Just now there is a Forward Movement under way in Peterboro, in all the Protestant Churches, to promote more faithful church attendance. Church members are being urged—as far as circumstances make it possible—to attend Church regularly, morning and evening, throughout November. We invite you to assist in this splendid movement. If we but go with the object of meeting God there He will be pleased and we will be blessed and all the forces that make for rightousness will be strengthened.

LLOYD GEORGE SEES KING; PERHAPS OVER IRELAND

LONDON, November 4. Canadian Press. — The Prime Minister had an audience with the King at Buckingham Palace last evening. This was not due to any developments in the Irish negotiations, but followed the customary practice that the that the Prime Minister see the King on his return to London from Sandringham.

It is believed, however, that Mr. Lloyd George reported to the King on the progress of the negotiations.

ADVOCATE STEPS TO ADJUST WAR DEBTS

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Steps toward reaching an adjustment of war debts between the Allied nations are urged in resolutions sent to the Chancellor of the Exchequer by the British National Committee of the International Chamber of Commerce. Resolutions advocated the desirability of the negotiations in order to obtain benefits which, in the committee's opinion, would accrue if the war debts of the Allies to Great Britain were reduced or cancelled on the terms to be agreed upon.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS:

MARTHA—Housework and washing is only an excuse for red and ugly hands. I know a great many women who do all their own housework and yet have beautiful white hands. They use what I use, CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM. It is the most wonderful thing in the world for preventing chapping and redness of the hands. I wouldn't be without it. Keep a bottle of CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM on your bathroom shelf and rub a little on your hands every time you have had them in water to do cleaning. It will soften and whiten them and will protect them from wear and tear of housework. You can buy CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM at any Druggist. 40c a large bottle.

"CHEST" PHYSICIANS MET HERE

On Wednesday of this week the members of the Ontario Laennec Society were guests of Dr. F. C. Neal here. This society, which is composed exclusively of physicians engaged in "chest" work, has a membership of thirty in the Province. It is named for the great French scientist, Laennec, who, among other contributions to the cause of science, contributed the invention of the stethescope.

The meetings, which are confined solely to the members of the society itself, were attended here by twenty-six physicians from different parts of the Province, including Drs. Buell and Hopkins, of Kingston; Dr. (Col.) Hart, of Ottawa; Drs. Pratten, Hales and Crane, of London; Drs. Holbrook and Morgan, of Hamilton; Drs. J. Elliott, Caulfield, Minns, McCullough, Porter, Verrall and Parsons, of Toronto; Prof. Graham, of Toronto; Dr. Dobie, of Weston, and Dr. Kindall, of Gravenhurst.

At the afternoon session interesting papers on "chest" work were given by Dr. J. B. Elliott, of Toronto; Dr. Caulfield, of Toronto, Director of the Connaught Laboratories, and by Dr. F. C. Neal, who is the only member of the society in the city, and who presided over both sessions. These were followed by general discussion.

The party was entertained at dinner at the Empress Hotel, and the evening session was held in the Peterborough Medical and Surgical Clinic. Dr. A. E. McCullough of Toronto gave an address and Dr. John Phillips of Cleveland, Director of the Clinic in that city, and a guest of honor for the society on this occasion, spoke on diseases of the mediastinum.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH FOR EIGHT YEARS

The cause of this trouble is the fermentation of food in the stomach which generates a gas that is very frequently belched up. There is also a rumbling of the bowels and a discharge of gas therefrom, there is a constant retching, and the meals are frequently vomited. There is a burning pain in the stomach, the appetite is fickle, the tongue coated, the breath bad, constipation is generally present and the sufferer becomes weak, nervous, depressed and exceedingly miserable.

The blame lies with a sluggish liver, as it holds back the bile which is so necessary to promote the movement of the bowels, and when the bile gets into the blood a badly disordered condition of the stomach, liver and bowels will surely follow.

Keep your liver active and you will always enjoy good health.

Mrs. Agnes Gallant, Reserve Mines, N.S., writes:—"I had been a great sufferer for eight years, from catarrh of the stomach. I tried several, so-called, catarrh remedies without relief until a friend advised me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills which I did, and four vials completely relieved me. That was six years ago, and I have had no return of my old trouble."

Price, 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BEATTY ADVOCATES ANGLO-AMERICAN UNION

CHICAGO, Nov. 4. — (Canadan Press.)—Admiral Beatty, addressing the Commercial Club last night, asserted that if the two great English-speaking nations kept together they had nothing to fear in the world.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—The call of the bugle, the sound of bells and the voice of man swept across the continent from San Francisco yesterday to be hurled out over a wide stretch of ground at Arlington National cemetery with every note and syllable distinct and clear. It was the formal dress rehearsal of the mechanism by which President Harding's voice, as he speaks on Armistice Day over the casket of the United States' unknown soldier, will be carried to an audience waiting before amplifiers in New York and to another gathering in San Francisco.

FINED $1000 FOR HAVING COCAINE AND OPIUM.

MONTREAL, Que., November 3.—Canadian Press.—Judge Cusson yesterday afternoon sentenced Charlie Wing, a Chinaman, to pay a fine of $1000 and costs, or go to jail for six months for having been found illegally in the possession of cocaine and opium. Wing was convicted of the charge by default after the court had been informed that his whereabouts were unknown. He had been released some time ago on $50 bail.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy, with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

RED-HAIRED WOMEN NATURE BAROMETERS

Give Prospective Customers Time For Breakfast

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—Red-headed girls are the best weather guessers. They are natural barometers. No weather forecaster can get along without them. The weather man with a red-headed wife can outguess all others. He can take one look across the breakfast table and tell the weather for the day. Smiles: Fair weather. Frowns: Look out for squalls. Tears: Rain. Hair lying down: Gentle breezes. Hair standing up: Pity the poor souls at sea.

How necessary red-headed girls are to weather forecasting was explained by Prof. Earle G. Linsley, geogrpaher and astronomer at Mills College, in telling his class about "Storm Heralds of the Sky."

Scientists require red hair for experiments with hydrometers, Prof. Limdsley explained, because red hair is more sensitive to weather conditions than other colors. The weather forecasters have to use hydrometers and if they cannot get red hair they are at a disadvantage.

If red hair works on girls the way it dose on the hydrometers, a short cut might be taken by watching the girls instead of the instruments and the life of the weather forecasters would be more enjoyable.

ALBERTA GOVERNMENT SEEKS FREIGHT RATE CUT

EDMONTON, Alta., November 4. Canadian Press.—The Provincial Government will cooperate with the Edmonton Board of Trade in an effort to secure from the railways a temporary rate reduction on grain as a relief measure under existing conditions, and a representative to work with the Board's committee will be appointed. The Government is also considering a request for cooperation from a Vancouver delegation made at a meeting on Wednesday. The Government intends to appoint a freight rate expert to investigate the freight rate question from an Alberta viewpoint, and already some fifteen applications have been received, ranging from Edmonton to Ottawa. It will be the duty of this expert to prepare a case for presentation to the Railway Commission at the January meeting in Ottawa.

$40,000 A WEEK FROM LIQUOR SALE.

VICTORIA, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Profits in the sale of Government liquor in British Columbia will average $40,000 weekly, according to a statement of Hon. J. D. MacLean, Provincial Secretary in the Legislature.

EXHIBITION TRAIN TOURS ONTARIO

WILL BE IN PETERBOROUGH NOVEMBER 11TH

Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways have made arrangements for the splendid all-steel train which was exhibited at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto and visited by over 100,000 people, to be taken on a tour and exhibited at important cities and towns in Western Ontario so that the people of these districts may have the opportunity of seeing and examing the fine turned out Canadian made equipment used on their own road, the Candian National-Grand Trunk Railways.

This splendid all steel train consists of a mammoth Pacific type locomotive and six cars, namely, an express car, colonist car, tourist car, standard day coach, standard sleeper and dining car.

Courteous attendants are in charge of the train and wherever it is exhibited the townfolks will have the opportunity of thoroughly examining and going over every part of the train, while the attendants will be glad to answer questions and supply visitors with informative literature concerning their own road. Train will be at G.T.R. station, Friday, November 11 and will be open for free inspection from 9 a.m. to 10p.m.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless, if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, pancreatin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, or milk, but the pure Bisurated Magnesia, which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little Bisurated Magnesia immediately after a meal, you can get almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow, and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

ROMANTIC FIND OF HUGE DIAMOND

STARVING MEN SUDDENLY BECAME RICHER THAN THEIR DREAMS.

LONDON, November 4. — Details which have reached England of the finding of the "Arc" diamond in South Africa read like a chapter of romance.

It was christened the "Arc" from the initials of the three men who combined to purchase it—Mr. Allen (Bowden, Cheshire), Mr. Russel (Barkley West, S. Africa), and Mr. Crudginton (Moseley, Birmingham.) It weighed 381 carats, uncut.

Some three weeks ago, three men, Screepers, Kaltenbrun and Smith, set out from the Transvaal diggings, for Mosenberg where a new field was shortly to be opened. Smith had his wife and little boy with the party.

A few miles out from Barkley West the boy became ill and forced the party to cease their trek and camp at Gong Gong.

While the mother was nursing her child, the men to fill in their idle time, went to work digging in the vain hope of picking up some trifle. Matters went from bad to worse; the diggers had no luck, and finally the party were reduced to living on maize bread and little else.

The Child Dies.

In such circumstances it is little wonder that the sick child grew steadily worse and died. After the funeral there was no reason for staying in the unlucky and unprofitable camp.

But a chance visitor, a man named Els, had pointed out a bit of ground and had strongly advised the diggers to give it a trial.

They decided to follow his advice, and at the end of two days they were into pjot clay, the soil in which the diamonds are usually found.

Then fortune came to them literally—at one stroke of Kaltenbrun's pick. He turned up something that he took to be a piece of crystal, something so big that it seemed ridiculous to suppose that it could be a diamond. Screepers was called to examine it, and although he, too, pronounced against it being a real stone he washed it in a bucket of water, and examined it more carefully.

The partners hung over their find, scarcely daring to hope, dazzled by the possibility of a fortune in their hands; afraid of the blow that would follow the decision that the stone was no diamond.

The Real Tring.

But their hopes were well founded. Diggers crowded around; the stone was examined and re-examined—was pronounced amid wild excitement to be the genuine thing, and worth a fortune.

When the news reached Barkley West, the centre of the Griqualand West alluvial diggings, diggers and diamond buyers hurried on horseback and on motor cars to Gong-Gong.

The diamond was weighed, and bids began to pour into the lucky diggers, bids of a size that appeared to them to be fabulous.

They kept their heads and refused to sell until they could get their find properly valued.

It was bought at last by the three men mentioned for a sum which is a secret, but which certainly ran into many thousands. It was christened The Arc, and has already taken its place among the world's great gems.

The diggers are made men, but the child, who was their making, lies buried in the quiet little cemetery on the veldt, near the spot where his father found his fortune.

LAVENDER POND.

Surrey Commercial Docks.
(Punch.)

Never a swallow wets his wing
In Lavender Pond from spring to spring;
Never a lily, pure and chill,
Holds her cup for the dews to fill;
Never a willow, gnarled and hoar,
Bends his boughs to a reedy shore;
Never a fragrant flower spike blows there,
Never a lordly king-staff grows there,
Slender and straight where sedges shiver,
And glistening Mayfies glance and quiver,
In Lavender Pond, by London River.

But the Baltic barques they come and go
With their old pump-windmills turning slow,
And the tall Cape Horners rest and ride
Like stately swans on the murky tide,
And the ocean tramps all red and rusted,
Worn and weathered and salt-encrusted,
Gather and cluster near and far,
Derrick and funnel, mast and spar,
From many a port of old renown,
And lonely wharf where the booms float down,
To Lavender Pond, by London town.

And keen and strong is the wind that comes
To the dingy streets of the Deptford slums,
Strong and keen with the scent it steals
Of piled-up acres of Kalamar deals,
Spruce and cedar and baulk sof pine
Red with resin and drenched with brine.
Sawn from the boles that once did stand
Rank on rank in a virgin land.
Where the cougar prowls through the silent glades
In the forest depths of the far Cascades . . . .
And the gulls go flying, the gulls go crying,
And the wind's sob and the water's sighing
Croon to the ships an old sea ditty
In Lavender Pond, by London city.

ATTRACTIVE STORE HELPS BUSINESS.

A Case in Point Afforded by t!... Experience of a Southern Clothing House.

With a public that has grown accustomed to more convenience and comfort, it seems quite likely that a greater effort will be made to provide more attractive stores, both in the way of physical surroundings and in service. Some merchants profess to believe that the big city stores have gone too far in this direction and that a type of luxurious building has been developed that hurts public confidence in merchandise values. But, while this may be true in a few cases, it is pointed out that many retailers could improve their establishments and gain more trade than they now obtain. A notable instance of how public taste will respond, even in times like these, to the opportunity of shopping in newly equipped or more attractive quarters is shown in the experience of a store in the South. The concern is a clothing house of Atlanta, Ga.

Dire predictions were made when this company announced its intention of putting up a new building on a prominent corner in Atlanta. The place was opened in March, when the full force of the re-adjustment was being felt in all business quarters. The South was described as prostrated through the low price of cotton. Results in the new store from the start, however, verified the good judgment of the company officials. Every month has shown an increase in business, and during this month sales are double in units what they were last year, while the general condition of trade is put a 70 per cent. of normal. William W. Orr, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the company, who was here during the past week on a buying trip, explained why the decision was made to invest in a new store.

"We thought the time had come," he said, "to recognize in our business that public taste had greatly developed in past few years. People go to theatres, moving picture houses, restaurants, stations and churches that provide every comfort and satisfy the most exacting demand for what is beautiful. While there have been higher standards created in all fields, the merchant of the medium and smaller cities and towns has not always kept step. No doubt a good many dealers think that it is wise to cultivate the appearance of economy so that their merchandise values look more attractive. But there is an economy that is atcually parsimony, and the old argument that you can buy something cheaper at the cheaper-looking store has lost all its force.

"Environment has come to mean a whole lot in the retail business. The most successful clothing store in the country has always impressed me with its calm poise and well-adjusted dignity of service. The effect on the customer is to put him in his usual surroundings of comfort and convenience and therefore, to introduce no element of dissatisfaction or annoyance which may interfere with the progress of a sale.

"The story is told of a well-known merchant, who started his career behind the counter, that he always sought a common ground of understanding with the customer before he felt assured of a sale. One day, a patron, especially hard to suit dropped in and nothing he was shown appeared to interest him. The merchant in question happened to have some roasted chestnuts in his pocket and commenced eating one, after giving the customer a small supply. They both got eating chestnuts and, from that point on, the sale went along by natural stages to complete success.

"To my mind, that incident is a good illustration of the most imporamt chapter in salesmanship—the need of establishmeng a common ground between the salesman and prospect. But it also illustrates another point, which is that the store must have an atmosphere conducive to the understanding which the salesman wishes to promote. That atmosphere or environment is established nowadays by having a store in which the customer can feel at home and where the surroundings are those to which the patron is accustomed.

"It is true of course, that a store can eb too beautiful and costly for its purpose. The primary function is to sell merchandise and in a commercial sense, the truly beautiful must be useful. A happy means is possible, however, where the first function of the store is preserved and the comfort and taste of the public satisfied.

"The effect of environment on the customer is quite generally recognized by most up-to-date merchants. It should also be noted, moreover, that the sales force responds quite as readily to environment. Put even a first-class clerk in a third-rate store with poor facilities of service and cheap surroundings and, after a few days of struggling to give courteous treatment to customers that clerk is going to fall into the careless habits and inefficient methods of the rest of the employees.

"The appearance of a store now counts a good deal one way or the other, especially as the tendency toward larger units has set in. The progressive house is making a special effort to gain a larger volume of sales and to increase turnover. We have passed out of the period when a store could get along with a nominal amount of sales and profit percentages sufficient to take care of nominal expenses and leave a nominal margin. What are we striving for is much higher sales total at smaller profits, since we have come to realize that it costs no more to make two sales than to make one. As the stores grow larger and more suitably equipped, they are able to offer a wider selection of merchandise, so there are better chances of satisfyng every customer. And, as buying operations grow and reach a larger scale, these stores get merchandising opportunities denied to the smaller dealers. Wholesalers and manufacturers are always more willing to accommodate a large customer than a small one, not only in the matter of selection and deliveries but often on prices.

"As far as our own store is concerned, we have endeavored to carry out every convenience likely to be demanded in the sale of clothing. We have purposely avoided any plan that might give customers an idea that they are being crowded. The ceiling of the first floor is twenty-six feet high. The entrance leads into a foyer and not into a showcase. The aisles are wide, to give the idea of spaciousness, so desirable if the customer is to be made to feel like lingering over rather than hastening his purchase. Morever, our building fronts on three streets so that there is plenty of light for judging fabric colors. Though we put up the building at a time when conditions were considered far from favorable, it seems as though we judged the public taste correctly. Results have exceeded our expectations.

"In the thirty-three years I have put in the clothing business here have been wonderful changes, particularly in the manufacturing branch. When I started, the ready-to-wear suits was indeed a crude affair. Trousers were called pants and they might be made five miles from where the vest was turned out. The coat was produced in another factory, and with indifferent results. The neat-fitting collar of the present day coat was yet to be developed, and the ready-to-wear patron walked along the street showing his back collar button because the coat failed to conceal it About the only alteration possible was to lengthen or reduce the sleeve or trouser size.

"The manufacture of clothing has made great strides. It remains for the clothing merchant in every way possible to exploit the worthy product of the factories."

CLEANS AND POLISHES.

A very good cleaner and polish for furniture and woodwork can be made at home.

Use three tablespoons vinegar, three of olive oil, and a quart or more of warm rainwater. The proportions may be changed to suit one's own judgment.

Clean the article with a woolen cloth wrung out of the mixture, then polish with an old silk cloth, old Kevser silk underwear being fine. This is a good cleanser also for leather seats, if carefully dried.

DENIES B. C. HAS NOT CURTAILED BOOTLEGGING.

VICTORIA, B.C., November 4 (Canadian Press). — Hon. J. W. Dob Farris, Attorney-General, yesterday issued a statement denying the assertion made at the International Prohibition Officials' conference at Regina on Wednesday that Government control in British Columbia had not curtailed bootlegging.

Taking up the Regina statement that 400,000 cases of liquor had been shipped into British Columbia from Saskatchewan liquor warehouses since the British Columbia Government assumed control, and that this liquor was being used for shipment into the United States and other Provinces, Mr. Farris explained that the Provincial Government had no record of the quantity of liquor brought into this Province for the purpose of export from bonded warehouses, and not for local consumption.

BOAG TOOK HIS WIFE'S ADVICE

SINCE TAKING TANLAC TORONTO MAN SAYS HE FEELS LIKE A DIFFERENT PERSON.

William G. Boag, a well-known landscape gardener living at 1522 Bathurst street, Toronto, Ont., is still another witness to the remarkable reconstructive powers of Tanlac. Here is what he says:

"About two years ago I had a severe case of the 'flu' which left me in a mighty bad fix. I had alternate hot and cold spells which often came on me at night. I actually dreaded for bedtime to come for my troubles made it almost impossible for me to sleep. No matter how careful I was about eating, I suffered after meals from gas and intense pains in the pit of my stomach. Attacks of violent headache were frequent and at times my whole body ached. My strength all seemed to leave me, I was dull and languid and felt miserable all the time.

"Well, I took Tanlac on my wife's advice, and that was about the best thing I ever did, for to-day I am a well man. I can eat and sleep like I haven't in years, and nothing ever hurts me. In fact, I am in prime condition in every respect. Tanlac has certainly proven the friend in need to me and I am happy to recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and all leading druggists.

LIVE FROGS FOUND IN ENGLISH ROCK

ZOOLOGIST SAYS IT ISN'T SO, BUT OTHERS SAY IT IS

LONDON, November 4. — Eight live frogs have been discovered embedded in hard stone at a quarry in the Werneth Low (Marple) district of Cheshire.

Th facts seem to be authenticated in the most positive way, but Professor Hickson, head of the zoology branch of Manchester University, when his attention was drawn to it was incredulous.

"There must be some fault of observation," he said, "for these stories are absolutely contrary to what we know of living creatures.

"That stone must have formed millions of years ago, and we have no evidenc that frogs existed then, or, if they did, they must have been different to the single species which we know in Great Britain to-day.

"If these frogs which have just been found vary from the ordinary type, the point becomes one of great scientific interest, but otherwise the case falls to the ground."

Jump to Life.

Weight of reliable testimony, however, distinguishes the story from the scores of similar ones which have come to be regarded as "canards."

The frogs were discovered by three men who, having been unemployed for some months, had been engaged by the Compstall Urban District Council to quarry stone for road mending purposes. The work was being supervised by George Etchells, who is the official in charge of such operations.

The frog colony was disclosed when a block of stone 4ft. 6in. long, 3ft. wide, and 6in. thick, and weighing three hundredweights, which had been laboriously cut by hammer and chisel, was prized up.

The frogs were in two groups, one being 18 inches from the outer surface of the stone, and the other some 2ft. 4in. inside.

The reptiles, which were of an intense black, and dull in appearance, remained quiescent for some moments after being exposed to the light, with heads drawn down. Then, one by one the heads lifted, and the frogs leapt into the air to a distance of 2ft. 6in. or so, and afterwards exhibited all the animation of normal creatures of their species.

Mr. Etchells said:

"We were too amazed to speak, and the frogs were hopping away when Orlando Wild, one of the men, seized them one by one, and threw them into a pool which was close by.

"He marvelled at the power of their hind legs when they were struggling to get free. A duck in the pond seized hold of one of the frogs, but it fought with its hind legs so violently that the bird was compelled to relinquish it.

Changed Colour.

"Unfortunately we did not realise at the time the significance of our find, and the top and bottom pieces of the split stone were mostly broken up for the work on which we were engaged. The impressions of the frogs were clearly visible, and around the indentations were red lines.

"I have preserved two pieces, however, with plain indentations, and they may be seen at my house. To-day many research students from the district have called and inspected them.

"I brought one of the frogs from the pool, and it went a beautiful bronze colour, with handsome stripings on the legs. A second one, which can be seen at my house, has not changed from the first dull black colour.

"People may be incredulous about the matter, but I can only say I shall be pleased to produce the stones and the frogs, and also conduct anyone who is interested to the place where we made the find."

CONNECTICUT GIVES O. K. TO GIRL' BOBBED HAIR

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 3.—Bobbed hair for women will be officially recognized by the State of Connecticut next Monday. The barber's commission will hold examinations of applicants for barber licenses and to the list of qualifications will be added that of properly bobbing hair. The scope of the examination was extended to include bobbing when the attorney-general gave the commmission an oral opinion that the operation may be done only by licensed barbers.

MARRIED TO SAVE HIM FROM JAIL

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. Nov. 4.—Because she alleges in her complaint filed in the Westchester Supreme Court that she married the defendant on the eve of his sailing overseas with the Army of Occupation to save him from prosecution by the Government for making a false statement that he was married, Mrs. Bride Flaherty, of Mount Vernon, brought an action to annul her marriage to John L. Flaherty. The couple were married on August 21, 1918, at Manhasset, L.I., by the Rev. Thomas J. Quinn, where the defendant formerly resided.

The plaintiff says in her complaint that she never loved the defendant and that she married him to save him from disgrace in army circles. The complaint sets forth that the couple first met in May, 1917. In May, 1918, he was drafted in the army. Then the complaint goes on to state that during the acquaintance the defendant visited the plaintiff on numerous occasions and repeatedly proposed marriage to her She says that on August 21, 1918, the defendant came from Jacksonville, Fla., where he had been training with army men and told her that he had been ordered overseas. Mrs. Flaherty says that the defendant told her at the time that when he was inducted into the army he falsely stated that he was married and that unless they were married right away he might get 20 years in a Government prison.

Then plaintiff continues "that she did not love him and did not wsh to marry him, but was greatly interested in his welfare and entertaining a feeling of deep regard feared that he might take his life if she did not agree to his wishes." She says he told her if she would go through the ceremony of marriage they would never live together and she finally agreed to this.

BIG VAUDEVILLE SHOW AT THE CAPITOL TO-NIGHT PROMISES TO BREAK ALL RECORDS FOR ATTENDANCE

If public interest over the telephone is any indication of big business the Capitol will require rubber sides to hold the crowd tonight and the answer is not far to seek. Mr. Edward Abbey offers to-night at his popular resort the first of a series of big Local Vaudeville Nights in place of one or two Professional Acts. Manager Abbey has selected what he considers the cream of Peterboro clever Amateur colony of entertainers which includes Singers, Dancers, Elocutionists, Illusionists, Magicians and Comedians, all these Acts have been cleverly coached and will no doubt give a good account of themselves, they will be paid for their services, and while all Home Brews. Some excellent fun and entertainment is looked forward to, the managers advice to the Public is to come early as no extra price of Admission will be charged for this big show, which is a double Program of high class pictures and regular Big City Vaudeville shows supplied entirely by Peterboro's Best Home Talent. This is a first of a series of these entertainments that Manager Abbey proposes holding during this Fall and Winter season. So once more the slogan for tonigh is to get to the Capitol early and secure a good seat and applaud your clever Amateur entertainers.

FAN—FAN

AT THE CAPITOL.

"The Price of Possession" at the Capitol Theatre this week provides a charming vehicle for Ethel Clayton's grand manner and pretty clothes. With a background of Australian bush life, and later, as the usurping mistress of an old Englinh manor house, she enacts an interesting picture. It is rather unusual for the latter type of life to play an active part in modern pictures, and the result is very attractive.

As the beautiful wife of an expatriated Englishman who steals the papers which entitle him to claim an old English estate, and later dies very conveniently, she comes to England and establishes herself as Lady Barston. When the rightful heir turns up, she refuses to acknowledge his claim, on the ground that "possession is nine points of the law." The adventures of the two, in his efforts to gain his estate and her attempts to frustrate him include a 'doped' wine glass and a plunge into a moonlit sea, with a finale that winds everything up in the most satisfactory manner.

The Capitol offers also a number of interesting short reels, and a funny two-reel comedy entitled "Mamma's Cow Puncher."

—JEANETTE.

AT THE ALLEN.

"OVER THE HILL" PROVING AS BIG A SENSATION HERE AS IN NEW YORK

"Over the Hill" the William Fox special film feature which has been drawing record crowds to the Allen Theatre is certainly deserving of all the fine things the New York press has said about it. The picture is delightful at all times, and forms one of the most finely balanced, examples of sentiment and comedy combined that has been seen on the local screen.

The story tells of a mother love divine—a love which prompts the mother of a brood of six to make every sacrifice—to undergo endless weariness and mental suffering in order that her little ones may be provided with comfort. Then comes old age, and the departure, one by one, of her children.

HER FILM CHILDREN AND HER OWN CHILDREN

One of the unusual features of the William Fox production of "Over the Hill," which is now playing at the Allen Theatre, in fact that the actress who enacted the role of Ma Benton actually has four of her own children playing the parts of filmbrood. Ma Benton is portrayed by Mrs. Mary Carr, for years one of the most popular actresses on American stage. Her children in reel-life are Isaac, Thomas, John, Charles Rebecca and Susan. These children in real life are Stephen, Rosemary, May, Beth and Louella. The latter has already achieved screen reputation, while Stephen, the youngest, is only four.

AT THE GRAND.

THE "MAPLE LEAFS"

The interest of Canadian theatregoers in the work of their own people is fast becoming a matter of record. The accomplishments of our own soldier-boys are such as to leave no possible room for doubt as to their reception. Tonight and tomorrow the Maple Leafs, who were the official entertainment corps of the Fourth Canadian Division at the front in France, will occupy the stage at the Grand Theatre in repetition of the identical entertainment with which they cheered in many lonely and godforsaken hours the rare leisure of their comrades.

Nobody can turn to these boys and say that they did not do their share at the front. Every one of them more than did his bit. After the declaration of the Armistice, they played for a while in Brussels in aid of the destitute Belgians, and then they went to London, where for two years they were the most popular drawing-card in the British Metropolis. Then they came back to their own country, where they have been playing ever since.

This week will be the second occasion on which The Maple Leafs have appeared here.

DeCOURVILLE REVUE

Some very unusual features of the big revue struck me forcibly last week in Toronto. The orchestra starts up with a good wide-awake bang that makes you feel there is something really worth while coming. The curtain remains down and a man with a frock coat without any make up comes down the aisle, steps up to the orchestra rail and in a loud tone of voice addresses a "fake" rehearsal. The leading man the leading lady, the property man and other officials back stage apparently behave in their ordinary capacity and the audience laughs and titters apreciatively when the new soubrette is doing her best (or worst) only to be told by the manager to smile! While he tears his hair and shouts, rotten!! It gives the cue to the whole show. Several similiar skits follow, including burlesques on melodrama, the modern problem play and the two famous ones featuring "Harry Tate on the Links" and "Selling an Automobile." All the antics of the golf enthusiast are set forth in their ridiculous aspects and if any motor salesman needs a few pointers he will very likely profit by watching Mr. Tate's performance and especially his unctuous response to every remark, "Thanks very much."

The opening chorus of any revue or musical show always interests people, usually if it is good, the audience warms up at once. The first vision of the "fifty British Beauties" was one of rare delight, they are all the press says about them, young, graceful, refined, they dance as though they enjoyed themselves they wear wonderful clothes and what is a bit unusual these days they sing well.

Shirley Kellog is fascinating. I had heard so much of her, I was most anxious to see her. She is very good looking, with lovely fair hair worn simply after the fashion of most English women (though Shirley is an American by birth remember) blue eyes and she possesses a fine singing voice. Her gowns are marvellous, they represent the latest dictum of Paris fashions and withal are so becoming. Miss Kellog has no difficulty in winning the audience and even the chorus are worth more than a passing glance. Rarely have I ever seen prettier girls.

"THE MAN FROM HOME"

When Mr. Rex Snelgrove and Miss Zana Vaughn return to Peterboro on Monday night they will offer one of the best plays seen here in a long time. William Hodge, author and comedian, wrote "The Man from Home" for himself and played in it for several seasons. So great was it's success that it was not an uncommon thing for the show to be moved from one theatre to another in the same city. In Boston people refused to let Mr. Hodge leave for nearly an entire season. The reasons for it's great popularity were many.

In the first place it is clean, wholesome well written drama, one might say modern society drama, it's theme appeals to everyone and the dialogue is clever. The scenic effects are most attractive, by the way if you notice such things, Mr. Snelgrove pays particular attention to his scenery, much of which is especially painted for each week's play. Title-hunting has for many years been a favourite pastime with rich American girls, it has lost much of it's novelty of recent years but no doubt the war had something to do with the matter. This side of the water is, just now a safer, more pleasant place to live in than Europe, Bolshevism has done away with the prestige of aristrocracy in Russia, and English nobility seems to be cultivating a disturbing fondness for trade. The same attraction still exists, however, among certain classes, at least for the culture of the old world so "The Man From Home," loses none of it's interest and Rex is extremely clever as Voehees Pike from Kokomo, Indiana. Miss Vaughn will be the charming rich heroine. In reality she remains true to herself, but association with a paid Englich chaperone of fortune hunting proclivities blinds her temporarily to the solid virtues of "The Man From Home."

LAURA

"THE TITLE."

One would have thought that there were enough admirers in Peterborough of Arnold Bennett's stories of the Five Towns to have provided a large audience to see a play written by the same author, even if they had never heard of "Milestones," or did not know that an opportunity would be given of seeing a cast headed by such well-known players as Lumsden Hare, Selene Johnston and Noel Tearle. Yet Mr. Bennett's successful comedy, "The Title," drew only a corporal's guard to the Grand last evening, the majority of Peterborough's play-goers missing a bright and amusing play, splendidly staged and superbly acted.

The subject matter of "The Title" would have been more timely in Canada several years ago, when the granting of such honors was a vexed question before the Canadian Parliament. Titles have been officially abolished in the Dominion now, and are no longer a source of complaint, but Mr. Bennett's play deals with them in such a manner that the average Canadian will be more pleased than ever that they have been thrown overboard. It is the story of the Controller of Accounts in the British Cabinet who, well aware that many titles are recommended by the Government for financial or other assistance received, is horrified to find that he himself is to have a place in the New Year's honor list. Mr. Bennett rather unchivalrously places the odium of coveting titles upon the women. Thus Mr. Culver finds himself in conflict with his wife and his private secretary as soon as he announces his intention of refusing the baronetcy. How in the long run he is persuaded to change his mind is an amusing but somewhat unconvincing manner forms the action of the play. It is a sparkling thing, written in Mr. Bennett's best vein, with subtle wit in the dialogue, and flashing epigrams that will dwell in the memory.

A most capable cast gave a brilliant performance. Mr. Lumsden Hare, well remembered here for his striking work as Estaban, in support of Nance O'Neill in "The Passion Flower," had a part last night as Mr. Culver that was as different as night is from day, from that in which he made his original debut in Peterborough, but he met the test successfully, his work being one of the high lights of a splendid production. Miss Selene Johnston was of invaluable assistance as Mrs. Culver, and Noel Tearle, who incidentally is one of the leading members of the cast in the film success, "Over the Hill," contributed a most convincing performance as Tranto. The other members were fully equal to the demands made upon them. Ernest Cossart, especially scored by his picture of Sampson Straight. —F. D. C.

Camel's hair, heather mixture tweeds and plaids in rough worsteds areused extensively for sports and motor coats. Leather trims many of the more striking plaids.

FINED $100 FOR HOLDING FUR PELTS

PORT HOPE, Nov. 4.—One hundred dollars and $5 costs is the assessment imposed on a local resident for having in his possession the pelts of fur-bearing animals without holding the necessary license. Investigating certain rumors, Mr. John Fleming, district warden game and fisheries, Ottawa, visited Port Hope and discovered one otter skin, nine mink, five muskrats, four racoons, one weazel and one skunk pelt, which the official seized. The holder of these skins had a license for two years, but none since May 31st last, and according to the Act no one is permitted to hold such pelts after his license has expired.

OSHAWA WANTS AMATEUR A. A.

Reformer: Is Oshawa to have an amateur athletic association? That is the question that is being asked by not a few local sportsmen who are interested in the advancement of amateur sport in Oshawa. In speaking to several of those who have taken more than ordinary interest in the various branches of athletics and have done much towards putting Oshawa on the map, the Reformer learns that the general feeling is that until such an organization is formed, hopes cannot be entertained to any extent for success in any branch of sport here.

PREMIER MAY VISIT LINDSAY

LINDSAF, Nov. 4.—While in Peterborough Wednesday night a number of local Conservatives interviewed Premier Meighen at the Empress Hotel, with a view to having him appear in Lindsay at an early date.

It is understood the committee received the assurance that if circumstances permitted, Hon. Mr. Meighen would speak here before the campaign closes.—Lindsay Post.

INTERMEDIATE FINAL HERE ON THE HOLIDAY

As a result of Picton's victoy over Caledonia in the intermediate O. B. A. A. finals yesterday a championship baseball game has been added to Peterboro's Thanksgiv-Day programme. Picton and Caledonia will meet at Riverside Park at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon to decide the intermediate championship of Ontario. Larry Burke of Hamilton and Alex. Kay of Peterboro will umpire and there will be an influx of rooters especially from Picton. Caledonia won first game at home a week ago and Picton returned the complement at Picton yesterday evening up the series and making a third game necessary. Baseball in Peterboro in November will be a novelty but if the weather man is at all kind the game should be well worth seeing for the teams are very evenly matched.

COLLEGIATE TEAM READY FOR FRAY

THE BACKS ARE SHOWING MARKED IMPROVEMENT—THE LINE-UP

The Collegiate team held a hard practise on Tuesday afternoon at the Riverside Park, under the coaching of Mr. C. Browne and Dr. E. Wood. Considerable attention was paid to the kicking and catching. The backs are showing marked improvement at catching the ball. In addition to this special drill, the team was put through a short signal practice, particular attention being paid to interference on end runs for which the team drew a penalty last Saturday.

The team is well balanced and works together smoothly. The boys hope to give the Belleville crew the game of their lives on Saturday.

Belleville have a fairly heavy and fast back division. Maidens, their fast flying wing, is a man that has to be watched at all times for once he gets going it takes a fast man indeed to catch him.

Marshall is a fast, heavy man, the best tackler on their team, and a good line plunger. Yeomans is a fair kicker. Cole, their heavy middle wing, is the outstanding player on their line.

The P. C. I., line-up for Saturday will probably be:

C. Ridpath, flying wing.
L. Browne, J. Fanning, L. Grim, halves.
Capt. D. Young, quarter back.
R. Breyfogle, centre.
D. Hay, S. Stacey, insides.
G. Eastwood, A. Bookhout, middles
E. Legon, N. Rishor, outsides.
G. Maneice, C. Parrington, S.Flemming, F. Stevens, H. Young, W. Gilchrist, substitutes.

CURLING CLUB OF AMERICA MEETS IN UTICA, NOV. 9

UTICA, N.Y., Nov. 4.— (Canadian Press.)— The fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Grand Curling Club of America will be held in this city on Wednesday, November 9, according to annoucement made last night by President Nelson R. Gurley. The warding of the Gordon International Match with Canada which is to be contested in this country this season, is the leading issue. Utica, Saranac Lake and Schenectady are seeking the contest.

SASKATOON-REGINA GAME REPLAYED TO-DAY

SASKATOON, Sask., Nov. 4.— (Canadian Press.) —The game between Regina Rugby Club and Saskatoon for the championship of Saskatchewan will be replayed here today. The game last Saturday was protested by Saskatoon, the protest being upheld by the President of the League. The secretary of the League also dealt with the protest and threw it out. After much quibbling the Regina team recognized the president's ruling and have consented to replay the game.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR ENGLISH WOMEN.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 4.— (Canadian Press). — The English women's field hockey team romped to a 19-0 victory over Radcliffe here yesterday, outclassing the Collegians at all times.

SYRACUSE ELEVEN LEAVES FOR MONTREAL

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 4.— (Canadian Press.)— Coach "Chick" Meehan ,and a squad of 22 players of the Syracuse University football team left here last night for Montreal, where McGill University will be played Saturday. McGill, which has been playing the Canadian style of football, will turn to the American college game Saturday.

Rice water may be used in meatless tomato soup.

PICTON WON FROM CALEDONIA

PICTON, Nov. 4.—The best ball game of the season was played here yesterday in the second game of the home-and-home series for the intermediate championship of Ontario before 1,200 spectators. Picton defeated Caledonia 5-3. Caledonia are the best team seen here this year. They are good sportsmen and gentlemen.

Wright of Caledonia had seven strike-outs, while Croft of Picton had fifteen.

Caledonia won the first game, and the deciding fixture will now take place in Peterborough, Thanksgiving Day, Monday, at 2 p.m. Three or four hundred fans will probably accompany Picton there. The umpires will be Burke, of Hamilton, and Solomon, of Peterborough. Score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Caledonia .. .. 001020000—3	9	7
Picton .. .. .. 01010030x—5	10	5

Line-up: Caledonia — Todd, 1b; Hibbard, 2b; Shaw, 3b; Morrison, ss; Brown, lf; Mover, cf; Brand, rf; Wright, p; N. Morrison, c.

Picton—Mulholland, 1b; Welsh, 2b; Harry Campney, 3b; C. Frederick, ss; Harold Campney, lf; Hudgin, cf; Welsh, rf; Croft, p; W. Frederick, c.

MIDGETS ARE ALL TOGETHER

The Lindsay Midgets will be held together intact, for another season, if the plans of the promoters materialize. All the boys still fit in under the O.H.A. age rule and are all anxious to be in the game once more. A number of excellent subs will be added to the list this year. These boys have worked up from the juvenile teamss and will make excellent material for future use.

SAYS SIZE OF TRAFFIC BEING EXAGGERATED

VANCOUVER, B.C., November 4 (Canadian Press). — Government control has made bootlegging in British Columbia a hazardous and unprofitable business, notwithstanding statements to the contrary made in various quarters, Colonel E. N. Winsby, member of the Liquor Control Board, declared yesterday. The traffic certainly had not grown to any great proportions, such as was alleged at the Regina meeting, Col. Winsby stated.

IRISH-AMERICAN WAR DEAD REACH DUBLIN.

DUBLIN, Nov. 4. — (Canadian Press). — The bodies of twenty-six Irish-American soldiers, who fell in the war, were brought here yesterday from Antwerp. A United States officer was in charge of the bodies, and after the steamer had docked, consigned them to the care of relatives.

The vessel, with flag half-masted, was saluted as she entered port and came up the river. The caskets containing the bodies were removed to the morgue, pending arrangements for interment.

THE NEW BOOK ENDS.

One can not imagine the essays of Emerson and the verses of Tennyson standing in a dignified row between festive little dancing-girl book ends; but volumes of light verse or books of compelling epigrams, or vivid novels one reads just to see what they are like, are quite at home.

Graceful little ballet-girl book-ends made of tinted bisque, with bits of costume picked out in gold and jewel effect, have a charm in blithely furnished boudoirs, and in the collections of all sorts of things found in bachelor apartments, and just now the ballet-girl book-ends are having a vogue and are considered quite the smartest thing.

ELECTION NEWS

CRERAR SAYS TARIFF PRODUCES LITTLE REVENUE

AMHERST, N.S., Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressives, concluded his Maritime Province campaign with a large meeting at Amherst yesterday.

Later in the evening he left for Montreal, on his way to Ottawa, where he speaks on Saturday afternoon in the interest of the Progressive candidate. The whole of next week and the early part of the succeeding week will be devoted to a renewal of his campaign in the crucial battlefields of Ontario, for organizers of three parties agree that it is mainly in the constituencies of Ontario that the election will be lost or won. The heckling which marked Mr. Crerar's closing meeting in Prince Edward Island last night, was not repeated at Amherst. There was but one questioner.

"How will you raise the $500,000,000 required for revenue?" the questioner asked.

"We raised $482,000,000 last year," Mr. Crerar replied, "and of that only $160,000,000 was raised by Customs duties. This year, if you examine the Customs statements you will find that the revenue is not likely to be much more than one-half of what it was last year.

"That is the result of protectionist features in the last budget. You cannot have a tariff for protection that will produce revenue. If you keep goods out of the country, you cannot get revenue from the goods that don't come into the country."

Mr. Crerar argued that the crying need of the hour was economy in every department of public expenditure. "We have about reached the limit of taxation," he said. "We cannot go on taxing, taxing, taxing. When we get down to the point of imposing a sales tax in Canada, we are in a pretty bad way."

On the railway question he claimed that it would make no difference to the solution of the problem if the railways were handed over to private ownership. Canada had guaranteed the enterprises to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars.

There had been no other course for the Government to pursue than to take over the roads. The cardinal weakness was that Canada was overbuilt in railroads. If Canada had a population of fifteen millions, the railway problem would solve itself. "We shall never be free from our railway difficulties," he added, "until we have more freight and passengers to carry. I am among those who think that, potentially, we have a good asset in our railways. But we made the mistake of overbuilding and we must get out of it."

It's unwise to be lazy, and foolish to kill yourself working—so just go ahead and do as you please.

COLLIDED WITH BICYCLE.
At 7 a.m. to-day a motor car driven by William McNutt collided with a bicycle riden by Dominic Dellochetto, an Italian, who was riding to work, at the corner of Hunter and Water Streets. The wheel was badly smashed, but Dellochetto escaped serious injuries.

SUNDAY EVENING AT KNOX CHURCH.
On Sunday evening at Knox Church the choir, under the leadership of Mr. F. E. Waldon, will sing one of Caleb Simper's beautiful cantatas, entitled "A Joyful Thanksgiving." The minister will give a very brief address, but the service will almost entirely be one of praise. The choir can be depended upon to faithfully interpret the magnificent gladness that rings through this great work.

ASSASSIN OF PREMIER HARA WAS DEMENTED

NOT KNOWN WHETHER ATTACK WAS DUE TO POLITICAL RANCOR--MAY AFFECT DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE.

HARA WAS REGARDED AS ENLIGHTENED DEMOCRAT

TOKIO, Nov. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Cablegrams expressing horror over the assassination of Premier Hara poured into the capital to-day, from the capitals of virtually all nations.

The attack on the Premier was made by a demented youth aged nineteen, and there is no definite knowledge as yet that it had its genesis in political rancor which actuated the bitter assaults upon M. Hara and his Governmet in the recent past.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(Canadian Perss).—Public interest in the assassination of Oki Hara has intensified here by consideration of the influence his death may have upon Japan's attitude toward the Washington conference. Newspapers have expressed deep sympathy with Japan in the loss of the Minister who was regarded as an enlightened Democrat.

The Daily News says the assassination was a "very gloomy omen just when the affairs of Japan are approaching what might be the crisis of her history", and at the time of the assassination proves that it was not the deed of an irresponsible madman it will evoke grave apprehensions over the possible reasons which prompted such a horrible expedient.

Thanksgiving

Through days of grievous heartache,
In nights of bitter pain,
So many hopes have faded
So many plans proved vain;
But still the silver lining
Fringes the clouds overhead,
And newer hopes come thronging
Swift after those that fled.

Always another dawning
Follows the longest night,
Turn then from cheerless brooding
Look for the gleaming light;
Lift up the weak and weary
Who falter by the way,
So shall you find new blessings
On this Thanksgiving Day.

ARMISTICE SERVICE AT ST: ANDREW'S

SPECIAL SERVICE AND SPECIAL MUSIC TOMORROW NIGHT

Services of a very special character will be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church to-morrow. In the morning Thanksgiving service and in the evening Armistice service, to be addressed by Rev. Jas. Rollins, who was with the 93rd Battalion overseas. Special music by the choir and by individual members has been arranged for this service. There is no more profitable way of spending Sunday evening than by attending church, and St. Andrew's will give you a hearty welcome.

Start "Bull Dog Drummond" Today

If you like to read about an unconventional, rapid-action hero, with a humorous conversational bent and a quick-acting trigger finger, if you care for the sort of story that contains fun and pathos and an immense variety of thrills, read "Bull Dog Drummond" by Cyril McNeile ("Sapper") which commences in The Examiner today. A gigantic plot by a bunch of master crooks, to overthrow Great Britain, a lovely heroine with a spineless parent, a black-haired, bored adventuress, a Duchess, who possess wonderful jewels, an imprisoned American millionaire and a hero, who is equal and ready for them all, form some the props for one of the most thrilling serials ever offered to the public. A few of the exciting moments in a volume which teems with dramatic situations are supplied by a hooded cobra, a blow-pipe with poisoned darts, a murderous staircase whose fifth step destroys, a session when torture by thumb-screws is requistioned to add versimilitude to the narrative, and an obliterating liquid which most effectively removes all traces of an unfortunate Russian who happens to be in the way of the arch conspirators.

The story, which forms one of an entertaining series from the pen of "Sapper" has been dramatized and the play continues to draw crowded houses at one of the big London theatres. Mr. Percy Hutchinson, the noted English actor who brought "The Luck of the Navy" here a couple of seasons back, may tour Canada in the ner future with "Bull Dog Drummond" included in his repertoire.

CITY DECIDES TO BUY $23,400 PAVING PLANT

CITY ENGINEER ESTIMATES ASPHALT PLANT OPERATED BY CITY WILL SAVE 75 CENTS ON SQUARE YARD OF PAVING

THINKS IT VALUABLE FOR MAINTENANCE WORK

The Board of Works last night made a recommendtion to the City Council that the city purchase an asphalt paving plant. Ald. R. Morrison and Ald. N. Phelan opposed this recommendation but there were enough in favour of it to pass it. It was passed not because the plant is likely to be bought this year, but, according to the chairman, to bring the matter up in Council and leave it ripe for discussion by the "strange hands." Ald. Joseph Crowe told the Board last night would likely be filling their places after January 1.

Cost $23,400.

City Engineer R. H. Parsons favorably reported on the purchase of a plant after inspecting the municipal asphalt plant in Kingston. He submitted a detailed report on his investigations. The plant in Kingston, which is one manufactured by F. . Cummer and Son Co. of Cleveland ,he considered a trifle small, it having a capacity of 750 sq. yds. of 2 inch surface per day. He estimated the expenditure for a plant here as follows:

1,000 sq. yd. asphalt plant complete	$15,000
6-ton tandem roller	4,000
Four 1 1-2 yd. dump waggons	1,600
One 1 1-2 yd. concrete mixer	1,800
Miscellaneous, tools, etc.	1,000
Total	$23,400

City Engineer Parsons suggested $25,000 as an amount not too large to figure on in the expenditure. He estimated that the city by laying its own asphalt by day labor, under present prices, 75 cents under contract prices could be saved on each square yard.

As the quality of the product depends almost entirely on the care in certain operations, Mr. Parsons said he would take no responsibility for the results unless given a free hand in the selection of his men. Later in the discussion he stated that mixing the "top" was a delicate job. He said that the work could be spoiled and the inefficiency not determined for three or four years.

A Wise Investment.

"Do you thoroughly understand it?" asked Ald. Morrison. "Yes. But I can't stand around the plant all day. I could train them, however."

"I don't think they've had any trouble in Kingston with the men," Mayor McIntyre said.

In his report the city engineer said that he believed an asphalt plant would be a wise investment for the city, especially as the maintenance of the pavements is now becoming a serious question.

A Money Saver.

Chairman Ald. Frank Whitehouse argued strongly for the purchase of a plant from an economical viewpoint. Had they had the plant this year on the proposed paving a saving of between $18,000 and $20,000 would have been made. "That's saving enough in one year to pay for the plant," he said.

"I am strongly of the opinion even if we didn't save as much this year you'd be ready to do the paving any time. You could o your repairing any mtie. I'd say it's long been needed," declared Ald. Crowe.

By-law Only Hope.

Ald. Crowe asked how it could be financed. Could it be put in next year's estimates by this Council or debentures issued. Ald. Whitehouse said the actual payment might be made next year, but he would like to see it passed this year. City Clerk Armstrong said that the only way the purchase could be financed at this time of the year would be by presenting a by-law to the people. Ald. Hay felt if presented on Jan. 1 as suggested it wold be turned down.

"I am heartily in support with it in every way and I always have been," remarked Ald. Crowe.

"It's absolutely necessary, but I don't see what your going to do about it this year," Ald. Hay said.

"You will remember I tried to get it out through before. I know a little about contracting and day labour and I am convinced it's the only way for the city to do its work," was the statement of Mayor Mc-

CITY TO PRESENT BY-LAW TO AUTHORIZE DEBENTURE ISSUE FOR SEWAGE PLANT

AFTER TWO YEARS' BATTLE, COUNCIL AGREES TO BUILD ACTIVATED SLUDGE TYPE FAVORED BY PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH—PLANT TO COST $240,000---IMMEDIATE ADVERTISEMENT FOR TENDERS FOR CONSTRUCTION IS AUTHORIZED.

The civic authorities have made a concession to the Provincial Board of Health, after a two-years' battle for the Imhoff sewage disposal system in preference to the "baby" of the Provincial Board, the activated sludge system, and admit defeat owing to the overwhelming power of the Provincial body, which consistently refused to alter its original order.

Last night a resolution was passed in the Board of Works, taking the first step towards the construction of an activated sludge plant. Needless to say, it is much against the Board's inclination, but they realised that further efforts to secure the desired system were futile. On the motion of Ald. J. Crowe and Ald. G. L. Hay, after a lengthy discussion last night, the following resolution was passed:

'That a by-law be prepared in accordance with the order of the Provincial Board of Health to authorise the issue of debentures to the amount of the estimate of the cost made by the City Engineer to pay for the construction of a sewage disposal plant and pumping station, pipe lines, ec., necessary therefor."

Ald. Whitehouse introduced the sewage question by referring to the alleged treatment of Mr. R. H. Parsons by the health authorities.

Ald Whitehouse was not inconsiderably aroused when he told of the Provincial Medical Officer and Sanitary Engineer Dallin making an appointment, after a suitable date had been settled between the two, to see Mr. Parsons in regard to the matter, and when Mr. Parsons went up the M.O.H. was not there.

The appointment with City Engineer Parsons was made in the presence of Ald. Whitehouse and Ald. Hay. The doctor was not prepared to make any commitment then, and asked Mr. Parsons to come up on the date fixed and make his arguments for the Imhoff system.

"I think it's an insult to the city—the least they could have done was to have sent an explanation that the Medical Officer could not be there," said the chairman.

"Dallin was there, but he could get no satisfaction from him," said Mr. Parsons.

Letter Received.

The following self-explanatory letter, dated at Spadina House, 1st November, was read:

Some days ago the City Engineer of Peterborough and certain members of Council interviewed the writer in reference to the Board's reconsidering its order for the establishment at Peterborough of a sewage disposal plant of the activated sludge type. After some discussion your Engineer was invited to present his argument in favour of the "Imhoff" system with sprinkling filters, which he prefers, after which a conference would be arranged with the Board's Engineer and an endeavour made to come to agreement.

I have therefore, to acknowledge Mr. Parson's letter of the 17th instant upon this subject and to say that he met and discussed the matter with the Board's engineer on the 19th instant.

In his statement Mr. Parsons says that the activated sludge plan of sewage disposal is in the experimental stage. However, it is a fact that plants of this character have been in successful operation at the Guelph Agricultural Farm since 1916; at Brampton since 1917; at the government institutions; at Orillia and Burwash; and at the city of Woodstock since 1920, and that the City of Guelph and the town of Timmins are just completing plants of this type. Moreover, the Board has since 1914 successfully operated a unit at our Experimental Station. The City of Milwaukee is spending large sums in the construction of an activated sludge plant and the city of Houston Texas has had one in operation for years.

Your engineer estimates that the "Imhoff" type would cost about $320,000 and the activated sludge about $240,000, or a difference in favor of the latter of $80,000. He points out that the latter system would entail an annual expenditure for power of $6,600. He neglects, however, to add that the capital and interest charges on the estimated difference in cost over a period of twenty years would approximate $6,960 annually. While it is contended by your engineer that skilled labor will be required at the one plant (activated sludge) and not at the other, he forgets that with either type of plant skilled supervision will be required at the pumping station, which help could readily take care of the compressor plant of the activated sludge. In addition help would constantly be required for supervision of the sprinklers in order to prevent clogging, etc. The effluent of the activated sludge plant will of better character in that the bacterial count will be less than that of the "Imhoff" sprinkler type.

The plant recommended by your engineer, including as it does double decked concrete tanks filter beds, sprinklers and humus tanks is quite an involved one, and while for the sake of argument his figures have been taken, the probability is that the first cost of the system he recommends would be much greater than he has estimated.

The Board, after carefully considering the whole matter as between the two types of sewage treatment, is still of the opinion that the activated sludge plant is the better one for the City of Peterborough. Consequently the order for this type of plant formerly served on the city will continue.

Advertise For Tenders.

"They seem convinced we are not to have the "Imhoff" system, commented Ald. Whitehouse when he had concluded reading the letter.

"There is no use "monkeying" with it any more," counselled Ald. Crowe.

"I want this Council to take exception to the treatment we've received up there. I want to know what you're going to do about this treatment to the City Engineer?" asked Ald. Whitehouse, who was entertaining no pleasant thoughts towards Dr. J. W. S. McCullough's board.

"Has McCullough never sent any explantion?" Ald Crowe wanted to know.

"Not a thing."

"As far as the activated sludge goes we're done," admitted City Engineer Parsons. "That's a funny thing if we have to spend $240,000 of people of Peterborough's money and not have any say in it," said Ald. Phelan.

"What I'd like to know is—what are we going to do with all the sludge," commented the City Engineer.

In rapid succession several resolutions were passed Following up the first to speed up the preliminaries, Mayor McIntyre moved, seconded by Ald. Hay, that the City Engineer be authorized to advertise for tenders for the construction of the sewage disposal plant and works connected with it.

Ald. Frank Whitehouse presided, with Mayor McIntyre, Ald. J. Crowe, Ald. N. Phelan, Ald. G. Hay, Ald. Robert Morrison present.

CITY DECIDES TO BUY, ETC.

Intyre. The Mayor asked what the city would have saved on its previous paving, but Mr. Parson did not think it would have amounted to more than 25 cents a square yard. "The city got an extraordinary price then," he said. "I do not think I ever heard of such a low price."

Opposition to Purchase.

Ald. Phelan was the only one to oppose the purchase before Ald. Robert Morrison came in. Ald. Phelan thought the city did not require a plant solely for asphalt because he understood it was too costly for residential streets. City Engineer Parsons made the explanation that in his opinion asphalt could be laid on residential streets without any concrete base. Ald. Phelan misunderstood this reply, he said later. Ald. Crowe moved the recommendation, seconded by Mayor McIntyre that Council purchase an asphalt paving plant. Ald. Whitehouse said this recommendation was to bring matter into Council "and we can thrash it out there."

Refused to Vote.

Ald. Phelan refused to vote. He didn't see what good it would do when they had no means of buying it this year. Ald. Crowe told him he knew more than some "greenhorns" who would be in the Council next year and they merely wanted to get it through.

"I won't vote because we can't put it through this year. I can't come down here an put through a $25,000 purchase without thinking about it," declared Ald. Phelan.

Anticipate "Strange Hands."

When Ald. Morrison appeared the whole matter had to be explained to him. Besides the economical side, Ald. Whitehouse pointed out that local men would be given employment. Ald. Morrison and the City Engineer had a brief passage of arms over how long the plant would last. Mayor McIntyre declared it should last 25 years. "I'm not in favour of buying something we know nothing about." "That's the way I feel about it," added Ald. Phelan.

The resolution carried and Ald. Crowe had the parting shot. "Considering there will be some strang hands here next year I want to get it through," he said.

DIAMOND JUBILEE IN THE MASONIC HALL — PERSONAL MENTION.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 5.—A very enjoyable "At Home" to celebrate their "Diamond Jubilee" was given in the Masonic Rooms on Thursday, November 3rd, by the officers and members of the J. B. Hall Lodge, their wives and friends also being invited, and about one hundred guests being in attendance.

Worshipful Master L. Russell, occupied the chair in a very pleasing and efficient manner, and asked the other Past Masters who were present to come to the platform with him; they were: T. A. Kelly, A. A. Smith, George E. Burnham, C. Thorndyke and G. Harrington. A good musical program was provided Mrs. Sayles Miss Money, and Miss Jean Thorndyke rendering vocal solos in their usual splendid voice and Miss Evans of Toronto, playing two excellent violin solos, Miss Mamie Collins, and Miss May Duncan, being the accompanists for the evening Miss Evans, who completed her musical education abroad, is a guest at the home of Rev. C. R. Spencer and is returning from the Hebrew Conference which has just closed its sessions at Ottawa.

Mr. A. A. Smith gave a very interesting outline of the history of Masonry in Millbrook during the sixty years since District Deputy Grand Master, J. B. Hall, after whom the Lodge is named, was successful in organizing the first Masonic Lodge in this place. Dr. Turner, senior, now residing in Victoria, B.C., is the only surviving Charter member of the original Lodge, and a telegram of greetings was sent him on this occasion of celebrating the "Diamond Jubilee."

Cards and dancing also provided entertainment and refreshments were served. Altogether the evening was a most enjoyable one and will long remain a pleasant memory in the minds of those who were the guests of the Masonic Order.

Lady Supporters

A meeting of the ladies of Cavan and Millbrook will be held in the Conservative Committee rooms on Tuesday, November 8th., at 8 p.m. to organize and arrange plans for working in the interests of Mr. F. W. Bowen, who will be present and address the gathering and confer with those attending it on matters of organization. All lady supporters of the Meighen government are asked to be present.

FIVE MILE ROAD RACE ON THANKSGIVING DAY — REFORM CONVENTION.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 5.—The five-mile road race to be held here on Monday (Thanksgiving Day) is open to all young men of Campbellford and Seymour Township. The racers will leave the Library at 9.30 a.m., and run west to West's Corner, thence one mile south, then easterly, returning to town along Victoria Street and Grand Road. There will be a number of prizes, as well as the silver cup, which will be held by the winner for one year. There is no doubt that much interest will be manifested in these annual races.

Reform Convention.

A convention of the Reform Association of Northumberland will be held in Colborne on Tuesday, November 8th, to endorse the nomination of Charles W. Kerr as a candidate for the Liberal party at the forthcoming Federal elections.

Mr. Harper Shaw, who for a great number of years has resided in Campbellford, leaves to-day for Toronto, where he will join his daughter, Miss Carl, who is on the Public School staff. They will reside on Simpson Avenue. On Tuesday night, at the regular meeting of Golden Rule Lodge, A. F. and A. M., Bro. Shaw was presented with a Masonic ring. Rev. C. F. McIntosh, who made the presentation, eulogized Mr. Shaw's sterling worth. Bro. Bedford, Bro. Harris, Bro. F. W. Wood, and Bro. Birmingham all commented upon Mr. Shaw's faithfulness as a Mason, and in the various activities of town and church. Mr. Shaw expressed his thanks in a touching manner, promising that he would be pleased to return to town at every opportunity.

"Men's Club" Debate.

On Thursday evening, November 10th, at the "Men's Club," at the Parish Hall, the chief business will be a debate, for which Mr. A. J. Jenkins and Mr. Stanley Neale have kindly consented to act as leaders.

Last Day for Registering.

To-day is the last day for registering one's vote for the lists being prepared for use in the coming Federal elections. Mr. R. J. Allan, who is preparing the lists, has been one of the busiest men in town this week, but there are still some who have not looked after the matter, and to-day will no doubt be the busiest yet.

The Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church are holding a sale of home-made cooking in the Public Library this afternoon. The ladies of St. Andrew's have already established for themselves an enviable record for their skill in cooking, and the ladies of town look forward with anticipation to these sales of cooking.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lowe entertained a few of their friends to a jolly little party on Hallowe'en.

Mrs. Maude O'Sullivan is now occupying the house on Queen Street lately occupied by Mr R. T. Cowell.

Miss Agnes McArthur, who is teaching near Hoard's, arrived home last night, to spend the holiday at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Cowell are training a number of young people of town, called Llewoc Pierrott Concert Troupe, for a grand concert to be held in the Opera House on Friday evening, November 18th. This promises to be the best entertainment of the season. Mr. and Mrs. Cowell have already established a reputation for their concerts, and this promises to be the best yet.

Armistice Day Programme.

The Armistice Day programme at unveiling of cenotaph on School Grounds at 10.30 a.m. Mayor Meyers will occupy the chair. Opening prayer by Rev. C. F. McIntosh, followed by hymn, "O God our help in ages past." The Lord's Prayer, led by Rev. H. S. Bennett, B.A. Chorus, "O Canada," by Public School pupils. Address by Major (Rev.) Belford, of Codrington. Two minutes' silence, preceded by 2 G.'s, sounded by trumpeter. The last post. The benediction, followed by National Anthem.

INJUNCTION SUSPENSION THOUGHT MINERS' VICTORY.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press).—The action of the United States Court of Appeal yesterday in suspending that part of the injunction by Judge Anderson applying to the "check-off" system, until further order of the court, was acclaimed last night by officials of the mine workers as a decided victory.

Thanksgiving on Significant Date

PPEMIER SAYS WE CAN LOOK WITH THANKFULNESS ON WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5. — Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister of Canada, gave out the following Thanksgiving Day message here yesterday:

"Thanksgiving Day has now been fixed so that it falls in the week in which the anniversary of the Armistice occurs. This gives us opportunity to acknowledge our manifold blessings and will recall the cessation of the great struggle and our obligation to those who strove to secure the blessings of peace. To the conference at Washington, our minds, at this time, will turn with thankfulness that the nations are to meet in a spirit of concord to seek the removal of causes and means of dispute and conflict."

SHOT AN EAGLE NEAR KEENE

BIRD MEASURED SIX FEET FROM TIP TO TIP—KEENE NEWS.

KEENE, Nov. 5. — While out hunting one day this week, Mr. Robert Nelson shot and wounded an eagle, which had swooped down on his decoys. The bird measured six feet from tip to tip of its wings and is now in possession of Fletcher Bros. A peculiar circumstance in connection with Mr. Wilson's securing the bird is that his father, Mr. James Nelson about the same time in the year, 30 years ago, shot an eagle of the white-headed species.

VOTE TO ABOLISH THE "CHECK-OFF"

STRIKE OF 45,000 MINERS MAY RESULT, IT IS FEARED

ALTOONA, Pa., Nov. 5.—(Canadian Press).—The Central Pennsylvania Coal Association yesterday adopted a resolution abolishing the "check-off" system. Many of the operators expressed the belief the action would result in a strike of 45,000 bituminous miners in this field.

CRUDE OIL PRESENT IN PIPES STOPS GAS FLOW

SARNIA, November 5. Canadian Press. — Owing to the presence of large quanties of crude oil in the natural gas pipes the supply of gas in the sections of Videle and Brock streets north of Cromwell was completely shut off yesterday. Men working on the mains have extracted eleven large barrels of crude oil, worth $3 a barrel, but the pipes are still choked by the incoming oil. Crude oil has always been present in the pipes from the Dover field but the drips have hitherto sufficed to prevent serious trouble with the gas supply.

BETHANY AND THE DISTRICT

BETHANY, Nov. 5.—The Women's Missionary Society held a quilting bee in the basement of the Methodist Church on Wednesday afternoon.

The Epworth League on Wednesday evening was well attended. The opening devotional exercises was taken by the President Miss Dewell after which Mr. Beckel, 1st Vice President took charge of the programme. Mr. Jakeman gave the first part of the topic entitled "Better Speaking" while Mr. Beckel gave the second part.

Rev. Mr and Mrs. Abernathey of Liord added greatly to the success of the programme by their excellent singing. Mr Edward Bray and Mrs. Card also gave a duet Mr. Clifton Spencer of Wellington, sang a solo, then a number were received into membership of the League. One verse of the Hymn "All for Jesus and the Mizpah Benediction closed the meeting.

The Ladies Aid of the Methodist Church are intending to have a chicken pie social in about two weeks.

Messrs. Louis Staples and Geo. Twigg shipped two carload of hogs on Wednesday at the price of $8.50 per cwt.

Miss Evelyn Card, who has been visiting her brother, Mr. Wellington Card for several months return-Wednesday.

A public meeting will be held in the town hall, next Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock in the interest of Mr. Fred Bowen of Orono Conservative candidate for this riding. Dr Edwards of Ottawa will be one of the speakers at this meeting.

Quite a number from this section attended the mass meeting in the Armouries in Peterboro on Wednesday evening to hear the address by the Premier of Canada, Hon. Arthur Meighen.

TWO BANDITRY CHARGES MADE AGAINST PAIR

RYAN AND O'HARA ALSO CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED MURDER OF BANK OFFICIALS IN MONTREAL HOLD-UP.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL ON ALL THREE COUNTS

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Albert Slade, alias Norman Ryan, and Patrick O'Hara were yesterday afternoon committed by Judge Lanctot to stand trial on charges of attempting to rob the Park Avenue Branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here on October 25 last, and, at the same time, in pursuance of their object, attempting to murder H. F. Carnegie and George T. Drew, manager and teller respectively of the branch. Another charge read against the men in court was to the effect that they had held up and robbed the sum of $2,843 from a branch of the Molson's Bank at the corner of Mount Royal

TO CURTAIL WATER SUPPLIES AT VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press.)—A curtailment of water supplies to citizens of this city and adjoining municipalities will come into effect at once to assure adequate protection for the high levels in greater Vancouver. All city reservoirs have been heavily taxed due to the heavy demands from outside points which have been cut off from their normal water sources owing to the wrecking of intake mains by flood waters.

WOMAN DEAD, MAN DYING AFTER SHOOTING AFFRAY

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press.)—Mrs. May Young was shot to death early yesterday at a local hotel, and L. T. Dillon, who is believed by the police to have done the shooting, is lying near death in the general hospital from a self-inflicted wound in the chest. No motive for the crime has been advanced and little is known here of either Dillon or Mrs. Young.

IRISH PARLEYS NOW DEPEND ON CRAIG MEETING

SINN FEIN SAY DELEGATES HAVE REACHED MEASURE OF ACCORD BUT ULSTER IS STUMBLING BLOCK.

PREDICTS RENEWED WAR WILL COST 250,000,000 POUNDS

LONDON, November 5 (Canadian Press). — Developments in the negotiations toward an Irish settlement now are understood to hinge on the conferences which Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, will have in the next few days with Mr. Lloyd-George and Sir Edward Carson.

A special meeting was held by the Ulster Cabinet in Belfast yesterday, prior to the departure of Sir James for London. He will spend the week-end with his son at Eton, meeting the Prime Minister, it is expected, on Monday.

At Sinn Fein headquarters it was stated that the British representatives and the Sinn Feiners had reached a measure of accord that promised a solution of all issues, and that Ulster now was as great a stumbling block in the path of the negotiations from the Government's point of view, as that of the Sinn Fein.

Desmond Fitzgerald, of the Sinn Fein party, in a statement yesterday afternoon, definitely denied a number of reports published in London newspapers relative to points on which an agreement is said to have been reached by the conferees. He declared untrue rumours that the Sinn Feiners had accepted the principle of dominion status and British control of Irish ports and had agreed to contribute from the Irish

The Foundation of Health is Habit

"For every man who has lost his life by what he did in the last five minutes a hundred men have died because of what they had been doing in the last five years."

Life is made up of habits. There is the health habit. And also the habit of ill-health. It is surprising what a lot of people have developed the latter.

What hosts of women have bilious spells and bilious headaches about every so often, year in and year out, and never think of correcting the action of the liver, and thereby removing the cause of this oft-recurring trouble.

They have formed the habit of being bilious.

Many are the men, indoor workers as well as those who spend their time in the open, who frequently suffer from backache, and yet neglect to get the kidneys in healthful condition.

It is the backache habit which is robbing life of its pleasures for them.

These are dangerous habits.

Some people live for many years with their systems poisoned by impurities—they live and suffer.

Others soon develop Bright's disease, diabetes, high blood pressure or hardening of the arteries, and quickly have their lives snuffed out.

The greatest rule of health is "daily movement of the bowels."

This is also the most valuable of health habits.

To get back to this rule, to awaken the sluggish action of the liver and kidneys, to cleanse the system and purify the blood, there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

By using one pill a dose at bedtime two or three times a week, just as often as is necessary to keep the bowels regular, you will in a few weeks restore the healthful action of these filtering and excretory organs and correct any derangements of the digestive system.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you as nothing else can to get back to the habit of healthful living.

You will live a longer and a happier life by reason of their us

These letters will interest you, and a test of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will prove their exceptional merits in relieving the common, every-day ills and preventing the more serious ones. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Bilious Headache

Mrs. John Ireland, R. R. No. 2, King, Ont., writes:

"I was a great sufferer from severe headaches and bilious spells. I tried a number of remedies without obtaining any benefit until I was advised to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. These completely relieved me, and made me feel like a new person. I am very grateful to Dr. Chase's medicines for what they have done for me, and you may use my letter for the benefit of others."

Rheumatism

Mr. George Weathers, Huntsville, Ont., writes:

"I was troubled with rheumatism for eighteen years, and although I tried a number of different treatments nothing did me any good. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and can truthfully say they completely relieved me."

Kidney Trouble

Mr. George Stevenson, Rounthwaite, Man., writes:

"For seven months I suffered from Kidney trouble, backache and dizzy turns, and could get no relief. My back ached so severely that I could not turn in bed, and finally I had to quit work. One day I received a copy of Dr. Chase's Almanac through the mail, and after reading how highly Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills were recommended, I gave them a trial. I had tried various other pills and remedies with no effect whatever, but immediately I started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I got relief, and two boxes made me well."

MONDAY'S DEMONSTRATION.

Thanks to th public spirit and enterprise of the local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, an opportunity will be given on Monday for Peterborough to give public testimony to the fact that the people of this city have not forgotten the gallant officers and men whose lives were the price that Peterborough had to pay towards the victory of the Empire.

The co-operation of the public is urged on behalf of the demonstration which has been prepared for Monday morning. The parade of veterans, military units, and other local organisations should not be a half-hearted affair, but a procession worthy of the occasion that is being observed.

Similarly the memorial service in the Armouries which follows, and the unveiling of the Cenotaph by Brigadier-General King immediately afterwards should be participated in by thousands of citizens anxious to do honour to the memory of the men who will not come back.

On that first Armistice Day, Peterborough proved that she could rejoice as one community. On the anniversary of that memorable occasion, may it not be hoped that there will be a universal and genuine expression of the city's gratitude towards those who helped to bring victory to the Allied cause.

THE LEADER'S TASK.

Complaints are being heard that the present election campaign is too long, that in some ridings the people have heard all the political arguments they care to listen to, and that although polling day is still over a month away they are already tired of politics. This may be quite true. So far as the individual ridings are concerned three weeks' or a month's campaigning would be ample. But it must be remembered that in a Dominion election some regard must be paid to the leaders of the various parties. To even sketchily cover the whole Dominion and to discuss in the various Provinces the issues of the campaign is a gigantic task. It cannot be done in a month. It can only be done roughly in two months. That is why it is necessary to prolong the campaign; the time may seem long to the electors, but to the leaders, who aim at visiting important centres in every section of this vast country, it must be too short a period in which to accomplish their plans. To the men at the head of the various parties a Dominion election is an undertaking that calls for thousands of miles of travelling, for two or more addresses a day, for unlimited patience and tact in meeting thousands of people, and listening to scores of grievances and troubles in regard to party organisation in the different ridings. Such a task requires time, which explains the length of the campaign.

Five of every ten women in Great Britain are smokers.

NEW YORK'S STRIKE.

The strike of the milk-drivers of New York City is another demonstration of the fact that in labour troubles of this kind it is the public that suffers most. Both sides must share the blame for the conditions that exist in New York, for the men's demand for $5.00 increase in wages was exorbitant under present conditions, while the employing distributors have prevented a chance of settling the trouble by refusing to arbitrate.

Meanwhile a milk ramine is threatened, and the lives of thousands of children are in peril as a result. So bad, indeed, is the situation that unless it is speedily bettered, Health Commissioner Copeland has threatened that the city will take over and operate the distributing and pasteurising plants of the companies affected.

It is unhappily true that as usual the men chiefly responsible for the tie-up are not the worst hurt—the women and children are the victims upon whom the baneful results of the strike are chiefly felt. The use of the strike weapon is always to be deplored; when, as in this case, thousands of innocent people have to suffer a strike is more than a mistake—it is a crime.

MR. MURPHY'S CHARGES.

The course adopted in 1917 by those newspapers which saw fit to change their political allegiance for the time being and support the Union Government, scarcely seems to be an issue in the present campaign, and Hon. Charles Murphy might be better occupied in discussing the questions that are of moment in this contest than in making such blanket charges as "the newspapers sold out in 1917." The Examiner, although it did not happen to be one of those journals which changed front in 1917 does not believe for one moment, nor does it conceive possible that any sensible Canadian would believe that the newspapers Mr. Murphy refers to "sold out," as he bitterly describes it. Newspapers, like individuals, have a right to their own opinions on the issues of the day. If some journals four years ago thought it their duty to sever the ties that had bound them to a particular political party, just as thousands of individual voters did, it may be legitimate criticism to say that their course was a mistaken one; but Mr. Murphy's attack is not against the judgment of the press, but against its honour and integrity, and will be resented by the newspapers generally, no matter which side they were on in 1917.

The need for scientific management of the affairs of municipalities is being brought home to not a few centres this year. The case of Streetsville has been brought to notice by the amount of taxation levied against that place for the next two years, which will be at the rate of 62 mills on the dollar.

According to reports, this rate is the outcome of the defeat of the by-law authorising an issue of debentures to pay for a new cement roadway which was built first, and then submitted to the people. The result is that the money will have to be raised in two years, instead of in 20. The money to repay the bank will be raised one year and the money to pay the contractor the next. In 1922 the tax rate will be raised eight mills over the 1921 rate and seven mills extra imposed in 1923

This may be a case where the taxpayer is hit a little harder than in other centres. There are plenty of cases in all our cities where property, with local improvements counted in, is paying around 50 and 60 mills in taxes. Of course, it is too much. It puts too great a levy on a man's purse for the sake of living in a given locality. It ushers in a period of high rents, which is an undesirable thing for any community.

It is hard for a City Council to go ahead and run city affairs as any member of Council would his own private business. It is all right in theory, but not in practice.

Take the matter of roads, pavements, sewers, etc., and their construction. When work is slack, there is a demand that the city go ahead with construction work in order to ease off the unemployment situation. We are not finding fault with this practice, as it is imperative that as much work as possible be found.

But from the point of strict business administration, what do we find?

Council cannot sit down and figure closely on costs, material, the suitability of weather conditions, actual needs of the situation, etc. A private business concern, keeping in mind its earnings and spendings, its profits and loss accounts, and the fact that it must face competition on this basis, could meet the situation in an entirely different light.

On the part of a municipal Council there is a different sort of pressure entirely. There is the pressure of urgency for work regardless of the absolute necessity of the work being done. There is the pressure supplied by the fact that many men, residents of the municipality, are in need of work, and must be taken on, often regardless of their fitness for the position.

What happens?

The tax rate in every municipality in the country answers this question so thoroughly that little can be said. The municipality pays a top price for its public works in many cases. The aldermen (or councillors as the case may be) are blamed generously for the amount of money spent for a given project, the critics finding it convenient to forget that the supplying of necessary work was one of the considerations in going on with the undertaking at all.

And so the thing goes, and so the tax rates grow.

The handling of civic finances is work for a professional. It certainly is too delicate an operation to be entrusted to the care of any new set of men who may head the polls at the annual municipal turnover.

The high rates we are paying now are in many cases traceable to past neglect and the following of the lines of least resistance.

As stated before in these columns, the heavy tax rate will probably work out its own salvation, because it will FORCE ratepayers to think seriously, and to participate in problems of civic administration.

The Mystery of Influenza

"No technical device or narrow specific remedy against influenza can avail, apart from the sanitary environment of the community and the sound nutrition of the individual."

SIR GEORGE NEWMAN, D.C.L., M.D., F.R.S.E., etc., Chief Medical Adviser of the British Ministry of Health.

"Notwithstanding all the skill and diligence brought to bear on its study, influenza remains to a great extent inscrutable—a veiled assassin—an unsolved problem—the solution of which would be one of the greatest triumphs of scientific medicine. Its true cause has not yet been differentiated nor the specific organism responsible for it isolated. The laws regulating its migrations and variations have not yet been discovered, nor has any protective vaccine against it been evolved. . . . It is in maintaining the nutrition of the individual that Bovril plays its part in our defence against influenza. Once influenza has been contracted, I believe the best prescription for treatment can be conveyed in three words—'bed and Bovril.'"

CANADIAN FLOUR MILLS' GOOD SHOWING

Big Canadian mills did not do as well on the crop of 1920 as on the immediately preceding crops, but nevertheless made a good showing, says the American Miller. The annual reports up to September 1 of this year show that the Ogilvie Flour Mills Company made $496,300, or 10.85 per cent. on its common stock. The St. Lawrence Flour Mills Company made $80,450, or 6.7 per cent. on its common stock. The Lake of the Woods Milling Company made $458,000 on milling and enough from subsidiaries to bring the total up to $762,000. It paid 7 per cent. on preferred stock and 12 per cent. on common and added $6[illegible],000 to surplus.

borne, provided that all the forces in the nation were united and exerted to the utmost.

Herr Hermes said the measure was aimed at making a just compromise between burdening respectively the consumer and the property-owner. The main part of the taxation of property would consist in the taxation of fortunes. It was proposed to increase the present fortunes tax and make assessments subject to periodical revision based on the actual value of the fortune at the time of the revision.

"It is estimated," said the Minister, "that we can reckon on an increased yield of from forty billion to forty-two billion marks from the proposed taxation. I must, however, declare that our obligations under the Allied ultimatum cannot be met by this great burdening of the taxpayer."

The ordinary budget expenditure of 1921 amounts in round figures to 114,250,000,000 marks.

REPARATIONS MAXIMUM 61 PER CENT. OF DAMAGE.

PARIS, Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press).—The maximum amount of reparations which France can hope to receive from Germany is placed at sixty-eight billion gold marks, or about 61 per cent. of the damage suffered, in the outline of the 1922 budget presented to the Chamber by M. Bokanowski, reporter of the Budget Committee.

The anticipated expenditures of the Government for 1922 have been reduced to 24,953,000,000 francs, with receipts of 23,327,000,000 francs, the deficit of 1,626,000,000 francs to be covered by an issue of Treasury bonds.

U. S. AND CANADIAN OFFICERS WILL CONFER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes will confer with Canadian officials in Detroit about the middle of the month on the border liquor problem, it was announced yesterday at Prohibition headquarters. The conference, it was said, would be held particularly with respect to the Province of Ontario and the Michigan border.

"The spirit of co-operation manifested by the Canadian officials," Mr .Haynes said to-day, "is very greatly appreciated by the Prohibition officials of this country and no doubt these conferences will develop many policies of mutual understanding and helpfulness."

ALLEGED DOPESTER SQUEEZES THROUGH BARS

MONTREAL, Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press.)— Despite the fact that he was under medical treatment in the cells, Guy Pierce, who was being held on a chareg of having drugs in his possession, squeezed through the bars of the window of the cells at headquarters station in the city hall annex yesterday and made his escape. The window is nearly 20 feet from the floor and the bars were slightly bent in the centre, indicating that Pierce, who is a small, thin man, had squeezed himself through them.

Owing to his physical condition it was not thought possible that Pierce could effect an escape.

BALLYKINLAR PRISONERS HAVE NOT BEEN RELEASED.

LONDON, Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press).—It developed yesterday that the report made public Thursday from Belfast to the effect that all the Sinn Fein prisoners in the Ballykinlar internment camp near that city, numbering about 1,700, had been released, was erroneous. The giving out of the report, it seems, was based on the release of a number of prisoners from this camp, owing to congestion there, but no general freeing of the interned men occurred.

BUSINESS CONFIDENCE SHOWN BY CREDITMEN.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 5 (Canadian Press). — Confidence in general business conditions throughout Canada is shown in the weekly trade report of the Canadian Creditmen's Trust Association issued today.

From Montreal and Quebec advices show that wholesalers find business "still improving." Manufacturers are also stimulated by the demand from Canadian wholesalers, but find export demands almost nil.

Toronto and Ontario reports state that as a rule manufacturers find the revival in trade sustained with a good outlook for the early part of 1922. In several lines wholesalers report volume larger than last year, but, of course, with prices lower.

The improvement is also noticeable in retail circles. Collections are "fair."

Winnipeg wholesalers are, as a rule, busier than a month ago, when inquiries showed a distinct revival in many lines, such as dry goods, ladies' wear, boots and shoes, furniture, and musical instruments. Retail circles report business showing improvement.

NEW DRUG WILL MAKE MILLIONS OF PEOPLE WELL

NEW DRUG WORTH MILLIONS TO SUFFERING HUMANITY. NUMBERLESS PEOPLE GO DOWN TO THEIR GRAVES 10 TO 20 YEARS BEFORE THEY SHOULD.

A poisoned system soon decays, causing early death. We are only as old as our livers. When the liver is out of order the system is unable to discharge the waste matter, causing a poisoning of the whole system, which no doubt causes all sorts of aches and pains. When the system becomes poisoned, some organ of the body is sure to suffer. It may be your stomach, Kidneys, Liver, Intestines, etc.

There is only one drug known that will relieve this, and that is Tanated Calomel, which is the only drug known that will act directly upon the Liver. Tanalated Calomel is very different from all forms of Calomel. It is very quickly taken up by the system, and acts on the Liver in a few minutes after taking. No Salts, Seidlitz, or Castor Oil are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is self-eliminating. No nausea, sick stomach, or griping after taking.

You no doubt have been taking all sorts of Tonics, Laxatives from time to time, with only temporary results. The reason is that none of these medicines act upon the Liver, and you cannot have good health with a disordered Liver.

Doctors recommend that you take One Tanated Calomel about 15 minutes before meals or take two at bedtime, and you will get a good sleep, waking in the morning feeling 100% better, full of vigor, bright, alert, clear-headed, and ready for a good day's work.

Tanated Calomel is sold in Peterborough by F. C. Webber, 220 Charlotte Street.

Our Thanksgiving Message

¶Once more, like some revolving light that gladdens the sailor's eye, the Day of National Thanksgiving comes again. And from a thousand temples the song of gratitude will ascend; from uncounted homes the voice of love and mirth will greet the returning feet of unforgotten friends; from innumerable hearts a silent hymn of praise will chant the blessings of the by-gone year.

¶And our young and awakening nation, our beloved Canada, will again repeat the familiar strain of gratitude and trust — and seldom with fuller heart than now. Coupled with our sense of many a deficiency, our consciousness of many a fault, will be our ever-deepening paean for growing prosperity and increasing achievement and enlarging vision. Amid the surging billows that oversweep so large a portion of the world, Canada stands, like a kindly beacon, with the morning light upon her brow, virgin among the great nations of the earth. Learning from the often bitter experience of older lands, she seeks to avoid their errors and to emulate their virtues; and, while rejoicing in her ever multiplying harvests, her ever-widening manufacturies, her ever-increasing wealth, she still seeks to remember that her life "consisteth not in the abundance of the things that she possesseth," and that her true crown and glory are in the nobility of her sons, the happiness of her homes, the faith and honor of her national life. In all of these we rejoice on this Thanksgiving Day, which now sets apart as forever sacred that hour when white-robed peace returned with healing in her wings.

¶OAK HALL is thankful for a year of prosperity, for an outlook fairer than she has known before. But OAK HALL is a thousand times more thankful for this—for the confidence of countless patrons, for the friendship and gratitude of the host who began as customers and now continue as tried and trusted friends. Such is OAK HALL'S contribution to the far-flung song of thanskgiving.

THE UNVEILING OF CENOTAPH WILL BE MAIN FEATURE OF THE VETS' PROGRAMME ON THANKSGIVING DAY

The cenotaph is reported by those who have seen it as being a remarkably handsome piece of work, with an effect of quiet dignity very appropriate to the purpose for which it was erected. The unveiling of this memorial should be an event of importance, and the G.W.V.A. is preparing for a busy day in and around their establishment. The parade and musical programme at the Armories and the actual unveiling ceremonies will occupy some time, and, for the balance of the day, the Veterans will keep open house. The Ladies' Auxiliary is busily engaged in preparations on quite a vast scale, as a large number of visitors from surrounding districts is expected, and the ladies intend to put in supplies of tea, coffee, cake, pie and doughnuts to all comers.

IN FLANDERS' FIELDS.

In Flanders' fields the popies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are dead; short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' Fields
Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders' Fields

FROM POVERTY TO FAME

A very charming article, entitled "Poor Men Who Made Us Rich," appeared in a recent number of 'My Magazine," and since it is improbable that most of our readers will have an opportunity of reading it, a short summary is given here. The editor says:

"We are born to a marvellous heritage, all of us, to wealth beyond the dreams of millionaires. Who made it all? From whom do we receive these riches beyond compare, the opportunity of winning power and wealth and happiness in a world to which we come with nothing in our hands

"It is certainly not true, as a gloomy reacher at St. Paul's has said not long ago, that all this wealth has been built up by his own class. We think it right in this magazine, which believes that God loves all his children equally, to protest against the spirit of class distinction spread by Dean Inge, who complains that the sons of his own class have to fight for their living against the educated sons of working men. He thinks it wrong of the nation to create competition for rich men's sons by giving opportunity to poor men's sons.

"Well, the noblest treasure this world holds came to it from One who was once a carpenter, and our faith has still its roots in Galilee. But, even if Christianity had never come to tell us that all are equal in the sight of God, the facts of history would still be here, and they contradict the Dean on every page."

"No one class has made the world the place it is; no single group of men has laid for us the foundation of our wealth. It is good for the Dean of St. Paul's that he lives in Shakespeare's land, and Shakespeare was a poor boy. It is good for him every day of his life that Edison has lived, and Edison was a poor boy. The truth is that civilization would be shorn of half its glory if we were robbed of the fruits of poor men's lives."

Then follow several pages of interesting facts about famous men, all of which go to show how much the poor have enriched the world.

Beginning with literary celebrities, the writer touches on Homer, Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Robert Burns, etc., and the following are a few of the statements gleaned from the story.

Literary Men.

Homer, the father of poetry, was a blind, begging minstrel.

Shakespeare was the son of a pettifogging tradesman of Stratford. Shakespeare held horses for sixpence.

Ben Jonson laid bricks for pence.

Robert Burns was a farm servant's son, born in so poor a cottage that when a wind caught the brick chimney the clay walls could not hold it together.

Samuel Johnson, sent by charity to Oxford, was so impoverished that his toes were through his boots, and when he was making his dictionary, which immortalized him, he was so ragged and shabby that he ate his dinner at his publisher's house, behind a screen, so that the company in the dining-room should not see and despise his condition.

Charles Lamb was the needy son of a domestic servant.

Keats was the son of an ostler.

Carlyle was the son of a mason.

Dickens began life pasting labels in a blacking factory.

Great Explorers.

Columbus was a poor woolcomber's son, and earned his living as a ship's boy before he was fourteen.

Drake was a cabin-boy in a little hulk that skirted the shores of England.

Captain Cook was the starveling son of an agricultural laborer.

David Livingstone came from a poverty-stricken Scottish home.

"One of the great moments of modern history was when Sir Henry Stanley, sent out to find Livingstone, found him in the midst of Africa, and the two great figures in the scene were poor boys, one of whom had worked fourteen years in the grinding misery of an old cotton mill, and one who had lived through sixteen years of suffering in a workhouse. The mill boy and the workhouse boy met as heroes on the Dark Continent, with the eyes of the world upon them; and no one then lamented that the valiant pair had risen from the ranke of our brave and patient poor."

Kings of Industry.

Arkwright, the father of the cotton trade, was an uneducated barber, ragged, pinched and hungry, when he worked out his invention.

Crompton, the inventor of the spinning mule, was so poor that, to eke out his living, he had to play the part of a small fiddler in a theatre band at night, after working hard all day.

Hargreaves, who invented the spinning jenny, was a poor weaver of Blackburn.

The World of Art.

Grotto was a simple shepherd boy.

Canova was a kitchen boy when he took to the studio.

Quentin Matsys left a blacksmith's anvil to put on canvas some of the glories of Flemish art.

Rembrandt was the child of a small miller.

Jean Francois Millet, who painted the immortal "Angelus," was a peasant.

Constable worked in a corn mill.

Turner, the great painter, began life as a barber.

POPPIES WILL BE IN ORDER TODAY AND PROCEEDS WILL AID THE ORPHANS

The inauguration of the custom of wearing red poppies on the celebration of Armistice Day will, war veterans believe, accomplish three worthy purposes: First, the custom of wearing a memorial poppy on Armistice Day; secondly, as the poppies will be sold for nominal sums, it will supply a means of providing relief funds for the unemployed this winter, and, thirdly, as the poppies will be purchased from the French War Orphans, it will go a long way toward the relief of distress in that country.

The custom of wearing the red poppy on Armistice Day was initiated in the United States last year by Madame E. Guerin, of the French Children's League. Madame Guerin laid the proposa lbefore a meeting of the executive of the Geat War Veteran's Association held recently in Port Arthur, and on their recommendation the local branches of the association throughout Canada undertook to act as distributing centres.

Today, men, women and children are ornamented with the gay little splash of color, the color which perhaps commemorates more suitably than any other could, the memory of the men who marched away, many of whom never came back. The poppies that they admired when growing in the dusty fields and roadsides of the French land doubtless spring as brightly over their faraway graves, and form as true a memorial cross for the quiet hearts as a stately pillar or stone might in their own country of the Maple. No other flower could have been chosen whose application would be as touching and appropriate as the scarlet bloom whose miniature duplicate meets the eye today on every side.

FROM THE DIARY OF A FLAPPER

(DURING HALLOWE'EN WEEK)

Oct. 30.—Have just received card for Maisie's party tomorrow night. Ducky little invitations with a black cat and a pumpkin in the corner. Think I will wear my gypsy costume. Wonder if Phil will be there.

Oct 31—Had a grand time at Maisie's party. Played all sorts of funny games. Drew Phil for my supper partner. Held my hand under the table. Said I looked stunning. Must not forget to try that charm tonight. Elsie said you put your shoes in the form of a T, get into bed backwards while eating an apple, and don't speak to anyone after that.

Nov. 1—Dreamt about the loveliest man last night. He was just medium height, with brown hair and blue eyes, and a dimple in his chin. Was driving the dandiest little red car.

Nov. 2.—Got an awful shock this morning. Was coming down Smith street, and the nicest looking man stepped out of a house. He had brown hair and lovely blue eyes. And just when I passed him and my heart was thumping almost loud enough to hear, a nasty little youngster stuck his head out of the door and yelled "Good-bye, daddy."

Nov. 3.—The conductor on our street-car is just grand-looking. He has brown hair and blue eyes, and I noticed today for the first time that he had the dearest dimple in his chin. The way he looks at me when I drop the coppers in the box gives me the thrilliest feeling. This morning when I asked him for a transfer, he took the longest time to punch it.

Nov. 4.—Met the conductor last night coming out of a "movie" with a plain-looking girl. He was smiling at her in the most foolish manner. I think a man with a dimple is so silly-looking. A red car just like the one in my dream, was standing at the curb at noon today, when I came home from school. Went dashing in, but it was only an agent with a new sort of vacuum cleaner. He had black hair and eyes and talked through his nose.

Nov. 5—Phil walked home from school with me today. He is coming over tonight with some new snaps. He is so romantic-looking. I just adore a tall fair-haired man with a strong chin.

Rommey, whose pictures are now almost priceless, was a carpenter.

Clean Wholesome Milk

A Woman Understands

We firmly believe that a woman understands the necessity for demanding Safe Milk, particularly when she has a Family to bring up.

She knows of the great care required in bringing Milk so far from the country and delivering it Pure and Clean.

She feels safe in placing this responsibility on an institution of proven integrity.

Our requirements for production and handling Milk assure its richness and purity. These, plus Pasteurization, leave no doubt as to its Purity and Safety.

In addition to these qualities, our Milk excells in Flavour, Keeping Qualities, and Digestibility, which characterize the truly exceptional Milk.

BABY FIRKS.

"Life Despaired Of."

38, De Burgh Street, Cardiff, South Wales. 30/3/20.
Gentlemen,
I have much pleasure in forwarding a photo of my son. He was so small at birth and such a weakling that his life was despaired of. He was tried with several of the widely advertised foods but rapidly went almost to a skeleton, limp and hardly any life in him. In a very few days after trying him with Virol an immediate change for the better was apparent, and he is now a plump, happy, strong child without a blemish, and is always taken to be quite a year old.
He is a splendid example of the truth of the claims you advertise for "Virol." Please make any use you like of this testimonial.
Yours very sincerely,
(Sgd.) Mrs. F. Firks.

Virol is used in large quantities in more than 2,000 Hospitals and Infant Clinics. It is invaluable for the expectant and nursing mother herself, whilst for children it supplies those vital principles that are destroyed in the sterilising of milk: it is also a bone and tissue building food of immense value. Virol babies have firm flesh, strong bones and good colour.

"The Scientifically Built Watch"

Priced from $25.00 upwards.

This Watch Is Worn In Many Different Ways

ON this Waltham Ladies' Convertible Bracelet Watch there is a little "eye" on the case opposite the stem, to which, when open, one end of the bracelet is attached. But this eye can be shut back flush with the case—invisible. This enables the watch to be worn on chain, brooch, or neck ribbon equally as well as on bracelet or strap. Whatever the occasion, this beautiful little Waltham is ready for service. And its service is always dependable because its flawless mechanism is made by the oldest and most scientifically equipped watch-making organization in the world.

Treasury to the Imperial Treasury. He refused to disclose any points which have been agreed upon thus far, but it is stated in other Irish quarters that the determination of the Sinn Feiners not to accept the principle of allegiance to the British Crown remains unshaken.

It is intimated in those quarters that a formula had been agreed upon, bridging that difficulty, whereby Ireland would not be designated as a British Dominion, but as an "associate nation." It is further stated that a solution of the Ulster problem must come, if it comes at all, through Ulster's recognition of the principle of unity in Ireland.

SAYS BREAKDOWN WOULD MEAN WAR TO COST £250,000,000.

LONDON, November 5 (Canadian Press). — The sequence to a breakdown in the Irish conference would be a war which would cost £250,000,000, declared Frederick G. Kellaway, Postmaster-General, addressing a political meeting at Rushden yesterday. He believed it probable that 50,000 lives would have to be sacrificed to conquer Sinn Fein Irish, should such a war be started.

TWO BANDITRY CHARGES

Avenue and Bordeaux Street on August 12 last. The latter charge was laid during the hearing of evidence in the first two cases and arose from the discovery that Slade was wearing an overcoat alleged to have been stolen from the teller of the Molson's Bank branch when the hold-up took place last August.

Extraordinary precautions were taken by the police to prevent any attempt at rescue of the prisoners. The entrance and passageways of the criminal courts were lined with policemen, and this guard was continued all day until the two men were again conveyed to Bordeaux Jail. Persons unable to show they had business in the court were excluded by the police.

Both Slade and O'Hara showed little interest in the proceedings. Voluntary statement in the case of the Bank of Commerce hold-up was fixed for November 10, and in the case of the Molson's Bank for November 8.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Members of the Montreal Police Force announced yesterday that in future they will shoot first in the case of a criminal trying to shoot at them or resisting arrest. The decision was arrived at at a meeting of the Policemen's Federal Labor Union, No. 62, of Montreal, and a copy of the resolution passed at this meeting was sent to Mayor Martin, the chairman of the executive committee of Aldermen, Chief of Police Belanger and the local press.

It was pointed out during the meeting that Constable Chicoine was shot and fatally wounded last year, and that Constable Lavallee had been shot by a criminal last month, whom he had then shot and killed.

GOVT. TO LET LIBERALS AND FARMERS FIGHT IT OUT

PORT HOOD, N.S., Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press.) — No candidate will be put forward in Inverness County by the National Liberal and Conservative party for the Dominion elections, it was decided at the party's convention here yesterday. The contest will be between Dr. A. W. Chisholm, Liberal candidate and member of the last house, and Isaac McDougall, nominee of the Farmer-Labor party.

KING SAYS HIS TARIFF POSITION SAME AS IN 1919.

LONDON, November 5 (Canadian Press). — A long disquisition on the railroad situation by the Hon. Chas. Murphy and a rapid fire speech by the Hon. Mackenzie King, reaffirming his attitude on the tariff and charging the Government with autocratic and extravagant methods, were the principal features of the Liberal rally here last night in the Winter Garden before about 3,500 people.

Mr. King declared that his attitude on the tariff was exactly the same as it was at the time of the Liberal convention.

"Try and carry out anything literim and verbatim, and you destroy the spirit altogether," he declared. He challenged the Premier to point out in two columns side by side any two speeches he had delivered on the tariff that varied from each other.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

TO SPEAK HERE

Rev. Peter Byrce, the clergyman who came out from England some years ago and entered into social welfare work in the city of Toronto with such success that his field of endeavor, the Earlscourt Mission, in one of the poorest districts of the city, has been pointed out as an example of the effectiveness of such activity ever since, will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society, which takes place in the Public Library on Tuesday, November 15th.

Mr. Bryce is intensely interested in all problems of child welfare, and, in an address entitled the "International Aspects of Child Welfare," delivered by him recently in Toronto before the Child Welfare Council, said in part:

"The improvement made in regard to infant mortality in the countries reporting constitutes one of the most important social events of our time. The lowest infant mortality in the world belongs to New Zealand, where it is 40.6 per thousand. England reported an infant mortality of 80 in every thousand in 1921, this being reduced from 155 in the year 1900. The improvement was due to the increase of infant welfare clinics. There are today 1,937 of these in England; 50,000 mothers bring their children every week, and 150,000 attended them regugarly The latest figures of the four European countries having the lowest infant mortality, for every thousand, are; Norway, 62; Sweden, 66; Denmark, 90; and Switzerland, 99.

In Canada, Prince Edward Island stands at 80.10; Saskatchewan, 87.88; Alberta, 93.78; Manitoba, 102.76; and Ontario, 103.59. The mortality stands highest in Quebec, where it is 142.48.'

MOVE TO DROP PROBE OF CHARGES BY SIMMONS.

WASHINGTON, November 4.—Canadian Press. — A motion is to be be made in the Senate to-day, Democratic Senators announced last night to drop the investigation by special senatorial committee of the charges of Senator Watson, Georgia, that United States soldiers were landed in France without trial.

FOR POPPY DAY.

To every proud Canuck I say,
Be sure you wear a poppy gay,
In memory of the glorious day,
When the worn world beheld
With joy the course of carnage run,
By God's good grace the victory won
And all the power of the proud Hun,
Forever crushed and quelled.

The crimson poppy, too, shall tell,
Of those in freedom's cause, who fell
Amid the battle's stormy swell,
The noble and the brave,
Who, that dear Canada might be,
From ruthless Teuton tyrants free,
Now sleep beyond the surging sea,
Where poppies o'er them wave.

Oh, pass not cold unheeding by,
While sweet-voiced pity bids you buy
In aid of those who sadly sigh—
If but one poppy red,
And on the widow, weary, worn,
And orphan children, doomed, to mourn
For those who never will return,
Once more hope's sunshine shed.

And to our veterans undismayed,
Who the patriot's part unflincing played,
Tribute and honor must be paid,
By Canucks each and all;
They up all they held most dear,
And struggled on from year to year,
In foreign trenches cold and drear,
At duty's clarion call.

$10,000,000 TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Congress will ask for ten million dollars for the enforcement of prohibition during the next fiscal year.

THE THANKSGIVING SEASON

He was a busy man, a man of affairs, and he rolled down to his office in a warm car through the drizzling rain of a cold autumn day. A legless beggar at the curb held up a hat as the man passed quickly to a tall office building. Fumbling, he produced a quarter, and dropped it into the shabby felt. "Thank you very much," came the soft answer, with a smile from upturned eyes. The man paused a moment, looked down at his two sound legs, and passed within.

She was a busy woman. Thanksgiving to her meant only a fuller round of social duties, with appropriate background of seasonal decorations. She was in a hurry to reach a committee meeting, and waited a trifle impatiently as an elderly woman slowly boarded a street-car. Then she realized with a little shock that the woman was half-blind, and helped her to a seat. "Thank you. You are very kind," was her reward, and she pondered a little on the blessings of sight as she hurried to her appointment.

A slip of a girl stood by a bed in a large hospital, an establishment for tubercular patients. She placed a deep red rose in the hand of the white-faced girl who lay there. "Oh, how lovely. Thank you ever so much. you don't know how I appreciate your kindness to me," came the quick response from the bright-eyed, cheerful consumptive. And, with the memory of her smiling gratitude and her constant cough ringing in her ears, the girl went back to her own geautiful home, carefree and happy.

DECLARES "VAMPS" INSPIRE HOMICIDES

Noted Criminal Lawyer Defends Slayers as Most Human.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—"Vamps," who in the eternal triangle are each loved by two men, are the principal cause of homicides asserts Edwin M. Abbott, who has defended 81 persons accused of the capital offense

A modern vamp at the apex of the triangle plays with the affections of men with all the arts of olden times. Then man, in a wild competition for the favor of her smiles, rise in passion against each other and one is killed. The other is the defendant at the trial. The vamp smiles on. Such, in brief, is the history of the average killing as reviewed by Abbott.

"The average slayer is more like you and me than any other type of criminal," says the attorney. "He is the most human of criminals There is no finesse about him. His crime is committted in the heat of passion.

"Women are more often the cheats The breadwinner goes to war he is out of employment or goes to another city to work, and the woman takes the easiest way."

CHILDREN IN RUSSIA EAT ROOTS AND GRASSES

Live in Woods Like Animals During Famine.

RIGA, November 5. — Children are living in the woods and fields like young animals in some parts of the famine district of Saratox, says an official wireless despatch from Moscow. They are little waifs who have fled from the famine stricken cities and towns and subsist on roots and grasses. When adults approach they flee.

Overcrowding of children' homes has been carried so far in the Syrzan and Ufa districts that some of the institutions are sheltering four times as many children as they have accommodation for. In these places children take turns in occupying such beds as are available, one small famine victim crawling into a bed the moment another child vacates it.

"Entire families are jumping into the rivers and cases are reported of parents strangling the children rather than see them die by starvation," says the despatch.

INDIANA MINERS OUT.

SAILOR WAS KILLED AT SEA BY OFFICER

Set Upon by Others of Crew After Firing Shot on American Legion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The killing at sea of a member of the crew of the steamship American Legion of the Munson Line by a ship's officer was reported when the liner arrived from South American ports.

At Quarantine detectives aboard the police boat John F. Hylan took off under guard Arthur Ketchie, the ship's master-at-arms, charged with the killing.

The body of the slain man, Theodore Sakt, an oiler, said to be a nephew of the wealthy Swedish match manufacturer, was landed at Pier 3, Hoboken, where the ship docked.

The shooting took place on the night of October 28, when the American Legion was off the Florida coast. Two shots were fired, both going into Sakt's body.

Shot Not Intended for Sakt.

Sakt, according to the reports given by members of the crew, was an innocent bystander. Ketchie, it was said, was upbraiding Joseph Kelly, an oiler, for having attempted to get a drink from the ship's bar, and during the altercation Ketchie drew the revolver and fired. Kelly, who had turned away, was not hit.

When Sakt fell Ketchie was set upon by other members of the crew. He fled to the upper deck and passengers were awakened as the crew went after him.

Capt. Alex. C. Corkum, awakened by the rioting, reached the deck just as the crew were about to throw the master-at-arms overboard, it was reported. Other ship's officers placed Ketchie under arrest and he was locked in the chart house on the bridge for safety.

The shouts of the crew and the struggles of Ketchie to escape the men caused many of the passengers to leave their staterooms and go to the deck. They were greatly perturbed upon learning what had happened.

Armed to Guard Gold.

Capt. Corkum said that ordinarily the ship's master-at-arms was not allowed to carry a revolver, but this was permitted during the voyage because the American Legion carried $750,000 in gold sent from South America to New York banks.

The remainder of the voyage was uneventful. Sakt was about 30 years old. He was very popular among the crew. He was of unusual physique, being six feet tall and powerfully built, and, according to Capt. Corkum the "ablest member of the crew." He was generous with his pay so far as other members of the crew were concerned.

While not much is known about him it was reported that he had left his home in Sweden and gone to sea following a dispute with his rich uncle.

RUPTURE RELIEF

RETENTION NOT AFFECTED BY AGE, SO REPORTS VISITING EXPERT.

J. Y. Egan, 1057 College, Toronto, Surgical Appliance Specialist, will visit Peterborough, Empress Hotel, Saturday, Sunday (all day and night), 2 days only, November 12-13.

The "Curatrus," with new sanitary retentive shield, acts, feels and retains rupture more like the human hand than anything yet invented, the pliable flesh-like touch of the velvety finished shield gives a mild life-like massage, exercising and allowing a free blood circulation around the hernial opening. Its free action permits of rapid constriction and is intended to assist nature to strengthen the muscles in the shortest time known and at small cost—specifically prepared to order for men, women and children.

These new surgical appliances have received the highest approval wherever shown, and are designed in conformity with the science of anatomy as set forth by the world's text book authorities on this subject; prepared and effecting results here the same as in the New York, Chicago and Philadelphia offices. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. Free demonstration and examination of samples. Now is the time to make yourself safe and comfortable for your daily work. Jealously is a terrible thing. Just because the people have agreed to eat a little iron and yeast every day, the lumber, cement and metal trades threaten to mix up a dish of their own.

WILL REFORM THE CALENDAR

The Vatican at Rome has announced that a conference of astronomers will take place in Rome next April under the presidency of Cardinal Mercier, with the object of reforming the calendar and fixing Easter.

The occurrence this year, of Easter Sunday on March 27, within five days of its earliest possible date, revived the proposal for a fixed Easter. No fewer than 16 Easters will happen in March between now and the close of this century—an average of one every five years—unless something is done to prevent the erratic wandering of the festival between March 22 and April 25.

Under the existing ecclesiastical rule Easter Sunday can fall on any of 35 dates. The present rule is that Easter must be a Sunday, and that the ecclesiastical full moon (which is not the same as the real moon) upon which it depends must occur on one of the seven days immediately preceding it. Thus, to have Easter Sunday on its earliest date, March 22, the ecclesiastical moon must be full on March 21, which date must also be a Saturday; but so rarely are these conditions satisfied in the same year that it is over a century since Easter fell on March 22, and it will not again fall so early until the year 2285.

Of late years the inconvenience of a movable Easter has induced calendar reformers to propose reforms which will either make Easter a fixed festival or greatly restrict its wanderings. One suggestion is that Easter Sunday should be assigned to the third Sunday after the spring equinox, which would give it a range of eight days, between April 5 and April 13, according to the date and day of the week on which the equinox falls.

Other proposals aim at an Easter absolutely fixed to one date. That, of course, would necessitate a radical reform of the whole calendar, under which the same weekday should always fall on the same date.

Any such reform will probably have to be universal throughout Christendom, for the moon-controlled Easter is common to all civilized countries; though, owing to the fact that the Greek church still uses the Julian calendar, there are always nearly two Easter days every year, one of the Gregorian, observed by Roman Catholics and Protestants, and the other the Julian, kept by those countries which are in communion with the Greek church.

METHODISTS WOULD KILL BOOTLEGGERS

Better Dead Than Alive Is Verdict Passed in U. S. Church's Dry Organ.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. — Washington was astonished when the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church came out openly for the shooting to death of bootleggers.

The startling recommendation that enforcement officers be freer with the use of firearms was contained in what is known as the Weekly Clip Sheet issued by the organization and distributed among newspaper correspondents and newspapers to further the cause of prohibition. The Rev. Clarence True Wilson is general secretary of the Board and Deets Pickett is the Research Secertary.

The statement had the most important position in the Clip Sheet. It was headed "The Only Good Bootlegger is a Dead Bootlegger."

There is reason to believe that the surprising recommendation that officers take the law into their own hands in this manner will be discussed in Congress. The point has come up before, and more conservative Senators and Representatives declared it was extremely dangerous to give prohibition officers too much authority. Here is the text of the Methodist proposal:

"On several occasions recently prohibition and police officers in the discharge of their duty have been fired upon by bootleggers. Unfortunately some of these belligerent bootleggers have been taken and lodged in jail. They should have been lodged five feet under ground.

"In Washington recently police officers attempted to stop a car going through the streets at terrific speed and were ignored. They gave chase in another car and were being outdistanced when the bootleg machine ran into another car standing by the curb, injuring its occupants and careening down the street. Both bootleggers leaped from the car with drawn revolvers. Nevertheless the officers took them alive.

"This is a good policy. Such incidents should be dealt with according to the code of the Texas Ranger. We would be the last to advocate the unwarranted use of weapons by officers, but a bootlegger is worth a lot more to the country dead than alive.

"A few days ago a hard working colored woman, respectable and honest, said: 'It do make so mad. I has to work hard for my living and I only gets $2 a day, while dat ole Charlie Brown is flyin' 'round with a big automobile and now he done bought another car, all wid bootleg money.'

"The same just comment could and would be made by hundreds of hard working white people in regard to impudent, arrogant and prosperous bootleggers, both white and black.

"One of the sure fire ways to locate bootleggers in any city is to watch the automobile registrations. When a man technically big, fine car without any apparent reason why he is able to afford such an automobile his case should be looked into. The government should see that such cars are sold for the benefit of the ratepayers according to law. Treat 'em rough."

AIRPLANES VALUABLE IN GOVERNMENT WORK

Now Used by Reclamation Service in the North Country.

OTTAWA, NOV. 5. (By Canadian Press)—That he obtained more general information in a two hours' flight by aeroplane than he could learned in a month's trip on foot is the statement of an engineer of the Reclamation Service who recently made a survey from the air in connection with a drainage project in the hinterland. Reports being received by the Air Board here show that the cooperation of aircraft with the different federal departments is becoming increasingly valued.

This latest example was a special reconnaissance undertaken for the Reclamation Service of the Department of the Interior in the vicinity of Le Pas and Cumberland House lying on the boundary between Northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The survey covered the Carrot River Triangle for a drainage scheme involving the reclaiming for productive purposes of from 800,000 to 900,000 acres. It had been found that a large part of the area was inaccessible owing to floods; reeds and willows made canoeing impossible. The Air Board was accordingly requested to arrange a flight over the region, so that an engineer might secure the desired information from the air.

Reports from the Victoria Beach, Manitoba, air station, which was the main base, indicate that the operation was a complete success. Most valuable data was secured in an infinitely shorter period of time than would have been possible by any method of ground transportation, and by no other method could the same general perspective have been arrived at.

The hydraulic engineer of the Reclamation Service, commenting on the trip says it derived from a flight of this kind for survey on a project of such magnitude. Much of the district, he says, is unsurveyed, and very little information of the topographical features is obtainable without running a traverse survey. From the air one may see the various drainage channels in the interior quite distinctly, and information of this kind would prove of great value in determining where to run the interior traverse lines, and where lines would not be necessary, thereby saving time and money. Information regarding the timber in the interior could also be obtained."

"I do not wish to convey the idea," he says, "that numerous fights of this kind would offset the necessity of making a detailed survey of a large drainage area. The rise and fall in land could only be obtained by running traverse lines and levels over the district, but I do think, in possibly half a dozen flights the whole Carrot River Triangle could be covered, thus familiarizing the engineers engaged on the work with a general idea of the interior in short space of time. This would be of much value in planning the general layout of the work there."

Advantage of the fact of the hydro plane being in this neighborhood was taken in order to enable R. C. Wallace, Commissioner for Northern Manitoba, to make a demonstration flight. The Commissioner was equally enthusiastic as to the value of aircraft in making topographical surveys. "More than anything I had previously imagined," he writes, "this trip impressed me with the future of the air service in northern territory. I obtained a grasp of the topography and water system in the Saskatchewan River Valley that I had not had any clear conception of. I have had considerable experience in mapping territory from the canoe, and feel satisfied and more than ever impressed with the conviction that the only way in which northern territory can be mapped is by the camera from the air. I quite appreciate the fact that as a freight carrier even in northern territory, it may be many years before the air service will supplant water transportation, as a patrol agency, however, and more particularly for systematic mapping of the whole territory, I feel that there is a great future for this service."

BE INDEPENDENT, PETROVA'S WORD TO ALL WOMEN

Movie Star Talks Feminism and Tells of Her Life.

DETROIT, Nov. 5. — "Every woman-child should be taught some means of livelihood outside her own environment", said Olga Petrova to a crowded house of women guests at the Shubert-Michigan theatre, when she discused the independent woman.

"It is the duty of every mother to prepare her daughters so they may be independent in this world. So that if the times comes when financial support suddenly fails them, they will be able to make their own way.

Shows Touch of Feminism

"When I was 7 years old in Poland I began to take notice of the manner in which my father spoke of the house in which we lived. At home, it was always, my house, my daughters, and I could not understand why my mother was not included when such things were mentioned. At that time I conceived a desire to have a house of my own, and I have kept that idea since."

Then the speaker outlined her experience in certain English towns where she went following a course at a school at Paris, and also later in London, where she was employed for a time as a reporter on newspaper. She renewed an acquaintance with a theatrical man and became an actress at about 20, learning her art under his tutoring. Her desire for possession of her own home, and the direction of her destinies was first realized at this time when she rented a room for seven shillings a week. It was "her" room, and the pride of possession appealed to her.

In discussing the independence of women, Madame Petrova made the thought clear that she was not disapproving of marriage, nor was she a "man-hater", but the problem, she said, concerned the great surplus of women in the world.

Calls America Paradise

"They cannot marry. What are they to do? America is the paradise of the modern woman. In Europe, her appearance in the affairs of the world is not yet welcomed and England has not progressed very far in that respect. Here in America, in the big cities, we are accustomed to seeing women shoulder to shoulder with men in the enterprises of the world. That doctrine should be taught in the smaller communities as well as in the larger cities.

"When a married woman is able to do something worthy outside the home, she should do it, the husband should be prouder of her for being able to accomplish. Women should be trained pecialy for the activities for which she is fitted, so that the occupations to which some women descend sould never be known again in the world."

The dangers of the stage and its calling for young girls were scorned by the speaker. In all her experiences, both in the movies and on the legitimate stage, she had never been tempted, she said. Not the glamor of the theatre, nor the influence it yields, has attracted her through all her experiences, she said, but solely the desire to own and direct her life. Her home, where she lived, the speaker said, was her home, with her husband, admitting the fact and contributing his share to the maintenance of the establishment.

Speech is Womanly

Madame Petrova is appearing in "The White Peacock," a story of a modern woman rebelling against the restraints of a household in which her partial ownership is disregarded.

Her ten years in America has fitted Madame Petrova excellently for the sort of speech she made. It was a woman-to-woman occasion, with no men present to doubt or disbelieve or to mar the perfect sympathy that existed between her and her guests. After the talk, she invited any woman to question her on whatever problem faced her. Instead, someone asked her to remove her hat, which she graciously did, revealing her wealth of Titian hair. She closed her program with the quotation of three original poems, two on motherhood, and the third, a gorgeous, perfume-laden satire on woman's attitude toward men.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Oils, Rails and Steels were moderately higher at the irregular opening of to-day's Stock Market. Food and Tobacco specialties and utilities showed slight re-action. Trading was dull and limited to week-end settlement of professional accounts.

Trading is stocks was again overshadowed by the demand for Government bonds. Liberty 3½'s and 4th, 4½'s made record prices for the year. Losses ranging from fractions to one point accompanied small offerings of Crucible Steel, International Harvester, International Paper, Corn Products, National Biscuit and Pittsburgh and West Virginia. The further decline of the German mark to a new low record of .41 cents was without effect on other foreign exchanges.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Practically no trading occurred on the local Stock Exchange during the first half-hour this morning. Only three of the leaders put in an appearance, and these were quiet. Atlantic was unchanged at 31 3-4, its yesterday's closing level. Brazilian lost half a point to 26, while National Breweries was down an eighth at 57½.

ADVICE TO POLITICIANS.

Preaching on "Friendship," Rev. N. H. McGillivray, a Presbyterian divine, of Orillia, makes a plea for friendship between the various political factions in the Federal election. He could see no reason why friendship should not exist between man and man, no matter what their political beliefs might be. It was a lesson learned during the great war, he said, when its great principles were put to the test, and it was a lesson needed during the political campaign.

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST PETERBORO

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

At a large and representative meeting of the electors of East Peterborough, held at Norwood on Oct. 17th, I had the honor of being the candidate chosen to contest the Riding in the interests of the Liberal-Conservative Party for the General Election to be held Dec. 6th next.

The great issue before the people of Canada today is the tariff. There is no question of defence, and no question of Imperial relations. If once the country can grasp this firmly, can comprehend clearly that it is merely fighting over again the battles of 1878 and 1891 and 1911, then we may confidently abide the result.

It is to the Old National Policy inaugurated in 1878—over 40 years ago, and continued ever since—that we owe our present commercial and industrial stability.

Today that Policy is challenged.

The Agitator and the Opportunist are abroad. A Sectional Policy rather than National Solidarity is the aim of many.

Canada is today facing the most difficult period in her economic life. As you are all aware, this is a time when all civilized nations are staggering under burdens brought about by the Great World War. We are facing a situation unparalleled in the economic history of the world. All the civilized nations at this time are striving to keep their local markets to themselves and to increase their exports. The upset of exchange has forced them into this condition.

Where does Canada stand? Owing to our Fiscal stability we are relatively in the best condition of any of the battle-worn nations of the world. Although shaken by the war, we have not been shattered. We shall not have to build a battered and disorganized industrial and commercial structure. Our Banking and Fiscal system has not broken down. Our chief industries, while depressed somewhat, are still in a strong position. Our vast undeveloped resources and the character of our people insure that all our indebtedness shall be wiped out. We have in Canada vast mineral resources that will one day make us independent.

Canada's per capita trade stands in front of all the nations of the world. While in the United States one-fourth of all employees, or 3½ millions out of 14 millions, are idle, not more than one-tenth of Canadian workers are out of employment. Yet the work of readjustment in Canada is a real man's work. Statesmanship, high courage, broad vision, untiring energy and unquestioned patriotism, are the predominating qualities that characterize the Man of the Hour—the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen.

With a Policy that has triumphed in the past, with consciousness that it battles for the right, and with a Leader of whom any party or nation might feel proud, we can go into this fight with flags flying and unafraid.

To this end I now solicit the hearty co-operation, influence and votes of all the electors who believe in the preservation of CANADA FOR CANADIANS.

Respectfully yours,

JOHN A. SEXSMITH.

PRICE DECLINES THANKSGIVING MARKET TODAY

POULTRY, HOWEVER, AT PRACTICALLY SAME LEVELS AS LAST YEAR--A FEAST OF GOOD THINGS FOR MONDAY'S CELEBRRTION.

PRICE COMPARISONS

The family purse did a great deal more to-day in the way of providing a Thanksgiving dinner of a quality and dimensions commensurate with the great event than it did a year ago. For those whose income is not reduced, there is much cheer in the reduction of prices, for some others there is little satisfaction if their daily remuneration has been pruned back behind the cost of living. The same old Thanksgiving spirit was evident amongst the buyers to-day, however. They were buying the same old things with the same old joy of preparation. If all was not well with them, they bravely smiled away their troubles.

The poultry yard has made its annual contribution to the success of Thanksgiving, and just how large this contribution was could be judged if one took time to count all the turkeys, geese, and chickens on the market and in the butcher shops to-day. There will not be such a clutter around the hay mow hereafter.

Generally speaking, fowl were about the same price as for Thanksgiving last year. Chickens, geese, and ducks at 30 cents were at 1920 levels. Turkeys selling to-day at 45 to 50 cents showed little change in prices from those of last year.

The Fruit Stores.

What a feast of good things there is for Thanksgiving, and in no better place can you see this than in the fruit stores. No holiday would be replete without apples, and there are every variety grown in this part of the Dominion. Snows are scarce and expensive, the very best selling at 40 cents a dozen, or by the peck 80 or 90 cents. Spies are 60 cents a peck. Bananas are 40 to 50 cents a dozen. Oranges from 30 to 80 cents a dozen; and grapefruit three for 25 cents.

Thanksgiving last year was early enough for grapes, but although the grapes are long done, there are plenty of the dried but fruity Malagas or Californias. The Malagas are the green ones, and come all the way from Spain, the red ones that match up well with red bananas are from California, and at 30 cents a pound are ten cents cheaper than their Castilean brothers.

All the countries of the world lay their choicest delicacies on Canadian tables. Smyrna figs from far-away Asia Minor, where the Greeks and Turks are at each others' throats again, are in all the shops at 40 cents a pound. Dates from the East are plentiful, and at 15 cents a pound should sell well.

Potatoes Are Dearer.

Potatoes will form a part of the Thanksgiving dinner of no small importance. They are dearer than last year. Carrots and beets are higher, too, according to the proprietors of the fruit shops. They want 40 cents a peck for these vegetables. They have all manner of pumpkins, citrons, and squash at prices from 10 to 20 cents. Cabbages are plentiful, but cauliflower are beginning to suffer from frost, and a fine head costs about 20 or 25 cents to-day. Sweet potatoes will be eaten more plentifully across the line than in Canada on Monday. However, Canadians are rapidly coming to like them, and at three pounds for 25 cents sell steadily.

So far as fowl is concerned most housewives will wish they could just be allowed to get one nice bird at the following prices quoted on the Peterborough market on 8th November, 1913: Turkeys, $1.75 to $3.00; geese, $1.25 to $1.50; chickens, $1.00 a pair.

A Comparison.

The following comparison of the prices of common articles that will, in greater or smaller quantities, be bought to-day for the Monday dinner, will reassure anyone that there have been considerable declines in these lines at least:

To-day's Prices.	1920
Sugar, 10lb. 82c	$1.58
Pastry Flour, 24lb. bag 99c	$1.54
Creamery Butter, lb. 43c	57c-60c
Eggs, 60c dozen	70c-75c
Cheese, lb. 20c-25c	35c
Lard, lb. 23c	35c
Shortening, lb. 18c	30c
Honey, lb. 20c	30c
Beef, lb. 10c-25c	25c-48c
Spring lamb, lb. 25c	30c-40c
Bacon, lb. 45c	65c-74c
Potatoes, bag $1.75	$1.25-$1.50
Snows, peck 80c	50c
Spies, barrel $7.50	$8.00
Chestnuts, lb. 50c	60c
Mixed nuts, lb. 30c	40c

STERN REMINDERS OF RHEUMATISM

THE TROUBLE MUST BE TREATED THROUGH THE BLOOD

Every rheumatic sufferer should realize that rheumatism is rooted in the blood and that to get id it must be treated through the bloc' The old belief that rheumatism was caused by cold, damp weather, is now exploded. Such weather conditions may start the pains but it is not the cause. Liniments and outward applications may give temporary relief, but that is all they can do because they do not reach its sources in the blood. The sufferer from rheumatism who experiments with outward applications is only wasting time and money in depending upon such treatment; the trouble still remains, and it is all the time becoming more firmly rooted. Treat this disease through the blood and you will find relief. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on impure, weak blood; they purify and strengthen it, and so act on the cause of the rheumatism. Mr. P. J. MacPherson, R.R. No. 5, Cardigan, P.E.I., says, "About three years ago I was attacked with rehumatism. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and soon the trouble disappeared and I am in better health than before. I also know of an old lady crippled with rheumatism in her arms and leg and who suffered very much. She too, took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and is now able to do her housework. I tell this in the hope it may be of benefit to some other sufferer."

You can procure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or they will be sent you by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TIRE SPECIALTIES FOR PETERBOROUGH

A NEW AND GROWING VULCANIZING INDUSTRY MAKING SUBSTANTIAL HEADWAY.

The nucleus for a new industry which has been forging ahead quietly in the city during the past half year or more is what is known as "The Reliable Tire System," situated on the Corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets. The promoters are manufacturing vulcanizing re-treading machinery and equipment for a new and improved method of vulcanizing auto rubber tires, that forms a protection from the inside of the tire, and for remaking old tires into new. It is also contemplated to manufacture air compressors, grinding and buffing machines, rubber tire tools and other tire specialties.

The Reliable Tire system policy is to assist in teaching vulcanizing to its students, show them how to operate the machines and assist them in every way to establish repair shops under the new improved system of vulcanizing.

Mr. Juniper, the practical mechanical superintendent, reports having already encouraging orders for the new re-treading machines, and is contemplating strengthening the organization and promotion of these works.

SCENE OF BEAUTY AT MURRAY ST. CHURCH

Interior Beautifully Decorated for Thanksgiving Services.

The Murray Street Baptist Church which so well lends itself to decoration is prepared for the services tomorrow in a new scheme entirely. The auditorium is really "a thing of beauty." The palms, ferns and cedars, brightened by the presence of large numbers of poppies and flags, inspires the Thanksgiving thought and clearly points back to the fact that "The war drum throbs no longer on Flanders' Field."

The floral wreath and offerings of real flowers around the bronze tablet is a fitting memorial to those "long loved and lost awhile." The committee who have had charge of the decorating for Thanksgiving and Armistice Day have been successful in blending both thoughts in their scheme and are worthy of all praise.

Thanksgiving and Easter are the two occasions when the members of Murray Street Church rejoice to come to God's house with their offerings for the building fund. Twice each year one thousand dollars has been paid on the debt in this way.

The pastor will preach at both services. The magnificent program of music is outlined in another column of this paper today.

THANKSGIVING MUSIC

The music at both services at Murray Street will be of an exceptionally high order tomorrow. The Choir of 40 voices includes a large number of the city's best known soloists, and will render the following anthems and chorals:

"O, Lord, How Manifold Are Thy Works" (Barnby).

"O Give Thanks Unto the Lord" (Smart)—Tenor solo part by Mr. Everret.

"God Shall Wipe Away All Tears" (Macfarlen).

"List the Cherubic Host," from the Oratorio "The Holy City," by Gaul—Ladies' voices with soprano and baritone obligatos by Miss Florence Scott and Mr. Asa Huycke Organ, Miss Ida Sanderson; piano, Miss Charlotte Layton.

Miss Katherine McIntosh, Fenelon Falls, will sing at both services.

Mr. Asa Huycke will sing at the evening service—"The Trumpet Shall Sound" (Messiah), in its entirety.

Miss Ida Sanderson will play the following numbers at both services:

Prelude — "Angelic Voices" (Lemare).

Postlude — "Grand Offertoire" (Batiste).

Prelude — "Pilgrims' Chorus" (Faust-Wagner).

Creation—"The Heavens Are Telling" (Haydn).

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

PRODUCE MARKET WELL ATTENDED

TURKEYS SCARCE AND HIGH IN PRICE --- 01 THE OUTSIDE MARKET.

It has been along time since the floor of the market building groaned under such a burden as it did today. The Thaknsgiving fowl buyers were out en masse. And the immense numbers of turkeys, geese and chickens would equal many tons. The surge of humanity around the tables has not been equalled since last Easter.

Turkeys Scarce.

Turkeys were very scarce. After looking all over one lady was discovered with two immense birds, one worth $4.50 and the other $5.00. The cost figured out at 38 cents a pound. Geese were about as plentiful as chickens and sold at 25 to 30 cents a pound, a nice plump one costing about $2.50. Chickens could be had at 25 cents and the very best at 28 cents.

Eggs Are High.

Eggs are high for Thanksgiving. All the basketeers were asking 65 cents to-day. Butter ranged from 40 to 45 cents.

It was as cold and sharp outside as it was warm and stuffy inside, and on the open market the farmers had to stamp their feet and clap their hands lustily to keep warm. The most noticeable thing was a greater quantity of meat offered. Mutton sold at 14c. and pork 17c. Young hogs were $9 a pair.

Potatoes sold at $1.75 to $1.90 a bag. Apples were plentiful and slightly lower. No. 1 Spies could be had at $6.00 and the best Greenings at $6.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY IN SMITH TOWNSHIP.

Hallowe'en was spent by the Gilmour Memorial Church young people at the home of Mr. William Paul of Smith township. The spacious house lent itself beautifully to the occasion, the decorations of orange and black being very attractively aranged with pink Jack-o'-lanterns, and black cats much in evidence. The costumes of the masqueraders were varied and interesting, from five year old Red Riding Hood to an old grandmother apparently almost a hundred.

A bountiful supper was spread in the dining room which was prettily festooned in Hallowe'en colors, with lamp and candle shades corresponding. After the usual promenade, including all the ghosts present, games and music contributed to the evening's enjoyment.

On behalf of the Gleaner' Class, who were hostesses of the affair, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Paul for their kind hospitality.

ECZEMA ON FACE AND HEAD FOR FIVE YEARS

Eczema or salt rheum, as it is so often called, manifests itself in little round pimples which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed and the intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to a strong heat, is almost unbearable and relief is gladly welcomed.

There is only one way to get relief and no remedy like

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Take it internally and it gets at the seat of the disease in the blood and drives it out of the system.

Apply it externally and it takes out the itching, stinging and burning and promotes healthly healing.

Mrs. J. Sage, 215 Princess Ave., Vancouver, B. C., writes: "Having suffered with eczema on the face and head, for the last five years, I consulted several doctors, and tried various kinds of salves and lotions, but I derived no benefit from any of them. I did not know what to do until a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after I had used two bottles I began to get better and now after taking eight bottles I have not even a blotch on me. I feel that I cannot praise B. B. B. too highly I hope you will make full use of this recommendation for the benefit of those who are suffering from this terrible complaint, eczema."

B. B. B. put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE WEATHER

The first touch of winter was experienced last night, and about midnight the snow fell heavily for a few minutes. None, however, was visible this morning. The temperature was only 3 degrees below the freezing point, but a high wind made it appear much colder. Fine and warmer should be here by Monday as conditions are good throughout the west.—W. P.

THANKSGIVING SPECIAL AT THE REGENT

PLAYING THE WTNDERFUL MELODRAMA "WHILE NEW YORK SLEEPS."

The Regent is showing the very best pictures to be had for the benefit of its patrons, and on Thanksgiving and following days it will show as a feature the wonderful picture, "While New York Sleeps," a Fox special, referred to as follows:

Realism and fidelity to detail are two elements on which the Fox Film Corporation, producers of "While New York Sleeps" makes its bid for the success of this picture. The photodrama is divided into three acts. The first depicts an enthralling incident which takes place in the home of a suburban millionaire. The second episode, gorgeously invested, presents in pictures a version of the notorious "badger game." In this act is seen an entire dancing number from Ziegfeld's Midnight Frolic, together with scenes from the Palais Royal, a famous New York cafe.

The third episode depicts a tragedy of New Yorks' East Side, in which the tense action revolves about a tigerish shop girl, a dumb paralytic, his gentle, tender-hearted son and the gangster leader of a band of thieves. In this act occurs a river fight between the New York police boat and a gasoline launch containing members of the robber gang. The New York police assisted Director Charles J. Brabin to film this scene, in fact the police boat was actually manned by policemen.

CHIEF THOMPSON OF WINDSOR IN TOWN

INTERNAL BATHING ENDS CONSTIPATION; DRUGS THROWN OUT

"After using your J. B. L. Cascade for four months I feel it my duty as a thankful patient to express my enthusiasm for the great blessing it has been to me," writes William Devoy of Lethbridge, Alta., to Dr. Tyrrell Hygienic Institute, Toronto. "Previous to using it I could not go a day without a drug of some sort, and since using it I have not swallowed five cents' worth of drugs. I spent more than $300 in two years previous to hearing of the J. B. L."

Chronic constipation is never cured permanent by the use of medicines. Larger and larger doses usually become necessary to obtain even temporary relief, the consequence being a weakening of the system.

Nature's own cure, just sterilized warm water, is the only scientific and permanent treatment for constipation, and its attendant ills—headache, indigestion, sleeplessness and loss of energy.

T. Babin, Proprietor Hotel Alexandria, Ottawa, writes: "I have used the J. B. L. Cascade two years. It has made a new man of me. In reality I feel that I would not sell it for all the money in the world if I could not buy another."

The J. B. L. Cascade will be shown and explained to you by Warne Drug Comptny, Peterboro, Ont., who will give free on request an interesting booklet by Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell, on "Why Man of Today is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient.

IMPERIAL LIFE'S NEW DISTRICT MANAGER

Mr. Lionel W. Scott, formerly of Montreal, the new manager for the Central Ontario branch of the Imperial Life Assurance Co., has arrived in the city, and assumed his duties, replacing Mr. A. E. Dawson, resigned.

Mr. Scott comes to the city a well-equiped insurance man with the practical experience his important position calls for. He was formerly manager for the province of Quebec for the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York. For the past 20 years he has been a resident of Montreal, with the exception of five years in Winnipeg, and in the overseas services.

Mr. Scott first saw the light of day in the far away Hudson Bay Company post in Labrador, and lived there for 16 years. His father, W. B. Scott, served with the Hudson Bay Co., for 40 years, in the interior of Labrador, on the coast line.

Mr. Scott was with the overseas section of the British Navy, under the Dover command, operating oil engines on a boat running supplies, shells, bombs, etc., to the Dover patrol and Royal Naval Air Service, a position involving great risk and danger.

The car coming up George Street was running directly on the car-lines, and presumably its lights blinded the motorist directly behind the bicyclist, which ran into him, wrecked his wheel pretty thoroughly, and pitched him off. Mr. McQuaig escaped with a twisted leg and a badly bruised back.

FORMER PETERBOROUGH BOY WINS A GOLD MEDAL.

On Wednesday last, in Toronto, Mr. Harold E. Knapman, of Toronto, was presented with a gold medal, commemorating his victory with his sail-boat, "Signet," over Mr. Oxley's "Gull," in Toronto on Labor Day.

The medal, given by Mr. J. Harris Ardiel, of Toronto, who is an enthusiastic promotor of this branch of sport, and does a great deal to further interest in it, was presented by Mr. Ardiel's son, Matser J. R. Ardiel. The previous race for the Ardiel Cup was won by Mr. Oxley's "Gull."

Mr. Knapman is a former Peterborough boy, and is to be congratulated on his prowess.

Ouch! Lame Back
Rub backache, Lumbago, Soreness and stiffness away - Try this!

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameless and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

ELECTION NEWS

MEIGHEN REPLIES TO HON. CHARLES MURPHY.

MONTREAL, November 5 (Canadian Press). — Criticism levelled by the Liberal opposition at the course pursued by him when attending the conference of Prime Ministers in London drew from Premier Meighen last night an answer of the most positive nature.

Referring to the remarks reported to have been made by the Hon. Charles Murphy at St. Thomas, the Prime Minister made a declaration embodying his attitude toward the Empire and world affairs in their relation to the political campaign. He had thought that the course he pursued at London met with the approval of the Canadian people. Nothing which they should have known had been withheld. "Now, after the conference has been concluded two months, a man arises and says I have committed Canada to some naval policy, and lowered the status of this Dominion. At that conference this country was committed to nothing beyond what it has always stood committed to, nor was there anything said or done which went a hairbreadth beyond the pale of what I said to Parliament."

FINANCE COMMITTEE MET.

Agree to Sell $20,000 Worth of Utilities Debentures.

A deputation, consisting of J. A. Aylmer, W. H. Dunsford, F. H. Dobbin, W. Stocker and Adjutant W. Bunton, asked the Finance Committee last night that the sum of money, $8,000 to $9,000, which was in the Peterborough Relief Association, and authorized by an Act of the Legislature to be handed over to the city, be placed in the hands of the committee that acted for the Peterborough Relief Association to disburse in relief, because of the committee's expense in such work.

Their request was granted, and, by motion of Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Unemployment Relief Committee and the City Treasurer were added to the committee, all cheques to be signed by the Mayor and City Treasurer, as was done for the Relief Association.

A request of the Utilities Commission that the City Treasurer sell $20,000 of their filtration plant debentures at the best price, not less than 101, was granted.

The City Treasurer was authorized to have city debentures printed at the lowest quotation.

The Southam Press, Ltd., Toronto, quoted $85, and the Peterborough Review $139.

REBEL UNIONISTS FORM NEW GROUP

LONDON, Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press).—According to the Saturday Review, the recalcitrant Unionists who supported the motion of censure of the Government, have decided to form a separate group, and the chances of a rapprochment between Lord Cecil's followers are becoming remoter as they remain in sympathy with the Conservatives.

SMALL POTATOES.

The members of the Oshawa Public Library Board must be "pretty small potatoes." When the Oshawa Reformer sent a bill for the paper being supplied to the reading-room, the board refused it, saying that it should be supplied free. We presume the board pay for their books, daily newspapers, magazines, light, water, fuel, etc. Then, why should they expect to get the local newspaper for nothing? Instead of trying to sponge on the Reformer, they should pay the subscription gladly and try to help in every way a paper that does so much for the advancement of the interests of Oshawa.—Barrie Examiner.

CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, November 5. Canadian Press.—In the event of a breakdown of the coalition government there is every prospect of a strong unified Conservative party headed by Lord Birkenhead and including Sir Winston Churchill, it is stated.

GIRLS! GROW THICK LONG, HEAVY HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Buy a 35-cent bottle of "Danderine." One application ends all dandruff, stops itching and falling hair, and, in a few moments, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair — fine and downy at first —yes, but really new hair growing all over the scalp. "Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy, and luxuriant.

PROLOGUE

IN the month of December 1918, and on the very day that a British Cavalry Division marched into Cologne, with flags flying and bands playing as the conquerors of a beaten nation, the manager of the Hotel Nationale in Berne received a letter. Its contents appeared to puzzle him somewhat, for having read it twice he rang the bell on his desk to summon his secretary. Almost immediately the door opened, and a young French girl came into the room.

"Monsieur rang?" She stood in front of the manager's desk, awaiting instructions.

"Have we ever had staying in the hotel a man called le Comte de Guy?" He leaned back in his chair and looked at her through his pince-nez.

The secretary thought for a moment and then shook her head.

"Not as far as I can remember," she said.

"Do you know anything about him? Has he ever fed here, or taken a private room?"

Again the secretary shook her head.

"Not that I know of."

The manager handed her the letter, and waited in silence until she had read it.

"It seems on the face of it a peculiar request from an unknown man," he remarked as she laid it down. "A dinner of four covers; no expense to be spared. Wines specified and if not in hotel to be obtained. A private room at half-past seven sharp. Guests to ask for room X."

The secretary nodded in agreement.

"It can hardly be a hoax," she remarked after a short silence.

"No." The manager tapped his teeth with his pen thoughtfully. "But if by any chance it was, it would prove an expensive one for us. I wish I could think who this Comte de Guy is."

"He sounds like a Frenchman," she answered. Then after a pause: "I suppose you'll have to take it seriously?"

"I must." He took off his pince-nez and laid them on the desk in front of him. "Would you send the maitre d'hotel to me at once."

Whatever may have been the manager's misgivings, they were certainly not shared by the head waiter as he left the office after receiving his instructions. War and short rations had not been conducive to any particularly lucrative business in his sphere; and the whole sound of the proposed entertainment seemed to him to contain considerable promise. Moreover, he was a man who loved his work, and a free hand over preparing a dinner was a joy in itself. Undoubtedly he personally would meet the three guests and the mysterious Comte de Guy; he personally would see that they had nothing to complain of in the matter of the service at dinner. . . .

And so at about twenty minutes past seven the maitre d'hotel was hovering around the hall porter: the manager round the maitre d'hotel, and the secretary was hovering round both. At five-and-twenty minutes past the first guest arrived. . . .

He was a peculiar-looking man, in a big fur coat, reminding one irresistibly of a cod-fish.

"I wish to be taken to Room X."

The French secretary stiffened involuntarily as the maitre d'hotel stepped obsequiously forward. Cosmopolitan as the hotel was, even now she could never hear German spoken without an inward shudder of disgust.

"A Boche," she murmured in disgust to the manager as the first arrival disappeared through the swing doors at the end of the lounge. It is to be regretted that that worthy man was more occupied in shaking himself by the hand, at the proof that the letter was bona fide, than in any meditation on the guest's nationality.

Almost immediately afterwards the second and third members of the party arrived. They did not come together and what seemed peculiar to the manager was that they were evidently strangers to one another.

The leading one—a tall gaunt man with a ragged beard and a pair of piercing eyes—asked in a nasal and by no means an inaudible tone for Room X. As he spoke a little fat man who was standing just behind him started perceptibly, and shot a bird-like glance at the speaker.

Then in execrable French he too asked for Room X.

"He's not French," said the secretary excitedly to the manager as the ill-assorted pair were led out of the lounge by the head waiter. "That last one was another Boche."

The manager thoughtfully twirled his pince-nez between his fingers.

"Two Germans and an American." He looked a little apprehensive. "Let us hope the dinner will appease everybody. Otherwise——"

But whatever fears he might have entertained with regard to the furniture in Room X, they were not destined to be uttered. Even as he spoke the door again swang open, and a man with a thick white scarf around his neck, so pulled up as almost completely to cover his face, came in. A soft hat was pulled down well over his ears, and all that the manager could swear to as regards the newcomer's appearance was a pair of deep-set, steel-grey eyes which seemed to bore through him.

"You got my letter this morning?"

"M'sieur le Comte de Guy?" The manager bowed deferentially and rubbed his hands together. "Everything is ready, and your three guests have arrived."

"Good. I will go to the room at once."

The maitre d'hotel stepped forward to relieve him of his coat, but the Count waved him away.

"I will remove it later," he remarked shortly. "Take me to the room."

As he followed his guide his eyes swept round the lounge. Save for two or three elderly women of doubtful nationality, and a man in the American Red Cross, the place was deserted; and as he passed through the swing doors he turned to the head waiter.

"Business good?" he asked.

No—business decidedly was not good. The waiter was voluble. Business had never been so poor in the memory of man. . . . But it was to be hoped that the dinner would be to Monsieur le Comte's liking. . . . He personally had superintended it. . . . Also the wines.

"If everything is to my satisfaction you will not regret it," said the Count tersely. "But remember one thing. After the coffee has been brought in, I do not wish to be disturbed under any circumstances whatever." The head waiter paused as he came to a door, and the Count repeated the last few words. "Under no circumstances whatever."

"Mais certainement, Monsieur le Comte. . . . I, personally, will see to it. . . ."

As he spoke he flung open the door and the Count entered. It cannot be said that the atmosphere of the room was congenial. The three occupants were regarding one another in hostile silence, and as the Count entered they, with one accord, transferred their suspicious glances to him.

For a moment he stood motionless, while he looked at each one in turn. Then he stepped forward. . . .

"Good evening, gentlemen"—he still spoke in French—"I am honoured at your presence." He turned to her head waiter. "Let dinner be served in five minutes exactly."

With a bow the man left the room, and the door closed.

"During that five minutes, gentlemen, I propose to introduce myself to you, and you to one another." As he spoke he divested himself of his coat and hat. "The business which I wish to discuss we will postpone, with your permission, till after the coffee, when we shall be undisturbed."

In silence the three guests waited while he unwound the thick white muffler then, with undisguised curiosity, they studied their host. In appearance he was striking. He had a short dark beard, and in profile his face was aquiline and stern. The eyes, which had so impressed the manager, seemed now to be cold grey-blue; the thick brown hair flecked slightly with grey, was brushed back from a broad forehead. His hands were large and white; not effeminate but capable and determined: the hand of a man who knew what he wanted, knew how to get it, and got it. To even the most superficial observer the giver of the feast was a man of power: a man capable of forming instant decisions and of carrying them through. . . .

And if so much was obvious to the superficial observer, it was more than obvious to the three men who stood by the fire watching him. They were what they were simply owing to the fact that they were not superficial servers of humanity; and each one of them, as he watched his host, realised that he was in the presence of a great man. It was enough: great men do not send fool invitations to dinner to men of international repute. It mattered not what form his greatness took—there was money in greatness, big money. And money was their life. . . .

Voice of the People

Sir,—Allow me a little space in your valuable paper to express myself with regard to this so-called Provincial Highway. There seems to be great rejoicing at the fine road we are getting built here. It will be a great benefit to motorists and will no doubt make travelling to town a lot easier. It has no doubt given employment to quite a few who would have otherwise been idle. But those who needed the job worst could not seem to get the job. There are lots who could have done without it and who have been favored all summer and are beginning to tremble now for fear of the job shutting down. It seems to be the same with the farmers who they get their stone from. Some farmers could get a good job done and others would have to take whatever they liked to give them. It must be a case of politics. In one place they would make a clean job, even going so far in some cases as to pick the stone off the fields and in other places they would take a good stone fence and leave an awful mess of big stones for the farmer to clean up himself. The same thing applies to gateways. Some could get a culvert 25 feet long and another farmer got a culvert which, if he had any firewater in him, he would go over the end of it and break his neck. Some farmers got their lanes stoned, too. They say they stoned the lanes because they destroyed them drawing stone over them, but there are farmers who got their lanes stoned who did not give them a stone at all. They have even rolled them with the steam roller right up to their doors. Some farmers could not even plough straight for the stone piles, so they got them taken away and it is no straighter now; it would break a snake's back to crawl up the furrow. There are places where they have taken stone and the rest is all piled up on the public highway, which is going to cause trouble if not attended to at once. I think it is up to the township council to see that these are removed at once. It is nice for the farmer to have all these things but not at the expense of the country in these hard itmes.

Signed. FAIR PLAY.

ROBERTSON REPLIES TO JAMES MURDOCK.

OTTAWA, November 5 (Canadian Press). — Asked regarding the assertions made by James Murdock, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, former member of the Board of Commerce, and Liberal candidate in Toronto South, that the Government had cut rates of pay to railway employees, Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labour, said:

"All of the railway employees in train service on Government-owned lines in Canada had their wages reduced on 16th July last, as was done on all other lines in both Canada and the United States, except that in the United States the reduction dated from 1st July. The Government does not employ one single man in train service that is not governed by the general agreement recently effected through a Board of Conciliation and to which Mr. Murdock's organisation was a subscribing party. On the Welland Ship Canal the contractors employ a number of men who switch the cars loaded with rock from the cut to the mammoth rock crusher situated along the Canal near Thorold. They can in no sense be regarded as railroad employees. Never at any time has Mr. Murdock or any other representative of railway employees, appoached or communicated with the Government respecting wages paid these men, as they most assuredly would have done had they themselves regarded these men as coming within the class of bona-fide railway employees. Rates prevailing for similar service in that territory have been paid."

It Soaks the Dirt Out

Rinso—the new form of soap in granules—is so rich in cleansing power that it loosens the dirt as the clothes soak—dirt runs away in the rinsing. Start using Rinso the next time you do your washing.

See how just a little sousing up and down in the rich suds—and then thorough rinsing in either warm or cold water—will leave them sweet and clean, without the washboard or boiler.

For particularly dirty clothes, such as cuff edges, collar bands, it will be necessary to rub between the hands.

If you have a washing machine—

Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing suds loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean, even the most soiled spots.

WHAT DID BETTY BUY?

COPY OF BETTY'S LETTER

Dear Mr. Simpson

You know Clara Green, don't you? WELL SHE WANTED TO BE A NURSE. What do you think of that? OF COURSE SHE WAS SIMPLY TRYING TO APE A SISTER OF MINE. However she left for Toronto taking her maid Topsy to carry her luggage. When they got to the station the train was pulling out. THEY RAN SO FAST TOPSY RUPTURED A BLOOD VESSEL IN HER LEG. However Clara got on the train alright. Then what do you think happened? SHE TUMBLED AND FELL PEL-MEL ON HER BAGGAGE. Isn't that funny? I BET SHE WANTED TO BAN A NASTY ENGINEER FOR JERKING THE TRAIN SO. She soon got herself in order and reached her seat safely. SHE TOOK OUT A BOOK BY CHARLES LAMB READ A PAGE AND FELL ASLEEP. On arriving in Toronto she woke with a start, and hurried off. Her baggage was heavy and looked a burden. A NICE CHAP PLEADED TO HELP HER. She refused to let him as he was a stranger. But after walking two blocks she was tired out. THEN SHE THOUGHT HERSELF A SIMPLE MONSTER FOR REFUSING HIS HELP. She finally reached the Training School and registered. But she didn't like it a bit. She felt very blue. IN FACT AT HER DINNER SHE ATE A VERY LITTLE. She fought with her room mate. IN A FIT OF JEALOUSY OR ANGER SHE LEFT. However before going home she bought a new dress at Smith's store. When she tried it on it didn't fit. SO SHE TOOK IT TO SMITH'S ALTERATION ROOM FOR CHANGES. Even then it didn't fit, and she wouldn't keep it. SO APPLYING FOR REFUND SHE GOT HER MONEY BACK. Then she took the next train for home. Isn't that an interesting story?

Betty Beatty.

PUZZLE FIND ABOVE THE NAMES OF 12 ARTICLES SOLD IN A GROCERY STORE

John Simpson was amazed when he read the above letter, which Betty Beatty had handed him. "Ou. order is in that letter" said Betty. "I've hidden the name of each article I've come to buy in each of the underlined sentences. Puzzle it out and I'll tell you the quantities. "Well" said Mr. Simpson "I can't find the name of a single article in my story that is mentioned in your note." "Of course you can't" said Betty. But here's the clue. In each underlined sentence I've hidden one name. It is only the name of a grocery, fruit or vegetable and there is just one thing in each sentence. The letters aren't jumbled and all you have to do is to find the right letter to start on. For instance, if you start on the letter "B" in the fifth word of the first underlined sentence you will quickly see B-E-A-N. That's the name of one of the things I want. There are twelve items altogether, and the name of each one is hidden in one of the underlined sentences. So now what do I want? Find the names and you get the order."

John Simpson puzzled the letter out and got the order. Can you do as well? If you can mail your answers at once. Over $2500.00 in prizes and rewards is being given. Remember there are no trade mark name or products of any particular manufacturer. In many cases, as in the first underlined sentence, the single name as "Bean" and not the plural "Beans" is used. Be very careful, therefore, if you find the names to spell them exactly as they appear in the sentence.

THIS GREAT CONTEST IS ABSOLUTELY FREE OF EXPENSE

There is nothing to pay—nothing to buy!

This wonderful Contest is nothing more nor less than a great advertising and introduction campaign. It is absolutely free of expense. You may enter and win the best of the prizes without spending a single cent of your money. You do not have to buy anything, or subscribe to anything, in order to compete.

The Contest is conducted by the Continental Publishing Co. Limited, one of the strongest and best known publishing houses in Canada. That is your guarantee that the prizes will be awarded with absolute fairness and squareness.

Three independent judges, having no connection of any kind with this firm, will judge the answers at the close of the Contest and award the prizes. Contestants must agree to abide by their decisions.

In sending your solution use one side of the paper only, and put your name and address (stating whether Miss, Mrs., Mr. or Master) in the upper left hand corner. If you wish to write anything but your answers use a seperate sheet of paper.

The answers gaining 240 points will win first prize. You get 110 points if you find all the words correctly (10 points for each correct answer, excepting 1 which is given) and 20 points will be given for general neatness, punctuation and spelling, 10 points for handwriting and 100 points for fulfilling a simple condition of the Contest. This condition is only that you assist in this big advertising campaign by showing a copy of Everywoman's World, Canada's greatest Magazine (which we will send you post paid) to just four friends or neighbours, who will appreciate this really worth while Canadian publication and want it to come to them every month. You will easily fulfill this simple condition in a few minutes of your spare time. The Contest will close at 6 p.m. June 30th, 1928, immediately after which the judges will start to judge the answers and award the prizes.

DON'T DELAY Send your answer today: This announcement may not appear in this paper again. Address The Contest Manager, Continental Publishing Co. Limited 45 Toronto Ont.

WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she would not be without them. The Tablets are a perfect home remedy. They regulate the bowels and stomach; drive out constipation and break up colds and simple fever and make baby healthy and happy. Concerning them Mrs. Noble A. Pye, Ecum Secum, N. S. writes:—"I have found Baby's Own Tablets of great benefit for my children and I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MILK WAY HEALTH WAY

The State of Illinois, U.S.A., realizing the need for increased consumption of milk as a health measure, educational organizations, including public school authorities, are co-operating in the conduction of State-wide milk campaigns. A central committee is recommending that campaigns be conducted during the first year in either three or four

A general manager will be selected. He will be assisted with a corps of women workers to work with women's clubs and in the schools, giving talks, directing the milk fairy play, weighing and measuring the children, etc.

The National Dairy Council plan of campaign work will be followed which calls for publicity in the schools, among women's clubs, through mass meetings, through church co-operation, through newspapers, bill-boards, moving pictures and street cars, and through window displays.

Already the Cleveland campaign has begun. Columbus and surrounding territory and Canton began this October. It is the plan to continue this work from year to year, expanding as conditions demand.

Right now there is every indication that there will be a big surplus of milk this winter. More men are milking cows and they are feeding them better than usual, hence there is a big surplus of milk. A milk campaign is the best solution of this problem. Right now there are thousands of people out of employment who must reduce the cost of living. A milk campaign will tell them how.

And there are thousands of men and women in poor health, and thousands of children undernourished and starving, who could be healthy and strong if they only knew that "The Milk Way is the Health Way" and followed it. This condition, too, can be largely overcome with a milk campaign over a long period.

Whatever way you look at it, a milk campaign is decidedly beneficial. Everybody gains in playing the milk game. In baseball or other games, one side looses, but in the milk campaign everybody wins—the producer, the distributor, and the consumer.
